PIERCE ANTWERP DEFENSES

BOYS AND GIRLS EARN $16,000 BY GARDENING

Year Race for Cook County Rural School Prizes Brings Cash.

GIVEN EXPERT AID

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Working for prizes offered last fall by THE TRIBUNE some 1,300 pupils of the rural schools of Cook county have so far earned at least $16,000 in cash. This considerable sum of money—which will be increased before the year is over—represents the proceeds of sales of vegetables, eggs, and poultry, raised and cultivated by the boys and girls themselves.

In a single school—that in district 73, Niles township—of which Seth Shepard is teacher, twenty-nine pupils have already raised and sold $820 worth of garden truck. When the boys who are now harvesting corn and other field crops have sold their produce the cash income of this single school is expected to rise above $1,000.

The educational eyes of the whole United States are centered on the rural schools of Cook county, which, under the direction of County Superintendent Tobin, are said by authorities to be setting an example to the world.

Trained Farm Expert on Hand.

In no other county, for instance, are the rural schools divided into five divisions, with a trained teacher and agricultural college graduate at the head of each. These five men, who draw salaries of $2,000, are called school and country life directors and are on duty twelve months in the year. During the long summer vacation they are particularly busy, visiting the homes of their pupils and advising with them about their growing crops. One of these directors traveled more than 10,000 miles last year, entirely within his division of four Cook county townships.

But even they are not able to visit all the pupils as frequently as desired, and Supt. Tobin is working towards an ideal in which every rural school teacher shall be a competent farmer and gardener and shall be employed for twelve months in every year. As a striking example of the result of such a policy the returns from district 73 are cited, where Mr. Shepard was on duty the whole year, being, it is said, the only "wanderlehrer" in the United States.

1,300 Boys and Girls.

But every one of the 1,300 boys and girls in the 102 one room country schools in Cook county has, as a part of the regular school work, planted and taken care of a garden or a field crop, has worked in one of the vegetable canning clubs, or has raised and sold poultry and eggs.

Some of the individual results are astonishing. Here, for instance, is Miss Dena van Beveran, who lives on a farm in Clearing township. She rented one-quarter of an acre of land from her father. Under the school rules she was obliged to pay the prevailing rate of rental for the land. She set out, weeded, cultivated, and gathered a crop of onions from the quarter acre which was sold for $192.

Canning Lore for Boys.

Out near Morton Grove lives Harvey Brooks, who, renting an acre of land from his father, has given a first class example of intensive farming. He has planted and sold crops of radishes, beets, lettuce, beans, onions, carrots, and peppers, and has sold vegetables to the amount of $225 from the single acre. On some of the land the boy raised no less than five consecutive crops during the season.

Though the vegetable canning clubs are formed especially for the girls—the canning club at one school has put up more than 700 quarts—a pathetic little story, coming from Willow Springs, shows there may be circumstances under Registration by Wards in Chicago.

More than a quarter of a million voters went to the polls yesterday and registered for the fall election. The exact total was 283,935. Of these 215,744 were men and 68,191 were women.

The showing was fair. A second chance comes on Oct. 13. Here are the first day's figures:

Two Days in a Guard House; McCutcheon Tells About It

(In a new series of letters, of which this is the first, Mr. McCutcheon, The Tribune's War Correspondent, takes up his experiences with the German Army after he and his newspaper companions had been placed in the guard house by the Germans at Beaumont, on the Belgian frontier, previous to being sent back to Aix-La-Chapelle.)

BY JOHN T. M'CUTCHEON.

[Copyright: 1914: By John T. McCutcheon.]

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, Sept. 15.—Of all the disagreable sensations which a perfectly innocent person may feel the most unpleasant is that of being considered a spy in times of war. Not only are the physical consequences unpleasant to contemplate but the psychological effect upon one's bearing and actions is humiliating.

When I was taken into the guardhouse at Beaumont and confined in a small room with a French suspect, a Belgian suspect, five Americans, one negro chauffeur, and some French and Belgian prisoners of war the sensation was far from exhilarating.

Told They Were Guests.

A high officer that morning had assured me and my four companions that we were not prisoners, but were guests under detention, awaiting an opportunity to be sent to Brussels.

Then the officer had departed with the general and the staff, and we were turned over to a tall young lieutenant, who presumably was ordered to send us to Brussels if an opportunity arose.

At any rate we assumed that such were his orders, even though subsequent events did not support such an assumption. It was our belief that he was to hold us under surveillance until an automobile could be secured and that we should then be sent under escort back to Brussels.

No Chance of Seeing Brussels.

As I look back upon the incident I am more inclined to the belief that at no time was there any intention of sending us to Brussels, but that orders were given to hold us and send us to some place in Germany. That, at any rate, is what happened.

While the general and his staff were in Beaumont we were allowed considerable liberty. We were free to move about the town, providing we made no attempt to leave it. As soon, however, as the staff left for the front, together with most of the troops, we were at once denied this freedom of moving about and were placed under a guard armed with a rifle and a long bayonet.

"You are not prisoners," said tall young Lieut. Mittendorfer, "but you must not leave this spot."

Looked on with Suspicion.

We sat upon the said spot until the middle of the afternoon, when we saw the young lieutenant in conference with another officer. The latter was looking at us with disapproval. A few minutes later we were marched into the guard house—ostensibly because it was raining—and were projected into a little room with real prisoners. If there was any distinction between us it was not evident.

I shall never forget the sensation of being in that guard room. The place was not pleasant. The floor was half a foot deep in straw and was hardly twelve or fifteen feet square. In this little room the night before had slept twenty-one French prisoners, eight Belgian prisoners, and four suspected spies. A few minutes before we were taken in most of the French and Belgian soldiers were taken out, so that only the suspected spies, the Congo negro chauffeur, and one or two French prisoners remained.

Guarded by German Sentries.

A serious looking sentry stood in the doorway and another stood at the one window which opened on the street. To this window came scores of soldiers, who looked in at us and muttered unpleasant things about spies. In their eyes we were all spies and necessarily guilty because we were under confinement.

There was not a friendly face at the window, for no matter how friendly the Germans may be to those they know to be all right, they certainly do not feel friendly to those they believe to be spies in league with the enemy.

There is no doubt that every one of the men who glared at us would gladly have taken his place in a firing squad detailed to finish us off. I don't blame them for feeling that way. A spy is never a popular figure in an enemy's camp.

Not Prisoners, but——

Of course we were not prisoners (?), but we certainly looked like it. We were guests who were not allowed to leave the room under penalty of having a bayonet stuck through us. It is not to be wondered at that we felt betrayed, for we had acted in good faith and supposed that an order had been given in good faith to have us returned to Brussels.

In explanation of our imprisonment, we

PEACE PRAYER GOES UP TODAY ALL OVER LAND

Chicago Joins Nation in Supplication Against War.

BIG SHOWING PLANNED

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Prayer for the world's peace. Prayer for the president on the United States and for all the rulers of the world. Prayer for soldiers and sailors, for suffering widows, wives, and children. Prayer for the crystallizing of the desire for peace in America.

One united, fervent, humble, and devout prayer that shall ascend today as the voice of one person to the heavenly Father.

This is to be the offering of the people of this country in church, in the open air, in hamlets, villages, and great cities. It is to make this one day a day of petition, as in November we shall make one day a day of thanksgiving.

Big Auditorium Meeting.

Probably the largest single meeting will be the one to be held in the Auditorium, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, with the doors open for a half hour preceding.

Gov. Dunne is to be the chief speaker. Bishop Samuel Fallows will preside. Bishop Charles P. Anderson and Miss Jane Addams also will deliver addresses and the Rev. John P. Brushingham will present the appeal from the Red Cross. Harrison Wild will preside at the organ and D. B. Towner, assisted by united choirs, will lead the singing of anthems and the "Star Spangled Banner." Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will sing an aria. The service is open to the public without tickets.

Open Air Meeting on Lake Front.

Provision is also made for an open air program in the park near the lake shore opposite the Auditorium, which will be in charge of the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones. The Grand Army of the Republic posts and members of the state militia have been invited and are expected to take part in the program.

A delegation representing twenty-five Jewish congregations announced that in all of the Jewish places of worship Peace day would be observed at the evening service. The day marks the beginning of the Sucoth, or harvest festival. The synagogues and temples will be decorated. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, rabbi of Sinai congregation, will speak in the morning at 10:30 o'clock on the subject, "Has Religion Failed?"

Catholics Will Observe Day.

In Roman Catholic churches there will be a universal recognition of the proclamation of the president as to prayer for peace. The first Sunday of the month of October each year is devoted in a special way to prayer for peace, and this fact, together with the desire to recognize the national appeal for peace, will insure the universality of the peace prayers.

A special proclamation was sent to the Pythian Sisters of Illinois by Mrs. Alverda J. Hensley, grand chief of the order in the state, urging the observance of the day in accordance with the Pythian principles of peace.

Union Service in Tent.

A union service is to be held under the auspices of the Washington Park Business Men's association in a tent located at Sixty-third street and Rhodes avenue. The Rev. E. H. Curtis, pastor of the Woodlawn Presbyterian church, will preside. The following program will be given:

Invocation.........The Rev. Paul Paulson
Hymn..........America
Led by chorus choir.
Prayer..........E. C. Arnold
Introductory address..........F. A. Garlick
Reading of peace day proclamation.
Hymn..........Selected
Led by chorus choir.
Announcements......S. Benenscha, president
Offering, for sufferers in the European war zone
Prayer.
Address..........The Rev. S. E. Robb
Hymn..........Selected
Led by chorus choir.
Prayer.
Prof. H. B. Maryott, leader of chorus choir.
Mrs. Anne Pearson-Maryott, pianist.

Rabbi to Speak in Evening.

In the evening at 8 o'clock Rabbi Gerson B Levi of Congregation B'Nai Sholom, Temple Israel, will be the principal speaker at the same place, with Mrs. O. H. Runyan, soloist.

Three Evanston churches will unite in

Germans Reduce First Outposts of Belgian City

Heavy Cannon Fire Forces Retreat Into the Inner Ring.

LAND BEING FLOODED

LONDON, Oct. 4, 2 a. m.—The Belgian legation last night, in an official statement, admitted that the Belgian army has been unable to hold its first line of defenses south of Antwerp along the Senne river and between the Senne and the Dyle. The Belgians have been compelled to withdraw to their secondary line, which follows the curve of the Nethe river and which is claimed to be impregnable. The official statement says:

"On the east of the Senne river we have been obliged to withdraw from our positions and fall back upon the Nethe river line on account of the violent attack by the German artillery. We held the Senne-Dyle positions for five days in the face of the most furious assaults.

"Our new position along the Nethe is strong, and we will resist there until the last ounce of our energy."

A dispatch received yesterday, carrying an official announcement from Berlin, said:

"Before Antwerp, Fort Wavre, St. Catherines, and the redoubt Borpevelvt, with their intermediate works, were assaulted yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Fort Waelhem has been invested."

King Albert at Front.

ANTWERP, Oct. 3.—The Germans continue their bombardment of the Antwerp defenses and the southern forts are being subjected to a terrific rain of shells. King Albert and members of the general staff are at the front.

Belgian airmen, aided by British scouts especially sent here for the purpose, are doing good work in giving the Belgian defenses the range of the German artillery. In consequence the German guns are being put out of business when their crews are killed.

On a number of occasions the Belgians have withheld their fire until the Germans, convinced that they had put the forts out of business, have dashed forward by entire regiments only to be received by a deadly fire which has annihilated them.

Under orders from King Albert all of the dykes and sluices have been opened and the low lands, especially in the valley of the Scheldt, are covered with water waist deep.

Holland to Aid Refugees.

HULST, Holland, Oct. 3.—Preparatory to the final siege of Antwerp, large detachments of German troops, composed for the most part of naval reserves and landwehr, moved westward parallel with the Dutch frontier.

Several villages between Alost and Ghent have been deserted by the inhabitants. Driving their cattle before them and removing as much as possible of their furniture on wheelbarrows, the Flemish peasants are moving westward as fast as they can.

Large numbers will be obliged to cross the frontier into Dutch territory. Everything is ready to receive them.

SON OF LORD COWDRAY SLAIN BY GERMAN SENTRY.

Heir of British Oil Magnate, Member of Parliament, Had Been Taken Prisoner.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Lieut. Harold Pearson, son of Lord Cowdray, the noted oil financier, who was taken prisoner at the battle of Marne, was later shot and killed by a German sentry while trying to escape.

He and his orderly, a private named Mackay, bolted from the prison inclosure while they thought the attention of the sentry was engaged elsewhere. The sentry fired, killing Lieut. Pearson. Mackay escaped, and, obtaining peasants' clothing, drove a calf through the German lines and reached the British forces.

Cavendish-Bentinck Wounded.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The name of Lieut. Ralph Cavendish-Bentinck appears among the wounded in the list of casualties issued by the war office tonight.

LINDER DENIES HE'S DEAD.

Famed "Movie" Artist, Reported Killed in Battle of Aisne, Telephones He's Only Wounded.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Max Linder, "the man with the mobile countenance," probably the most noted "movie" artist in all Europe, who was reported as having been killed in action at the battle of the Aisne tonight telephone the newspapers that he is still alive. He stated that he had been wounded but that he is now convalescent.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS.

ROME, via London, Oct. 3.—The correspondent of the Tribuna at Nish, Servia, telegraphs today that the Servians, after passing the River Save and occupying the Hungarian town of Semlin, seized the Austrian batteries, ammunition and supplies, and destroyed the forts, returning to Belgrade with immense booty.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Millard Shaler, an American residing in Brussels, is in London endeavoring to arrange for a food supply for Brussels. England has placed an embargo on the exportation of food to any country during the war, but it would probably furnish food for Belgians if satisfactory guarantees were given that the supplies would reach Belgians.

Incidents of the War.

PETROGRAD—With the coöperation of the Imperial Opera company, M. Chaliapin, the famous singer, is organizing a special hospital for wounded Russian soldiers.

PARIS—Sherif Tidjani, whose father is the head chief of three million African tribesmen, has joined the French cavalry.

LONDON—Fiction is at a discount in all the London public libraries, but it has been found impossible to supply the demand for books on naval and military subjects.

LONDON—"We have plenty to eat and smoke," writes a British sapper from the firing line. "The only thing that bothers me is that I've lost all my trousers buttons."

LONDON—Queen Elizabeth of Belgium gave her patronage to a special matinée of "Potash and Perlmutter" at the Queen's theater, the proceeds going to the Belgian war relief fund.

CARRANZA OFFERS TO QUIT; GENERALS OPPOSING STEP.

Resignation Brings on Fierce Debate with Little Likelihood of Early Decision—Battle at Naco.

Mexico City, Oct. 3.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza placed his resignation as first chief of the Constitutionalists before the delegates to the general conference of southern chiefs shortly before 8 o'clock tonight.

From that time until a late hour the question of whether the resignation should be accepted was fiercely debated with no immediate prospects of a vote.

Orators opposed to the acceptance of Gen. Carranza's withdrawal were repeatedly cheered by delegates and spectators. A motion was made that the first chief be informed that it would be impossible to accept his patriotic act of abnegation, but the hours passed without a vote being taken on the motion owing to the turmoil in the chamber.

Battle On at Naco.

Naco, Sonora, Mexico, Oct. 3.—Desultory fighting on all sides of the town marked the opening tonight of the attack by Gov. Maytorena's forces of Villa's army on Gen. Benjamin Hill's troops which have been intrenched here for a week.

Maytorena's troops have been reported as advancing on this city for two or three days.

Hill's forces were defeated last by Maytorena's forces at Santa Barbara, east of here, in an encounter in which one hundred men were killed or severely wounded.

COST OF WAR TO FRANCE IS $7,000,000 EACH DAY.

Minister of Finance Announces Outlay for First Two Months Is $420,000,000.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The war is costing France $7,000,000 a day. Minister of Finance Alexandre Ribot announced today that the outlay for the first sixty days of the conflict had been $420,000,000.

DUKE UNDER CLOSE GUARD.

Noble Transferred to Another French Prison Because He Had Violated Rules.

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 3.—News has been received here that the Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, about whom the kaiser was so solicitous when he was a prisoner in the hands of the Belgians, violated the rules in the French prison at Belle Isle, to which he had been transferred, and became troublesome. He was then transferred to the prison at Port Louis, where a guard was placed over him.

CROWN PRINCE LEADS FORCES IN BIG FIGHT

Both Allies and Germans Claim Gains on Long Front.

BATTLE RAGES AT ROYE

[By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Official dispatches from Paris and Berlin today were of such conflicting nature that it was impossible to decide which, if either, of the armies had the better of the day's engagements.

From Paris it was reported that the army of the German crown prince, attempting to pass the woods of Gruric, in the Argonne region, had been thrown back toward the north and that on the allies' left wing repeated attempts of the Germans to break through the French and British lines extending north from Roye through Albert had been repulsed with great losses. It also was claimed that the allies' advance in the heights of the Meuse was going forward.

On the other hand, Berlin reported that the German right had defeated many attempts of the allies to make a flanking movement north of Roye, that the German advance in the Argonne region was continuing, and that east of the Meuse repeated night attacks of the French had been defeated.

FRENCH OFFICAL STATEMENT.

The official statement given out in Paris tonight said:

"First—On our left wing the violent action which has been progressing since yesterday continues without interruption, particularly in the region of Roye, where we have repulsed all attacks, although upon this part of the front the enemy has been reinforced by additions taken from the enemy's center, as has been previously noted.

"Second—Upon the center nothing is to be noted from Reims to the Argonne region. In the Argonne district the Sixteenth German corps (the army of the crown prince), which had attempted to slip by through the woods of Gruric, has been driven back toward the north of the Varennes-la-Harazee-Viennes-la Ville line.

"In the Woevre district and upon the heights of the Meuse our progress is always slow, but continuous.

"In the Belgian field the Germans are bombarding the front southeast of the Antwerp position without being yet able to produce any considerable effect upon the works. They have delivered many infantry attacks, which have been repulsed."

GERMAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The announcement made by the German army headquarters carried in a message from Berlin says:

"The right wing of the German army in France has repulsed renewed efforts on the part of the French to outflank it. To the south of Roye the French have been dislodged from their positions.

"The situation on the center of the battle front remains unchanged.

"German troops advancing in the Argonne region have won substantial advances in a southerly direction.

"East of the River Meuse French troops from Toul undertook energetic night attacks, but were repulsed.

"The western and important outer epaulement of the Termonde fortifications is in our possession."

HARDEST FIGHTING AT ROYE.

Roye, the little town on the main road from Amiens to Noyon, the heights around which have been alternately occupied by the French and the Germans during the last week, is still the center of a battle of great violence.

The Germans, who are fighting stubbornly to protect their flank at this point, have brought up reinforcements, but, according to the French official communication issued this afternoon, all their attacks have been repulsed.

The action, however, is still proceeding and upon it much depends, for if the Germans are beaten their line of communication at Tergnier will be seriously threatened.

Of other operations on this front,

EMPEROR NICHOLAS WILL DIRECT RUSSIANS IN CAMPAIGN AGAINST GERMANY.

which extends as far north as Arras, nothing has been disclosed since the French themselves announced that their force, which was debouching from Arras, had fallen back slightly on the east and north of that town.

There is evidence from other sources that the Germans are making preparations to protect their flank, should a retirement become necessary. They have evacuated West Flanders, the most western province in Belgium, and their attack on Antwerp is believed by many to be designed to keep the Belgians busy and prevent them from operating on what would be Gen. von Kluck's left should he fall back through Belgium.

CROWN PRINCE FIGHTS HARD.

The Germans, it is admitted, are remaining on the offensive on the French right. The army of the crown prince, which has been in the thick of the fighting since the Germans began their invasion of France, has made an attempt to slip through the woods of Crurie, but, the French report says, was thrown back to the north of the Varennes-La Harazee-Vienne-La Ville road.

This road pierces the northern part of the Argonne forest, so that the French must have made a considerable advance in this region and straightened out the line from the north of Verdun to the north of Reims.

This attack of the crown prince's army doubtless is what the Germans referred to in their report to the effect that the troops advancing in the Argonne had gained ground in a southerly direction.

ARTILLERY DUEL ON CENTER.

Along the center the Germans have been keeping up a heavy artillery fire on the British and French forces intrenched in front of them, but the allies' accounts say little damage has been done.

The real work is being done on the two wings and the troops in the center, who have had much fighting, are being given a respite until the moment comes for them to move again. This, of course, depends upon the success or failure of the outflanking operations.

LONG BATTLE IS EXPECTED.

Though the German right is less than fifty miles from the Belgian frontier, never since the outbreak of the war, apparently, have the people of Great Britain been more reconciled to the idea that the struggle yet to come will be long and terrible.

When the Germans first began to retreat, after their rush toward Paris, hope ran high that some master stroke would bring complete rout to the invaders. Now, however, many observers emphasize that even should the present battle line be turned the Germans would only fall back on equally strong entrenchments.

VIEW OF MILITARY EXPERT.

The military expert of the Times today says:

"However much we may bend back the German right wing and relieve Antwerp, whatever confidence we have that the shock of the Russian masses in the east will prove decisive, we must not entertain the slightest illusion regarding the hard and trying condition which awaits all the allies in the future in operating against Germany reduced to the defensive.

"Germany is still united. Its resources grow atop. All its might in arms, all its arsenals are working at full pressure. Its fleet will strike when the hour comes, probably in coöperation with the army.

"The line of the Aisne, when forced, may prove to be only one of many similar lines prepared in the rear of it. It may take a long time for the allies to compel Germany to feel a weakness. It therefore devolves upon the allies to look forward to a long war."

HARD FIGHT NEAR VERDUN.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—A correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger, who has witnessed the military operations in the Argonne forest and north of Verdun, telegraphs his paper that the bombardment of Verdun still continues. Much activity at the Verdun railroad station has been noted, and there are three captive balloons over the city.

The wounded are coming in from the front in the best of spirits, the correspondent continues. The English artillery is doing efficient work in the Argonne forest and causing much trouble, but the German position is "as of iron." Up to the present time all the efforts of the enemy have been futile. While the developments are slow, the correspondent avers, it is thought that the final decision is not far off.

The population of the district is starving.

TWO GERMAN OFFICERS DESTROY RAILROAD LINE.

French Frustrated in Transportation of Ammunition and Reinforcements.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—A daring deed of two German officers attached to the Twenty-fourth pioneers resulted in the destruction of a railroad line upon which the French were transporting ammunition and reinforcements greatly needed by them to resist the Germans.

The two officers penetrated the French lines by swimming across the Meuse and making their way through swamps and over canals. They passed the French outposts and bivouacks and finally reached the railroad embankment, which they blew up with dynamite.

After this they cut an underground telegraph wire and then returned in safety to their own lines.

The two officers have received the decoration of the Iron Cross for their exploit. Another lieutenant and a corporal who started on this trip evidently lost their lives by drowning.

CZAR WILL JOIN RUSSIAN ARMIES; FORCES ADVANCE

Emperor Departs for Front and Plans to Direct Invasion of Germany.

GERMANS DRIVEN BACK

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3.—"The Russian 'steam roller' is in operation. The right wing of our active army has crushed the German offensive in Suwalki province and we are again on Prussian soil; the left has diminished the Austrian defensive so that heavy German reinforcements now hold the lines before Cracow; our center is moving steadily, expelling the Germans from Russian Poland.

"Emperor Nicholas has left for the front to witness the success of his army and to aid the commander in chief, Grand Duke Nicholas, in what we expect will show the superiority of the Russian arms. At every point our arms are victorious."

Lieut. Gen. Yanushkevich, chief of the general Russian staff, tonight thus summed up conditions in the eastern theater of war. It was the first official declaration yet made, and it emphasized the belief that it is up to Russia to end the war.

Plan to Invade Germany.

Germany will be invaded. This is the positive declaration of the general staff, and the bare announcement that the czar has gone to the front emphasizes the belief in military circles here that the decisive battle from the Russian standpoint already is in progress.

Regarding the campaign in the north the Russian general staff has announced that the Germans are retreating from Krasno, Lejpuny, and Seyny, following the capture of Augustowo and Simno, and are being pursued by the Russians. At Szczuczin and Grajewo the Germans were defeated and the Russians entered East Prussia. The general battle continues and the fighting near Mariampol has not been decided.

Further to the south near Lodz and Schihlischki the Russian advance routed the first division of German cavalry supporting an infantry force.

Battle of Cracow Begins.

The battle of Cracow is still in the initial stages. The Russian outposts have engaged the Austro-German line along the Donajeo river, just west of Tarnow, which forms a natural barrier, flowing almost directly north and south thirty-four miles east of Cracow. The battle line extends to the foothills of the Carpathian mountains and flows over into Russian Poland north of the Vistula river.

Roughly speaking, the new line of the Germans, which is designed to withstand the entire Russian advance, follows the river Wartha, where the Germans have constructed strong intrenchments. It is only about thirty miles inside of the Russian frontier. The Austro-German right flank is centered on Cracow, while the left extends to the fortress of Posen.

German Line Strongly Intrenched.

The entire line is strongly held, it being estimated that the German forces alone number at least 750,000 men, while additional troops are constantly arriving. Precautions are being taken to prevent a flanking movement by the Germans against the Russians now in Galicia.

The chief difficulty, so far as the Russians are concerned, has been the heavy rains. These have interfered with speedy movements of transport. In this respect, however, the Russian equipment is far superior to the German. The broad tires on all field equipment, constructed especially with the boggy condition of the roads in view, has made it possible to move the Russian transport, although slowly.

Russians Claim Successes.

The war office declares that with the Germans in full retreat from the vicinity of the Niemen and from Suwalki province, and with the Austrians retreating in Galicia, the original first plan of the Russian general staff has been successfully carried out.

The plan provided that the Russian right wing was to crush the Germans, the left wing to crush the Austrians, and that then all were to be combined for a general offensive movement which would compel the Germans to accept battle southwest of the Polish frontier and at a point nearest to Berlin. As a consequence, 1,000,000 Russian troops that have been held in reserve in the mobilization center at Warsaw have begun their advance.

This central army already has forced the Germans to withdraw from the vicinity of Lodz and Kalisz and is now driving the entire German line toward the Cracow battle line.

The war office estimates that the total losses to the Germans in the last fortnight will reach 60,000 in killed, wounded, and prisoners. In addition, it is stated that the Russians have captured a number of German guns and rapid firers.

Kaiser on East Front?

LONDON, Oct. 3. A Petrograd dispatch by way of Rome to the Central News says:

"The Germans are evacuating Russian territory. Whole regiments have been drowned in the Niemen river and have lost their siege artillery. The German emperor, it is declared, escaped with difficulty."

A belated dispatch from Copenhagen asserts that Emperor William has recently been at Breslau, where he decided on a fourfold offensive movement against Kovno, Warsaw, Lodz, and Galicia. When this was under way, it was added, he expected to return to the western theater of war.

A correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company at Rome says a dispatch has been received there from Bucharest saying that after occupying the principal cities of Bukowina, a crown land of Austria-Hungary, the Russians have begun an advance on Transylvania.

Austria, hoping to defeat this serious menace, has concentrated in the West Carpathians several army corps, including those formerly on the Servian frontier.

A big battle between the Austrians and the combined Russian and Servian forces is in immediate prospect.

Some Prayers for Peace.

PRAYER PREPARED BY BISHOP DAVID H. GREER of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

O God, who hast made of one blood all nations of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, and who in thy Holy Word hast taught us that One is our Father, even God, and that all we are brethren: We pray thee in this dark hour of international strife that thou wilt open the eyes of the people and those who in thy Name are intrusted with the authority of governance to see and understand their right and true relation to thee, and through thee to one another.

Teach them by thy spirit that hatred and violence are not strength but weakness; that the true safeguarding of a nation is not to be found in weapons of war but in those eternal principles which make for righteousness and truth and brotherhood and peace.

Give to those who shall suffer in the war which is raging now the consolations of thy grace. Heal the sick; comfort the wounded; minister to the dying, and bind up the broken heart. Bring, we pray thee, to a speedy end this international strife; and hasten the time when peace shall flourish out of the earth and all shall dwell together in unity and love, and war shall be no more. We ask it in the name of our Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen!

PRAYER FOR PEACE—FROM THE ROMAN MISSAL.
Used in Sacrifice of the Mass Said by Roman Catholic Priests.

O God, from whom holy desires, right counsels, and just works proceed, give to thy servants that peace which the world cannot give, so that our hearts being conformed to thy commands and the fear of the enemy being removed, the times under thy protection may be tranquil. Through Christ, our Lord. Amen.

A PRAYER FOR CHRISTENDOM.
By a Representative of the Lutheran Church.

O Lord, Almighty and Everlasting God, who, when thy people of old cried unto thee in their trouble, didst save them out of their distresses; and whose Son our Lord Jesus Christ did say, Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name he will give it you;

Hear us, we beseech thee, as we confess before thee our many and great sins, and deplore that not only each of us in his own life but that all of us as nations, and as churches, have not been mindful of thy holy will, but have been selfish, worldly, and unclean.

We are filled with pity for our fellow men and brethren beyond the seas, and with wonder that we escape thy judgments, which we do justly deserve. Forgive us, Most Gracious God, and make us sincere in judgment of ourselves; and in this time of temptation give to our people, to us, and especially to those set over us, the Spirit of Love, of Peace, of Wisdom, and of Godliness.

O God, our Heavenly Father, our kindred in blood and in faith are in great distress. Those close to us fight against each other. The dead are multiplied; wounded men lie bleeding; sorrow and amazement are everywhere; cities are desolate; the fields which thou didst make rich with food for men lie unreaped; the ancient sanctuaries of the faith are threatened; the great peoples whom we deemed thou hadst raised up to be witnesses and defenders of the faith war against each other; and hatred hath taken the place of love.

We pray that the gates of hell may not prevail against thy church. We pray that the spirit of selfishness and of strife may not possess those who have received the gospel of Jesus Christ. We pray for thy peace in our time. Have mercy, Lord. Defend thy Christendom, that we may evermore give thanks to thee.

PRAYER PREPARED BY PROF. WALTER RAUSCHENBUSCH
Rochester (Baptist) Theological School.

O Lord, since first the blood of Abel cried to thee from the ground that drank it, this earth of thine has been defiled with the blood of man shed by his brother's hand, and the centuries sob with the ceaseless horror of war. Ever the pride of kings and the covetousness of the strong has driven peaceful nations to slaughter. Ever the songs of the past and the pomp of armies have been used to inflame the passions of the people. Our spirit cries out to thee in revolt against it, and we know that our righteous anger is answered by thy holy wrath.

Break thou the spell of the enchantments that make the nations drunk with the lust of battle and draw them on as willing tools of death. Grant us a quiet and steadfast mind when our own nation clamors for vengeance or aggression. Strengthen our sense of justice and our regard for the equal worth of other peoples and races. Grant to the rulers of nations faith in the possibility of peace through justice and grant to the common people a new and stern enthusiasm for the cause of peace.

O thou strong Father of all nations, draw all thy great family together with an increasing sense of our common blood and destiny, that peace may come on earth at last and thy sun may shed its light rejoicing on a holy brotherhood of peoples.

CHICAGO JOINS IN PEACE PRAYER.

the evening in peace services at the Second Presbyterian church, Main street and Hinman avenue, Evanston.

The Rev. A. S. C. Clarke, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, will talk on "What War Has Been in the Past"; the Rev. H. C. Harman of the Hemenway Methodist Episcopal church, will talk on "War at the Present Time," and the Rev. Orvis F. Jordan, pastor of the Evanston Christian church, will give a sermon on "Universal Peace."

The services will start at 7:30 o'clock. The music will be by the McCormick Theological seminary quartet.

Six Ministers Will Assist.

The following program with six ministers assisting the pastor will be held in the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, Belden avenue and North Halsted street:

1. Prayer that our trust in God may not falter, that our nation may continue neutral in the present conflict, that our president may be divinely guided and that he and our government may be used of God to bring in the day of peace.

REV. EDGAR P. HILL.

2. Prayer for the governments of Europe now at war with one another that they may cease from slaughter, that hatred and prejudice may be banished from their counsels, and that they may meet at an early day to conclude a peace honorable and permanent providing for the welfare of all concerned.

REV. W. S. PLUMER BRYAN.

3. Prayer for the soldiers on the field as they fight and as they suffer, especially for the wounded and the dying that they may have peace with God.

REV. W. S. PLUMER BRYAN.

Praise for Soldiers, Too.

4. Prayer for the suffering peoples of Europe in the desolation of their homes, their families, their property interests, and their cities and villages, that in their great bereavement they may look to God.

REV. BENJAMIN L. HOBSON.

5. Prayer for the Christian churches of Europe that they may speak for God to their peoples and may allay animosities and console the afflicted and the bereaved and may promote the true unity of the Church of God.

REV. VICTOR W. THRALL.

6. Prayer for the mission stations of Europe, Asia, and Africa that our missionaries and our fellow Christians may be preserved in this time of danger, that their work may be blessed in the conversion of many, and that the present distress may redound to the honor of our Lord Jesus Christ.

REV. SAMUEL J. SKEVINGTON.

Sunday Evening Club's Meeting.

The Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall will devote its program, which is the first one for this season, to the general subject of peace, with the specific title, "International Brotherhood." Clifford W. Barnes, president of the club, will preside. The Scriptures will be read by L. A. Goddard, president of the Chicago Peace society. Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor Kenwood Evangelical church.

The addresses will be made by the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones; Joseph H. Defrees, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor St. James' Methodist Episcopal church. The music will be of a special character, with John B. Miller as one of the soloists, and a choir of 100 voices.

BICKNELL TELLS CHICAGO'S DUTY TO WAR VICTIMS

Should Aid Them and Idle, Too, He Explains to City Club.

DEPLORES LIFE WASTE.

American Red Cross headquarters for the middle west have been established in room 715, Marquette building, 140 South Dearborn street. Contributions will be received and information about the European relief work given out. Telephone Central 906.

The suffering on European battlefields and among the poor people of the war scourged nations was pictured to 300 members of the City club at luncheon yesterday by Ernest P. Bicknell, national director of the American Red Cross. Together with J. J. O'Connor, director of the central division, Mr. Bicknell has begun a campaign in Chicago for the collection of $100,000 for relief work.

After outlining conditions as he witnessed them on a trip from which he has just returned, the speaker answered the question—why should Chicago contribute to foreign relief work when her efforts are needed at home in coping with the problem of the unemployed?

Must Not Be Selfish.

"That is a fair question and deserves a fair answer," said Mr. Bicknell. "Chicago and the United States cannot afford to throw a mantle of selfishness about themselves and say to the rest of the world, 'We can't help you.' A great, progressive, humanitarian city like this cannot be placed in such a position. She can well do both.

"It is not to minister to the wounded men and send them back to the fighting line that the assistance of this country is sought. Less than 10 per cent of the wounded ever return. It is to prevent the terrible waste of human efficiency which results to the warring nations when their wounded men are not properly cared for at the front, but are sent to their homes crippled physically and mentally and dependent on charity for the rest of their lives.

"The war is so enormous in comparison to the work that all of the Red Cross organizations united can do that the contributions of the United States will not prolong it."

Commends "Tribune" Stories.

Mr. Bicknell commented on the stories of alleged German atrocities committed against Belgian and French soldiers and nurses, and declared the results of his observation indicated them to be untrue. He spoke commendingly of dispatches by John T. McCutcheon and James O'Donnell Bennett, TRIBUNE correspondents.

Dean Walter T. Sumner will speak at the Cathedral SS. Peter and Paul this morning on the Red Cross work, and the contributions will be turned over to the local office. The Covenant Baptist church will also tender its collections to the cause. The "peace" committee of Hinsdale has promised a contribution from every man, woman, and child in the suburb.

DR. FELIX ADLER CRITIC OF WILSON PRAYER CALL.

Leader of Society of Ethical Culture Objects to Form Used in Making Appeal.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Criticism of the form of President Wilson's call to prayer in today's observance of peace Sunday has come from the Society for Ethical Culture, whose leader, Dr. Felix Adler, will speak in the meeting house tomorrow morning on "The World Crisis and Its Meaning." In a statement issued today the society says:

"To be perfectly plain, Mr. Wilson has unfortunately overlooked the distinction between the religious belief which he holds as a private citizen and the opinion on the subject of religion which he may rightly express as the chief magistrate, and in so far the mouthpiece of the people."

More delicate regard for the just susceptibilities of religious minorities, the society contends, should be observed in such calls. The statement closes by saying that the society will seek the end the president has in view in its own way.

THE PRESIDENT TO PRAY TODAY

Will Be Humble Participant in Nation's Supplication for Peace.

OTHER OFFICIALS, TOO.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—President Wilson will be a humble participant in the mighty prayer to the Almighty for the restoration of peace throughout the world to be sent up by millions of persons in every city, town, village and hamlet of the United States tomorrow.

Although by a stroke of a pen he was able to call the God-fearing people of this nation together in their places of worship and their homes to supplicate divine conciliation of the war stricken nations of the world, his voice will mingle on an equality with those of the lowliest citizens in the tremendous appeal to God which he has initiated.

Officials of Washington will also participate in these prayers, each in his own way and at his place of worship. No attempt has been made to perform this rite in any manner bordering on the spectacular, for such a thing would not be in conformity with the spirit of the president's proclamation.

High and Low to Pray.

Members of the cabinet, justices of the Supreme court, senators and representatives and minor government officials down to the humblest clerk will join with the people of the United States and the president "in prayer and counsel and all friendliness to serve the cause of peace."

There will be special services at every army post in the country as directed by Secretary Garrison, to fulfill the purpose of the president's proclamation. Each navy chaplain has been advised by Secretary Daniels to offer special peace prayers tomorrow. Even in the federal prisons the day will be observed appropriately for the occasion.

Secretary Bryan has gone to New York, where he will deliver the peace address in Carnegie hall at the free synagogue service tomorrow. He will be the first of a long list of speakers, including Rabbi Stephen I. Wise.

Secretary of War Garrison is at his home in New Jersey and will participate in the services of his own church there.

Daniels to Participate.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has gone to his home in Raleigh, N. C., where he is expected to offer a special prayer for peace at the morning and evening service of his church.

Attorney General Gregory, Secretary of Agriculture Houston, Postmaster General Burleson, and Secretary of Commerce Redfield are all in Washington, and each will attend his usual place of worship. Secretary of Labor Wilson is at his home in Pennsylvania.

U. S. Relief Party on Way Home.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Among the Americans who sailed from Liverpool for New York today on the steamer Lusitania are all but two members of the party that came over on the American cruiser Tennessee with Assistant Secretary of War Breckinridge to distribute American relief in Europe.

ROUMANIAN KING PAINTED TRAITOR TO HIS SUBJECTS

Paris Legation Attache Assails Attitude in Promising Germany Nation's Aid.

ILLNESS GROWS CRITICAL?

LONDON, Oct. 3.—In a dispatch from Paris the correspondent of the Post relates that a signed statement, attacking the attitude of King Charles of Roumania in the present European crisis, has been given out by Victor Jonnesco, nephew of the prime minister of Roumania and at present holding the post of secretary of the Roumania legation in Paris.

"From the commencement of this European conflict," M. Jonnesco says in part, "the Roumanian people have been hostile to Germany and Austria. This hostility is pushing the people to drastic action. The cry is for a greater Roumania and the liberation of our brothers in Transylvania.

"Undoubtedly the situation has placed King Charles in a dilemma, for he already has made his choice between his duty as king of a free people and his duty as a Hohenzollern. The latter proved too dear to his heart; he is serving his caste and will do so until his death.

Hints Charles Is Traitor.

"When Russia proposed to King Charles that he occupy Transylvania and Bukowina he refused, declaraing his troops were needed to guard the frontier. Today Bukowina, which is just as Roumanian as Transylvania, is occupied by Russian troops and has been declared a Russian province.

"This policy of King Charles will give him in history the rôle of a traitor to the interests of his country, although he is a hero in the stanchness to the Hohenzollern and Hapsburg traditions."

King Charles Grows Worse?

ROME, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia from Sofia, Bulgaria, says that the condition of King Charles of Roumania has suddenly become worse. The doctors' bulletin today declares that he must have absolute quiet in order to save his life.

The well informed, however, according to the dispatch, believe that the king's illness is really a political step whose aim is to end the popular agitation to have Roumania join forces against Germany.

British Ambassador Tells State Department Plans of the Admiralty.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, today informed the state department officially of the intention of Great Britain to lay mines to meet German activities, as has been announced by the British admiralty. A proclamation will be issued from London warning shipping.

A Hymn Prayer for Peace.

By the Rev. Leslie Willis Sprague,
[Pastor Wellington Avenue Congregational Church.]
Tune: America.

My country, 'tis of thee,
Land from all wars now free,
Of thee I sing.
Praise God for thy blest state,
God keep inviolate
Our freedom from all hate,
And more love give!

For countries now at strife,
Where millions lay down life
At war's dread word,
O, God, we plead with thee,
Their God and Father be;
Them from this war set free;
God stay the sword!

God grant to all men peace!
Let strife and discord cease!
This grant today!
Thy name we praise in tears,
Before thee filled with fears,
Forgive, O, God, past years;
Give peace, we pray.

Today we plead with thee,
At once set nations free
From war's fell scourge!
Thou wilt the nations lead,
Chastised they can but heed
The call of Christ's own creed
Their sins to purge!

RIOT IN SOUTH AFRICA AT WAR PROTEST MEETING.

Supporters of British General Fighting Germans Hurl Eggs and Bricks at Rival Crowd.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from Potchefstrom, the Transvaal, South Africa, says that an attempt by Gen. Christian De Wet to address a meeting of protest against the government's action in regard to the war resulted in the breaking up of the meeting after a demonstration which approached the proportions of a riot.

Admission to the hall had been restricted to ticket holders, but a crowd of sympathizers with Gen. Louis Botha, who has taken command of the British operations against the Germans in Southwest Africa, gathered outside and, battering down the barricaded doors, bombarded the anti-government forces with eggs and bricks. A free fight followed.

Later the supporters of Botha paraded the streets and ended the demonstration by adopting a vote of confidence in the South African premier.

Lord Mayor Addresses Breakfast Club with Appeal That Rumors Be Offset by Members.

BERLIN, Oct. 1., via The Hague and London, Oct. 3.—The American Breakfast club assembled today for the first time since the outbreak of the war. The meeting was attended by 150 persons, including the personnel of the American embassy and consulate, and leading American business men.

Lord Mayor Wermut, who was the guest of honor, asked those present to deny stories appearing in the foreign press regarding famine, rioting, and unemployment in the German capital.

He urged dissemination of the fact that order prevailed in the city.

LETTER PROVES GERMANY TRIED TO AVERT WAR?

Berlin Paper Prints Missive Sent by Belgian Envoy July 30.

BERLIN, Sept. 11.—[Correspondence of the Associated Press.]—There has been published in the semi-official North German Gazette a letter from the Belgian chargé d'affaires at Petrograd, M. de l'Escaille, to the Belgian minister of foreign affairs, which is regarded here as proof from an unprejudiced source that Germany did her best to prevent the present war.

The communication, which is dated July 30, two days before the German mobilization was ordered, was inclosed in an envelope addressed to "Mme. Costermans, Brussels," and sent by M. de l'Escaille to be mailed in Germany. The declaration of war delayed the transit of the letter, and finally it went to the German dead letter office marked "Undeliverable."

"Germany Sought Peace."

Some days elapsed, and then it was opened. Inside the envelope addressed to Mme. Costermans was another letter addressed to the Belgian minister of foreign affairs. The letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Minister: Yesterday and the day before have passed in expectation of the events to follow the Austrian declaration of war against Servia. The most contradictory reports as to the intentions of the Russian government have been circulated; from them it is impossible to determine what is true and what is false. There is no doubt, however, that Germany has endeavored here and in Vienna to find some way of avoiding a general conflict, but has encountered on the one hand the obstinate refusal of the Vienna cabinet to recede an inch, on the other the distrust of the Petersburg cabinet in the Austrian assurances that Austria is thinking only of punishing Servia and has no intention of annexing territory.

Russia Began Mobilizing.

"Mr. Sasonoff has declared that it is impossible for Russia not to make ready and not to mobilize, but that these preparations are not directed against Germany. An official communique this morning to the newspapers announces that 'the reservists have been called to the colors in certain provinces.' Knowing the discretion with which official Russian communiques are edited, it may probably be taken for granted that Russia is mobilizing everywhere.

"The German ambassador declared this morning that he had reached the end of his conciliatory efforts, which he had continued to make since Saturday, and that he had now very little hope. I have just been told that the British ambassador has expressed the same sentiments.

"England Didn't Want It."

"England at the start let it be understood that she didn't want to be dragged into a conflict. Sir George Buchanan (the British ambassador) said so openly. Today every one in St. Petersburg is convinced—has even the assurance—that England will support France. This encouragement has had a powerful effect and has contributed not a little to giving the war party the upper hand.

"As I had the honor to telegraph you today, there seems to be no hope for a peaceful solution.

"I sent my telegram by way of Stockholm, over the Danish cable, as more safe than the other route. I am intrusting this dispatch to a private courier, who will mail it in Germany.

Fellowship Club Speaker Terms Conflict Unholy and Says It Is Founded on English Hypocrisy.

Irishmen should not join the regiments which England is sending to the continent in this "unholy European war founded on the hypocrisy of English statesmen and waged without ideas or ideals," according to Brandon Tynan, leading man in "Joseph and His Brethren," in a speech before the Irish Fellowship club in the Hotel La Salle yesterday.

"Lord Grey," said Mr. Tynan, "following the Anglo-Saxon policy of founding its statesmanship on the rock of hypocrisy, says the war is due to Germany's violation of Belgian neutrality. If that is true England should also make war on Japan for violation of Chinese neutrality."

Mr. Tynan said Irishmen had been [illegible] to fight by the promise of home

MANY DIE IN RANKS.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The official information bureau today issued a brief account of some of the lighter incidents of the fighting in France, to which it appends certain letters taken from German prisoners. This recital, which is from an eyewitness, but which bears no date, is as follows:

"In the presentation of striking contrasts this war is no exception to the rule. Within sight of the spot where these words are being written, the chauffeur of a motor car attached to the general staff is making his toilet in the open. After washing his face and hands in a saucepan, minus its handle, which he has balanced on an empty gasoline can, he carefully brushes his hair with an old nail brush, using the window of the car in which he has slept as a looking glass.

"From the backward sweep he gives his somewhat long locks, and judging by his well made and clean shoes, it is clear that he had once been a dandy, in spite of his khaki service jacket and trousers. He is, in fact, a former public school boy, who has enlisted for the war to do 'his bit' for his country, and a right useful part he is playing.

Letter Tells German Woes.

"A letter from a German prisoner recites how the enemy interrupted their needed rest after the Germans had reached a certain village, and how, when the Germans attempetd to advance on Sept. 16, the enemy, firing from bushes and from houses, swept their trenches. This letter continues:

"'On my right and left wounded comrades were complaining bitterly that the enemy were shooting from houses. They found too easy a mark in us. If we assumed an upright position we were immediately fired on. Soon the enemy's bullets began to get us from the right, and after about one hour, during which time our company lost about twenty-five men, we were forced to retire. This brought our total strength down to eighty. We started with 251 men. We had no officers left.

"'On the 18th, at 4:30 in the morning, we reached a village where we thought we would be able to rest, and we collected some straw. Before half an hour had passed, however, the shrapnel had again found us out. We spent the afternoon in this village, which was continuously under shell fire in spite of the fact that our guns were shaking the enemy's artillery. We heard our colonel say that our guns could not get at those of the enemy satisfactorily because the latter were so well concealed.'

Without Rest or Food.

"Another letter written during the retreat in front of the French from Montmirail says:

"'After a thirty-six hour march we had a rest and arrived just in time for the fight. For three days we did not have a hot meal, because our field kitchens were lost. We got a hot meal yesterday evening. Although we are all just ready to drop, we must march on.

"'We found great quantities of food but, fearing poison, we did not take possession of it until we had got hold of the proprietor of the house and compelled him to taste it first. We are near Reims after having gone through hard, bloody and most horrible days. Thank God I am still alive. Of our regiment of 3,000 men there are now only 1,600 left. Let us hope that this battle, which ought to be one of the greatest in history, will leave me safe and well and give us peace.' I am absolutely done, but we must not despair.'"

NORWAY SEEKS LOAN HERE

Scandinavian Envoys on Way to Chicago in Effort to Borrow $10,000,000.

A commission representing the Norwegian government and empowered to float a government loan in the United States is scheduled to arrive in Chicago within a few days. The commission is headed by Johan Ludvig Mowinckel of Bergen, member of the storthing and a ship owner.

The commission is authorized to float a loan of from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000. Arrangements had been made, it is understood, to float the loan in England, but the war broke off negotiations.

The members of the commission arrived in New York several days ago, where they had a conference with Hauman G. Haugan, director of the State Bank of Chicago.

Fear British More than French.

ANTWERP, Oct. 3.—The 30,000 French soldiers captured at Maubeuge are guarded by 200 Germans, while in another camp seven English prisoners are carefully watched by thirty Germans.

SAARBURG WON BY BAVARIANS AT HEAVY COST

Half of First Army Corps Killed or Wounded Repulsing French During August.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, Sept. 14.—[Correspondence.]—Losses reaching half of their strength were suffered by some of the contingents of the First Bavarian army corps in the battle of Saarburg in the middle of August and "borne without wavering," according to a detailed report of this battle issued by the general staff.

"After the daring invasion of French territory," the general staff report says, "in which the First Bavarian army corps, unassisted, had fought its way beyond the line of Blamont-Badonviller, the corps had to fall back behind the Saar river, the leaders having planned to offer here an energetic defense against the superior French forces.

"The French advance guards followed close upon the heels of the corps, the mass of the French army opening in their rear its great offensive movement into Lorraine. On Aug. 18 the corps again reached Saarburg, where it had been detrained ten days earlier, and reluctantly saw itself obliged to abandon this town temporarily, since its position for the coming battle lay to the north and east of the city.

Scattered French Cavalry.

"On the morning of the 19th two French cavalry divisions appeared before Saarburg, moving out in mass formation without any cover. A few shots from our heavy artillery which landed in the midst of their ranks forced them to scatter.

"The French infantry that afternoon and during the night pushed gradually on, Saarburg and the woods to the left filling up more and more with hostile infantry. It later developed that the entire Eighth and part of the Thirteenth army corps were facing the First Bavarian corps.

"The orders for the First had been that it was to defend decisively its position between Rommelfingen and Rieding. In the night of the 19th came the joyfully received new order for a general attack long the whole front at 11 a. m. on the 20th.

"Beginning with the first gray light of the morning the artillery of both sides bombarded each other heavily.

"The heavy batteries of field howitzers and mortars remained in the rear. The cavalry was with the artillery.

Attack by Germans Begun.

"The attack began with great vehemence at the stroke of 11 with an advance of the first line. The neighboring corps on the left, the Badanese, joined in.

"As darkness came the enemy attempted a counter attack against the left wing of the first infantry division between Saarburg and Buhl, but was splendidly repulsed by the first infantry brigade. Generally the battle ceased during the night.

"The losses of the Bavarian corps were, like their victory, great. Losses up to 25 per cent, and even to 50 per cent, were borne by the troops without wavering. . . . The conduct of the troops was beyond all praise."

OFFICIAL PRAYERS BARRED.

French Premier Says Law Prevents Designating Form of Supplication for Victory.

BORDEAUX, Oct. 3.—In the course of a cabinet meeting today, Premier Viviani informed his colleagues that he had received a number of petitions asking him to institute officially general prayers for the success of French arms. To these he replied that all creeds were free to proceed in this matter within the limits fixed by the law, but that the same law precluded the authorities from participating in public worship. This answer was approved by the cabinet.

ADDS TO CONTRABAND LIST.

French Government Announces Additions to Products Already Barred as Conditional.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The French government has announced a supplementary list of articles declared conditionally to be contraband of war under article 25 of the declaration of London. These are iron and steel oxides, sulphates and carbonates of iron, copper, lead, nickle and ferrochrome, glycerin, leather and pneumatic and other automobile tires and the materials used in their construction.

U. S. URGED TO ARM 'FOR PEACE'

Navy League Argues This Is Best Way to Keep Out of War.

O'HAIR SEEKS QUIZ.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—A remarkably forceful appeal pointing out the dangers of inadequate preparation for war by the United States was put forth today by the Navy league.

The league, which is embarking upon a vigorous campaign for enlargement of the American navy, points out the difference between the policies it advocates and those upheld by the ultrapacificists. The league argues that the preparedness it preaches makes for peace, while the unprepardness advocated by the ultra pacificists only invites disastrous war.

Cite Points at Variance.

The league's argument points out where "the Navy league and the ultrapacificist differ" as follows:

"The ultrapacificist charges that armaments are the great cause of war. The Navy league replies that injustice is the general cause of war; the specific causes include (1) the growth of democracy and its struggle with autocracy; (2) race antipathies; (3) the unfair, competitive struggle for lands, spheres of influence, and harbors.

"The ultrapacificist claims that disarmament will be in the direction of peace. The Navy league replies that without justice and righteousness there can be no lasting peace; that disarmed countries have frequent war.

"The ultrapacificist claims that weakness, naval and military, will keep the United States from attacking other countries. The Navy league replies that weakness, naval and military, may tempt other countries to attack the United States and its policies.

Progress Means Fight.

"The ultra pacificist advocates the principle of nonresistance. The Navy league replies that progress means fighting injustice and resisting evil with at least a display of overwhelming force.

"The ultra pacificist relies on treaties, Hague conventions, and paper promises. The Navy league believes international agreements are desirable, provided armed forces are available to make them effective.

"The ultra pacificist gives no recognition to the self-evident truth that behind every law there must be force. The Navy league believe that a final union of armed forces and an international navy is most desirable and is not impossible.

"The ultra pacificist thinks the United States is in danger of becoming a military power. The Navy league recognizes the danger to the United States from going to the other extreme of maintaining too small an army and navy, but insists that a strong navy under the control of the people makes militarism, with its conscription and autocracy, and even a relatively large regular army, unnecessary."

Urge Forty-eight Capital Ships.

The league is strongly supporting the plan of the general board of the navy to develop a sea force of forty-eight capital ships, a result which at the present rate of building can be achieved by 1920.

Representative O'Hair of Illinois, member of the house committee on military affairs, said today that he is assured of early consideration of his resolution proposing a nonpartisan investigation of the condition of the army and navy and of the development of each force necessary to maintain security from foreign aggression.

GERMAN PRISONERS OF WAR.

More than 3,500 Pass Through French Town to Versailles—Prussian Guard Among Them.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—A Paris dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company says numerous German prisoners passed through various French stations Friday night. The convoys comprised 1,245, 1,310, and 980 prisoners, respectively. They were taken from Juvisy to Versailles. They included almost an entire regiment of the Prussian guard, with band and staff officers.

JAPAN REPLIES TO CHINA.

Says Seizure of Railroad Is Necessary in Order to Strike Blow at Germany.

PEKING, China, Oct. 4, 1 a. m.—Japan's reply to China's protest against the Japanese occupation of the railway line from Tsing-Tau to Tsi-Nan was delivered yesterday. Japan says in effect that it is planning the complete destruction of the German base at Tsing-Tau, and so is justified in taking possession of the railway which constitutes an inseparable portion of the German leased territory in China.

BELGIANS KILLED MOTHERANDBABY, SAYS CHICAGOAN

Husband Unable to Keep Off Antwerp Mob, Woman Asserts.

Atrocities perpetrated upon Germans in the European conflict and war scenes which she witnessed in Germany were described by Mrs. William Boeppler of 929 Edgecomb place to a number of friends at the Germania club on Friday night. Mrs. Boeppler, who is the wife of the musical director of the Wisconsin conservatory in Milwaukee and of several musical organizations in Chicago, returned from Germany last week.

"I spent the summer with my mother in Wiesbaden," said Mrs. Boeppler. "Before I returned three weeks ago I had the opportunity of viewing with my own eyes the results of horrible brutality practiced upon German officers and a German resident of Antwerp, Belgium.

"Killed Wife and Child."

"The fugitive from Antwerp, a man named Momberger, came to seek a refuge with his relatives, who lived in the same apartment building where I was staying. I talked with him and heard how a Belgian mob had stoned his house and killed his wife and child. He himself was covered with bruises and his arm was broken. He was a prosperous wholesale grocer who had lived in Antwerp since he was a boy.

"When the Germans invaded Belgium the population of the city went wild. Men and women whom he had known for many years joined a mob of hoodlums which stormed his residence. They broke the windows, forced in the doors and demolished the interior of the house. When he tried to defend his wife and child on the second floor the baby, only 8 weeks old, was torn from his wife and thrown from a second story window. It was instantly killed. He was knocked unconscious and his young wife was dragged away by the mob. She was mistreated so that she died. He fled from the city disguised as a sailor and made his way up the Rhine. When I left he was threatened with brain fever.

Silent German Officers.

"Several days later we wished to see the fortifications at Mainz, a short distance from Wiesbaden, on the Rhine. We were unable even to see them from a short distance and returned to Wiesbaden by train. I was sitting in a compartment with two friends when the train stopped at Kastell. Three young German officers entered the compartment. Two of them supported the third, who wore a heavy bandage across both his eyes.

"The train rolled on for a short distance. Not a word was exchanged by the officers. One of them assisted their bandaged fellow from the train at a small station. The third remained on the train, after silently pressing the hands of the others. What did this mean, we wondered.

"We were soon enlightened. The third officer coverd his face with his hands and the tears trickled through. He was sobbing like a child.

Eyes Gouged Out.

"The officer looked up at us. 'It doesn't look well for me to break down like this,' he said. 'But my friend is blind. His eyes were gouged out by franc-tireurs (irregular French troops), as he was lying on the battlefield near Muelhausen. He had been shot and was lying helpless. He is now on his way to say good-by to his mother. Then he will shoot himself, for his life is ruined.'

"We were paralysed and did not press the officer for particulars. Another instance of French horror was told me by two officers whom I knew. While they were scouting in the Vosges mountains they found the body of a young German officer who had been crucified by nailing his hands to the trunks of two saplings. He was not shot, but had died of exposure and torture.

Russian Spies Caught.

"In Wiesbaden we witnessed the capture of twenty Russian spies disguised as nuns and women and Americans, who had attempted to poison the water supply. We heard the shots fired as they were executed at night. The American consul, Mr. Breuer, told me that two of them were arrested at his door. They bore forged passes issued ostensibly by another American consul.

"An interesting way of helping the families of poorer classes whose fathers are in the army was the system of distributing them among the well to do families. There they were provided for. The prices of food are kept down by the government. Flour and sugar are only one-fourth of a cent higher than before the war. All the vacant lots and parks are utilized for growing vegetables.

"There is little evidence of mourning. When a father or brother is killed, a little band of crêpe is worn on the sleeve. That is all. Wives and sweethearts are heroic in their determination not to show their grief. And when other members of the family march away to the war, they cry 'hurrah' and turn away to hide the tears."

Mrs. Boeppler's brother, Erich Brueggemann, captain of the One Hundred and Thirty-first infantry, was killed at La Garde, near Muelhausen. A cousin also was mortally wounded.

WIFE OF FRITZ KREISLER WRITES OF HIS INJURIES.

Violinist Ridden Down by Cossack Suffers Wound in Leg and Bruise in His Shoulder.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—A few weeks ago it was reported that Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, had been killed by Cossacks at Lemberg. Other incorrect rumors concerning him have been current lately. The first authentic information arrived this morning in a letter from his American wife, dated Vienna, Sept. 16, in which she says:

"Fritz was called to the front almost immediately and since the nineteenth of August has been actively engaged at the battle of Lemberg. He was lusty until the night of the fifth of September, and then in a night attack of Cossacks he was ridden over and met with rather a serious and painful accident, tearing a sinew of a muscle in his leg and a bruising of his shoulder. The latter was slight, but the leg will keep him limping for six to eight weeks.

"He looks worn, and for nearly three weeks he never got out of his clothes or shoes, nor had more than three or four hours of sleep, and always under the stars, sometimes without food for two days at a stretch."

ANNE MORGAN TURNS VILLA INTO A FRENCH HOSPITAL.

American Woman Arrives in New York from War Zone and Tells of German Atrocities.

New York, Oct. 3.—Wounded French soldiers have been convalescing at a Versailles villa controlled by Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. Pierpont Morgan, who arrived tonight on the steamer France of the French line and told of conditions in the war zone.

Miss Morgan spoke of turning over to the injured men the Villa Duissoons which is next to her own, and which has two gardens. Her saddle horse at Versailles was commandeered by the French she added, but she was glad the animal was taken for war service.

"Every one knows that atrocities have occurred," Miss Morgan continued. "For instance, we motored into the village of Courtacon, where we found that two-thirds of the village had been burned by the Germans. I talked with a woman whose son, a noncombatant, had been shot before her eyes by the Germans. The only reason given was that he was of military age; personally he had done nothing."

GERMANS ASSERT BELGIANS PLAN TO DESTROY CITIES.

Official Statement from Berlin Says Letter Showed Intent to Cause Great Destruction.

London, Oct. 3.—The following official statement issued in Berlin has been received here by wireless:

"A letter found on a Belgian officer who was captured by the Germans contained the following: 'When we reënter Brussels we will take with us a large stock of matches to set fire to Cologne and every other place through which we pass. Henceforth we will have no more injured prisoners; everybody will be killed.'"

GERMANY MADE READY TO STAND WAR TO A FINISH

Vice Chancellor Holds No Moratorium Will Be Needed.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—Germany's position, economically and financially, is such as will enable her to carry the war to a successful conclusion, in the opinion of Vice Chancellor Clemens Delbrueck. The country cannot be starved out, declared the vice chancellor in a long interview today.

The unemployment was steadily decreasing, with from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 men in the field, he said. Many industries are working overtime on war orders, and measures have been taken to divert labor from idle branches to busy departments until now the unemployed number only from 6 to 7 per cent of the workingmen in the country.

Measures have been taken also to put the finances and the credit of trade and industry on a war footing, and these have been so thoroughly successful that a general moratorium undoubtedly will be warded off during the entire war, said Herr Delbrueck, placing Germany in a far better position after the war than that of states whose industrial life is affected by a moratorium.

Solve Employment Problem.

"One serious consequence of the mobilization," said the vice chancellor, "was the lack of employment despite the fact that the call to the colors took from 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 able bodied men from the industrial field into the army. The idleness was due to the fact that the curtailing of industries caused local unemployment.

"The provincial employment agencies then were merged in an imperial employment bureau, with the immediate result that the question of employment was solved by putting the man and job together. The dead center passed every dead produces an improvement, because the representatives of the employers and the employés are working in patriotic coöperation in this bureau without regard to partisanship or creed.

Save Germany's Harvest.

"As an efficient intermediary, the bureau has obtained harvest workers who are gathering Germany's promising harvest. This is an instance showing how the job and the man have been brought together. The same is true in the mining and shipbuilding industry. In the case of the textile industries the hours of labor have been shortened, the trades union working most efficiently in this equalization. They have selected only men adapted for the kind of work assigned by the imperial labor bureau.

"Thus of the 16,000 men sent to east Prussia at the opening of the war to labor on fortifications, not a single man proved unfit.

"Behind battling armies we must have only contented people. Communities must take steps to have the population employed despite the war, not allowing suffering and distress, and providing employment on various public works, such as railroad and canal building, and the draining of swamps.

"Unemployment since the outbreak of the war has been steadily decreasing. At present all industries supplying the army are working to their utmost capacity.

"I do not doubt that neutral countries in their own interest will endeavor to create markets for their goods, particularly the United States for her cotton. Our population can be starved out as little as can our industries. Germany produces almost the whole of her own consumption of breadstuffs and meats. Certain deficiencies in fodder supplies we are prepared to counteract by a rational use of our large crops, particularly potatoes."

In conclusion Herr Delbrueck said that the general situation was due largely to Germany's centralized organization, economic as well as political.

"In short," he said, "we watch affairs confidently and placidly."

DECLARE AMERICAN WOMEN WERE STRIPPED BY GERMANS

Two Marched Through Dresden Streets by Mob, but Apology Is Made, Illinois Refugees Assert.

New York, Oct. 3.—Lillian Mueller of Oak Park, Ill., and Alma Ericson of Biggsville, Ill., arrived here today on the Napoli of the Italian line after seeing more war then they enjoyed. The two were returning across Europe from Egypt and were caught in Dresden by the stopping of railroad traffic due to mobilization.

They were twice mobbed as Russian spies and saved by German officers. They saw two other American women, who had been stripped naked by a mob, marched through the streets at the point of bayonets. They were released in the morning with an official apology.

Dresden was overrun with Russian spies. They saw two who were disguised as women arrested. One was thrown into the Elbe and drowned and the other was shot half an hour later. German officials told them that 150 Russians were shot in Dresden in the first two weeks of the war.

AUSTRIA REPORTS FORCES GAINING SLOWLY IN SERVIA.

Attacks Made Against Strongly Fortified Positions—Movement Started to Drive Foe from Bosnia.

VIENNA, Oct. 3.—An official communication signed by Field Marshal Potiorek has been given out here as follows:

"For the last two days our troops in Servia have been attacking the enemy. Up to the present time our offensive movements against the enemy, who is strongly fortified in positions further protected with barbed wire entanglements, have proceeded slowly but favorably.

"There has been started energetically a movement to clear the regions in Bosnia, which have been disturbed by Servian and Montenegrin troops and irregulars. The announcement from Servia concerning the annihilation of the Fortieth division of the Hungarian Honved is a further proof of the vivid imagination of the Servians."

CREEPY FEELING UP SPINE OF MEN LABELED "SPIES"

McCutcheon Tells of Suspense While "Guests" of Germans; Under Guard.

TREATED WELL, HE SAYS

decided that the young lieutenant, to whom was intrusted our safe keeping, became alarmed at the consequences which would follow our escape and so determined to take no chances.

Another theory was that we had been put in with the other suspects to see if we knew them and to see whether there was any bond between us. If this was the purpose it was effective, for two of the suspects whom we had met the previous Sunday in Brussels, greeted us in a most friendly spirit and thus a sinister link between us was established. Thereafter we were all to be considered as members of the same party.

Commandeers Scribes' Bicycles.

Still another theory presented itself, although we did not form it until later. When we were finally let out of the guardhouse our two bicycles were gone. They had been left outside, and in our absence the German army, or some part of it, had commandeered them.

Perhaps they were taken as a precautionary measure to offset the possibility of an escape by means of them, but for whatever reason they were taken, they were unmistakably gone and we have never seen them since.

When we asked for them later on we were told we must give the number of the regiment which had taken them, in order to put in a claim for reimbursement. This, of course, we were unable to do, not having seen the wheels taken.

After we had been in the guardhouse for half an hour and had begun to think we might have to stay there indefinitely, we caught sight of Lieut. Mittendorfer, who was passing, and hailed him.

He was profuse in his apologies and at once said we might go out on the sidewalk. We were not prisoners, O, by no means, but we were told not to leave the sidewalk. A guard was put over us.

Pointed To as Spies.

Next door to the building that was used as a guardhouse was a little café. For an hour or two we sat on a bench just outside of it, with our guard standing by us. All the soldiers who passed would stare at us and ask questions as to our identity.

Constantly we heard the words "Engländers" and "spion." The scrutiny was most unpleasant and we finally asked the lieutenant if we might go inside the café. He gave permission, first having put us on our honor not to attempt to escape. After we had given our word, we went inside, and our armed guard was instructed to go in with us. From that time on, day and night, a guard sat with us.

The little café had a small front room in which was a bar, two or three tables, and a stove. Behind the barroom was a dark passage and then a rather homelike and cheerful dining room with albums, canary birds, and household bric-a-brac in it.

Beyond this was a glass inclosed court, about fourteen feet wide and sixteen long, and behind this was an open space upon which opened the kitchen and the latrines. A most disagreeable odor pervaded the place.

Carefully Watched by Sentry.

There was no exit in the rear, for a high wall surrounded the tiny courtyard, and the only way of egress from the premises was by the front door, within which always sat a soldier with rifle and fixed bayonet.

Within the limits of the premises, sixty feet long and fourteen wide, we were permitted to range at will, but we could not go out on the street.

The landlord was a quiet Belgian and his wife was a fat woman with a masculine face. They had no food, they said, and were in distress as to means of feeding their own family. In addition to themselves there was the landlady's mother and her sister, who was insane.

Often, when our spirits arose and hilarity prevailed, we were suddenly subdued by seeing the sister enter, her hands shaking with palsy and her eyes vague and glaring in their blank, meaningless gaze.

When we slept, we never knew what moment she might be found weaving her purposeless way between the mattresses which covered the barroom floor and upon which we slept. We tried not to think that perhaps she possibly might sometime decide to rid her country of the tyrants and begin on us.

Disposal Worries Correspondents.

The two days of our imprisonment were long and dragging. Sometimes hope would be high and sometimes low. Only in our most optimistic moments would we consider the likelihood of being sent to Brussels, as we hoped for. We had gathered from vague hints that we would probably be sent to Leige or to some German city, Aix la Chapelle or Cologne. There was no intimation as to when we might go.

Our guard was taciturn but not unfriendly. Once in a while little groups of soldiers would come in and out for wine or beer and these, except upon one occasion, were uniformly friendly.

Upon this one occasion, however, three soldiers came in and one of them had been drinking. He asked us who we were, and Hansen, who speaks German, told him that we were Americans.

This did not seem to convince him. He was sure we were spies and that we were a dangerous menace to himself and his country. We observed him as he discussed us with his two companions and his attitude was most disquieting.

Feared Trouble from Germans.

If he continued in this hostile mood, and also became more intoxicated, there was no telling what he might suddenly decide to do.

He stared at us fixedly, or as fixedly as his condition permitted, and the more he stared the more truculent he became. When we spoke to one another he muttered to his companions:

"See, they betray themselves. They speak English. If they are Americans, as they claim to be, why don't they speak American?"

He then wove his way unsteadily toward where we were sitting and began asking questions. Hansen answered him civilly and by great tact and patience finally convinced the man that we were what we professed to be.

We gave him cigars, for it seemed most important that the man be mollified before he had a chance to leave the café in a suspicious, unfriendly mood. He might easily have spread the report among new arrivals that there were spies in the café and the consequences to us might have been disastrous.

When he left with his two companions, who were quite sober, he was convinced that we were all right.

It is only fair to say, at this point, that intoxication, as far as I have been able to observe, is extremely rare in the German army. Except for this one soldier, and one other that I saw at Buissiere, I have seen no soldier under the influence of liquor.

Told They Are Prisoners.

In the evening of our first day in the café a young noncommissioned officer was put in charge of us. He had been wounded and was carrying his right arm in a sling. In this condition he had walked thirty-five kilometers, and was detailed to light duty in Beaumont.

I don't know what his instructions were, but he startled us somewhat by announcing that we were prisoners. He made no pretense that we were guests, temporarily detained, and his attitude at first was that of an officer to whom has been intrusted the grave responsibility of watching a band of dangerous spies.

He was a good fellow at heart, however, and before we saw the last of him he had become most companionable, as well as solicitous for our comfort. We had nothing to eat, so he went out and got us some rye bread. Also he pursued his search still further and came in with several bottles of wine.

Food Scarce, Wine in Plenty.

Food was scarce, but of wine there was an abundance. Twenty thousand bottles of rare old wine had been found in the Prince de Caraman Chimay's cellars, and some of this had been commandeered by the soldiers.

For dinner we had rye bread and old Bordeaux, probably worth many dollars a bottle. And that night, thanks to our new "keeper," we had splendid beds on the half dozen mattresses which were arranged on the floor of the café. The suspected spies in the guard room, which was overcrowded with French and Belgian prisoners, were brought in and added to our party. The Congo negro was left in the guardhouse.

We slept with our clothes on, as we had done in the schoolhouse the night before, and as we were to do for several nights following.

Two soldiers were stretched out near the front door; one soldier sat up all night with his rifle and the young noncommissioned officer was in and out frequently during the night.

Prisoners Made Comfortable.

That the light on the bar should not shine in our eyes, he propped up some pieces of cardboard as screens, and before we went to sleep we heard him talking to the soldiers.

"My children," he said (he was only about 26), "you must behave well, like German soldiers. You must not drink too much, for if you get drunk, no matter how much I like you, I will have you sent to prison for seven years."

Seven years' imprisonment is the German penalty for drunkenness while on duty.

The next morning we had rye bread and rare old wine. There was no coffee to be had, nor was there chocolate. From the front room, or bar, we moved back into the living room that opened on the courtyard with its little glass covered "conservatory" of flowers.

Eagerly we awaited bulletins as to what was to be done with us, but no news came. The officers were busy with more urgent matters and we were left to wait until there was time to consider us.

Get Reports of Fighting.

From soldiers who came in from the front we got reports of steady fighting in which the Germans were always advancing. Already the Germans had reached St. Quentin, many miles down in France.

One officer who spoke English very well told of his experiences.

"We can't get the enemy to make a stand. For four days we have met them in force, and each day we have said, 'At last they are going to fight,' and have gotten ready for a great battle. But when we advance they retreat. They won't stand. Four times we have made ready for battle and four times they have retreated without making serious resistance."

He seemed disappointed that the enemy would not stand up and fight.

Other soldiers came in and reported the steady advance of the Germans.

Ask What U. S. Will Do.

When the soldiers found that we were Americans, they eagerly asked what America was to do. All through the army had run a story that America was going to help the Germans because the Japanese had taken the other side. During the two or three days previous we had been asked dozens of times whether this report were true.

Of course we could neither deny it nor confirm it, as we had not had any news from America for a long time. The outside world was a complete blank to us. America might be at war for all we knew, although of course it seemed highly improbable unless some unexpected developments had arisen in the far east.

Toward noon one of our party under escort was sent out to see if any food could be secured. He came back with a box of cigars, some onions, a can of apricots, a jar of honey, and a few potatoes.

Bread Presaged Long Stay.

Lieut. Mittendorfer came in with four loaves of heavy bread, a circumstance which seemed ominous. It presaged a long stay. Otherwise, why the great amount of bread.

The landlady made a stew, or sort of soup, with the potatoes and onions—and for the first time in two days we had something hot.

Nothing in the world ever tasted so good as that thick heavy soup and life began to assume a rosier aspect immediately afterwards.

If anybody ever wants to enjoy a meal let him live on rye bread for two days and then be introduced to a plate of hot, thick soup composed of onions and potatoes. Of course, we had wine, thanks to the proximity of Prince de Caraman Chimay's celebrated cellar.

Germans Bring In Prisoners.

In the afternoon a considerable number of French and English prisoners were marched past our window and a young French officer was brought in to share our quarters. He was a good looking young man whose brother-in-law, we were told, had just been killed in battle.

Lieut. Mittendorfer forbade us to talk with the French officer and all during the afternoon the young man sat with his head in his hands, the picture of mental wretchedness. When one of us brought out a mattress for him he threw himself down as if tired almost to death. In the evening Mittendorfer came in and with the greatest courtesy asked the young Frenchman to come out and have dinner with the German officer.

Our dinner was quite memorable that night. The noncommissioned officer, who seemed to have a genius for finding things to eat, came in with two chickens and some eggs, which added to our wine and rye bread made a banquet such as kings might envy.

Finally Moved by Germans.

For dessert we had the information that we were to be ready to leave in two hours. We were ready in a minute, having nothing to pack but our two loaves of bread and the jar of honey.

It was not known definitely where we were to be taken, but we might go to Brussels by the way of Liege.

While we were waiting three or four young Belgians came into the café. They were nearly dead from exposure, for they had probably been hiding out for two or three days and were chilled to the bone.

One of them was so weak he could barely stand, and a German soldier was trying to give him some brandy to brace him up. It was pathetic to see the physical weakness of the poor Belgian, but it was gratifying to see his enemy, the German, trying to help him.

At 9 o'clock in the evening an officer came and told us we were to march to the railway station with a column of English and French prisoners. We were not to march in with the prisoners, but were to walk along on the side, between the German guards, and if there was a break for liberty, we were to shout a warning.

Assemble Prisoners in Square.

The scene in the square at Beaumont when the prisoners were assembled was one of the most striking I have ever seen. The square was dark, except for the strong light of some army automobiles. Except for the limited area illuminated by the glare of these lights, the figures were shadow and indistinct.

There were three English officers and about eighty English soldiers, one French officer and 150 French soldiers, some of whom were Algerians, in their strange soldier garb, eight Belgians, and our own party of one Frenchman, one Belgian, and six Americans.

The French prisoners were massed together, and the English were assembled behind them. In the dim light of the darkened plaza the German officer, Lieut. Mittendorfer, spoke a few words to the young French officer, who repeated them in French to his countrymen.

He asked that they do nothing that would bring discredit; that they commit no overt act, and that they make no effort to escape. They were adjured to conduct themselves with calmness and dignity.

Doubtless the same instructions were given to the English prisoners, although I did not hear them given.

Crowd of Prisoners Silent.

The crowd of prisoners was silent. There was no talking as the German officers formed them into lines. The French prisoners looked rather motley, partly because of their absurd uniforms and partly because they had probably had no opportunity to clean up for some time.

The English uniforms were appropriate and soldierly looking, but the majority of the men were undersized and far from smart looking. They looked like recruits from the docks and the east end of London. As they were being formed in line one of them, a thorough type of an east ender, muttered as he stood by me:

"Just wite till England 'ears 'ow we've been treated! Nothink to eat, nothink to drink! This bloody country! These —— —— ——!!!"

He was very angry, but he pitched his voice in a key just low enough so that the German guard did not hear him. If England ever hears how he was treated he will have to speak louder than he did that night.

English Not Well Drilled.

The English soldiers did not seem to be well drilled. When a German officer called out in English "Form in fours" there was no movement.

Again the officer repeated the order, but without effect. The men stood as if they did not know what the order meant.

"I can't give you an invitation!" shouted the German, and then the English soldiers seemed to grasp his meaning and hastily formed in fours.

We were marched in one long column through the dark streets. Before me I could see the guard whose footsteps I was so closely trailing. To one side was the mass of moving men, and in the night air was the heavy tramp of marching soldiers.

In the darkness one could not distinguish friend or foe. So indistinct was every figure that uniforms blended together in one deep tone of black, and it was only where a bayonet rose against the sky that one could mark a German.

Had there been an attempt to escape the guards could never have known who to shoot.

Again Accused as Spies.

As we passed lighted doors where other German soldiers were standing, we heard the words, "Englanders" and "spions," and knew that our identity was again being mistaken.

At the station, a mile away, there were great acetylene lights burning, lights supplied by the Germans to take the place of electric lights. It was another illustration of the thoroughness of German preparation. Nothing seemed to have been overlooked.

The private soldiers—English, Belgian, French, and Algerian or Turcos, as they are called—were loaded on to box cars, while their officers and our party were put in a second class coach half filled with wounded Germans.

We pulled down our curtains, as the officers warned us that the train probably would be fired on within an hour out of town.

At midnight the train got under way and we thought that at last we were bound for Brussels. But we were not.

Prince Oscar Has Heart Attack When Turcos Repulse Imperial Guard in Battle at Verdun.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Evening News from Copenhagen reports that the correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, who witnessed the battle at Verdun on Sept. 24, when Prince Oscar led the imperial guard, says:

"Though the Germans fought like lions, the Turcos climbed trees like monkeys, hiding in the leaves. The Germans and Turcos fought and wrestled in a terrible hand to hand struggle and many German officers fell dead around the prince, who thereafter had the heart attack already described.

"Later at a hotel in Metz the prince was greeted by the emperor, who, with arms extended, cried, 'Boy, boy! Here you are!'"

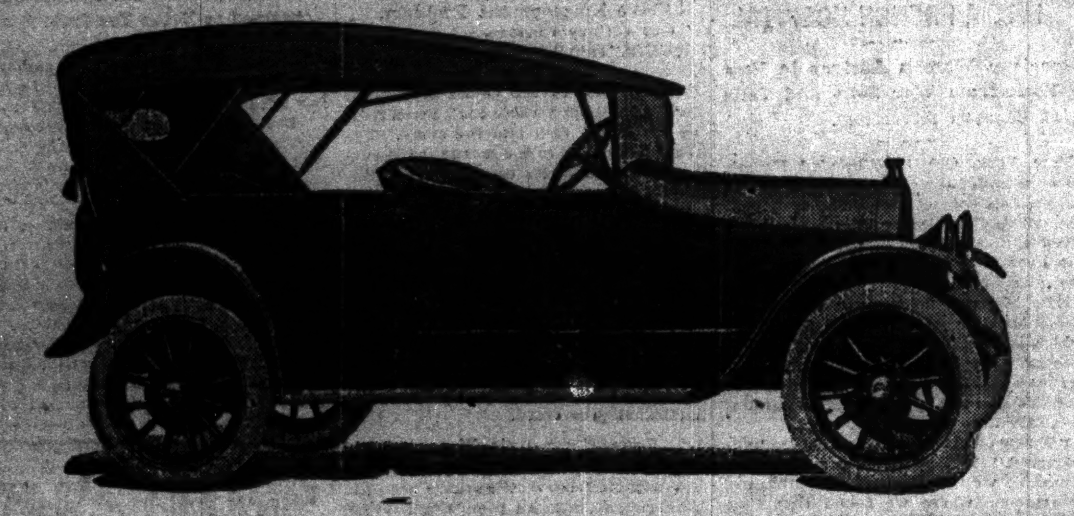
ANOTHER ITALIAN VESSEL SUNK BY AUSTRIAN MINE.

Commerce on Water Almost Tied Up as Result of Explosives Placed in Sea.

VENICE, Oct. 3.—A report has reached here of the sinking of another Italian boat and the death of its crew of fifty men at a point near Trieste, as a result of coming in contact with a floating mine.

There is alarm all along the Italian coast at the presence of Austrian mines at sea.

Water traffic with Austria has been suspended, and goods destined for Austrian ports are being abandoned on the docks.



The Jeffery Chesterfield Six Is Not Merely a Machine—It's a Style Carriage

And when we say style carriage, we do not only refer to the general appearance of the car, we refer to every detail in its design, construction and equipment, seen and unseen from tail light to head light.

There is not a single point about this car that we would hesitate to bring to your attention. Not a single point that we have to discuss with you in an apologetic manner. It is a car of absolutely no excuses—no apologies—no regrets. For it is built absolutely as good as man can build. $5000 may buy you a bigger car, but it can't buy you a better car of its size than the Jeffery Chesterfield Six. We mean that and we can prove it.

The Chesterfield embodies more $5000 car equipment than any other car selling at twice its price. The Bijur starting and lighting system used in the Jeffery Chesterfield is identical with that used in the most popular high priced car in America.

The imported Annular ball bearings used in the Chesterfield are identical with those used in $5000 cars. The Jeffery worm drive is of the same design as that used in $6000 and $7000 cars of foreign make. The Jeffery high speed, light weight motor is of the same general design and the same high grade materials and workmanship as that embodied in leading European cars.

The Jeffery Chesterfield Six rides just as smoothly as many a car of longer wheel base and almost twice its weight, for its cantilever springs absorb all shocks and jars, before they reach the body. And you never hear Jeffery springs squeak for, like many $5000 cars, they are equipped with self oiling spring bolts.

The Jeffery Chesterfield body is of the true stream line design. You will not find a flat surface on it anywhere. It's entirely made up of graceful curves. The upholstery cannot be surpassed, no matter what price you pay. The springs in both the seats and the backs are of finely tempered steel, strong yet sensative. The filling is of genuine hair and the covering is of the best grade leather.

The one-man top embodies absolutely the best materials and workmanship. Note the "V" shaped side curtains, extending around from the back. You will find this touch of refinement and style only on the tops of the highest priced cars. And another thing—the Jeffery top is actually a one-man top. One person can put it up or down conveniently and easily, without any assistance.

And so, we might go on, naming one point after another, for there is not a single detail about this car of which we are ashamed. It is truly a style carriage through and through. Even the painting and finishing are identical with that on $5000 cars.

But most folks will believe their eyes sooner than their ears. So we say, come and see for yourself. If we can't prove these statements, don't buy.

SEEK ADMIRERS OF WIDOW FACING POISON INQUIRY

Police Also Search Baker Home for Evidence of Arsenic Containers.

QUAILS BEFORE CORONER

Several admirers of Mrs. Edward J. Baker of 3002 Narragansett avenue, whose husband died under circumstances indicating arsenical poisoning, must explain to Coroner Peter Hoffman and the police what they know of affairs in the Baker household. Detectives from the coroner's office and headquarters spent yesterday seeking several men said to have been friends of Mrs. Baker. One of them, arrested simultaneously with the widow Friday afternoon, was put through a severe examination and released later, according to Capt. Halpin.

Other detectives minutely inspected the Baker home for anything that might have contained poison. Bottles, cans, boxes, and papers were gathered up and taken to headquarters where chemical examination will be made for poisons.

Mrs. Baker remained moody and depressed in her cell. She has taken only a glass of water since arrested, refusing all food.

Women Seldom Convicted.

Speaking of the arrest of Mrs. Baker and the indications that Baker died of arsenical poisoning, the coroner said:

"If this woman is brought to trial she probably will be discharged. It is getting discouraging for my investigators, who have obtained strong circumstantial evidence in many cases, when women charged with murder are constantly obtaining acquittals, and I confess it is getting discouraging to me. I have worked hard and my men have worked hard in these cases, but the results of the trials in courts have been anything but justice."

Receives Tip by Phone.

The coroner said that after he had received a telephone message informing him of Baker's death, he received another telephone call from a man, whose name is protected, who told him he believed Baker died of arzenical poizoning.

"That man told me he believed Mrs. Baker had poisoned her husband," said the coroner. "I had called Dr. Le Count and we went immediately to the Baker home, and I questioned Mrs. Baker. I introduced the doctor and told I was the coroner, and that I had come to find the cause of her husband's death. She said all right and took it very calmly.

"'Who poisoned your husband?' I asked her. She became nervous. 'Who is it?' I asked sharply. Then she began to cry. That was the first sign of tears she had given since I entered the house. I have evidence that several attempts were made on Baker's life."

Druggist Is Exonerated.

Coroner Hoffman completely exonerated the druggist, George Winholt of 6338 West North avenue, and Dr. William J. [illegible]oldenhauer of 4035 West North avenue of any connection with reported mistakes in medicine prescribed for Baker.

Mrs. Baker will not be booked until after the coroner has completed his investigation. He said he probably would not set the time of the inquest until next week because William D. McNally, chemist, is now engaged in making a chemical analysis of the contents of other organs taken from Baker's body.

POOR GIRL; SHE INHERITS $10,000 AND IT WORRIES HER

But Thoughtful Stephen Miller Proposes Marriage and Offers to Share Responsibility—Out $60.

Stephen Miller met Miss Maude Breland at South State and Thirty-first streets last Thursday. She smiled and soon they were walking arm in arm and talking.

"I'm a little worried today," she volunteered. "My father has died. Of course, I'm sorry—but—but I'm to inherit $10,000. The responsibility of caring for so much money worries me."

"That's too bad," consoled Miller. "Death is always sad."

They walked a little farther and then Miller proposed marriage. He was willing to share the responsibility of caring for the $10,000.

Miller took his new found fiancée downtown. He drew some of his savings out of the bank and bought her a $40 hat and a jacket for $20.

"Now we must go to the federal building," the girl said. "I must send a letter to my lawyer about the estate."

At the federal building she told Miller to wait on the steps. Miller waited nearly an hour. Then he started a search for her. He met her at Jackson boulevard and South State street and had her arrested.

POLICE TO LIST RELEASED 'DIPS'

Chief Gleason Intends to Show How Judges Freed Pickpockets.

HOT SHOT FOR GEMMILL

Chief of Police Gleason last night ordered his commanding officers to report to him the arrests and dispositions of pickpockets during the last three months. The chief is going to make a report from the results of the statements given him by the captains to show the percentage of pickpockets discharged by the courts.

Chief Gleason criticised Municipal Judge Gemmill for reprimanding his policemen in open court for arresting persons who, the judge thought, ought not to be arrested.

Attacks Judge Gemmill.

"Judge Gemmill is paid to decide cases brought before him and not to reprimand policemen for enforcing the law," said the chief. "Hardly a day passes but some policeman is called down by the judge. Such a thing as that is absolutely unfair.

"Judge Gemmill simply reprimands the policemen and lets the prisoners go. Such action is bound to discourage the policemen and make them dread making arrests so that they will have to face him.

"Recently the judge reprimanded a sergeant from the detective bureau for taking before him a prisoner who was a well known pickpocket and who was found loitering around one of the railroad depots and whom the sergeant booked for disorderly conduct.

Court Queries Policeman.

"The judge asked the sergeant whether he saw the prisoner in the act of picking a pocket. The sergeant replied he did not, but found the prisoner was violating the disorderly conduct law and arrested him. Now, in the quasi criminal complaints given to the police by the Municipal court a paragraph reads: 'Is known to be a thief, pickpocket, robber, burglar, or confidence man, and was found lounging in and prowling around a railroad depot, steamboat landing, etc., and was unable to give a reasonable excuse for being so found is guilty of disorderly conduct.' I cannot understand where the police are wrong for booking prisoners that way. If the law does not satisfy the judges the way they now stand let them make new ones.

"If the judge cannot do his duty where he is, now let the chief justice transfer him to a place where he can."

Eight Men Arrested.

Eight men, suspected of being pickpockets, were arrested during the day by the "flying squadron" from Capt. Halpin's office, in charge of Lieut. John Tobin.

The men were arrested around public places and were booked for disorderly conduct. None gave an address. They gave their names as Arthur Bowling, Edward Strause, Charles Williams, William Barnes, Edward Clarkson, Robert Collins, James Hollander, and George W. Kelly.

Ten patrolmen and ten motorcycle policemen were transferred in a general order issued by the chief at night.

The motorcycle policemen transferred will be under orders of the commanding officer of the stations to which they are detailed, instead of the sergeant in charge of the motorcycle squad, as formerly. They will be used not only to arrest auto law violators, but also in emergencies to run down thieves.

MIDWAY GARDENS CREDITORS HOPE TO HALT RECEIVERSHIP

Hold Meeting and Take Steps to Conserve Assets of Company in Financial Difficulties.

Creditors of the Midway Gardens company at a meeting yesterday decided to take all possible measures to keep the company out of the hands of a receiver.

Many of the creditors signed an agreement to keep the enterprise out of bankruptcy and a resolution was adopted to have a committee, appointed some days ago for an investigation of the assets of the concern, approach all creditors who have not yet agreed to the common contract.

The committee consists of C. E. Edwards, C. T. Seipp, Richard Ostenrider, E. T. Wade, O. F. Mayer, O. F. Fairbanks and E. E. McCarthy.

Otto C. Butz, attorney for the Midway Gardens company, outlined the situation before the creditors, declaring that it is altogether to their interest to keep the company from bankruptcy.

"If this is not done," he said, "you will lose the largest part of the property."

HARVESTER CASE DECREE CHANGED

U. S. Court Holds Dissolution Order Does Not Apply to Foreign Trade.

COMPANY WILL APPEAL.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 3.—The United States District court handed down a decision today modifying the International Harvester company dissolution decree filed last August, altering the decree so as not to apply to the foreign trade and commerce of the company and granting in part the change in the plan for dissolution asked by the company in a motion filed this afternoon.

The decree was given by Judges Sanborn, Hook, and Smith, the trial judges. The government was represented by United States District Attorney Alfred Jaques.

After the announcement of the decision Attorney Edgar A. Bancroft of Chicago, who, with Attorneys John P. Wilson of Chicago and William D. McHugh of Omaha, represented the International company at today's hearing, gave the court formal notice of his intention to appeal to the United States Supreme court from the dissolution decision of the court as amended.

The first amendment made by the court orders the words "and with foreign nations," struck out wherever they appear in the decree, but the court distinctly reserves its power over the property and business of the company "so far as lawful and necessary to effect a dissolution of the combination."

The amendment regarding the plan of dissolution was first stipulated between the attorney general of the United States and the attorneys for the defendants. The original decree made it compulsory for the company to lay before the court a plan for the separation of the company's business and assets into at least three distinct and separate corporations.

Under the amendment the specific number three is eliminated, and the plan to be drawn is to provide for division of the company's interests "in such manner and into such number of parts of separate and distinct ownership as may be necessary to resotre competitive conditions and bring about a new situation in harmony with law."

IS THIS A COMPLIMENT?

Man Wants to Communicate with a Thief, So He Phones "The Tribune."

William Maxwell of 4118 Drexel avenue called up THE TRIBUNE last night.

"I just want to inform the industrious thief who cut the straps and stole a tire casing from my touring car, either at Elm and Wells streets or under the Chicago avenue L station, tonight that he didn't get anything very valuable," he said.

"I know this will reach him through THE TRIBUNE sure, and I just want to let him know it."

DRAFT LAW FOR BOULEVARD LINK

Chicago Plan and City Officials O. K. Michigan Avenue Project.

UP TO COUNCIL NOW.

The boulevard link improvement came a step closer to realization yesterday when an ordinance providing a bond issue of $2,800,000 was prepared for submission to the city council tomorrow night. Action by the council will pave the way to placing the bond issue before the voters at the November election.

The money is to be used to pay the city's share, known as the "public benefit" in connection with the $8,000,000 project. The improvement involves the widening and extension of Michigan avenue from Randolph street to Pine street.

Those Who Approved.

The ordinance was approved yesterday at a conference attended by Frank I. Bennett and Walter D. Moody of the Chicago plan commission, L. E. Gosselin, deputy controller; Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, and his first assistant, John W. Beckwith.

Walter H. Wilson, acting for the plan commission, informed Mayor Harrison that the project has reached a point where the final legislative steps may be taken. Mr. Wilson is chairman of a legislative committee consisting of James Simpson, John W. Scott, Harvey T. Weeks, Frank I. Bennett, William D. Kerfoot, Michael Zimmer, and Walter D. Moody.

Less Expensive Now.

"It is our judgment," said Mr. Wilson, "that to dally with this issue would be to commit an economic crime. Wisdom, economy, and civic necessity all unite in demanding that the Michigan avenue improvement shall have our best and immediate attention.

"Viewed as a business proposition, to which the municipality can well give timely consideration, this improvement can be carried out at less expense at this period than at any time for some years past.

"Another dominating factor in the situation, and one which will appeal strongly to the public because of its humanitarian element, is that such an enterprise will provide employment to large numbers of workmen at a time when such employment is seriously needed.

"A statistical survey has proven that traffic upon Michigan avenue near the river is far greater than upon any other city highway in the world. An unbearable condition of congestion exists because of the more than 60,000 vehicles daily traversing Michigan avenue in the zone of the prospoed improvement. The Michigan avenue improvement is bound to be made. Relief must come sooner or later."

"FIRE" CRY PROSTRATES HER

Matineegoer Faints When Woman Shouts in Theater and Flees.

STORM HOME OF A BANKER

Incensed Ashland-Twelfth Depositors Led by Woman.

BATTER DOWN THE DOOR.

Police Have to Use Clubs to Repulse the Rioters.

More than 300 people, mostly women and children gathered early yesterday in front of the Ashland-Twelfth Street bank. They had been told that the depositors in the defunct Lorimer-Munday subsidiary were to be paid off. When the doors did not open at the expected time the crowd became restless and by 10 o'clock it was frenzied.

Some one happened to mention the name of William Farber, a director of the bank, who lives a short distance away at 914 Ashland boulevard. In an instant the whole crowd, led by a woman thought to be Sadie Friedman of 1133 Francisco street marched up to the Faber residence.

Officer Schenagl saw them coming and barred the way. The crowd halted at the front steps for a moment before him and then broke for the rear entrance. They climbed up to the Farber apartment on the second floor and had battered down the door and damaged some of the furniture before the police patrol arrived.

The crowd dispersed sulkily and the officers withdrew. As soon as they were out of sight the crowd reappeared and resumed its militant tactics.

When the police patrol arrived the second time the officers arrested I. Birschensky of 714 South Laflin street, Mrs. Clara Gassman of 1593 Elburn avenue, and Mrs. Sadie Friedman of 1133 Francisco street.

Neighbors charged the police with cruelty in dragging the women to the patrol and in dispersing the crowd with their clubs. A massmeting of the depositors will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the West Side Auditorium, at which Ben Lipshitz will act as chairman. The depositors intend to petition for a receiver tomorrow.

Panel Deadlocked After Being Out Seven Hours at 11 P. M.

DEFENSE ARGUES 'PLOT'

Lincoln, Ill., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Deadlocked after deliberating seven hours, the jury in the Carl Person case was still unable to reach a verdict at 11 o'clock tonight. Judge T. M. Harris is ready to receive a verdict at any time before daylight. The case went to the jury at 3:40 p. m.

"For Carl Person I say good-by. May God bless you in making up your verdict," said Attorney Frank Comerford, closing his final argument.

Argues Person Was Decoyed.

In summing up the case Attorney Comerford earlier had said:

"I do not believe that any one who has heard this case believes that Person was not decoyed. Lured from his humble castle, he was attacked and beaten—by whose plan I hope some day to prove. I hope in the name of justice that we will bring into some court at some time the hand of prostituted dollars that inspired this plot."

The bloodstained clothing worn by Musser at the time of the slaying was passed from juror to juror by Special Prosecutor Lott Herrick, who closed for the state. He attempted to impress upon the jury the fact that the bullets came from the back.

"You say the defendant was in a state of shock; that he suffered mental aberation. His abberation was an aberation of convenience. It caused him to forget vital parts of his story on cross-examination," shouted Attorney Herrick.

Ask Manslaughter Verdict.

Imprisonment on a verdict of manslaughter was asked by the state. Attempt was made to discredit defense "pictures of magnates and corporations backing this fight" by Attorney Herrick, who said:

"Remember Antone Musser was not a magnate. He was a toiler, a steamfitter."

Attorney Comerford indicated at the close of the trial that in the event any verdict other than acquittal were returned he would enter motion at once for a new trial.

EXCLUSIVE APPAREL FOR WOMEN

For years—in fact, ever since our debut in business—we have advocated an individual service in gowning women.

Today there is greater opportunity to carry out an individual service than ever before.

There is no excuse today for women being dressed in "uniform" when there are innumerable little style ideas—in fact, more than there are women to wear them.

A few moments of your time will suffice to convince you of that fact.

BROWN COLLEGE 150 YEARS OLD; WILL CELEBRATE

Alumni and Many Educators Will Gather for Ceremonies Next Week.

DELEGATES FROM EUROPE

Preparations are complete for celebrating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Brown university, at Providence, R. I., with due academic dignity and student zeal. Already crowds of returning alumni and the several hundred distinguished guests are beginning to move on Providence.

Observances, formal and informal, will last for a week, beginning Sunday, Oct. 11, with special services in the historic First Baptist Meeting house of Providence in 1776 "for the publick worship of Almighty God, and also for holding commencement in."

Excepting Harvard and Yale, Brown is the oldest New England college. Its celebration will be one of the events of the world's scholastic year. Nearly 100 universities and colleges will be represented in the official processions and meetings, many of them by their presidents. In spite of the war, nearly a dozen of the larger European universities have sent delegates from their faculties.

Plans for Formal Celebration.

The formal celebration will approach its climax Wednesday morning, when faculty and delegates, the alumni, and as many of the students as can squeeze in, will gather under the campus elms in cap and gown with the many colored, low hanging hoods of the higher academic degrees, and march in procession down College hill to the First Baptist Meeting house.

Here the delegates will be formally received, and there will follow the historical address by Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States Supreme court, a Brown man of '81. Next day there will be another procession to the meeting house, and the impressive ceremony of conferring honorary degrees.

Former President Taft will be among the official guests, and a good share of the diplomatic corps at Washington—the share whose nations are not yet in the war.

College Presidents Will Attend.

Among the college presidents who will attend are Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, Arthur T. Hadley of Yale, Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell, William De Witt Hyde of Bowdoin, John G. Hibben of Princeton, Alexander Meiklejohn of Amherst, Miss Mary E. Woolley of Mount Holyoke, and probably Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California. The last three are Brown graduates; Miss Woolley was the first graduate of the university's women's college.

Among other guests will be Andrew Carnegie; Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress; Wallace Buttrick, secretary of the New York general education board; John D. Rockefeller Jr. Miss Caroline Hazard, formerly president of Wellesley, and Howard Elliott, president of the New Haven road.

The celebration committee has also arranged a series of less formal entertainments. The principal theater has been chartered, and the alumni will put on their own production of "The Provoked Husband," the first play ever acted by professionals in New England. Around it they have written a sort of containing play, staging the tense atmosphere of a night during its earlier Providence production.

Progress of the University.

Under President W. H. P. Faunce, who has held office since 1899, the university has increased in numbers and gained notably in strength and activity. The enrollment now is within a score of 1,000. Entrance requirements and the standard of scholarship have been raised. As for outward signs of growth, fifteen new buildings have gone up, among them a big engineering building, a new dormitory, a biological laboratory, a gymnasium, and a dormitory on the women's college campus, Rockefeller hall, the roomy and comfortable students' clubhouse, and the magnificent marble John Hay library.

There are twenty-nine buildings in the university group today. In architecture they harmonize for the most part with the colonial tradition established by University hall and Hope college, and the elm shadowed reaches of the campus are generous enough to give an air of spacious ease.

Also, under President Faunce the endowment has increased from $1,300,000 to nearly $5,000,000, and Brown, while not rich as universities go, is no longer cramped for funds. There are scholarships for nearly half the students. The library of 225,000 volumes is eleventh in size of American college libraries, and one of the most valuable. The John Carter Brown library of Americana is unique and literally priceless.

FIREBUG SAYS HE SET BLAZE.

Benjamin Fink Testifies He Got $350 for Felsenthal-Fox Store Job.

Benjamin Fink, a confessed "firebug," occupied the witness stand in Judge O'Connor's court yesterday, where David I. Felsenthal and M. L. Fox are on trial on a charge of burning to defraud which grew out of an alleged incendiary fire which occurred at their warehouse at 902 and 904 South Morgan street on March 7, 1912. Fink testified that he was hired by Moe Rosenberg, one of the state's witnesses, and Nathan Spira, a public fire insurance adjuster, to set fire to the place. He said he was paid $350 for the job.

BOYS GET $16,000 IN GARDEN TEST

which a knowledge of canning may be useful to boys as well.

Early this spring James and Rudolph Schleichert, pupils at one of the rural schools, lost their mother. When the time came for the canning clubs and the home garden clubs to start, one of the brothers rented a piece of ground and started to raise a money crop. In order to make sure that the family should not miss its regular supply of canned vegetables the other brother took up that work and his canned tomatoes are said to be among the best produced in the county.

As an illustration of the intense interest which the pupils have taken in working for The Tribune prizes, the case of Fred Schoof is illuminating. Early in the spring he rented one-tenth of an acre on his father's farm, near Homewood, and set out tomato plants. Just about the time when the weeds were beginning to come up Fred fell and broke his arm.

Fred Keeps on with Hoe.

But it fortunately happened to be his left arm, and once or twice the country life director, making his rounds, was forced to send Fred back to the house because he was hoeing his tomatoes before the broken arm had had a chance to knit. Working under such difficulties he managed to keep his plants well cultivated and to harvest a good crop.

From Evergreen Park comes word that the rural school pupils in that village, organized into a poultry and eggs club, have sold $1,000 worth of eggs during the season.

In one of the garden clubs a boy sent out from the city as ward of the juvenile court and the 14 year old son of a Chicago millionaire are the leading competitors for the best record.

Betters Book Studies.

All the country life directors unite in saying that the outdoor garden work has had no bad effect on the regular book studies of the rural schools. If anything, the pupils take a keener and more intelligent interest in their books. The fact that they keep accurate account of all their expenditures and of their income, for instance, has made the problems of arithmetic real and interesting to them all.

As soon as all the crops have been marketed a committee of judges will be appointed to award the prizes offered by The Tribune.

The chief prize is $500 in gold, divided into five prizes of $100 each, one of which is to go to that school in each of the five divisions which shall, during the current year, "stand first in the progress it has made in agricultural education and in the results of its agricultural work."

The Tribune offers also five silver cups, one of which is to go to that pupil in each of the five divisions who "gets the best and biggest results in the agricultural work undertaken as part of the regular school course."

QUAN TAKES UP COLLISION ON "L"

Head of Utilities Commission to Investigate Cause of South Side Accident.

NONE HURT SERIOUSLY.

James E. Quan of the state utilities commission has ordered an investigation into a rear end collision between two trains on the South Side elevated railroad at the Fifty-first street station yesterday morning. Mr. Quan said the railroad officials failed to report the accident to the commission and he acted on information received through the newspapers.

Several persons were injured and many others were shaken severely by the collision, which occurred at 8:15 o'clock. Traffic was tied up twenty minutes and hundreds were late in reaching their work in the loop.

Some of the windows of the cars were broken and a number of the passengers were cut by the flying glass. Others standing in the aisles were knocked down and bruised. No one was hurt seriously.

A north bound Englewood train had picked up a load at the Fifty-first street station and was pulling out when a Jackson park train following crashed into it. The front of the first car of the rear train was damaged, as was the rear platform of the end car of the forward train. None of the coaches left the rails.

The motorman of the Jackson park train told the Fiftieth street police that the Englewood train started out from the station at good speed, but suddenly slowed down, and that he did not have a chance to stop his train.

There were only a few passengers in the Jackson park train and none of them was hurt, so far as the police learned, the persons injured being passengers of the two rear coaches of the Englewood train.

1915 Chalmers—"Light Six"

$1650

Motor Car News Right from the Front

The high-sounding claims of many car builders fill the air. But don't buy any car on the conversational power of its salesman or the lure of its printed advertisement.

You are interested in performances—not promises. You want to know what the car really is—what it will actually do, both under ordinary conditions of service and when it has to meet extraordinary conditions.

It is the ability of the 1915 "Light Six" to stand up in extraordinary service that has made it the fastest selling Chalmers car ever built.

We know how carefully this car is built—we know the quality of the materials used—and we know that in beauty, ruggedness, power, speed, comfort, convenience, and strength to meet any and every emergency of the road the 1915 Chalmers "Light Six" is a better car than any other "light six" selling within several hundred dollars of its price.

And what is more, thousands of owners the country over will tell you the same thing.

Pay No Heed to Pavement Performance

There's many a car bought on its pavement performance that would never have been considered could the purchaser have seen it perform over rough roads.

Simply skimming over a boulevard is not a test of a car in any sense of the word. That is why we urge you to take this Chalmers "Light Six" for a long trip over every kind of roads you can find. For it's then that the real quality of a motor car asserts itself. It's then you'll appreciate the higher quality of the Chalmers "Light Six," the greater power and flexibility of its master motor, the greater solidity and firmness of its construction, and its greater smoothness and ease in riding.

This proof positive test is daily convincing scores of motor-wise buyers of Chalmers superiority.

Put this Car Under Fire

You don't want to make a bad investment of your money—you don't want to buy a car that will prove itself a weakling when it has to meet a real road trial.

The only sure way to protect yourself is to buy a car that has proved its stamina under the hardest demands of motoring.

CHALMERS MOTOR CO. Detroit, Mich. U.S.A.
Quality First

It is under rigorous conditions that the Chalmers 1915 "Light Six" most clearly reveals its great superiority over others in its price class. It is doing it right now for thousands of owners everywhere.

Of all "light sixes" the 1915 Chalmers "Light Six" is the car that can most successfully meet such service because it is a "light six" built on the basis of "Quality First."

A few big features of the 1915 "Light Six": a different kind of automobile beauty; unusually handsome finish; Pullman-like comfort; a 48 H. P. long stroke non-stallable motor which "stays put"; graceful molded oval fenders of both strength and beauty; 4½-inch tires—"Nobby" tread on rear wheels; unusually complete equipment including Chalmers-made one-man top of silk mohair, quick acting storm curtains, five demountable rims, one-motion Chalmers-Entz electric starter which makes the motor non-stallable, Klaxon horn, electric lights, etc. And perhaps the greatest feature of all, the unusually high quality in a car at such a price.

We are anxious to take you on this Chalmers "Real Test" Ride. Come in today and arrange for it.

Suppose you knew you were to be cast on a lonely island—and would have to spend the rest of your life there.

What books would you take?

What few great histories, biographies, dramas, novels, poems, works of science and travel, philosophy and religion, are so good that they would never lose their interest—would have in themselves all the elements that make a satisfying, well-worded mental diet?

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, for forty years president of one of the world's greatest universities, from out of his sixty years of reading, study and experience, has answered that question.

His answer is printed in a free booklet; ask for your copy; it tells the story of

RUNDAGE TAKES PPOSING VIEW ON PHONE LAW

Brundage. "In the case of a utility ton," he said. "I have read the ordinance over carefully and I think the forfeiture clause still holds good."

Council Members' Views.

Other council members expressed themselves as follows:

Ald. Eugene Block—It was always my opinion the language meant what it said, that in default of the company having 20,000 bona fide subscribers the city could at any time seize the plant and equipment.

Ald. Otto Kerner—I think it is hiding behind a technicality to make such a decision. A matter of such great interest to the people ought to have been decided in favor of the people if possible.

Ald. Henry D. Capitain—I agree with Ald. Sitts. I cannot understand the position taken by the law department.

Ald. Stanley S. Walkowiak—The opinion may be good law, but at first blush I don't get that interpretation of "serving" at all.

City Telephone Supervisor G. W. Cummings of the department of public works, who has been conducting an investigation for the city of the automatic telephone system, expressed the belief that the city could and should take advantage of the forfeiture clause in the ordinance.

Admits Lack of Subscribers.

Virtual admission that the tunnel company does not have 20,000 subscribers is contained in the briefs submitted by the attorneys for the company.

"If by performance by the tunnel company," says Attorney Eli B. Felsenthal, "is to be understood actually getting 20,000 subscribers to use and to continue to use the system after adequate provision has been made, then the city, by its bad faith and through its fault, has rendered performance impossible."

Despite the adverse ruling of Mr. Sexton, the Penny Telephone league yesterday distributed circulars in the polling places for the purpose of having the question of seizure and municipal operation of the automatic telephone plant placed before the voters at the approaching election. The league started a movement last May to nullify the company's franchise.

Help Suffrage Through the Movies.

MISS KATHERINE KAELRED In Suffrage Play "Your Girl and Mine"

MISS OLIVE WYNDHAM, leading lady in Woman Suffrage Moving Picture Play, "Your Girl and Mine"

FILM TO SPREAD SUFFRAGE VIEW

"Your Girl and Mine" in Movies Will Be Used in Women's Vote Fight.

THRILLS TO BE SHOWN.

Stump speeches and automobile tours in behalf of suffrage have grown too common for efficient propaganda work. The moving picture show is to take the place, to some extent, of the other methods of disseminating information regarding suffrage.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, chairman of the campaign committee of the National American Woman Suffrage association, announced yesterday that a moving picture suffrage play called "Your Girl and Mine" will be ready in about two weeks. It will be shown particularly in the seven campaign states where suffrage is an issue in the November elections.

Full of Thrills and Action.

According to Mrs. McCormick, the play has not so much suffrage in it that it could be called dull even by an "anti."

"There are no long winded arguments in the play," she said. "There isn't even the familiar suffrage parade. But it is full of thrills and action."

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw is said to have furnished the arguments for the scenario. Gibson Willetts wrote it. It is being produced by William N. Selig, coöperating with Mrs. McCormick.

"Your Girl and Mine" will be an evening's entertainment in itself and will consist of several reels. Three hundred persons are in the cast.

Leading Talent in Cast.

Miss Olive Wyndham is the leading lady. Katherine Kaelred, leading lady in the Tyler production of "Joseph and His Brethren," will be one of the suffragists in the play. Sidney Booth is the hero and John Charles will take the part of the man whose career is said to illustrate just how far wrong a man can go under man made laws.

The production was financed by Mrs. McCormick and Mr. Selig. The proceeds will go to the National American Woman's Suffrage association. The campaign committee, under whose auspices the play is to appear, consists of Mrs. McCormick, chairman; Jane Addams, treasurer; Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. Sherman M. Booth, Mrs. Mary C. Bradford, Denver; Mrs. Helen Gardener, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, Lexington, Ky.; Mrs. John Tucker, San Francisco, and Mrs. Edward Drier, Brooklyn.

STOVE POLISH BLAST FATAL.

Girl Dies of Burns After Explosion of Cleaner Ignites Dress.

Catharine Lasuzzo, 14 years old, who lived at 101 Twenty-first avenue, Melrose Park, was fatally burned yesterday when a can of stove polish exploded while she was cleaning a stove. Her dress was ignited and she ran screaming from the house. A neighbor wrapped the girl in a rug and extinguished the flames. She died several hours later.

MRS. LAWSON BURIAL PLANS.

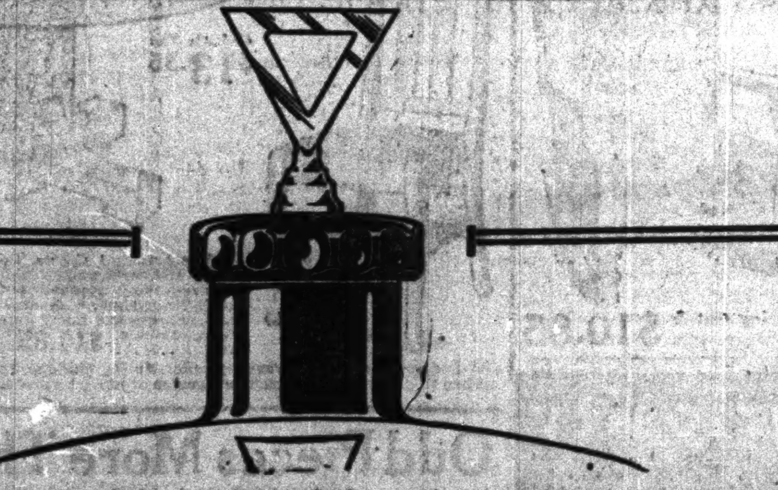
Funeral Services Tomorrow to Be Followed by Private Interment.

Funeral services for Mrs. Victor F. Lawson, who died Friday morning, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the New England Congregational church, North Dearborn street and Delaware place. The burial will be private.

OBITUARY.

DAVID ELLIOT ORDWAY, 82 years old, for fifty years a salesman for the Chicago Biscuit company and the National Biscuit company, died yesterday at the home of his son, Harry W. Ordway, 3461 West Jackson boulevard. The funeral services will be held from the residence on Tuesday afternoon.

GARDINER M. LANE, treasurer of the Red Cross in Massachusetts and a director in many corporations, is dead in Boston. He was operated upon for an intestinal trouble a few days ago.



The Magic Triangle

Innumerable Triangles. You see them everywhere. And each one a fitting tribute to a wonderful engineer and his master creation, the HUDSON Six. But there is no mystery to this great American success. The secret has been just honest toil. An honest car at an honest price resulted.

Note These Triangles

Each one denotes a happy HUDSON owner. And there are hundreds of them in this city. They will tell you that the HUDSON is the ideal car to drive. The flexible six-cylinder motor glides you pleasantly along, through country, city, or to business.

Reasons for This Popularity

HUDSON beauty, convenience, and reliability won this nation-wide popularity. The new HUDSON Light Six is pronounced by many the most beautiful car ever built. The HUDSON engineers—48 of them, headed by Howard E. Coffin—have worked four years on this Six perfection.

The HUDSON new-type motor—small bore and long stroke—has given to sixes, for the first time, lower operative costs than fours. This is a feature men have long sought in a car.

And then it is light, underweighing other cars of its size and power from 400 to 1,200 pounds. This has cut down tire costs.

And Now a New Price

But the greatest sensation is the new HUDSON Six price, $1,550. Last year's production was 3,000 orders short. This year's trebled output has cut production costs immensely, two hundred dollars per car. You get this saving, for the car could not be improved at any cost.

Geyler Service Guarantees Hudson Satisfaction

Your HUDSON will be in service every day in the year. This is due to the Geyler service to HUDSONS. Your car is inspected at regular intervals and all necessary adjustments made. That is why you will have that delightfully contented HUDSON feeling.

Ask any HUDSON owner why he likes the HUDSON. He will tell you the HUDSON is the best car he ever had and the Geyler Guaranteed Service keeps it so.

1915 Models now on exhibition. Declared by thousands of motorists to be the handsomest cars of the day.

American Walnut

OUR Semi-Annual Sale, just closed, did two things—it gave a great number of good bargains to people who appreciate bargains in quality as well as in prices, and it made room for the finest Fall stock we ever carried. The store is full of beautiful new things; let us call your special attention to the advantages of American Walnut.

In the first place it is beautiful; the dignified rich brown coloring, the satiny finish, the graceful curl and curves of the grain, make it ideal for handsome furnishing.

American Walnut Furniture will grow more popular and more valuable as time goes on, for the supply of this beautiful material (the black Walnut trees of America) is growing rapidly less.

It's ideal for the present; perfect for heirloom pieces for the generations to come, in times when no more of it will be obtainable. It will last practically forever.

We have a fine lot of bedroom and dining room suites of this wood. Come and see them.

Furniture Specials

Every week in the year, we make special prices on a few selected pieces; this done regardless of season or other special sales; it is done to make the acquaintance of new customers and to give special opportunities to our regular customers; it pays them, and us.

Here are the specials for this week:

PIANO TIME IS HERE!

The longer evenings and shut-in-days immediately suggest music. The young people are making their piano wants known and their elders, long past the practice period, are considering the INNER-PLAYER. Such an investment for your home will be none the less valued, because it is made with strictest economy. In arranging the special features for the coming week, we have carefully considered the requirements of all music lovers.

Grand Pianos We know that we are well within the truth in saying that there is no finer exhibition of Grand Pianos in the city. Here are to be found all sizes in the precious woods, both in the highly polished and in the new dull finishes. Supreme in this group is the Mason & Hamlin—the World's Best Piano. Then there is the beautiful Conover and for small apartments a Cable Semi-Baby Grand, a $650 value for $585.

Special for the week: Among the bargains in used instruments there is a $950 Mason & Hamlin reduced to $725. This is an instrument of rare tone quality, and the little concert work for which it had been set apart has in no wise injured its case. Also a brand new Conover Baby Grand in Asiatic walnut reduced from $725 to $635 to close.

Upright Pianos You are pretty sure of finding your instrument in this unusual collection of trustworthy pianos. We ask that you profit by our long experience as piano makers and especially investigate our four "Leader Styles." These are sold in great quantities to piano merchants throughout this country; and because they are built to compete in satisfaction as well as price, you are assured of the best possible values. These pianos are standard in their respective grades, ranging in price from $250 to $400. Then we can show you a well built, serviceable instrument for $175.

In this group these special bargains in used pianos stand out conspicuously.

Chickering Upright	$250
Steinway Upright	260
Mason & Hamlin Upright	390
Hardman Upright	175
Emerson Upright	100

Player Pianos Our Fall stock is complete and whether you are looking for a New Player at $350 or the best your money can buy—the famous Mason & Hamlin Welte-Mignon—your wants can be supplied here. We would call your special attention to the CAROLA INNER-PLAYER Piano with its simple yet unusually complete mechanism for reproducing with perfect expression the best music. Grand Opera Singers unable to play their own accompaniments have used them to their great delight and satisfaction. The excellence of these instruments is due to our supervision of every detail of their construction, from the selection of the raw materials to the making of even the metal parts.

The week's best bargains in used players:

Conover, CAROLA INNER-PLAYER reduced Used in our demonstration room.	$175
Euphona Player Piano, originally $550, reduced Shop worn only, a factory sample.	75
Melville Clark Apollo, used, will be sold for	275

Player Rolls In our Player Roll Department we have installed a Circulating Library of the best music. Here you may obtain by the most convenient and inexpensive method either the regular or autograph rolls. You are entitled to the full exchange privilege of this Library, even though you may have purchased your Player elsewhere. This week's special: New Universal Rolls 25c each. Many of these rolls worth as high as $1.50.

Tuning We do not experiment on the public. We hire no novices or apprentices. Our experts are factory trained and competent to handle any order from simple tuning to work which calls for a complete overhauling, rebuilding, and refinishing. Our schedule of prices is no higher than that charged elsewhere. Our Annual Contract plan of tuning you will find much lower.

Storage Of necessity we must and do have unusual facilities for handling and storing pianos and player pianos. One floor of our fireproof plant at 26th Street is largely devoted to this purpose. Furthermore, our intimate relations with piano merchants throughout the country enable us to issue a due bill to those removing to other states who do not care to go to the expense of transporting an old instrument which they intend ultimately to exchange.

Bear in mind that we set the same High Standards for our Service Departments that we do for our Piano and Merchandise Departments

"The World's Cosmopolitan Shopping Center"

Conditions of This Sale

The individual and merchant of responsibility can buy from us on open account.

Daily deliveries made in unlettered automobiles to any part of Chicago.

A small deposit will hold any article selected until you are prepared to receive it.

All prices in this advertisement prevail only during this sales period—not guaranteed beyond October 10th.

Ours is the real cosmopolitan shopping center—there are no old time methods about our institution. We secure our goods by unique and original arrangements—visit us any day this week and be convinced.

The history of our company reads like a romance. In 1892 our company was organized for the purpose of buying and dismantling the World's Columbian Exposition, and since then the story of our progress reads like a tale from some fairy book.

We have added constantly to our operations, until today we invade every field of commerce. We buy our goods from Sheriffs', Receivers' and Manufacturers' Sales, besides controlling the output of some of the largest factories in the land.

During the week of October 5th to October 10th we propose to inaugurate the greatest of all sales held by this company. This is no idle statement and means more than we can convey to you in this advertisement; it is only by a visit to our plant that you can appreciate the immensity of our institution, and the opportunities afforded you to save money on your every day supplies. You will not be wasting any time, because you will be taught a lesson in merchandising that will be of value to you in days to come.

You can buy from us with absolute confidence. If you should receive any article that fails to come up to your expectations and is contrary to our description, we will cheerfully take back such unsatisfactory merchandise, refunding the full purchase price, and hold ourselves responsible for any carrying charges.

Special Information

We can furnish your home complete, including the lumber, building material and general supplies.

We furnish complete hot water and steam heating plants, including blue print plans and specifications.

Our Grocery Department is prepared to save you anywhere from one-fourth to one-half on staple articles.

Visit our Jewelry Department—make an early selection of your Christmas gifts; it will mean a tremendous saving to you.

GOOD FELLOWS FLY TO RELIEF OF SUFFERING

2,532 PLEAD FOR HELP

A measure of the work before Chicago's Good Fellows has been taken in a census of the appeals for one day at the offices of the United Charities. This census revealed 633 families in serious distress over the needs of a single day—an ordinary day subject to no unusual conditions.

The appealing families contained 2,532 persons—two regiments of hungry, ill clad, badly housed, and temporarily helpless individuals, pleading for aid in a single day.

These figures can only give an indication of the conditions of want with which Chicago is confronted, a small part of the field of opportunity for the Good Fellow.

Worker Explains Conditions.

To those who seek causes an analysis of the report from a single district, the northwest side, by Albert E. Webster, district superintendent for the United Charities, offers explanation. In this district on the day of the census 100 families were given relief. Of these calls sixty-four cases, or 70 per cent, were traceable to unemployment. Seventeen cases were due to tuberculosis. The 100 applicants represented sixty-five married couples, twenty-four widows, eleven families deserted by husbands, and eight miscellaneous. Twelve nationalities were represented.

Good Fellows Rush to Aid.

Sixty-seven Good Fellows enlisted for relief of the poor yesterday, bringing the total above a hundred and thirty. Contributions of cash and checks continued, carrying help to the needy and solving problems for sufferers in despair.

Along with the progress of the Good Fellow work, the general collections of the United Charities showed a marked increase. The appeal of the organization for "war taxes" on luxuries and the suggestion that holders of opera boxes contribute the sum of their subscription gained remittances of several hundred dollars.

Special Appeals in Churches.

In behalf of the work for the poor, the Rev. M. P. Boynton of Woodlawn Baptist church and the Rev. John M. McGann of Trinity Episcopal church will make special appeals at services today. At the churches several hundred of the United Charities "war tax banks," for the collection of funds by self taxation of luxuries, will be distributed to members.

The district workers distributing aid are particularly anxious to receive contributions of clothing for children, warm, substantial clothing that will help the youngsters withstand the cold of winter that is so near.

Woman Gathers Clothing.

One generous woman on the south side made herself a collecting committee and gathered an array of children's clothing in a canvass of the twenty-five apartments in the building in which she lives.

Another Good Fellow, a woman owning a big touring car, spent yesterday afternoon entertaining the members of a poverty oppressed family of children with the first automobile ride of their life.

From a servant girl employed in an Oak Park home came this letter:

"I am sending you just $1 to help. It is not much, but it will help some one a little."

Help Comes from Other Cities.

The wide range of sympathy for Chicago's victims of misfortune is evidenced in the replies of Good Fellows from distant cities. One of yesterday's contributions, a check for $10, came from a giver in Cheboygan, Mich., one from Charles City, Ia., another from Sioux Falls, S. D.

An official of a big railroad company mailed a check for $5 with this comment: "Herewith is check in favor of United Charities. They should have every assistance."

One of the owners of a loop department store called on the telephone at the United Charities office and demanded the privilege of being a Good Fellow.

An Evanston woman read the "case report" on Mrs. D——, a widow in the southwest district, ill with two sick children to feed, then decided to be a Good Fellow and inclosed a check for $12 to buy the widow a month's supply of groceries.

Wants to Aid Children.

Here is a paragraph of a letter from another Good Fellow:

"May I have an opportunity to help some family where there are a couple of small children? I will not be able to extend a great deal of financial assistance at this time, since we have been told to prepare for a 10 per cent reduction in pay. But I'll share what I have, and I'm certain it will at least keep a couple of kiddies from actual want."

This note from another Good Fellow tells its own story:

"I am a young business woman and wish to do something to help some of the city's poor. I have some clothes to spare and can help by supplying other necessities to some poor family which is worthy. I hope you can send me the name of a poor family in my vicinity."

Men Ask for Work.

Along with the letters and replies of the Good Fellows come numerous appeals for work. Most of them are from men asking for work, telling of long periods of idleness and futile searches for jobs of any kind. These appeals are forwarded to the United Charities, where they are subjected to the same investigation as those directly made to the organization.

Here's a Feller That Needs a Friend.

THIS young citizen of the south side is growing up under extreme difficulties. His father is afflicted incurably and incapacitated for work. His mother is frail and helpless as a breadwinner. Seven little brothers, all under 14 years old, share the hard paved dooryard at play about their all but windowless quarters. The family has no resources, no relatives, nobody to help—unless you do, Good Fellow. If you want to give this boy or other little boys like him a chance send your name and address to Good Fellow headquarters, THE TRIBUNE.

This Is Strictly Between YOU and Your CONSCIENCE.

TABLOID tragedies such as these cover the ledger of the United Charities. It is none of your business. You get no glory in the eyes of mankind by helping them a little. But if you want to feel a little joy in your own heart write the Good Fellow department, THE TRIBUNE, for a name, and then go out and help somebody.

SOUTHWEST DISTRICT.

D.—Mrs. D. lost her husband one year after she had joined him in America. A month after his death a baby was born. Poor relatives helped to the very limit of their ability and were then obliged to seek outside assistance. The mother has great hopes for the assistance her 13 year old boy will be in a year from now, but until that time there will be no earnings at all in this family. The infant and other children require Mrs. D.'s entire attention. In order to maintain a home for this family at least $22 per month will have to be given by the community and that will supply nothing more than the barest necessities.

W.—Mrs. W. is a poor little hunch backed woman, whose second husband played her false, and after gaining possession of her small means, decamped, and has not been seen nor heard from for several years. He, of course, left an additional burden in the form of a young baby. There were already two little boys and this baby is so heavy that with the mother's deformity she cannot take him along when she goes out. This little woman is a good mother. Why should the county spend $30 supporting her children in an institution, thus forcing physical labor upon Mrs. W., when $24 per month through the United Charities will maintain their own little home, and according to all authorities produce better citizens of the children?

V.—Mrs. V., a helpless woman, lost her husband in a mine in Alabama a few years ago. Mr. V. spoke no English, so did not understand the instructions that he should not take the risk which cost his life. Thus the mother of the three little children was left more than puzzled to know how to raise her little flock. Interested neighbors told her of the United Charities and ever since rent and food and milk have been supplied, as well as clothing and fuel. All of this at the minimum expenditure of $17 a month. The county would have to pay $30 for the children's support in an orphanage. What will you do to keep them out of one?

WEST SIDE DISTRICT.

F.—A young jeweler, 31 years old, who has been sick all winter with incipient tuberculosis, is on the waiting list for the Naperville sanitarium. His wife is very fragile and unable to do any work outside of the care of her children. There are four of these, a boy, 6; a girl, 5; a girl, 3, and a boy of 1 year. There are no relatives in this country able to help and no income at all in the family. Twenty dollars a month will be needed for their support.

STRAPHANGERS' AID PLAN UP TO COUNCIL TOMORROW.

Recommendation Calls for Through Surface Routes, More Seats, and Abolishment of Downtown Loops.

More through routes for the Chicago City Railways company, more seats for the patrons, and the abolishment of the street car loops within the downtown district will be urged upon the members of the council at the meeting tomorrow night by Montague Ferry, commissioner of public service.

Much of the congestion of vehicle and pedestrian traffic in the loop will be eliminated, according to Mr. Ferry, if these recommendations are carried out by definite action of the council.

As a remedy for the congestion in the loop during rush hours, it is recommended that all car routes which now enter the loop and turn back be compelled to pass through the loop before returning.

"The street car company will object to this change," said R. F. Kelker Jr., supervisor of the traffic bureau, "because it will mean a certain amount of 'dead mileage' for them. They make enough from 'strap hangers' to more than pay them for any 'dead mileage' they will incur by this change and the city should compel them to make the change."

AMERICAN GIRL WEDS JAP.

Miss Alice Little of New York Married to Saburo Kurusu, Consul in Chicago.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—The wedding of Miss Alice Jay Little, daughter of the late James Jay Little, to Saburo Kurusu, Japanese consul in Chicago, took place today at the home of her mother, Mrs. Margaret A. Little, in the Bellmore apartments, Broadway and One Hundred and Thirty-third street. Miss Pauline Plain was the bride's only attendant.

DISGUISED GIRL CAPTURES THIEF

Modiste Causes Arrest of Man Thought Accomplice of Bogus Count.

PAUL DEAD OR ALIVE?

That "Otto Paul," alias "Count" Wilhelm von Pluttzgen, who plunged into Lake Michigan Friday night when pursued by an enraged chauffeur he had defrauded, had an accomplice is the belief of the police of the Town Hall station. They arrested John Morton, an actor, yesterday after he had tried to steal goods amounting to $150 from a modiste. May de Brevaux, the owner of a hat shop at Leland avenue and Sheridan road, effected the capture of the thief by disguising an assistant and sending her to a fake address with articles Morton said he wanted to buy.

For ten days shopkeepers, especially milliners, have been robbed of hundreds of dollars worth of merchandise by two men. After reading the description of the "count" in yesterday morning's TRIBUNE, Miss Brevaux declared he was the same man who had requested her to allow him to take birds of paradise worth over $100 to a sick sister at the Eastwood hotel for approval before buying. Miss Brevaux refused.

Phones for Goods.

Shortly after, according to Miss Brevaux, the same man phoned her to send two waists and change for a $20 bill to an address on Sheridan road. The modiste disguised an assistant, Davida Maygren, in a black wig and a long cloak and notified the police.

The girl, followed by detectives, went to the address, which was a vacant lot, and found a man waiting. It was not the same man who had been in the shop a few hours previously. The man ran in the direction of the lake. After an exciting chase by the police in which a motorcycle and two automobiles were used, he finally was caught at Sheridan road and Buena.

He told the police his name was John Morton and that he was an actor living at the Eastwood hotel. When asked about his connection with the "count," he would not answer.

Is He Dead or Alive?

That the body of Paul still is in the lake is the belief of the police, but he is alive and looking for more victims if the opinion of Harry Mossberg, the victimized chauffeur, is correct. Mossberg told the police he is certain Paul did not sink when he plunged into the water. He thinks the pseudo count swam beyond the breakwater and clung to the piling until safe to venture out. The police dragged the lake yesterday, but failed to find any trace of the man's body.

The "count" made his leap into the lake as Mossberg and a policeman were about to capture him after he had run up a $42 taxicab bill in an attempt to swindle William H. Hoops and others.

Paul has been operating in Chicago about a week. The official police bulletin of Sept. 30 contained a description of him and his method of victimizing a north side milliner out of $80 worth of birds of paradise feathers, which he wanted to show to "his sick sister."

For a time yesterday the police believed that Paul and Albert C. Hall, alias Poole, an eastern hotel thief, were identical, but they abandoned that theory when Mr. Hoops and Mossberg failed to identify a picture of the eastern man.

COL. FABYAN GIVES FARMERS GOOD OLD FASHIONED TIME.

Kane County's Soil Tillers Eat Chicken and Apple Pies Before Hearing Scientific Talk.

Two thousand of Kane county's farmers gathered around an old fashioned basket dinner at Col. George Fabyan's farm near Geneva yesterday. After the dinner of "yellow legged" chicken and juicy apple pies, the farmers listened to a lecture on scientific soil culture by Dean Eugene Davenport of the University of Illinois.

WAITERS FAIL IN BANDIT ROLE

Youths Who Quit Lunchrooms to Rob Have Short Career.

TOTAL OF 7 ARRESTED.

Seven "hashers," counter boys, and cooks who forsook their jobs of "slinging soup" in Chicago's arm chair lunchrooms to become real automobile highwaymen were landed in jail yesterday two hours after they had set out to terrorize the town.

One trio, who shot and seriously wounded Policeman William Muldoon during a revolver battle in the Chicago avenue station of the Logan square branch of the Metropolitan West Side Elevated road, made the mistake of renting an automobile in which to perform their "daring" deeds. The chauffeur of the hired car and the quick wit of a woman ticket agent in the elevated station brought about their downfall.

The other four were captured after a chase as a result of the inexperience of one of their number in driving an automobile which they had stolen.

Leave $3,000 Satchel.

After snatching a satchel containing nearly $3,000 from Edward Messinger, a collector, they ran the car over him and were compelled to abandon both the machine and their loot when the automobile collided with a fence. Messinger's leg was broken. The men were identified as former employés.

The embryo highwaymen who were taken after the wounding of Policeman Muldoon are:

Merrel Crane, 20 years old, of the Michigan hotel, at East Twentieth street and South Michigan avenue.

Harry Wilson, 23 years old, of the same address.

Lawrence Helvey, 19 years old, of the same address.

Those held for the Messinger robbery are:

Russell Edwards, 23 years old, of the Stag hotel at 444 South State street.

George Triatfoll, 24 years old, of the same address.

John Murphy, 21 years old, of 154 West Chestnut street.

Joseph Raymondo, 22 years old, of 940 West Polk street.

Morris Apenheim, 20 years old, of 913 West Twelfth street, chauffeur of the rented machine, also was taken into custody.

Clothier First Victim.

Wilson, Helvey, and Crane rented a five passenger touring car at 8 o'clock in the morning and first robbed Abraham Gibian, a clothier at 608 Milwaukee avenue, of his watch and a diamond stickpin worth $55. Apenheim had stopped the engine of the car, but was forced to start it and drive them to West Chicago avenue and South Paulina street, where they planned to rob a saloon.

Gribian had notified the police and Patrolman Muldoon, standing near the elevated station, walked toward it as the three men entered. Apenheim, who remained in the car, nodded his head in their direction and the policeman ran after them. They fled past the station agent's window and up the steps to the "to the city" platform.

Muldoon fired and the three fugitives wheeled and returned the fire. The policeman crumpled up. The men then ran up the steps and Muldoon crawled after them. Near the top they fired six more shots at the policeman, but none of them struck him. Muldoon emptied his revolver at them.

Threaten "L" Guard.

A loop bound train was just pulling out and Helvey and Wilson ran alongside and pressed their revolvers against a door in the face of G. F. Merotta, a guard.

"Stop or we'll croak you!" they shouted.

Passengers in the car were panic stricken. Merotta jerked the bell cord for the motorman to stop. Mrs. Ella Mortimer of 2548 Cortland street, ticket agent at the station, had heard the bell announcing the train and had sent Joseph Williams, a negro porter, up to warn the train crew. The train, after his warning, pulled out.

The young bandits then fled down to the street, passing the wounded patrolman. Meantime other policemen had arrived and after a short chase all three were captured.

ONE KILLED, ONE INJURED, WHEN AUTO TURNS TURTLE.

R. J. Fitzgerald Meets Death When He Undertakes to Pass Another Machine in Thorton Road.

R. J. Fitzgerald, son of John J. Fitzgerald, a real estate dealer, 3848 West Nineteenth street, was killed, and Albert Brandenberg, 1012 North Central Park avenue, was injured seriously when an automobile tured turtle on the Thornton road last night between Harvey and Thornton. Brandenberg was hurt internally. It is said he has a chance for recovery. He was taken to the St. Francis hospital in Blue Island.

Mrs. Lydia Forbes, wife of Harry Forbes, former champion lightweight pugilist, died at St. Anthony's hospital yesterday of injuries sustained Friday when she was knocked down by a machine driven by Max Goldschmidt, 1523 South Ridgeway avenue, as she attempted to cross South Central Park avenue.

ARTIST ALSO WIELDS MOP.

Zimmer's Window Washer Paints Picture in Oil Symbolizing End of Sheriff's Term.

There is more money in window washing than in painting oil pictures, according to Ludwig F. Michaelis of 5020 South May street, a window washer on the staff of Sheriff Michael F. Zimmer, at $70 a month.

Michaelis presented the sheriff yesterday with an oil painting by himself of a schooner sailing into a harbor at sunset. The picture was greatly admired by the sheriff and his attachés. It symbolizes the successful work done by Sheriff Zimmer and the approaching end of his term.

Michaelis says he paints for his own amusement and never has taken lessons.

ROUNDS DREW ON BANK FOR $20,000 WITH BAD CHECKS

Wife Signed Mortgage to Secure Institution Day He Died.

ONCE A GOOD DRUGGIST

THIS story is intended to present the facts leading to the suicide of the president of the bank of West Pullman. They were given to The Tribune by citizens of the town and relatives of the dead man in the belief that their narration might convey a true idea of his character.

The funeral of Charles D. Rounds will be held from his late residence in West Pullman on Wednesday afternoon. It is expected that it will be the largest funeral held in the suburb in years. Burial will be at Plano, Ill., the boyhood home of the deceased banker.

Twenty-two years ago Rounds went to West Pullman with a young wife and two babies from Plano. He began as a clerk in the village drug store. His industry soon enabled him to buy the establishment. He made it the finest apothecary shop in the outskirts of Chicago.

As a druggist his relationship to the neighborhood is described as something akin to that of the old time country doctor. If times were bad and money hard and a wife or baby ill, he would fill the prescriptions and tell his patron to pay when he could.

Bank Across Street.

Sixteen years ago three shrewd chaps from the city opened a bank across the street from the drug store. The bank did not pay. They persuaded the village druggist to take a small amount of stock and become vice president. Later they unloaded on Rounds over night, and the next day the druggist found himself a banker.

The new president was green, but West Pullman believed he was honest. The bank soon began paying dividends. In a few years Rounds withdrew from the drug store and went in for finance.

Rounds bought two orange groves in California and established his son on one of them. He acquired real estate in West Pullman. He financed Herbert G. Milliman, a grocer, who opened Milliman's Market in Hyde Park. He built himself a comfortable home at 12024 Stewart avenue. He started the Grand Crossing bank, a private institution. When the State Bank of Calumet was started he purchased fifty shares of stock.

Sells Out Private Bank.

In April he was talking with Dr. W. P. Sherman of Aurora, his brother-in-law.

"I see THE TRIBUNE is going after you private bankers pretty hard," observed Dr. Sherman. "How about that Grand Crossing bank of yours, Charlie?"

"That institution of mine has made me think considerable of late," Dr. Sherman says Rounds replied. "I have come to the conclusion THE TRIBUNE is right. I am going to sell out that bank for the sake of my reputation."

In May he and his wife planned a visit with his son in California and bought the railroad tickets. One night he went home and told his wife she would have to go alone.

Next day the Lorimer-Munday chain of banks went up. The Calumet bank was dragged under. Rounds, as a stockholder, faced double liability. Frank H. Novak, head of the Calumet, happened to be a stockholder in Rounds' bank. A small run on the West Pullman bank was started. Rounds met the crisis at a measurable cost.

Stress Tells on Bank.

Payments for improvements on his California property fell due. He paid them. Then came the European war. The International Harvester company's plant and the Pullman car works laid off men. The workers drew on their savings accounts.

Two weeks ago Cashier Harry Paul found $20,000 in notes, signed by names strange to him. A meeting was called. The directors asked the bank president to explain these notes. Rounds did not deny he had made out fictitious notes to raise cash for himself.

He promised to pledge his personal property in trust to Novak to secure the bank.

Last Friday Rounds went to Hyde Park and arranged with his partner, Milliman, for the sale of his interest in the grocery. His wife accompanied him, but was ignorant of the errand. Returning home, he told Mrs. Rounds that business called him to the bank.

Committee Comes to House.

Dinner was ready at the usual hour in the Rounds home Friday evening, but the banker had not returned. Instead came a committee from the bank, headed by Cashier Paul.

"We have some papers for you to sign, Mrs. Rounds," one said. She demurred for a moment, but when shown where her husband had signed them she complied and affixed her signature.

"I cannot understand why my husband is late," the banker's wife said. "He is so punctual in his habits. Will you gentlemen look him up."

They said they would, and carried away a mortgage on the Rounds homestead. Rounds had sent the committee to his house with securities sufficient to make the bank sound.

"I can't face her. You'll have to tell her," he said to them.

Mr. Paul left the Rounds home and the anxious wife and went to the bank in search of the president.

He found him in the bank. He was seated by a table. A gas jet was open. He was dead.

GAS UNIT CUT; PUBLIC LOSES?

Utilities Body Lowers Standard, but Rate Remains, Says Expert.

"SAVING CLAUSE" CITED

The state utilities commission yesterday issued a set of rules which will permit the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company to reduce materially the heating value of its product. The city code required 600 British thermal units per cubic foot; the new state standard, which becomes effective Nov. 1, is 565 units.

Whether the consumer will foot the bill is a question. Montague Ferry, city commissioner of public service, was positive that the company would profit abnormally. He urged cutting the price of gas from 80 cents a thousand cubic feet to 60 cents.

However, there is the "saving clause." Just how much, expressed in dollars and cents, this clause would save the consumer members of the utilities commission declined to state. Commissioner Walter A. Shaw was quite certain it would protect the public.

Ferry Is Skeptical.

On the other hand, Mr. Ferry was skeptical.

"This is the first clash the city has had with the utilities commission, and the city has lost," he said. "We objected to a reduction of the heating value standard unless it was accompanied by a material reduction in price. Our investigation has proved that gas manufactured under the board's ruling could be profitably sold for 60 cents a thousand cubic feet, or even 50 cents. What guarantee do we have that the utilities board will prescribe any such rate?"

"Why did the utilities board fix a standard lower than that in Chicago?" Commissioner Shaw was asked.

"After a fair investigation we thought that 565 B. T. U. was a proper standard," replied Commissioner Shaw. "It is recognized by gas experts to be more adapted to commercial uses. It is cheaper to manufacture and therefore more advantageous to consumers."

Won't Forecast Reduction.

"How much of a reduction would it make possible in the rates of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company?"

"O, I couldn't say as to that," was the response. "Conditions vary."

The "saving clause," which may or may not be interpreted to apply to the Chicago situation, reads as follows:

"If any utility has been supplying or is under contract to supply a quality of service of greater value to the consumer than that which these rules require, no reduction in such quality of service shall be made by the utility before a determination by the commission of the proper rate to be charged the consumer for the lower grade of service."

Poorer for Lighting.

Mr. Ferry said the 565 unit standard would be noticeably poorer for ordinary illuminating purposes, although it would suffice for incandescent lamps. The British thermal unit is defined as "the quantity of heat required to raise the temperature of one pound of water one degree Fahrenheit."

The subject is considered of such importance that the department of public service will submit a report to the council tomorrow night on the action of the utilities commission. Recommendations for decreasing the price of gas will be made.

The city law department once started a 70 cent gas suit. Consumers hopefully looked for some action, but it never came to an issue. Then the utilities commission came into the field and the suit was dropped.

Never Recognized Body.

But the city has never officially recognized the utilities commission. And so, unless the council reverses itself, the department of public service cannot present an official appeal for a cut in the price of gas.

The city has no contract ordinance with the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, as is the case with most local utility companies. The ordinance provisions with respect to quality of gas are mandatory, and it is believed they are entirely superseded by the regulations of the state board.

WOMEN DEFER ACTION ON ELECTION POLICIES.

Committee on Public Affairs Adjourns No Quorum Session Until Next Saturday.

The formation of a policy to be observed in connection with the fall election occupied the committee on public affairs for several hours behind closed doors yesterday. The meeting, which was the first the committee has held this year, was in the Chicago Woman's club rooms in the Fine Arts building.

No quorum was present and definite action was deferred. Another meeting will be called for next Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the clubrooms in the Fine Arts building.

"Then we shall make public our stand on the candidates for county commissioners and all the offices," said Mrs. Jean Ellis Driver, chairman of the county section of the committee. "Since the committee on public affairs held its first meeting nearly a year ago there have been improvements in governing boards."

In the absence of the two chairmen—Mrs. George Bass and Miss Harriet Vittum—the vice chairman, Miss Grace Temple, presided at the no quorum session.

Others present were Miss Julia S. Smales, Miss Marion Drake, Mrs. William S. Hefferan, chairman, and Mrs. Floyd Frasier, secretary of the school section; Miss Margaret B. Dobyne, chairman, and Mrs. John McCormick, secretary of the municipal section, and Mrs. Ignace J. Reis, a representative of the conference of Jewish Women's organizations and of the German-American Independent Women's club.

VIOLENT MANIACS DINE WITH SANE; ALIENIST'S TEST

Custodial Regulations Abandoned for Day at Kankakee.

WILL SEE MOVIES SOON

The state of Illinois yesterday gave a party to 220 insane men who for the greater part of their lives have been locked up behind bars in the Kankakee state hospital for the insane.

The incident inaugurated a new epoch in psychiatry. It represented the elimination of the last restraints of the custodial method and the installation of freedom and greater patience in the care and treatment of mental defectives.

Without chains, straps, or guards, without blows, cuffs, or threats, the 220 "hopeless" occupants of cottages No. 4 and 12 found themselves at liberty on the lawn in a distant part of the hospital grounds.

On a haywagon, draped in bunting, an orchestra, composed partly of insane patients, was playing popular airs. Streamers of the national colors were strung from tree to tree around the large banquet table which was built in the form of a square in the center of the grove.

Sane Guests in Center.

In the center of the square Dr. P. M. Kelly, superintendent, had caused to be placed two smaller tables, one for the attendants and one for a party of guests whom he had invited to witness the experiment.

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Eugene Cohn, Drs. D. L. Fish and E. C. Pratt, and other members of the staff, mingled with the patients.

A negro boy blinked as he stood out in the sunlight and listened intently to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home." An older negro placed his back against a tree and proceeded to read a newspaper—upside down.

A young man of medium height stood cross legged as he juggled three stones. He concluded by announcing his name with the addition that he was the undefeated champion of the world and was ready to meet all comers for anything beyond forty-five rounds.

Seated as Attendant Signs.

The patients seated themselves at signs from the attendants. Among the hopeless 220 were all the classes of patients known as acute, violent, homicidal, suicidal, persecutory, disturbed, restless, and incoherent. Some of them have killed. Some have tried suicide times without number. All have tried to kill some one since their confinement. Some never have uttered more than a guttural sound.

A physician—a patient who delivered himself voluntarily to the institution—was the first to break the good behavior. He struck another patient and knocked him down. Two attendants took the violent man to the porch of the cottage, where the screen door was locked on him. He picked up a chair and, raising it above his head, hurled it at an attendant. The attendant caught the unwieldy missile, brought it back to the maniac, placed another one beside it, and sat down to listen to the patient's delusions.

Hits Neighbor with Mug.

The guests seated at one side of the "sane" table saw an Italian rise from his seat at one side of the square. Without a word of warning the man picked up a heavy glass mug and brought it crashing down on the head of the patient next to him.

The Italian had a platter uplifted for the second crushing blow when attendants pinioned his arms to his side. He was carried back to the cottage. The victim of the assault was taken to the hospital. The incident apparently did not disturb the other patients sitting nearby, as they continued eating, two of them getting in a quarrel over the food left by the two removed.

"The Italian has hallucinations," explained Dr. Cohn. "He believes that he hears some one calling him names. He really thought that the man beside him had called him a name."

Guests Grow Uneasy.

The guests at the "sane" table stirred uneasily in their seats. Behind them was that row of glistening small eyes and white teeth. There were plenty of glass mugs on the table.

A religious fanatic at one corner of the square prayed a benediction on the banqueters and emphasized it with a menacing smash of his fist. An imbecile tried to undress at the table. Another victim of dementia precox ran up and down beside the table in imitation of a locomotive. Although unable to talk, he can repeat any word that is spoken to him.

"Almost Unheard Of."

"These men are the most violent and unreliable chronic maniacs in Illinois," said Dr. Fish. "This entertainment for this class of patient is almost unheard of. Aside from the pleasure the outing undoubtedly gives these men after so many years of restraint, the innovation has a therapeutic effect which is desirable. By replacing freedom for restraint and by listening to the delusions and hallucinations of the patients and trying to explain their difficulties to them, we hope to relieve their minds. This winter Dr. Kelly has arranged to give a moving picture show for the patients every week."

On all except two cottages the screens have been removed from the windows and locks from the doors. The interiors are made to look homelike with rugs and tables, magazines and books.

In all except the violent cottages a woman is in charge. She is called "mother" by the patients. The administration is trying to inculcate the mother and father spirit into their charges.

"These people here are mentally asleep," said Dr. Cohn. "They must have normal, homelike surroundings with touches that will recall the sane past and awaken their minds."

SENATE RACE IN INDIANA SEEMS AN EVEN DRAW

Beveridge and Miller Are Giving Shively an Unexpected Fight.

FORMER WORKING HARD

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Indiana has not found herself, politically, with the November elections just thirty days away. At this stage of the game the Democratic state organization, backing Senator Shively for reëlection, has a shade the better of the prospects.

This is claimed ardently and unqualifiedly by Democratic leaders from Thomas Taggart down. It is disputed most belligerently by the Republican state organization, manned by a new and progressive type of young Republicans who are working to the limit to placate all battling factions and elements and to extend the glad hand to all Republicans who "went away" in 1912.

It also is denied emphatically by former Senator Beveridge and the managers of the Progressive state campaign, who are not hesitant in the forecast that Mr. Beveridge is to be returned the winner next month.

G. O. P. Landslide Possible.

That there might be a Republican landslide and a recurrence of political conditions in November similar in all respects to the reaction of 1894 following the election of Grover Cleveland in 1892 is included as a wide open chance in the survey of most of the well informed politicians on the inside of the more than remarkable campaign which is being fought out in the Hoosier state.

In justice to State Chairman Will H. Hays, representing the young blood element in control of the Republican state campaign, this possibility is not the chief factor in the building of the plans looking toward the election of Hugh Th. Miller, former lieutenant governor and the regular Republican senatorial candidate.

Beveridge Aids Confident.

Former Senator Beveridge's friends are at the other end of the landslide possibility. They join with the Republicans to the extent of believing that the shutdown factories all through Indiana and the empty dinner pails will knock the props from beneath the present pro-Wilson wave of sentiment unquestionably existing in Indiana and that the coming four weeks will develop a decisive revolt within the laboring ranks. This, the Progressives believe, will work to the interest of former Senator Beveridge.

Getting to the fundamentals, politically the Shively men do not care whether Beveridge or Miller is second or third in the race just as long as the two are sufficiently evenly balanced to split the protective tariff sentiment in Indiana and to permit thereby the reëlection of Senator Shively.

Shively Best Bet of All.

Cool and calm observers in Indianapolis agree that the latter is precisely the likely result in November. They are together in suggesting that Beveridge will be thousands of votes stronger than the highest concessions which the Republican management will make to him. Beveridge had more votes for governor of Indiana in 1912 than were given to Roosevelt for president.

Beveridge is said to be infinitely stronger as a candidate for senator, where he has been tried out, than as an aspirant for governor, largely on personal grounds apparently. The folks on the side lines argue, however, that Beveridge might have been elected senator in 1912 had the present three angled campaign been fought out at that time and that he was then at the high tide of his personal and official popularity.

Fairbanks Is "Willin'."

Significant skirmishing is involved directly with the heavy firing of the senatorial combat. Charles Warren Fairbanks, former vice president, is "willin'." Should there be a tremendous Democratic defeat, similar in effect to the knockout administered to the Cleveland administration in 1894, the former vice president will not dodge a general demand from Republicans over the nation of the old McKinley type that he take up the Republican leadership on moderate protective tariff lines where President McKinley let it fall at Buffalo.

By his Indiana friends, Mr. Fairbanks is considered as strongly within the "logical" class of presidential possibilities.

Beveridge for President?

As for Albert J. Beveridge, his election to the senate against the odds which he faces would mean that he will be a most formidable candidate for the presidency as the Progressive nominee. In some quarters it has been suggested that it is not essential that he be elected senator to place Mr. Beveridge in this category.

There is reason to believe Mr. Beveridge has not lost sight of the main chance in the energetic campaign made by him in Indiana in 1912 and the splendid and complete canvass he is now conducting.

"Mr. Beveridge will be elected senator," was the expression of Edward C. Toner, chairman of the Progressive state committee. "His assets politically include the strong, virile, and harmonious organization of the Progressive party, manned by men who are honest with themselves and with the party."

TROUT FORCES WIN DELEGATES

Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell Charged with Using Steam Roller Methods.

FIGHT HER SELECTIONS.

The social aspects of the reception yesterday of the Chicago Political Equality league to its president, Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell, did not interfere with the smooth running of Mrs. Treadwell's steam roller, according to some of the women who attempted to oppose her in the business meeting after the reception.

The meeting was held in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. Mrs. Treadwell presented a list of seventy-one delegates to the convention of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association which will be held at the Congress hotel Oct. 28, 29, and 30. Some of the women planned to fight her selection, and demand that the delegates be elected from the floor of the meeting.

Dr. Blount Protests.

Mrs. Maud Cain Taylor, secretary of the league, read the names and immediately moved that the list be approved. The matter was put to an immediate vote and carried. Then Dr. Anna Blount protested.

"This is against all precedent," said Dr. Blount, "and I wish to protest against it. We should have been given a chance to discuss this matter. The delegates should be elected by the league and not appointed by the president."

Refuse to Rescind Action.

Mrs. Annette Barrett Krohmer moved that the action taken in the hurried vote be rescinded, but the motion was lost.

The question of delegates resolves itself into a political fight for the control of the state suffrage convention and the election of Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout as president. Mrs. Treadwell is favorable to the candidacy of Mrs. Trout, and it is asserted that the delegates appointed will vote for her for president. The opponents of Mrs. Trout wanted representation among the delegates.

SEEK WHITE IN ROCKFORD.

Police Hear Teaming Contractor, Wanted in Murder Case, Is There.

Belief that Clarence White, a teaming contractor, wanted in connection with the murder of James Barry of St. Louis, Mo., whose body was found in a gunny sack in an alley at Sheldon and Madison streets a week ago, is in Rockford, Ill., caused Capt. Halpin of the detective bureau to send several telegrams there yesterday asking that a search be made for him.

COUNTY MOOSE TAKE FIELD

Begin Fight Tomorrow All Along the Line.

M'CORMICK STAR SPEAKER.

Rallies Each Night to Follow Warwick Hall Meeting.

With President Alexander A. McCormick of the county board as their star speaker, the Progressive party managers yesterday planned to launch the Cook county campaign all along the line this week.

The start will be made tomorrow night with a meeting in Warwick hall, 535 East Forty-seventh street. Three meetings are on the bill for Tuesday night—Western Springs Woman's club, Cicero town hall, and Dewey hall, West Twelfth street and Crawford avenue.

Wednesday night the Seventeenth ward will be invaded for the first big Moose rally, the foregathering to be in Rotis hall, Sangamon and Grand boulevard. Two other meetings are scheduled for the same night—Moos hall, California and Wabansia avenues, and St. Stephen's church, Forty-first street and Wabansia avenue.

Thursday night Medill McCormick will lead the spellbinders in an invasion of the Twenty-ninth senatorial district in which he is running for reëlection to the legislature. The first meeting will be held in North Side Turner hall, 822 North Clark street. The flying squadron will also speak the same evening in the Carl Schurz school hall, Milwaukee and Addison avenues.

The Eighth and Ninth wards will be attended to Friday night and two demonstrations are planned for Saturday night on the west side.

NAMES TWO MEN FOR SENATE

Georgia Progressive Committee Picks C. W. McClure and G. R. Hutchens as Candidates.

Macon, Ga., Oct. 3.—Two candidates for the United States senate from Georgia were nominated here today by the Progressive state committee. C. W. McClure of Atlanta was named to oppose Senator Hoke Smith, and G. R. Hutchens of Rome was selected to oppose Thomas W. Hardwick, Democratic nominee to serve the unexpired term of the late Senator A. O. Bacon.

Fatal Auto Crash Near Duquoin.

Duquoin, Ill., Oct. 3.—Blain Fisher was killed and Edwin Hall was dangerously injured last night when an automobile in which they were going from Duquoin to Pinckneyville dashed over an embankment.

MURDOCK LEADS KANSAS BATTLE

Progressive Candidate Appears Probable Winner in Senate Race.

GOVERNOR FIGHT HOT.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 3.—Kansas is having the hardest political fight the state has experienced since the days of the Populists, and the battle is getting warmer every day. With four of her best known citizens wanting to be governor and three present or former congressmen wanting to go to the United States senate the Democrats trying to hold on to the state jobs and the Republicans and Progressives trying to get them, it is calculated to make a real hot fight in Kansas, which always fights in politics as if the constitution of the state were involved.

Every man that can make a speech and every woman who can be pressed into service for any cause is being used now, and the cohorts of spellbinders will be added to as reinforcements can be found.

Eleven Speeches in Day.

One day last week Arthur Capper, the Republican candidate for governor, made eleven speeches. Last Monday Henry Allen, the Progressive candidate for the same job, made nine speeches and drove almost 150 miles in a single county to do it. Victor Murdock has made a dozen speeches and hardly a day passes that he does not travel from one to two hundred miles in motor cars to do it.

Gov. Hodges just started his real campaign last week and is just getting warmed up now. Senator Curtis is visiting all the picnics and fairs and reunions that can be found.

George Neeley, the Democratic candidate for senator, is the only candidate for that job who is away. He is staying in Washington. J. B. Billard, the resubmission candidate for governor, cannot make a speech and knows it, so he is waging his campaign by letter writing and circulars and visiting around.

Hodges May Be Re-elected.

The Progressive stock has been rising lately. Even the reactionary Republican papers are admitting the Progressive gains, and it need not surprise folks to see a Progressive victory in Kansas. Gov. Hodges, a Democrat, seems likely to be reëlected, but there is a chance for Allen, while the senatorship contest is all toward Victor Murdock, the Progressive candidate, with Curtis, reactionary Republican, a bad third in the race.

Sorority Holds Reception.

The first fall reception and luncheon of Sigma Beta Theta sorority was held yesterday in the presidential suite of the Hotel La Salle.

HARRISON TO HAVE HIS WAY AT COUNTY CONVENTION.

Sullivan Leaders Will Not Object Even if the Mayor Does Want All the Jobs.

The adjourned Democratic county convention will be reassembled on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in North Side Turner hall. This decision was reached yesterday at a conference of the Harrison leaders in the mayor's office in the city hall.

Mayor Harrison was unable to be present, being confined to his home with a bad cold. Because of his absence it was decided not to go ahead with the program for the convention. A conference will be held with the mayor at the city hall tomorrow at which the organization slate will be agreed on.

If the mayor still insists, Congressman A. J. Sabath will be reëlected chairman of the county committee on Wednesday and a Harrison man will be elected secretary.

Sullivan leaders said they would offer no opposition to the mayor's program on Wednesday, whatever it might be.

Mr. Sullivan himself will be out of the city, starting tomorrow on the first week of his down-state speaking campaign in the election canvass. He will open in Carbondale and wind up the day with a night meeting in Du Quoin.

Mr. Sullivan has sidestepped the special train plans of his managers. While Raymond Robins and Senator Sherman have found it necessary to resort to this arrangement in order to cover the territory, the Sullivan people are fearful lest such a train for his use would be pictured as a "luxurious palace on wheels."

THEY MURDER Drink or Drug Users

Their helpless women and innocent children who make, rely or act upon the pernicious claim that the serious diseased condition of alcoholic or narcotic drug poisoning is

"ONLY A VICIOUS HABIT."

Drum in Position

Deafness

From All Causes, Head Noises and Other Ear Troubles Easily and Permanently Relieved!

Thousands who were formerly deaf, now hear distinctly every sound — whispers even do not escape them. Their life of loneliness has ended and all is now joy and sunshine. The impaired or lacking portions of their ear drums have been reinforced by simple little devices, scientifically constructed for that purpose.

Wilson Common-Sense Ear Drums often called "Little Wireless Phones for the Ears" are restoring perfect hearing in every condition of deafness or defective hearing from causes such as Catarrhal Deafness, Relaxed or Sunken Drums, Thickened Drums, Roaring and Hissing Sounds, Perforated, Wholly or Partially Destroyed Drums, Discharge from Ears, etc. No matter what the case or how long standing it is, testimonials received show marvelous results. Common-Sense Drums strengthen the nerves of the ears and concentrate the sound waves on one point of the natural drums, thus successfully restoring perfect hearing where medical skill even fails to help. They are made of a soft, sensitized material, comfortable and safe to wear. They are easily adjusted by the wearer and out of sight when worn. FINISH OFFICIAL COUNT OF VOTES CAST IN PRIMARY Authorized Returns Show Sullivan Wins from Stringer by 31,098.

ONE FIGHT GOES TO COURT

Roger C. Sullivan's official plurality over Lawrence B. Stringer in the primary election is 31,098. The final figures were available last night, following the tabulation of the official canvass of the Cook county vote by the election commissioners.

Senator Sherman's plurality over William E. Mason in the state is 88,522.

In Cook county Judge Thomas F. Scully has an official plurality over Judge Owens for the county judgeship nomination of 2,854.

Walleck a Winner.

C. R. Walleck, the official returns discloses, has nosed out Mayor Francis N. Keough of Lemont for the country district nomination for member board of assessors on the Democratic ticket. Walleck's total lead is 782.

Denis J. Egan, for assessor on the Democratic ticket, led the big field by more than 20,000 votes, his total being 54,682. Michael McInerney was the second high man on the ticket, with a total of 34,297, but the county clerk has ruled that under the law but one of the nominees can come from Chicago this time. Walleck is from the country towns district. McInerney has moved into the country since primary day and will carry the case to the courts.

Goodnow Heads Ballot.

While not changing the nominees the official canvass rearranges the positions of both the Republican and Democratic candidates for Municipal court judge and county commissioners on the official ballot with reference to the size of their vote.

On the Republican Municipal court ticket Judge Goodnow finished at the top 4,000 votes ahead of the next nearest candidate, Judge Fry. Samuel H. Trude was third, Judge Heap fourth, and Judge Uhlir fifth.

For the vacancy Charles L. Billings had a total of 88,722, as against 22,819 for William R. Fetzer, the insurgent Republican candidate.

Judge Dennis W. Sullivan heads the Democratic ticket for Municipal court judge, beating out Judge Ryan by a small vote.

While President Alexander A. McCormick, running for the nomination for president of the board on the insurgent Republican ticket, defeated Marvin A. Farr by more than 22,000 votes, and also topped him by several hundred votes for member of the board, Mr. Farr led the rest of the Republican field for member of the board from the city districts.

Some Official Figures.

The official returns on senatorship and county judge are:

Democratic.

A Few Pluralities.

Noble B. Judah's official plurality for Probate judge nomination (Republican) over O. M. Torrison is 4,366. E. R. Litzinger for treasurer leads F. I. Bennett by 3,182. In the totals reported on other Republican nominations there are no changes of consequence.

On the Democratic side John E. Traeger for sheriff leads Mendel officially by 16,890; Robert M. Sweitzer for county clerk leads Christopher McGurn by 35,117; Henry Stuckart leads Bradley for treasurer by 16,224. E. J. Tobin wins for county superintendent of schools by 15,337 over Lang, his chief opponent.

The official proclamation of the vote will be issued by the election board tomorrow.

HELD AS PETITION THIEF; SEE PLOT AGAINST DR. JONES

Stranger Runs with Lists of Names from Office of Independent Candidate for Senator.

A man, who said he was James R. Waters of 4101 Prairie avenue, is in the Fortieth street police station, charged with stealing the primary petitions of the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, candidate for state senator, opposing State Senator Samuel Ettelson.

Dr. Jones is making the race as an independent. For several days, with the assistance of the Anti-Saloon league, workers have been obtaining signers on his petitions. Friday night at the speech of the minister in the Sixth Presbyterian church a suspicious stranger appeared in the audience.

The stranger departed with a large number of signed petitions, which were in the rear of the church, according to E. J. Davis, secretary of the Anti-Saloon league. The stranger appeared at the headquarters of the Rev. Mr. Jones on the south side yesterday. He gained access to the inner office and told the stenographer that Mr. Davis had sent him for the petitions.

They were given to the stranger. An elevator operator saw him run when he left the building and caught Waters. Mr. Davis said the theft was part of a plot to prevent Dr. Jones from getting the required number of signers.

Fatally Stabbed by Woman.

John W. Bradley, colored, was fatally wounded last night when he was stabbed by Martha Blue, also colored, of 3650 Federal street. Mrs. Blue was arrested. She says Bradley attacked her.

STAMPEDE FOR ROBINS BEGINS?

Say Old Party Voters Line Up for Him So Fast It's Hard to Keep Count.

CANDIDATE JUBILANT.

Raymond Robins, after crossing twenty-five downstate counties last week in his dash over the rural sections, issued a statement at Rock Island last night, declaring that he would snow under both Senator Sherman and Roger C. Sullivan on Nov. 3.

Mr. Robins' formal statement follows in part:

"This is the jolliest campaign I've ever known. The people are thoroughly interested and determined to wipe the bipartisan machine off the political map of Illinois.

"The disgrace of Sullivan has aroused the free Democrats to fight openly for the preservation of their party from the curse of Sullivan's election. Many sincere Republicans regard Sherman as another name for the bipartisan machine. They remember his vote for the Allen law, his service to the machine while speaker, his vote against the parcels post and his opposition to Roosevelt. Then the renomination of all the old standpat crew—Cannon, McKinley, Rodenberg, Fuller, Chipperfield and others—has disgusted all the Progressives that still remain in the ranks of the Republican party.

Sullivan Is Peevish.

"Within the week Sherman and Sullivan have both made it clear that I am the man they fear. They are both right for once."

Mr. Robins will return to Chicago today for a few hours' rest. He will resume the down state canvass tomorrow with the following itinerary:

Monday—Clinton, Decatur, Monticello, and Danville.

Tuesday—Hoopeston, Paxton, Watseka, and Kankakee.

Wednesday—Dwight, Pontiac, and Bloomington.

Thursday—Jerseyville, Carrollton, Whitehall, Winchester, Chapin, and Beardstown.

Friday — Lewiston, Canton, Hollis, and Peoria.

Saturday—Wyoming, Toulon, Tiskilwa, Princeton, Sheffield, and Kewanee.

Robins Movement Spreads.

The nonpartisan Robins movement has extended to sixty-nine of the downstate counties already, according to Walter Niebuhr, who is directing the raids on the Republican and Democratic strongholds as head of the Robins independent canvass.

"By the end of the coming week," said Mr. Niebuhr, "not less than eighty counties will have organized for Raymond Robins for the defeat of Roger Sullivan. Robins for the defeat of Roger Sullivan."

BAY STATE G. O. P. PLATFORM ASSAILS EVILS OF WAR.

Extends Sympathy to Sufferers from Its Ravages—Democrats Laud Wilson.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 3.—The platform adopted by the Republican state convention today expressed "sympathy to every people suffering from the ravages of war."

"This time seems opportune," the resolution reads, "to express our opposition not only to war between nations but to all warlike methods between man and man. Justice everywhere. Falsehood, and force, and fraud must yield to truth and reason and righteousness."

A protective tariff, "national laws reestablishing our merchant marine and protecting it by an adequate navy" and national regulation of the employment of women and children, were recommended.

Democrats Indorse Wilson.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 3.—Massachusetts Democrats, in state convention at Faneuil hall today, adopted a platform that indorsed the national administration, and demanded "the immediate retirement from the directorates of the railroads of all directors responsible directly or indirectly for the wrecking of the systems; and such consolidation of the Boston and Maine and its leased lines as will make this corporation an efficient transportation agency and its securities a safe investment for the savings of our people."

MERIT HEAD BARS POLITICS.

Federal Officeholders Warned to Abstain from Pernicious Activity by Civil Service Chief.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—A circular has been issued by the United States civil service commission warning all federal officeholders to refrain from pernicious political activity. It is signed by John A. McIlhenny, president of the civil service commission. The notice will be posted in all government departments, custom houses, postoffices, and other government buildings throughout the country.

SHERMAN QUERIES HIS FOES

Senator Wonders Why Ickes Has Turned Against Him.

MOOSE AIDED RACE IN 1912

Says His Views of Political Issues Have Not Changed.

United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman has decided to run the parallel column on the Progressive party leaders who are now backing Raymond Robins and are attacking the senator's past record.

The senator gave out the first installment of "historical data" yesterday.

The questions Mr. Sherman is going to put to Harold Ickes, chairman of the Progressive state committee, Ald. Charles E. Merriam and Walter Clyde Jones are these:

"Did you not come to Springfield shortly before the primary campaign of 1912 and offer to put me on the Progressive party slate as your candidate for United States senator? If you did, what has happened to my record in the past two years that has changed your mind? You knew my whole political record at that time as well as you know it today. If I was good enough for you two years ago, why am I not good enough for you today? I have not changed."

Statement by Sherman.

Mr. Sherman's formal statement says in part:

"With Harold Ickes heading the Progressive state committee as chairman and urging Robins' election, a circumstance is recalled to my memory.

"Shortly before the primary campaign of 1912, during some time in August, Prof. Merriam, Harold Ickes, Walter Clyde Jones, and E. B. Fletcher came to my house in Springfield, Ill. They desired me to become a candidate for United States senator and tendered me their support.

"I knew their views on certain matters and told them I did not think they could find me a satisfactory candidate on account of my differing from them on those matters. They asked me to state my views.

"I told them I was irreconcilably opposed to the recall of judicial decisions and of judges. On the initiative and referendum, I informed them, the general promiscuous use of them I would oppose. If their use were limited to vital and elementary subjects on high percentages so that detailed legislation would not be submitted, I favored it.

Sets Forth His Idea.

"I enumerated the contents of a section in a constitutional amendment that would embody my idea. It would specify matters on which an issue could be had. I mentioned the state bank act, the debt making power, tax levies, and general incorporation laws.

"I reminded them that the primary and the election ballot were becoming so lengthy the voter was confused. I told them that it would be harder for a voter to decide on the merits of many abstract propositions than to choose between many candidates.

"Jones and Merriam both said I was sufficiently progressive for them and tendered me their support. Icke concurred in what they said. The views I expressed I have stated publicly many times, and they are now my views."

STRAIGHT MOOSE TICKET.

Rhode Island Progressives Name Providence Man for Governor.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 3.—The Progressive state convention today nominated a straight party ticket, headed by Fred D. Thompson of this city. Factional differences resulted in the absence of a number of former leaders.

WATERWAY LEGISLATION.

The river and harbor pork barrel bill has been killed.

That brings vividly before the nation the question, Can congress control itself to the extent of appropriating for river and harbor improvements on their merits, or must it choose between corrupt appropriations and no improvements?

The Democratic party incurred much deserved odium for its passionate support of the pork barrel bill in congress. Its defense that it was merely carrying on and extending the policies of previous congresses, while no defense, is true.

Congress has always used river and harbor appropriations as instruments of corrupting the electorate, with the improvement of commerce as a side issue—as an excuse.

There will be a strong element in congress, and without, who will insist that even essential harbor works shall be withheld until the price of corruption is paid for them.

The pork barrel habit fastened itself on congress during the years of excessive federal revenue due to high protective tariffs. The protected manufacturers were really the dominating influence in the country, and they encouraged all kinds of national extravagances to eat up the revenues incidental to the protective tariff system.

Thus the pork barrel in corrupting voters perpetuated in congress the men who voted for tariff privilege.

As the main purpose of the system was corruption, it was only natural that the river and harbor appropriations were largely made for spurious projects.

The improving moral tone of political life that began to evince itself in the nineties caused a slow but none the less evident improvement in the character of river and harbor legislation.

One great factor in this improvement was the requirement that all projects be submitted to the army engineers for their approval before submission to congress.

It is unfortunate that while the engineers vastly improved the character of river and harbor legislation, the steeping of the engineer corps in river and harbor politics has had a demoralizing effect on the engineers. It is sad to find men high in the rank of the United States army giving the weight of their positions to dubious projects which a decade ago they would have denounced at all cost to themselves.

Such is the inevitable baneful influence of submitting experts to political pressure.

The country stands today without any policy of river and harbor improvement. It stands without any organization capable of formulating such a policy.

In England, the foremost maritime nation, and in Germany, the headquarters of practical efficiency, harbor improvements are made at the expense of the cities in which the harbors are located. The cities in turn pay the cost of these improvements by charges imposed upon shipping benefited.

The policy of making shipping pay for the cost of the improvements is only ordinary common sense. A policy of giving away government service to shippers and ship owners, giving something for nothing, is bound to run into the kind of corrupt inefficiency which has obtained in the United States.

Unless a given harbor or river can earn the cost of its improvements in competition with other harbors and rivers, or other highways of traffic similarly taxed, there is no sensible excuse for the expenditure.

Our waterway promoters have indulged in a great deal of loose talk. They say that improved waterways are the best regulators of the railways. They argue from this that we should subsidize ship and canal boat owners as rivals of railway owners. The policy is manifestly unsound, and we have nothing but proof of this fact.

Most of our free canals are unused. Notable examples near at hand are the Illinois and Michigan canal and the Hennepin canal. Where the free gifts of the government are utilized we do not find that the public, which pays the bills, gets any comprehensive return.

The extensive works in the great lakes, the Sault locks, and the Detroit river are mainly used by the private ships of great corporations to transport ore and coal and oil at low cost, and the profits on the shipments are used to make Carnegies and Rockefellers.

The immediate need is for a proper organization to take up the question of river and harbor improvement. Experience has shown us that congressional committees cannot keep themselves honest. Experience has shown us that the drafting of the army engineers in the river and harbor work has taken them away from their proper sphere and has tainted them. The army engineers, moreover, are trained merely in the engineering aspects and have no experience or natural qualifications to pass on the main feature, the economical one.

There should be a national river and harbor board similar to the boards which conduct the harbors in England. This board should compute the cost of the proposed improvement and the income to be derived from it, the territory to be benefited, and the traffic to be carried. Unless the improvement promises to pay for itself ultimately it should never be undertaken.

At the time the enterprise is taken up the tolls for the use of the waterway should be fixed. These might later be changed as experience dictates, but the principles should be established in the beginning.

It might be well, indeed, for the government merely to act as banker and to insist that the city or the state, or even the congressional district in which the improvement is to be placed, should guarantee a given return upon the advance.

In this way local influences would be less likely to bring political pressure to obtain appropriations with the sole sordid desire of having government money spent within their confine.

A policy like this would immediately result in the erasing of a multitude of worthless projects which use up the government money to no practical benefit. Thus the savings to the treasury would be enormous and there would be released from the service of corruption a large sum of money to be applied to the really desirable enterprises, and in due time there would be established an income to the government which could be used over and over again in creating better water facilities.

There is a serious question before the nation. Can congress be honest with the American people?

TO GOODFELLOWS OLD AND NEW.

THE TRIBUNE'S emergency appeal to the Goodfellows has met the prompt and spontaneous response to be expected. There is no lack of warm hearts and ready hands in this community when need is known.

And there is need, unusual need. Calamity howling would be unjustified, but the winter will see more unavoidable destitution, more harsh scrimping, more individual undeserved misfortune than are usual. The unemployment of last year will for a time be increased and, though we believe conditions will improve, the war has so deranged business and retarded the restoration of normal activity that there is ahead of us a period of suffering for many who are on the margin of security even in the best of times and for many who are meeting special conditions. It is because of this that THE TRIBUNE has urged an early beginning of the annual Goodfellow campaign. We have a special duty to spread the Christmas spirit wider than ever before. And THE TRIBUNE assures those who have not been drawn into this work before but who will now respond to its appeal that their money and their effort will be well spent. This aid will not be wasted, not a jot of it. Every case will be a deserving one, a case of proved need.

There is solid satisfaction in giving and doing where there is absolute assurance that need exists, and this assurance THE TRIBUNE is able to give.

Give then, money and goods. And, if possible, give yourselves,—the warm personal interest that takes the sting from charity and lights misfortune with the sense of fellowship and the hope of better days.

A SENSIBLE OPERATIC ARRANGEMENT

The announcement from New York regarding the appearance of the Century Opera company in this city, in the Auditorium, this season, seems a little premature, but it is not denied by the representatives of our own operatic organization that negotiations toward such an arrangement have been in progress and that an agreement satisfactory to both parties is to be looked for.

Music lovers of Chicago and its large tributary territory will rejoice in the plan and heartily commend it. It is businesslike and sensible in every way. The directors of the Chicago Opera company are too enlightened and public spirited to adopt a dog-in-the-manger attitude. As they have found it impossible to give opera this year in conformity with their own standards and ideas, the next best thing is to welcome the popular New York operatic organization. The Century company has been reorganized, and it is doing better than ever. It remains "starless" and true to its essential democratic purposes, but it has a good ensemble and a good orchestra. It is not necessary to apologize for its productions. It charges modest prices and gives genuine artistic pleasure. Its repertory is rich and varied.

Leaving all controversy as to the future of "grand" opera on one side, the Century company has a place and a mission, and Chicago will be glad to welcome it for a season and will thank the directors of its own opera company for their readiness to give the eastern company the benefit of the local facilities and good will.

The Best Editorial of the Day.

SET THE AMERICAN INVENTOR AT WORK.

[From the New York World.]

War news of great importance to the United States is the statement that Mr. Edison has dealt with the shortage of imported carbolic acid by making a better quality at a lower cost. Carbolic acid is used in so many industries that an American supply will be of value not only for home use but for export if the manufacture of a sufficient quantity can be quickly developed.

Other American inventors would soon imitate Mr. Edison's example if they received proper encouragement from manufacturers. Meanwhile it is high time congress gave serious consideration to a reform, long overdue, in our patent laws. The intolerable delays in patent litigation should be rendered impossible, and provision should be made, similar to that in the German law, by which a patent unused or insufficiently used for three years may be revoked.

Under our present laws, which encourage monopoly and the long purse while starving the inventor, a manufacturing monopoly can lock up an American patent unused for years, while making the same article abroad under a similar patent; or simply to prevent improvements in a standarized product.

Patent laws ought to encourage and not penalize American invention and progress.

WOMEN are playing so important a rôle in the present war in connection with the nursing and care of the wounded that it may be of interest to call attention to the existing rewards for services of this nature.

In England there is the Order of the Royal Red Cross, consisting of a cross of enameled crimson, edged with gold, having on the arms thereof the words "Faith, Hope, Charity," and the figures "1883," which is the date of the founding of the order. The center consists of an effigy of Queen Victoria.

On the reverse side her royal and imperial cipher are shown in relief on the center. The cross is worn attached to a dark blue ribbon edged with red, one inch wide, tied with a bow and fastened to the left shoulder of the dress.

The order is bestowed by the sovereign "For the purpose of rewarding services rendered by women in nursing the sick and wounded of the army and navy," on the nomination of the secretary of state for war or the first lord of the admiralty.

Among those who possess it are Georgina, Countess of Dudley, Lady Beatrice Moncreiffe, Lady Sarah Wilson, Lady Wantage, Lady Randolph Churchill, the wife of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, also a number of Sisters of Mercy and of matrons and nurses of the army and navy hospital service who specially distinguished themselves.

France has no order that is restricted to the fair sex, but occasionally has bestowed the cross of the Legion of Honor upon women who have to their records feats of heroism in wartime or who have won particular note in connection with philanthropic work.

Russia has, like England, an Order of the Red Cross, founded in 1899 by Emperor Nicholas II on the birthday of his mother, the Empress Dowager Mary, who is the grand mistress of the order and has the right of its bestowal. Unlike that of England, it is of two classes.

Belgium has no order for women only. Austria has the Order of Elizabeth, founded in September, 1898, by Emperor Francis Joseph in memory of his murdered consort, for the reward of merit in women, not only in times of war but also in times of peace. It is in three classes, the insignia of the first class being of gold and the second class of silver. The third class is a silver medal, known as the Elizabeth medal.

As for Germany, the kaiser has at his disposal the Order of Louise, founded by King Frederick William III. of Prussia in 1814 in memory of his consort, Queen Louise, the national heroine of Prussia.

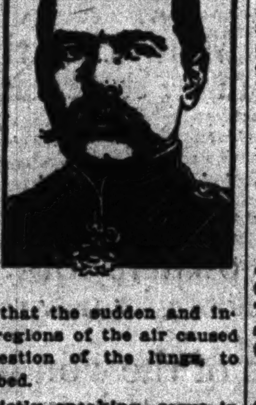
It is reserved exclusively for women and consists of a black, gold enamel cross, in the center of which there is a light blue enamel medallion bearing in gold the letter "L" for Louise, while the medallion on the reverse side bears the figures 1813-1814.

It is worn on the left breast by a ribbon of white bordered with black, the cross of the first class only being surmounted by an imperial crown.

In the war of 1870 old Emperor William founded a cross of merit, known as the Verdienstkreuz, of iron, bordered with silver, bearing a close resemblance to the Iron cross for men and adorned with his own initial, "W," and also "A," that of his consort, Augusta.

It was for women and girls who had rendered services to the sick and wounded in 1870, and was worn suspended by a white ribbon on the left breast. It was this cross that was worn by the late Mrs. Heneage, whose first husband had been that Prince Salm who fought for the north in the American war of the union and who fell in 1870.

Although merely a morganatic wife, this woman, an American, used to style herself "Princess Salm," and, while she had merely the Cross of Merit, generally was portrayed in the newspapers here as having the Order of the Iron Cross, which never has been bestowed upon any woman, as such.



While many people are now aware of the fact that Field Marshal Lord Kitchener took part in the Franco-German war of 1870 as a volunteer under the French flag, I have not seen it mentioned anywhere how his campaigning was brought to a sudden close.

While reconnoitering at Laval with a couple of officers in a balloon, they were forced to go up so high, in order to escape the German fire, that the sudden and intense cold of the upper regions of the air caused him to develop a congestion of the lungs, to which he almost succumbed.

Kitchener did not, strictly speaking, serve in the ranks on that occasion. For it was known that he had graduated with flying colors from the Royal Military academy at Woolwich and had qualified for a commission in the Royal engineers, for which he was waiting.

His father, Col. Henry H. Kitchener of the Thirteenth Light dragoons, made his home at Dinan for the last thirty-five years of his life, occupied a picturesque old manor house in the suburbs of that picturesque city, celebrated in connection with the great Breton hero Du Guesclin, and was on terms of intimacy with all the old Breton aristocracy of the district as well as with the officers of the neighboring garrison.

In this way the young Woolwich graduate, the field marshal of today, secured permission to accompany as a guest the officers of one of the regiments on active service and to thus take part in the campaign.

Lord Kitchener's father died at a very advanced age in 1893. But his widow, the stepmother of Lord Kitchener, still survives, to the best of my knowledge, and it is to her that I am indebted for this balloon episode of Lord Kitchener's campaigning in 1870.

Providing Lord Kitchener remains unmarried, his earldom, his viscounty, and his barony will go at his death to his eldest brother, Col. Henry Kitchener, a veteran of the Burmese war and who was stationed for a long time in Jamaica. Next in line comes the colonel's son, Commander Henry Franklin Kitchener of the royal navy, who still is unmarried; and, failing him, Henry Hamilton Kitchener, the only surviving son of the field marshal's younger brother, the late Gen. Frederick Kitchener, who was governor of Bermuda.

AMINO ACIDS.

WITHIN the last decade American investigators have been clearing up some of the wilderness spots in nutrition. In this work they have not been equaled by the work of the scientists of any other nationality. Not even Rubner, the great German, who for his work along this line has been given the greatest honors and furnished the best of equipment for further work by his government, has contributed so much as has the small American group.

To begin with, the possibility of putting nutrition on a scientific basis was due to the invention of an instrument for measuring the production of heat by Atwater in 1899. Later the instrument was improved by two men who had worked with Atwater at Wesleyan and later at Washington—Benedict and Carpenter.

It is only a few miles from Middletown, Conn., to New Haven, and presently Osborne and Mendel of Yale were stirred by the contagion which had developed at the small near-by college and began the series of investigations to which Harvard, Carnegie, Cornell, Michigan, and other laboratories have contributed, until now this great American investigation is applauded by the scientists the world over.

When the American Medical association met a few weeks ago one of the best discussions and one of the most largely attended was that devoted to nutrition.

Meltzer called attention to the fact that the men who read the papers in this discussion—Mendel, Lusk, Folin, and Dubois—were those who had done most to clear up the wilderness of ignorance; that, thanks to their work and that of half a dozen others, "today the scientific men in Europe take profound notice of the work done in this country"; that, furthermore, the announcement that these men were to speak on this subject had filled the large hall with men the great majority of whom were physicians who take care of sick people as their everyday work.

It seemed that Mendel was not visionary when he said in his paper:

"Let us welcome the day when the food market and the kitchen are taken into consideration by the physician as seriously as are the apothecary's shop and the fashionable spas."

It seemed that the men of Germany thought this day was not far away when they filled the dead Koch's shoes with Rubner, the nutrition chemist. It seemed not far away to Meltzer when he looked out over that great audience of practicing physicians.

It probably has come into the mind of some reader that there are already food experts; that the advertising pages tell us of men who will advise us of foods for brain and other foods for the liver and others for corns, ingrowing toenails, and so on ad nauseam.

There are quacks and charlatans in this as in every other field. But these quacks follow the plan of all other quacks. Without any proper training and out of touch with the forces of discovery, they take the facts that finally filter to them and with them build such a structure of theory and practice as would be expected of men of their type.

With them, as with all other quacks, the theories on which they build are the half-way theories beyond which the scientists evolved a generation before. The facts that they make use of are the facts of twenty years ago, known now to be but half facts.

One of the fields to which information was contributed in this discussion was as to the place where digestion takes place. This is the present state of opinion:

Preparation for digestion begins in the mouth. Such digestion as can only be done in the presence of acids is done in the stomach. In addition the stomach is a great mixing and dissolving organ. These are important functions. The stomach should not be regarded as an organ of no importance. Nevertheless to think of the stomach as the only organ of digestion is not justified by the facts.

So far as albumin or proteids are concerned, the stomach converts these into peptones. Peptones are poisonous, but, fortunately, before peptones can be absorbed the pancreas and the intestines convert the peptones into amino acids. There are at least twenty of these amino acids.

The steps, then, are these, so far as meat is concerned: The teeth grind it up and the saliva begins the solution of it. The stomach carries on the grinding process, goes still further into putting it into solution, and converts it into peptone.

In the intestine the breaking up is completed, the solution is completed, and the peptone is converted into amino acids. The work of digestion done beyond the stomach is just as important as that of the stomach.

The amino acids rapidly absorb from the intestines and are carried by the blood to the tissues. But the blood is more than a carrier. Says Vaughan: "Evidently the blood is a digestive, as well as a nutritive fluid."

Some work of digestion is carried on by the blood and especially by the white blood corpuscles. Therefore, we must add the blood to the list of digestive organs and the blood stream to the list of places where at least some digestion takes place.

Some digestion occurs in the liver, but, so far as our information now extends, the work of the liver in preparing food for use by the tissue cells is done on sugars and fats, rather than on meats and other proteids. Therefore, the liver must be added to the list.

In the main, however, the amino acids are carried quickly by the blood to the tissues in just the chemical states in which they are absorbed. The cells of the body then convert them into the particular substances required, use what is needed, and reject the balance.

The part rejected by the cells as not being needed for growth or maintenance is burned to form heat and energy.

We must add the cells of the body to the list of digestive agencies. The ultimate tissues of the body must be added as another of the fields in which digestion occurs.

The key to this new group of discoveries is the amino acids. Albumin and other forms of protein cannot be absorbed as albumin. They should not be absorbed as peptone, for that is poisonous. But when the highly complex chemicals have been broken up into the much simpler amino acids, absorption can take place readily; the absorbed products are not poisonous, and they are just right to be used by the cells in building up new structure.

The essential of nutrition is first a breaking down of the higher forms into very simple forms and a building up of these simple forms into higher. During the first hour after the amino acids have left the intestines and entered the blood the tissues make rapid use of them, and within six hours the supply of them in the blood has been fully drawn on for use by the cells.

The amino acids having been formed in the intestines, are attacked at once by bacteria, and from them are formed amins, which are rather closely related to such alkaloids as strychnine and morphine.

In the discussion Eustis said that the casein of milk yields 7 per cent of an amino acid tyrosine; that bacteria in the intestine converted this amino acid into an amin, called tyramine, which was capable of raising the blood pressure. He had satisfactorily treated some 500 cases of high blood pressure by dieting them, withholding all foods that formed tyrosine, the principal one of which is milk.

The diet used was composed principally of cereals and fruits. Other proteins result in an amino acid-histidin. The bacteria convert this into histamin, and this substance produces asthma and hives.

In proper cases of these affections, relief can be had by excluding from the diet articles which yield histidin. Blood yields a large amount; sturin equally as much; milk about a fourth as much, and wheat about half as much as milk.

The studies that are being made on the amino acids show plainly the reason for certain well known facts about foods. For instance, the analyses of milk, eggs, and hempseed [used in feeding birds] show that these substances contain all the amino acids needed for both repair and growth. We know that young animals fed on these substances thrive and grow.

Analysis of wheat shows that it does not contain all the amino acids needed for growth, though it does contain all that are needed for repair of tissue. This confirms what every woman knows—that a baby fed on wheat products alone will not grow. Experiments on animals show, however, that adults are able to repair their tissues when the only protein fed them is wheat protein.

An anlysis of corn shows that the amino acids contained are not sufficient either for growth or repair. Therefore, animals, whether young or old, must never be fed on corn alone. The old ones will not thrive, the young ones will neither thrive nor grow. Corn as a part of a mixed feed is admirable.

The experimenters have found that young animals fed on butter grow and thrive. When, in place of butter, lard is used, growth stops. Analyses of butter and lard along these new lines show the reasons for these facts.

To go a step farther, the amino acids derived from gelatine are not capable of bringing about growth or of repairing waste. They can be destroyed to furnish heat and energy. Therefore, in a diet table, the gelatines, although protein foods in a certain sense, in the body come nearer doing the work of starches than that of proteins. They can be used to supply energy in those people who have trouble digesting starches and sugars, or in whom starches ferment.

Gelatine has another advantage. Its amino acids are not attacked by intestinal bacteria to furnish those poisonous intestinal products which most people loosely call billiousness.

The body is provided with many self-regulating automatic balances. One—a well known one—is the heat balance. For instance, whenever by violent exercise one produces an extra quantity of heat, the switch is turned and the heat dissipation apparatus speeds up and disposes of enough heat to hold the temperature of the body even.

One of these balances not so well known is the chemical balance of the body, the apparatus through which the tissues of the body are prevented from bcoming too acid or too alkaline. Whenever anywhere in the body too much acid is produced, enough alkali is made somewhere to balance it, and vice versa.

A study of amino acids shows that those derived from certain foods furnish acids in excess, and others furnish an excess of alkalis. For instance, meat, cereals, and prunes furnish acids, and potatoes, apples, raisins, and cantaloupes furnish alkalines or bases.

The instinct which has impelled man to eat potatoes with his meat is justified by the latest scientific research.

A considerable minority of the people of the country worry about uric acid in their tissues, in their blood, and in their urine.

Mendel says that uric acid has nothing whatever to do with the work of the ordinary tissues of the body. It results from the burning up of purin bodies derived from the nuclei of cells.

What will interest this large minority is this fact: By withholding from the diet liver, sweetbreads, kidney, and greatly reducing the amount of ordinary meat, the uric acid can be wholly or practically eliminated as a constituent of the urine.

These observations are of enormous importance, but do not escape the one now to follow. These scientists suggest that it may be possible to build up amino acids outside the body and use them as human food in place of meat, eggs, flour, and milk. Mendel says:

"Provided only the amino acids are rendered free and available by the digestive processes, the body cares little whence its amino acids are obtained."

Folin says it is important to know "whether simple amino acids can be substituted for ordinary food, protein, and which, if any, of the amino acids are most indispensable for the maintenance of the animal organism.

"Much interest and important work has been done in this field, and it has become quite clear that some amino acids are indispensable and others appear to be less necessary constituents of the food. The importance of all these data to the science of metabolism, if not to medicine, is self evident in view of the fact that practically all the amino acids can be manufactured."

This means that there is a possibility that we may be able to manufacture protein foods to take the place of meat, milk, eggs, wheat, and corn; that it may not be necessary to raise grain and cattle; that before the time when the soil shall have lost its fertility science may have discovered better means of securing a food supply.

A SILENT PROTEST.

AWAITING CONFIRMATION OF ASSESSMENT.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[To the Friend of the People.]—For the last year we have understood that Wentworth avenue, between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-ninth streets, would be paved. This street is in very bad shape and to us who use it many times every day it would be a favor if you could inform us when this paving will be done. Also, will Drexel avenue, from Sixty-third street to the Midway, be paved, or at least repaired, this summer?

C. F. LINDSEY, 3751 Wentworth avenue.

A referendum vote of the property owners as to the kind of pavement desired on Wentworth avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Thirty-ninth streets, was taken, which occasioned a considerable delay in the proceedings. The ordinance for the improvement, however, was passed on July 2, and the work will be done early in 1915 if the assessment is confirmed before that time.

A petition was filed in court July 7 for paving Drexel avenue, between Sixtieth and Sixty-third streets, and the work will be done early in 1915 if the assessment is confirmed before that time.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN,
Secretary.

WILL BE PAVED NEXT YEAR.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Be good enough to tell me when Seventy-seventh and Seventy-eighth streets will be paved.

W. D. GODHART,
7733 South May street.

The ordinance has been passed for paving Seventy-seventh street, between Morgan street and Racine avenue, and the said street will undoubtedly be paved early in 1915 if the assessment is confirmed before that time.

An estimate has been ordered for paving Seventy-eighth street, between Morgan street and Racine avenue, and a public hearing thereon will be held this fall. If the assessment is confirmed in court the work will be done in the summer of 1915.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN,
Secretary.

NO WATER FOR MELROSE STREET.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Please tell me how to have the city water extended in Melrose street, from Sixty-fourth to Sixty-third avenue.

KARL BARON, 1741 Warren avenue.

No proceedings have yet been started for a water main in Melrose street, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth avenues, but the board of local improvements will investigate the matter, and if the main is needed will institute proceedings therefor.

GARNISHMENT AND JUDGMENT PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—What is the best way to proceed to garnishee a man's wages? Does a judgment filed against property in this county apply also on properties in other counties? Can a village prohibit peddlers from selling their wares in city limits without a license? X. X.

In order to garnishee wages it is necessary to serve a notice and in the event that the notice is not honored and payment made, to enforce payment by means of a lawsuit. This is a matter which should be handled by an attorney.

A judgment rendered in a court of record is a lien on the real estate of the debtor in the county in which the judgment is rendered. In order to make the judgment a lien upon the real estate of the debtor in other counties than that in which the judgment is rendered it is necessary to file a transcript of the judgment in the county where the real estate is located. In order to establish this judgment as a lien on real estate located in other states it is necessary to obtain a judgment in the state where the real estate is located.

A village has the right to prohibit sales by peddlers who have not obtained a license. This includes the right to prohibit such sales which are brought about by a subterfuge to avoid the law.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CAN USE ASSUMED NAME.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—When a woman leaves the stage can she take property under her stage name? CONSTANT READER.

This woman may use this assumed name as you suggest. However, if she intends to take title to real estate, she should have a legal change of name accomplished by filing a petition in the Circuit court.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SUIT AGAINST AN INSOLVENT.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—B has a claim against A and accordingly brings a suit. If A is insolvent and does not appear at the trial will judgment be entered on grounds of default? Will he be liable to contempt of court for nonappearance? W. S. C.

Yes.

No. After judgment is obtained supplementary proceedings may be instituted to collect and in these proceedings A must appear for examination or be subject to contempt of court.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

IRISH AND THE WAR.

La Moille, Ill., Sept. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The resolution passed by the United Irish societies of Chicago, as reported in this morning's TRIBUNE, seems rather silly, in view of recent utterances of such prominent leaders of Irish thought and life as John E. Redmond, T. P. O'Connor, and others. One might give, for example, Mr. Redmond's words spoken at a great meeting at Dublin on the 25th of this month: "It is Ireland's duty to fight. Great Britain has kept faith with Ireland, and Ireland will keep faith with Great Britain." C. T. H.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—As a friend of Ireland and the Nationalist party, I wish to remind self-constituted Irish patriots in America that their outbursts of anti-British sentiment at this time will not redound to their credit, or be of any service to Irish nationality in the green isle. Ireland is linked to England. We cannot get away from that fact, and if the democracy of England is good enough even at this late date to concede home rule and other remedial Irish legislation, why should Irishmen in this country continue to antagonize the British government?

Let us cut out this spirit of ill feeling toward England. Let us assist John E. Redmond and the Irish Nationalist party to further the spirit of conciliation and good feeling which happily both the English and the Irish people evince toward each other at the present time. By his keen foresight and master mind John E. Redmond, let us hope, has bridged forever the chasm of hate which has kept the English and the Irish from coming to a better understanding for so long.

M. J. CRIMMINS.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In justice to a vast number of Irish-Americans and practically all the Irish of Nationalist Ireland, Canada, Australia, and South Africa I think the newspapers should emphatically declare that the opinion of the United Irish Societies of Chicago with regard to Germany and the present war is not theirs. Our heritage of persecution and suffering for love of Ireland is as great as theirs, but our sense of right and justice is undoubtedly keener, and today we stand shoulder to shoulder with Great Britain, firmly convinced that, whatever may be said of the past, today she is right. It is unfortunate that a certain type of Irishman should gain such prominence in our societies that their opinion should be considered the voice of the nation.

AN IRISHWOMAN.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am surprised to learn that Irish-Americans claiming to represent the sentiment of the Irish in the United States and citizens of this country of Irish descent, have decided to send a representative to the German kaiser to tell him that he has the sympathy of the Irish element in America.

To begin with, the kaiser has not one ounce of sympathy of the Irish-Americans as a whole. He may have the sympathy of a few in Chicago. Out here in Nebraska we are all true citizens of our republic and against militarism and kaiserism.

The way to show your sympathy is to pack up and take the first steamer that will land you in the camp of the German-Austro-Hungarian army or, on the other hand, the Russo-French-English. We Americans must let Europe fight it out. We have our private opinions, of course, but we must not start sending representatives to the courts of Europe and make fools of ourselves.

ROBERT J. FITZPATRICK.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your issue this morning contains a set of resolutions based on neither truth, facts, nor expediency. If the object was to make the United Irish societies appear ridiculous it may have the desired effect. So far as having any bearing on the conflict being waged thousands of miles away it will have little effect on the course of a cannon ball. The condemning or encouraging of any one side can serve no purpose except to violate the sacred duty of American citizenship—to preserve the neutrality of the United States as outlined by President Wilson, who counsels all citizens to refrain from any act, word, or thought contrary to the strict neutrality of this country.

The democracy and the government of England have kept faith with Ireland by placing on the statutes a home rule bill acceptable to the accredited representatives of the Irish people—thus ending the occupation of the professional political agitator. The cause of Ireland has been used too long as a tail to the political kite and a halt must be called by teaching any party using it in the future the wholesome lesson of defeat.

E. QUINN.

WE WILL CONQUER BECAUSE WE MUST, VON BUELOW SAYS

Either That or Nation Perishes, Ex-Chancellor Asserts in Interview.

SCORES ENEMIES SEVERELY

The Hamburger Nachrichten of Sept. 7 publishes an extended interview given to Bjorn Bjornson, the son of the great Norwegian poet, by Prince von Buelow, in which the former chancellor of the German empire outlines the attitude of the German nation in the present war.

In this interview Prince von Buelow says: "We will conquer because we must conquer. The German people have never bowed the knee to the enemy when they have been united, and never in the course of our long and eventful history was a nation so united as today.

"How often have acute observers of our political life, careful students of our national feeling, and how often did Bismarck complain about the fact that it was so hard for the Germans to subordinate small misunderstandings to the greatest interests. But the whirlwind of today has blown away everything that was small and petty among us."

War Brings People Together.

"'This has made us all better,' an old friend said to me yesterday. This applies not only to the individual but to the people as a whole. The complete unity between state and nation which was brought about through the sacrifice of blood so that the lot of each was closely tied up in the destiny of the whole has in an overwhelming manner been emphasized today.

"Forgotten in the past are the former leaders of discontent. A Social Democrat, Dr. Sudekum, has made the open statement in a Swedish paper and has given expression to the feeling of the entire nation when he said: 'We of Germany, and that includes all parties and all languages, are absolutely imbued with one thought, and that is, that we must conquer or perish.'

"The situation in which we find ourselves today cannot be more clearly stated than that we will survive. Back of us is the spirit of our fathers, the spirit of Schiller and Kant, of Schleiermacher and Fichte. This spirit leads our armies and points out the way to them.

"We know that a long war will demand many sacrifices. We all know that great demands will be made upon the army, upon the business interests, and upon the resources of all the German people. But we know that the people who stood for seven long years against half of Europe, and who 100 years ago stood against the French desire for world power, will not lower their sword even in a long drawn out contest.

Fears Swaying of Italy.

"I believe the people of Italy will make the most serious mistake of their entire history if through English, French, and Russian influences they are tempted to take a hostile attitude toward Austria. I well know what stands between Italy and Austria; the hurts of the long and bitter warfare and the remembrance that many of their fellow Italians were annexed to Austria.

"I also know the threads that bind Italy to France and the influence that England has had for many years over Italy, not only through their fleets, which lie at anchor with their heavy batteries before the Italian seaports, but also through the memory of the English sympathy that was given to the Italians in their fight for freedom, and also their memory of the asylum which the leaders of Italian liberty found in England.

"Yes, I know the preference that many Italians have for English institutions and which they took as models for their own. But those are sentiments and impulses which do not meet the present situation. The point is that just as much as the fate of Austria is tied up in the success of our armies so is Italy."

Prince von Buelow also pointed out that the triumph of Pan-Slavism would endanger the position of Italy, situated as it is in the Mediterranean and subject to attack on all sides. Germany alone, and Austria could stem the tide of the Russian advance through western Europe.

Calls It War for Peace.

Continuing, Prince von Bulow said:

"When today millions of German soldiers stand in the field, they are fighting for future peace and for the future freedom of all peoples.

"Why is France at war? For the feeling of revenge, the satisfaction of which is only possible when the German sword is pressed to the ground, from which may God in his mercy protect us!

"Why is Russia at war? For the purpose of establishing pan-Slavism or a Russian world empire. History will say that the brave Gen. von Hindenberg, when he struck the Russians down at Tannenberg, did even as great a service to European civilization as in the olden days when Herzog Heinrich von Liegnitz beat back the Mongolian hordes.

"And why is England at war? A former minister, John Burns, who resigned because he could not tolerate Grey's policies, has openly declared 'the brutal necessities of the times has forced us into this.' It was England that led unlucky Belgium against us, that has brought on our necks Japan, that has so much to thank Germany for, and is repaying the debt so shamefully. Much water will flow through the rivers of Germany before Germany will forget this act of England's."

ASKS FARMERS TO NEW MART

Women Will Visit Rural Districts Today in Behalf of Congress Park Center.

Women of the Thirteenth Ward Woman's Civic league, with members of the Chicago municipal markets commission, will visit farms near Chicago today in an effort to induce farmers to supply the new market to be opened soon at Congress park. Efforts are being made by the commission to induce Oliver L. Watson, alderman from the Twenty-seventh ward, who has a farm at Palatine, Ill., to haul the first wagonload of farm products from his farm to the new market and to induce farmers in his neighborhood to furnish the market with fresh vegetables.

Women and War.

by Robert Herrick

When women marched up Fifth avenue, New York, the other day in protest at the European war all sorts of comments were aroused, but nobody, not even the marching women themselves probably, thought that the parade could be effective in putting a stop to the bloody unreason of the present conflict. Doubtless they felt that in this feminist age of woman's efforts for self-realization it was fitting for women to express in the only conspicuous manner at their command their true disgust at war, women's uncompromising opposition to its brutality and folly.

That such is women's real attitude towards war must be true, and that war will become less possible as soon as political equality is granted universally to women seems inevitable to those who sympathize in the emancipation of women. The mothers of the race who suffer the burdens of childbirth, will scrutinize more carefully than men all warlike proposals, which result in the destruction of their creative labors. The practical sense of women, usually better developed than with men, will not tolerate the making of wars for the trivial or immoral causes that satisfy men.

The distinguished English doctor, Sir Almroth Wright, whose diatribe against woman suffrage I have had occasion to examine in these columns, asserts that women should not be given the vote because they lack the physical strength to maintain their political rights by force. The assumption that all government and human society rests in the last analysis on brute force, expressed by the ability to fight, is not one that thinking women would accept, even if they should admit that women are really inferior in physical strength and courage to their males.

The elimination of futile violence is surely one of the hopes of feminism. In this it will have the coöperation of many men, not weaklings. But women have other and more immediate relations to warfare that are worth thinking about at this time. The traditional attitude of women towards soldiers and the dangers of war is a purely romantic one. Men are supposed to fight primarily for their homes, for the protection of their women from violence. Even today when we see women and children exposed to cruelty and starvation through war such mediaeval argument as this is used by our retired army and navy officers who are trying to whip public opinion in America into the support, through fear, of an increased armament.

The literary notion has always been that women smile upon soldiers—gold lace and martial airs inspire the "weaker sex." The typically romantic version of war and women is that of the fair lady blessing with her favors the heroic male who gives his life blood in her defense. She crowns him with honors when he returns victorious, prays for him in the fight, nurses him when wounded, weeps over his grave.

In this candy picture of life every sex incentive to war is displayed. From the battlefield romance is carried over generally into everyday life by woman's glorification of all physical strength and brute force. Thus insensibly the bruiser becomes the romantic hero, the race ideal selected by women for perpetuation. In a military nation the fighting caste is the aristocratic one, into which women seek to marry.

The reason of this instinctive homage paid by women to aggressive physical strength is rooted in the needs of primitive civilization. The tradition and the romantic glamour have survived long after the reason for their existence has disappeared, causing untold havoc to civilization. Today that fondness of unthinking women for the glitter of military glory is a reversion to the ideals of a loosely organized society. It is the clinging of weakness to strength, acknowledgment of parasitism that the more forward looking and awakened women resent.

When women realize themselves widely as responsible human beings, building into the state their own ideals of life, they will perceive the parasitic and destructive character of professional soldiers, of a military caste such as Europe has maintained and perfected to its undoing. Then they will no longer admire or eveb respect professional fighters—far less mate with them. They will consider soldiers as the pitiful survival of impossible brutalities, of the mad unreason of a purely man made world. They will neither marry nor give their daughters in marriage to destructive savages, least of all train their sons to consider the army as an honorable career. Thus women can and doubtless will put an end to the arbitrament of the sword by taking from it that false romantic glamour which it still enjoys.

Women have other and more subtle relations with the martial spirit as it is manifested today. As inciters indirectly, as beneficiaries almost always, of ruthless trade rivalries, of excessive commercial competition, they must shoulder their share in the responsibility for war. For the sinister background of modern wars, we are told, is trade. Modern wars are not due wholly to outbreaks of national anger; they are not the understandable if destructive eruptions of clean race passions. They are trade battles, all the more despicable when masked by trivial and trumped up excuses. "Patriotism" then becomes an emotionalism, skillfully played upon by the press agents of hidden selfish interests. Each nation believes that it is fighting for its existence, for its homes, when it is really fighting out blindly the desires of its masters for trade supremacy.

It is hard to see how an aggressive war, bloody and costly, can advance the true welfare of a nation, even from the standpoint of trade; but those who have most at stake in such matters must believe that in the last resort world markets are worth winning at the cost of human lives and suffering. When diplomacy fails to win the trick the nations as trade rivals fall to blows.

But what have women to do with these acute trade contests, if it is true that they cause modern wars? Women have more to do with them than the heedless observer thinks. Take our own peace favored land. Much of that fierce passion for blood letting has been transferred to business. The struggle of business is as fierce as the franker battles of shot and shell. And the rewards of triumph in trade are the same as those of successful war—social prestige and woman's favor.

To come straight to the concrete, women express their choices, their ideals in marriage, however unconsciously, and in this manner more profoundly modify the current of contemporary life than any other one agent. Women by accepting eagerly the homage of commercial success, by selling themselves openly in marriage to the richest bidder without discrimination, also by urging their partners on in the blind struggle for material supremacy indirectly contribute to the maintenance of that ideal of brutality and unreason which is war. If any woman doubts this conclusion let her read and ponder Prof. Veblin's "Theory of the Leisure Class." The sex spur to excessive trade rivalry is there set forth with a masterly, ironic command of the facts of modern civilization.

Primitive woman rewarded the man who hunted or fought for her with his rivals by her favors, by surrendering possession of herself. More subtle and refined modern woman not only smiles on the trade fighter but in a thousand indirect ways, by her demands and expectations for luxury, adornment, ease, social position, stimulates the male instinct for ruthless competition which by one channel or another leads to wars. To that woman who unthinkingly selects merely the rich provider, the strongly predatory male for her mate, who strives to make for herself a marriage euphemistically dubbed "advantageous," some small part in the total misery of unreason called war must be attributed.

There are those, men and women—unfortunately many of them—who will admit all this and defend it on the loose grounds of its being "human nature" to struggle for material supremacy in every conceivable way. They say, or imply, that the human animal is contrived to function thus, competitively, violently if necessary, both in trade and in war, with the sex stimulus as the commonest, the most powerful. Thus they would maintain are the strong, aggressive stocks created, thus civilization must proceed by bloody struggle forever. It is permitted to doubt, however, such materialistic, ruthless interpretation of the necessities of human nature. There are many sorts of rivalries, less crude, less destructive, than either war or trade. If women would mete out triumph to rivalries of science, art, service, administration, discovery, and invention—the creative processes of life—and less to the purely destructive processes, an immense civilizing advance would result. Fortunately for us in America and glamour of militarism affects our women but slightly, though there is no telling what reversion to the primitive we may experience if our people, frightened by the example of European barbarism, yield to the sophistries of those preaching on the "prepared" text and start over here the insane competition in armament. Then we, too, shall have the military parasite elevated to a romantic pedestal, worshiped by unthinking women, given a degenerating influence in the breeding of the race. As it is we have enough in the glamour of money prowess, affecting sex selection, hourly influencing the woof of race ideals. And after trade, we are told, comes war!

If feminism is to do for the world what its wisest advocates hope, it will open the eyes of intelligent, responsible women to the degradation of these two sex ideals, militarism and trade supremacy. The enlightened woman will reason that a stable state of society in which she can best function may be created without the "protection" of huge armaments, and, therefore, that the military hero as her peculiar defender is an illusion and an insult to her nature, which teaches her that war is inimical to her highest interests. Further she will recognize the danger to the race in breeding animalism, in emphasizing it by her sex choices, by her acceptance of outworn romantic notions that really condemn her to inferiority. Also in her training and care of the young she will not encourage militarism in boys nor parisitism in girls, knowing that both lead to the pit of unreason, of destruction and waste, of crime and hatred.

If all this sounds solemn and far fetched, if the "red blood" chatterers find it unpalatable, my only excuse is that this is one of the solemnest moments in the world's history, when it behooves every self-reliant soul to search for the remoter causes of the terrible passions so destructively let loose upon our world. If but a small part of the ingenuity now being exerted to determine the superficial and immediate causes of the present war could be turned to the examination of those deeper human truths, the material for which lies close at hand, the hopes of a shocked humanity might revive in the belief that the day will come when human beings are to emerge from their bondage to the baser passions. Every mother, every potential mother, has most of all cause to think along these lines and to think deeply. Instead of marching with a banner, let her think, think! It is hard to think beyond the moment, easy to march and shout.

DELAYS LISTING OF FARMERS.

Postmaster Campbell Awaits Burleson's Orders for Uncle Sam's Store.

Instructions for carrying into effect the "farm to consumer" extension of the parcel post system probably will be received by Postmaster Daniel A. Campbell tomorrow. Mr. Campbell said yesterday nothing will be done to obtain lists of farmers in the vicinity of Chicago until Postmaster General Burleson's instructions arrive.

"When we get our instructions from Washington we will proceed to get a list of farmers willing to sell to Chicago consumers and the list of their products," Postmaster Campbell said.

"When we get that in shape we will publish the list and the consumers and farmers will then do the rest. All that will be necessary will be to send an order to the farmer and he in turn will wrap up the goods and mail them by parcel post."

SAYS ALDERMAN WARNED HER

Proprietress of Massage Parlor and Alleged Disorderly House Asserts She Had "Tip."

Mrs. May Oliver, charged with operating a disorderly resort at the Acme institute, a massage parlor at 39 West Adams street, said yesterday she had been warned by an alderman that her establishment would be hit by a vice crusade. Three attendants and a "patient" were arrested in the place on Friday.

Fred Childs, clerk at the Yorkshire hotel, at 2505 South Michigan avenue, told Judge Goodnow yesterday that he was unaware of the fact that three young women who roomed at the hotel were inmates of a disorderly house, a charge which the women did not deny. Childs said the hotel was owned by Mrs. Helen Neuboldt.

The women, who gave their names as Lillian Raymond, Heln Moore, and Helen Belmont, each were fined $10 and costs. Childs was warned.

Germany's Breach of Faith Forced Britain Into War, James Bryce Says.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 3.—In an article contributed to the Daily Chronicle Viscount James Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, says:

"The present war has some unexpected consequences. It has called the attention of the world outside of Germany to some amazing doctrines proclaimed there which strike at the root of all international morality as well as of all international law, and which threaten a return to primitive savagery, when every tribe was wont to plunder and massacre its neighbors.

"These doctrines may be found set forth in the widely circulated book of Gen. von Bernhardi, entitled 'Germany and the Next War,' published in 1911, and professing to be mainly based on the teachings of the famous professor of history Heinrich von Treitschke.

Sees Militarism Run Mad.

"To readers in other countries, and, I trust, to most readers in Germany also, they will appear to be an outburst of militarism run mad—the product of a brain intoxicated by love of war and by superheated national self-consciousness.

"They would have deserved little notice, much less refutation, but for one deplorable fact—namely: that action recently has been taken by the government of a great nation (though, as we hope and trust without the approval of that nation) which is consonant with them and seems to imply a belief in their soundness.

"This fact is the conduct of the German imperial government in violating the neutrality of Belgium, which Prussia, as well as Great Britain and France, had solemnly guaranteed by a treaty made in 1839 and renewed in 1870, by invading Belgium when she refused to allow the German armies to pass, although France, the other belligerent, had explicitly promised not to enter Belgium, and in treating Belgian cities and people, against whom she had no cause of quarrel, with a harshness unprecedented in the history of modern European warfare.

Believes Germans Desire Peace.

"Whoever held these doctrines, I do not for a moment attribute them to the learned class in Germany, for whom I have a profound respect, recognizing their immense services to science and learning, nor to the bulk of the civil administration, a body whose capacity and uprightness are known to all the world, and, least of all, to the German people generally.

"That the latter hold no such views appears from Bernhardi's own words, for he repeatedly complains of and deplores the pacific tendencies of his fellow countrymen [see pages 10 to 14 of the English translation, and note the phrase that 'the aspirations for peace seem to poison the soul of the German people'].

"Nevertheless, the fact that the action referred to, which these doctrines seem to have prompted, and which cannot be defended except by them, has been actually taken, and has thus brought into this war Great Britain, whose interests and feelings made her desire peace, renders it proper to call attention to them and to all that they involve.

Britain Forced Into War.

"I certainly have no prejudice in the matter, for I have been of those who for many years labored to promote good relations between the German and English people, that ought to be friendly and that never before had been enemies, and I had hoped and believed till the beginning of August last that between them at least there would be no war, because Belgian neutrality would be respected.

"Nor was it only for the sake of Britain and Germany that the English friends of peace sought to maintain the good feeling. We had hoped, as some leading German statesmen have hoped, that a friendliness with Germany might enable Britain with the coöperation of the United States, our closest friends, to mitigate the long antagonism of Germany and France, with whom we were already on good terms, and so to improve their relations as to secure the general peace of Europe.

Denies Commercial Rivalry Charge

"Into the causes which frustrated these efforts and so suddenly brought on this war I will not enter. Many others have dealt with them. Moreover, the facts, at least as we in England see and believe them, and as documents seem to prove them to be, appear not to be known to the German people, and the motives of the chief actors are not yet fully ascertained.

"One thing, however, I can confidently declare. It was neither commercial rivalry nor jealousy of German power that brought Britain into the field. Nor was there any hatred among the British people for the German people, nor any wish to break their power.

"Leading political thinkers and historians of England have given hearty sympathy to the efforts made by the German people from 1815 to 1866 and 1870 to attain political unity, and they have sympathized with the parallel efforts of the Italians. The two nations, German and British, were of kindred race and linked by many ties to the German people. Even now we feel no sort of enmity against them.

"In both countries there were doubtless some persons who desired war and whose writings, apparently designed to provoke it, did much to misrepresent the general national sentiment. But these persons were, as I believe a small minority in both countries. So far as Britain was concerned, it was the invasion of Belgium that arrested all efforts to avert war and made the friends of peace themselves join in holding that the duty of fulfilling their treaty obligations toward a weak state was paramount to every other consideration.

"The small states whose absorption is now threatened have been potent and useful, perhaps the most potent and useful factors in the advance of civilization. It is in them and by them that most of what is most precious in religion, in philosophy, in literature, in science, and in art has been produced.

Debt to Small Nations.

"The first great thoughts that brought man into a true relation with God came from the tiny people inhabiting a country smaller than Denmark. The religions of mighty Babylon and populous Egypt have vanished. The religion of Israel remains, in its earlier as well as in that later form which has overspread the world.

"The Greeks were a small people, not united in one great state, but scattered over coasts and among hills, in petty city communities, each with its own life, slender in numbers, but, eager, versatile, intense, they gave us the richest, most varied, and most stimulating of all literature.

"When poetry and art reappeared after the long night of the dark ages their most splendid blossoms flowered in the small republics of Italy.

Switzerland Fostered Liberty.

"In modern Europe what do we not owe to little Switzerland, lighting the torch of freedom 600 years ago and keeping it alight through all the centuries when despotic monarchies held the rest of the European continent? And what to free Holland, with her great men of learning and her painters, surpassing those of all other countries save Italy?

"So small Scandinavian nations have given to the world famous men of science from Linnaeus downward, poets like Tegner and Bjornson, scholars like Madvig, dauntless explorers like Frithiof and Nansen.

"England had in the age of Shakspeare, Bacon, and Milton a population little larger than that of Bulgaria today. The United States in the days of Washington, and Franklin, and Jefferson, and Hamilton, and Marshall counted fewer inhabitants than Denmark or Greece.

Cites Ebb in Literature.

"In the most brilliant generations of German literature and thought, the age of Kent, and Lessing, and Goethe, of Hegel, and Schiller, and Fichte, there was no real German state at all, but a congerie of principalities and free cities, independent centers of intellectual life, in which letters and science produced a richer crop than the two succeeding generations have raised. Just as Britain also, with eight times the population of the year 1600, has had no more Shakspeares or Miltons.

"No action is more palpably contradicted by history than that relied on by the school to which Von Bernhardi belongs, that culture, literary, scientific, and artistic, flourishes best in great military states. The decay of art and literature in the Roman world began just when Rome's military power had made that world one great and ordered state.

Britain Not Seeking Power.

"We of the Anglo-Saxon race do not claim for ourselves any more than we admit in others, any right to dominate by force or to impose our own type of civilization on less powerful races. Perhaps we have not that assured conviction of its superiority which the school of Von Bernhardi expresses for the Teutons of North Germany.

"We know how much we owe, even within our own islands, to the Celtic race, and, though we must admit that peoples of Anglo-Saxon stock have, like others, made some mistakes and sometimes abused their strength, let it be remembered what have been the latest acts they have done.

"Abroad the United States has twice withdrawn its troops from Cuba, which it could easily have retained. It has resisted all temptations to annex any part of the territories of Mexico, in which the lives and property of its citizens were for three years in constant danger.

South Africa Self-Governed.

"So Britain also six years ago restored the amplest self-government to the two South African republics, having already agreed to the maintenance on equal terms of the Dutch language, and the citizens of those republics which were in arms against her thirteen years ago have now spontaneously come forward to support her by arms under the gallant leader who then commanded the Boers.

"And I may add that one reason why the princes of India have rallied so promptly and heartily to Great Britain in this war is because for many years past we have avoided annexing the territories of those princes, allowing them to adopt heirs when successors of their own families failed and leaving to them as much as possible of the ordinary functions of government.

"It is only vulgar minds that mistake bigness for greatness, for greatness is of the soul, not of the body.

Analyzes National Greatness.

"In the judgment which history hereafter will pass upon the forty centuries of the recorded progress toward civilization that now lie behind us what are the tests it will apply to determine the true greatness of a people? Not population, not territory, not wealth, not military power.

"Rather will history ask: What examples of lofty character and unselfish devotion to honor and duty has a people given? What has it done to increase the volume of knowledge? What thoughts and what ideals of permanent value and unexhausted fertility has it bequeathed to mankind? What works has it produced in poetry, music, and other arts to be unfailing sources of enjoyment to posterity? The small peoples need not fear the application of such tests.

Condemns Von Bernhardi's Views.

"What are the teachings of history, the history to which Gen. von Bernhardi is fond of appealing? They are that war has been the constant handmaid of tyranny and the source of more than half the miseries of man; that, although some wars have been necessary and have given occasion for the display of splendid heroism, such as wars of defense against aggression or to succor the oppressed, most wars have been needless or unjust; that the mark of an advancing civilization has been the substitution of friendship for hatred and of peaceful for warlike ideals; that small peoples have done and can do as much for the common good of humanity as large peoples; that treaties must be observed, for what are they but the records of national faith, solemnly pledged?

"And what could bring mankind more surely and swiftly back to that reign of violence and terror from which it has been slowly rising for the last ten centuries than the destruction of trust in the plighted faith of nations?

War Lesson for Whole World.

"No event has brought out that essential unity which now exists in the world so forcibly as this war has done, for no event ever has so affected every part of the world. Four continents are involved—the whole of the old world.

"And the new world suffers grievously in its trade, industry, and finance. Thus the whole world is interested in preventing a recurrence of such a calamity, and there is a general feeling throughout the world that causes which have brought it upon us must be removed.

"We are told that armaments must be reduced; that the baleful spirit of militarism must be quenched; that peoples must everywhere be admitted to a fuller share in control of foreign policy; that efforts must be made to establish a sort of league of concord—some system of international relations and reciprocal peace alliances, by which weaker nations may be protected and under which differences between nations may be adjusted by courts of arbitration and conciliation of wider scope than those that now exist.

Demands Nations Keep Faith.

"All these things are desirable, but no scheme for preventing future wars will have any chance of success unless it rests upon assurances that states which enter into it will loyally and steadfastly abide by it, and that each and all of them will join in coercing by their overwhelming united strength any state which may disregard obligations it has undertaken.

"The faith of treaties is the only solid foundation on which a temple of peace can be built up."

TRIP WITH JOHN BARLEYCORN WRECKS JOHN MILLER HOME.

Another Husband Follows Wife and Man to Rooming House and Strikes Match.

Drunkenness, cruelty, and desertion figured largely in the testimony given in ninety-six default divorce cases heard yesterday in the Superior and Circuit courts. Here are some of the reasons why decrees were entered:

Mrs. Teckla Miller of 757 Milwaukee avenue won a divorce because her husband, John, spent the Fourth of July and $800 of her money in company with John Barleycorn and then returned home and beat her.

After two months of married life, Lester E. Stuck of 1427 North Clark street followed his wife and another man to a rooming house, opened the door and struck a match. He was granted a divorce.

Mrs. Isabel Scott Godden said her husband, Charles Ewing Godden, now in Florida, spent all his money for liquor which she refused to accept as the staff of life. The court was convinced.

Mrs. Blanche Brown, owner of a delicatessen at Sixty-first street and South Park avenue, objected to a shower bath of acid which her husband, John H. Brown, alias John H. Smith, threw at her.

LACK OF HORSES MAY END WAR?

Frightful Waste of Nags, Which Armies [illegible] to Have.

GIVEN GREATEST CARE.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1914: By the Brentwood Co.]

Among the lessons of the great war which has now been raging for two months one worthy of note is the uselessness of such organizations as the so-called Purple Cross society, which aims at doing in times of war for horses, mules, and even for dogs, what the Red Cross society does for human beings.

The Purple Cross society claims to have come into existence some time ago under the auspices of the Royal society, and is only one of a number of similar undertakings which have cropped up during the last few weeks, many of them of a bogus character, and devised merely for the purpose of swindling people who are fond of horses and dogs.

Object an Excellent One.

The object of the Purple Cross society is an excellent one and formed a subject of discussion at the eighth annual peace congress, held in London in May, 1912, when at the instance of the Humanitarian League of England a resolution passed to the effect that "the merciful provisions of the Geneva convention at present extend only to human combatants, and the Red Cross affords no protection to those who would visit the battlefields to relieve or put an end to the sufferings of wounded horses and other animals employed in warfare," and that "the British government be therefore respectfully requested to invite the other powers to widen the terms of the Geneva convention so as to protect the veterinary surgeon, the horse ambulance, and such voluntary aid societies as may be duly recognized and authorized by the governments."

The fact of the matter is that everything that can be done to relieve the sufferings of horses in war time is accomplished by the riders and drivers of the horses and by the veterinary surgeons.

Horse Indispensable in War.

The success of an army in war depends to a great extent upon its mobility.

This being the case, it naturally follows that not only the veterinary surgeons, but all the other officers and men of the various mounted corps now in the field, give all the attention in their power to the care of the horses, attending to their injuries, if curable, and putting them out of their sufferings if the cases are hopeless.

Despite the care of officers and men and, above all, the unremitting and devoted attention of the vets, the wastage of horses in times of war is something frightful.

According to the official reports made to parliament at Westminster, in the form of blue books, over 400,000 horses lost their lives in one way or another during the Boer war.

Equine Race in Peril.

The shortage of horses is already being felt to a very serious degree by the armies of the various belligerents in Europe, particularly in Germany, among whose horses in France an alarming epidemic of Glanders is said to have broken out, and the kaiser's government has its agents busily at work abroad, buying up all the horses that they can obtain.

It is on the cards even that the shortage of horses may contribute to bring about an earlier termination of hostilities than would otherwise be the case since it would be impossible to continue the operations in the field, if there were no horses for the cavalry and no horses to drag the guns, ammunition, wagons, etc., over broken ground and fields, that are impracticable to automobiles.

LONDON THRILLS AT PROSPECT OF A HUGE VICTORY

Enthusiasm Spreads to Ireland; Redmond Wins Favor.

PEACE TALK IS SCOUTED

BY T. P. O'CONNOR.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The week end was full of thrills, mostly in delighted anticipation of a great and imminent victory over the Germans in the north of France.

To Englishmen, however, the most exultant event of the week was the landing of the Indian troops in France. To them soon may be added many other thousands of British reinforcements which are expected to give the coup de grace to the tottering retreat of the Germans.

The battle of Cracow is awaited with painful interest. A Russian victory there would mean a tremendous blow to the whole German army.

The attack on Antwerp causes some anxiety, owing to the splendid work done in previous sieges by the latest Krupp guns.

Every One Is Confident.

Taking the military situation as a whole, everybody here is confident, but the tragedy of it reaches every home. Each casualty list contains some relative's or acquaintance's name, yet the war enthusiasm grows hotter every hour. Everywhere all suggestions for peace are treated as ridiculous. Every man in these isles is determined not to sheathe the sword till Poles, French, and Slavs are liberated; till Belgium is avenged; and, above all, till Prussian militarism gets such a blow as may insure peace in Europe for the next half century.

The war enthusiasm is spreading to Ireland also, and Redmond's attitude made his leadership stronger than ever. All Ireland expresses approval of his drastic action in expelling mischievous cranks from control of the volunteer movement, and the movement now has a real chance of doing good, practical work since the paralyzing hand of faction has been removed.

Priests Speak for War.

The most powerful speeches for defense, war, and recruiting are made by Catholic priests, by whom Louvain and Reims are well loved.

Loyalty to Redmond also drove them to side with the allies, and hatred of the Germans is rising feverishly, as if Ireland had suffered the same atrocities as Belgium. The Irish in England if possible are fiercer and more enthusiastic than those in Ireland. Meetings of every branch of the Irish league in London passed resolutions this week unanimously indorsing Redmond's policy on volunteers and recruiting, and a monster meeting has been arranged for a fortnight hence to help Redmond in creating his Irish brigade.

Held as "Hit and Run" Autoist.

William Knudson of 2953 West Walton place, a chauffeur in the Parkway garage at 1880 Humboldt boulevard, was arrested yesterday as the man who escaped last Thursday night after his automobile had struck and killed Herman Rodnitzky, 8 years old, at West Division street and North Hermitage avenue.

Read the Story of Lake Glen Ellyn and of the Envied Privilege Exte

THE most picturesque spot within hundreds of miles of Chicago is in the village of Glen Ellyn—just 23 miles west. time measurement, the distance is considerably less, as the fast morning and afternoon trains of the Northwestern Railroad make the trip in 37 minu Indeed, Glen Ellyn is more easily accessible to the most of us than our own firesides. Yet, comparatively few Chicagoans know of it. More should—and will—when this fact-story beauty, and the sequel to the story, shall have been told. * * * Set down here, in the very lap of civilization, is this seductive glen, with its clear blue lake, its gorgeous, hillsides and its romantic environment—for "Lake Glen Ellyn," our property, is within the corporate limits of the village. A more charming place of residence could not be found. In the accompanying drawing, Mr. Vallely has wondrously portrayed the beauty which nature has so lavishly bestowed on Lake Glen Ellyn. But even the skillful pen of distinguished artist cannot do justice to the grandeur of its multi-colored foliage or give expression to its welcoming warmth, its restful cheer. * * *

CHESTERFIELD COUNTRY CLUB HALF A MILE WEST OF US—

THE ISLAND, LAKE GLEN ELLYN IN THE HEART OF OUR PROPERTY

SKATING ON THE LAKE— A POPULAR WINTER PASTIME

Economic and Protective Features of Our "Syndicate" Plan

¶ Our "discovery" of this little Paradise came through Mr. Collins, who saw it, fell in love with it and straightway bought and built his home there. His next step was to buy up the surrounding unsold property—some hundred odd acres—from its various owners. His idea was to eliminate all possibility of any depreciation of its exclusiveness and beauty which might befall it under a future indiscriminate ownership. Next in order came the task of formulating some practical plan for placing it in the hands of the right kind of people who would be willing to improve and further beautify it in accordance with some unified and definite plan. The idea of a syndicate was suggested and adopted. It affords a safe, but democratic means of selecting one's own neighbors. And by imposing certain wise restrictions on its every member, it is a guarantee of perpetual protection to all concerned. The syndicate plan has many other advantages that will be readily appreciated by those we hope to interest—not the least of which is the extremely modest prices our plan enables us to place on these 151 choice homesites.

No Overcrowding—No Shoddy Homes or Undesirable Neighbors

¶ It is not our aim to establish a rich and aristocratic colony on Lake Glen Ellyn—although numbers of fashionable and very well-to-do families will surround you on every hand. Our appeal is to people of culture who want a home where they may really live, where they may breathe pure air, where they may enjoy the beauties of nature, and where their children may be reared amidst wholesome and healthful surroundings. In short, people of good breeding who seek the fellowship of their kind. To such, the invitation to cast their lot in Lake Glen Ellyn is extended—regardless of their financial rating.

¶ While the restrictions will be strictly enforced, they impose no burden on the purchaser, even though he be a man of moderate means. They are introduced solely for the protection of each and every buyer.

¶ The restrictions summed up concisely are these: (1) Each buyer agrees not to resell his property to other than a Caucasian. (2) Not to erect a store, flat or double residence on his holdings. (3) Not to build more than one house to each 100 front feet of lot. (4) Not to erect a house at a lesser cost than $5,000 in certain sections of the tract, $2,000 in another section, and $1,500 in another section; and, (5) Not to establish his building line closer than 100 feet (in certain sections, 50 feet in others) from the street. And—

¶ Each purchaser agrees to maintain these restrictions for twenty years.

¶ Thus, there can be no overcrowding in beautiful Lake Glen Ellyn—no unsightly stores, flats or shacks—no undesirable neighbors.

¶ On the other hand, the owners of these 151 home-sites in Lake Glen Ellyn are left free to carry out the improvement of the tract according to their individual and joint desires.

Approximate Wholesale Prices

¶ Another distinct advantage of the syndicate plan is in the big item of economy. Not only does it eliminate the middle man—it also is calculated to reduce selling expenses to a mere 5 or 6 per cent. We are perfectly sincere in saying we would have to ask from one-third to one-half more than our present prices, were we to place Lake Glen Ellyn on the market in the usual manner.

¶ When you consider the high class restrictions together with the charm and beauty of the tract, you will agree that property like this should be worth $25 to $30 per front foot, at the very least. And, at that, where can you purchase property of equal desirability for anything like this price?

¶ But we are not asking $25 to $30 a front foot for property in Lake Glen Ellyn. The average price is actually less than TEN DOLLARS per front foot. And, with the exception of five magnificent double-depth lots, which have both lake and boulevard frontage, there is none of the property for which we are asking as much as $20 per front foot.

¶ We have placed a very low figure on the entire property, and, with this as a working basis, have pro-rated it and set basic selling prices on all lots—prices which you will agree are extremely reasonable. For instance, twenty-one of the 151 parcels are lots 87½x170 feet in size, on each of which we have placed a flat selling price of $399. Other lots this size, having cement sidewalks, as well as sewer and water constructions, are priced at only $800.

¶ There are 45 lots in a very heavily wooded section, where the average price per front foot is but $7.25. None of these lots has a lesser frontage than 100 feet and each has from twenty to sixty-five fine old oak trees.

¶ Property on the lake front is valued at from $14.50 per front foot up. The costliest lot is priced at $4,000. But some of these home sites, it must be remembered, are extremely large. Many of them in depth alone are from three to four hundred feet.

¶ The smallest parcel in the entire offering is 87½x170 feet, or its equivalent. The largest is almost an entire city block.

OUR property is within the city limits of Glen Ellyn, a village of about 2,000 population, 23 miles directly of the Chicago City Hall and on both the Northwestern Railway and the Aurora-Elgin Electric Interurba

¶ This delightful little suburb has long enjoyed considerable fame as an especially attractive and refined resi district. It occupies an elevation of over 200 feet above Lake Michigan and boasts splendid facilities fo transportation to and from the city.

¶ Civic affairs are most efficiently administered, the streets are well lighted, good discipline is maintained and the fin atmosphere prevails.

¶ The town has excellent schools and churches, a splendid public library, two banks, the necessary complement of shops artesian water, electric lights, sewer, gas, telephone service, well-paved streets and cement sidewalks. Adjoining it are the Chesterfield Country Club on the west; the Glen Oak Golf Club on the east.

¶ Transportation to and from the city is excellent, the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad maintaining 31 trains daily, with 19 on Sunday. The commutation rate is about 25 cents a day. ¶ The Aurora-Elgin "Third Rail" operates trains under a daily schedule of every 30 minutes; Sundays every 15 minutes. Their commutation charges are slightly lower.

¶ The principal Chicago stores make daily deliveries to Glen Ellyn.

HESE 151 home sites will be auctioned off to members of our syndicate. All bids will be started at our flat selling price, and each member—each holder of a Participating Certificate—will be permitted to bid on any and all lots until his bid is finally accepted, when his right ther bid will automatically terminate.

All surplus money accumulated in this manner will be pro-rated and returned to the 151 subscribers. In no event will we ourselves receive a penny for any parcel than the flat selling price under which we place it in the syndicate.

The first step in securing membership is to apply for and purchase one of the 151 Participating Certificates, without which no one may bid. The price is $50, and the amount is late d on your 10% cash payment on the home site you select. You then have 3 years in which to complete the payments on your property. Or you can pay all cash and save 6%.

Only 151 Participants Invited

¶ If you are acquainted with our property and want to join the syndicate, there is no reason why you should not take immediate action. An application is herewith printed in the lower left hand corner for your convenience. Either use it now or clip it for future use, as you prefer.

¶ But remember!—there are to be but 151 certificates!

¶ One hundred and fifty-one is the positive limit of our membership. There are but 151 individual parcels here to sell.

¶ If you are interested in our proposition, we must urge quick action. You should lose no time in visiting and inspecting this fine residence property. We anticipate that the 151 memberships will be snapped up very quickly. For the beauty of Lake Glen Ellyn captures all beholders. And the present prices, as we say, are ridiculously low.

¶ By no means do we recommend this property for investment, however. We do not want speculators, but only families who seriously purpose the establishment of creditable homes at Lake Glen Ellyn. Our low prices are not made for the purpose of encouraging speculating, but to make the property equally attractive and available to that discriminating type of folks to whom a fine home site in a high-class, restricted district at an unusually low price will make a quick appeal.

Behold It With Your Own Eyes

¶ This promises to be a pretty Sunday. Take advantage of the occasion to go out to Lake Glen Ellyn. The trip is a short one and the holiday in the open will do your heart and body good.

¶ Come out and corroborate the mental picture we have painted of Lake Glen Ellyn's beauty. See it for yourselves—you and your family.

¶ There will be no inducement to attract you, aside from the direct appeal of nature. For this is no subdivision sale. In fact, we are not selling any property. We merely begin today to organize our syndicate of the 151 required members.

¶ If you are interested, however, come out and inspect our property today as the best time in which to do it. Mr. Collins has established an "out-door camp" on the lake shore at the rear of his Crescent Boulevard home-place. Come out and be our guest in the little expedition of Lake Glen Ellyn enthusiasts who will today explore the property. See and know this magnificent villa tract today, so that you may later be prepared to buy.

Motor Out, This Forenoon

¶ The tour by automobile is a most delightful one. The directions are as follows:

¶ Drive west on Jackson, Madison or Washington Boulevard to Ninth Avenue, Maywood, thence north to St. Charles road on south side of C. & N. W. tracks; thence west to "Three Corners"; thence south and west into the Chicago-Batavia Road to Lake Glen Ellyn.

¶ Make the trip this forenoon if possible, and arrange to spend all day. Load a few potatoes, some bacon for broiling over camp fire, an old coffee pot, some coffee, sugar and some bread for toasting.

¶ The trees are turning, the autumn leaves are falling, the air is bracing—and Lake Glen Ellyn is at her best today.

Reached by Train and Trolley

¶ Take the Aurora-Elgin Interurban or Chicago Northwestern trains direct to Lake Glen Ellyn. The former runs on 15 minute Sunday schedule.

¶ Trains on the Chicago Northwestern Railroad (Galena Division) leave the Northwestern Terminal station today—and every Sunday—at the following hours:

¶ 7:10 a.m., 9:05 a.m., 11:45 a.m., 1:00 p.m., 2:05 p.m. and 5:05 p.m.

¶ When you alight at the station at Glen Ellyn walk east across the tracks, thence east on Crescent Boulevard for five minutes until you reach a large stone fence. This is the en rance to Mr. Collins' homestead. Walk right through his property to the lake at rear, where some of our associates will meet you.

A Beautiful Hand-bound Album of 12 Fine 9x12 Inch Photogravures

¶ If, for any reason, you can't come out today, then by all means write us for the details of our proposition.

¶ We have produced, at considerable expense, a collection of twelve very beautiful photogravures of views and beauty-spots in Lake Glen Ellyn. A limited number of these sets have been bound in album form, without printing or advertising, and form a volume that will be prized for its artisticness in any living room or library.

¶ These views are so charming, so realistic, that they are the next best thing to witnessing, with your own eyes, the matchless grandeur of the glen.

¶ We shall be happy to mail copies of this album, as well as descriptive booklet, plat, prices and full details of our plan to all requesting them.

¶ Your use of the below coupon will insure the utmost promptness in their delivery. Mail it in today.

Glen Ellyn"—our property—is in the eastern outskirts of the village of Glen Ellyn—a magnificent lake-forest set down, as it the lap of civilization, but delightfully removed from every semblance of city life. The tract is invested with thousands of and other forest trees which, at the apex of a stately ridge that surrounds the lake, present a view of indescribable warmth & beauty.
number of the 151 home-sites are, in fact, immense estates that face the lake and possess almost infinite possibilities of dent, while a half dozen fine lakeside homesteads are already erected and occupied.
of the lots in the tract are supplied with city water and sewer connections and have cement sidewalks.
the tract, however, is not improved. It is offered in its present state at the lowest prices and upon very easy terms.
nt Road, a fine country boulevard, practically intersects our property.
schedule of the "selling" prices may be obtained by application to our office.

¶ Terms of payment are one-tenth of the full purchase price in cash (against which the face value of the $50 certificate is credited) and balance in equal monthly installments for three years, drawing 6% per annum interest on the unpaid amount. Or, if desired, we will issue you a deed to the property after you have completed your nineteenth monthly payment, and will take a first mortgage principal note bearing 6% annual interest, in lieu of the remaining sixteen monthly payments.

¶ Title will be fully guaranteed and policy to that effect issued by Chicago Title and Trust Company.

CONDITIONS in the real estate market last week were much the same as during the previous week, although there was a noticeable falling off in the number of really important transactions. Under the circumstances, however, the showing was a good one and serves to strengthen the belief that once easier and more settled conditions prevail in the money market a marked revival in the real estate market will follow. The real crux of the situation is, of course, the money market, and regarding this, there is no doubt that a gradual, if exceedingly slow, improvement is taking place.

As yet this is not being so much reflected in the way of actual transactions as in the gradual development of a better and more optimistic feeling regarding the future, both in a financial as well as general business way. During the last week or ten days there has been evidenced the growing belief that the worst has been passed and that from now on a steady improvement can be looked for.

The more conservative are of the opinion that really easier money conditions are not to be looked for much before the middle of November. It may be possible that interest rates will show but little recession, that is, in the way of mortgage loans, but it is believed by that time it will not be difficult for a borrower with good security to offer to obtain reasonable loans.

Much of this is predicated on the belief that by that time the condition of the banks will have greatly improved and that this betterment will be reflected in a corresponding easing of the mortgage loan market. It is thought by that time a large part of the money which the banks have had to send to the country to move crops will have returned, as it is believed the crops will move freely to the markets in response to the sharp demand for foodstuffs abroad and the consequent higher prices.

There is little doubt that the ultra-conservative attitude of the banks has brought about a corresponding feeling of conservatism on the part of the moneyed interests, apart from the banks, with the result that they have been holding on to their money, reluctant to put it out in any form of investment security, despite the tempting interest rates offered.

With improved conditions and a more liberal policy on the part of the banks there is little doubt that much money will seek the mortgage loan field, and to a certain extent other forms of investment, notably real estate, where healthy conditions prevail.

It is thought, too, that the process of adjusting the business affairs of the country, financial and otherwise, to the abnormal conditions precipitated by the war will by that time have reached a point which will begin to approximate as near as possible normal conditions, and with this accomplished and with comparatively easy money conditions, there is nothing to stand in the way of a sharp general business revival. It is more than probable that by that time the people of this country will have discovered that so far as this country is concerned there is a decidedly silver lining to the cataclysmic cloud which burst upon the civilized world two months ago.

In connection with the falling off in building operations consequent upon the great difficulty in securing building loans of any size, it is interesting to note the theory advanced by some extensive and successful builders and operators that this checking in building is not altogether an unmixed evil. The point is made that the present slowing up, together with that occasioned by the brickmakers' strike in the early part of the year, was in reality something of a blessing in disguise, for the reason it will tend to neutralize the otherwise harmful effects of over building, which would have resulted had no check been placed on the building operations of the year.

The statement is made by those cognizant of the vast amount of building during the three or four years that despite the remarkable growth of the city during that period it has not kept pace with the huge building operations which have been carried on during that time and that some check was necessary to maintain healthy conditions.

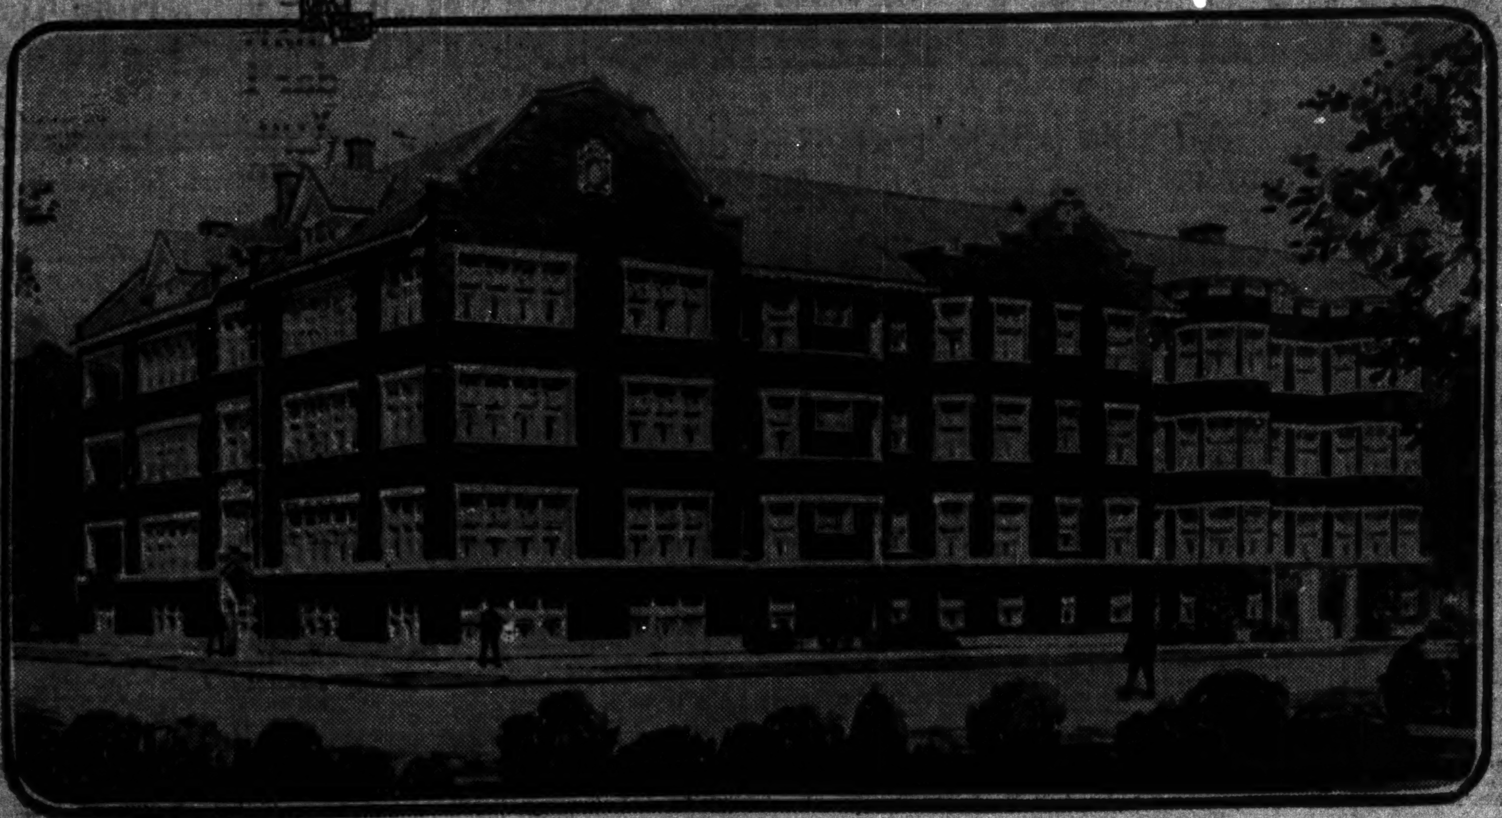
For this reason, it is asserted, the city has in reality actually profited by reason of the brickmakers' strike and the tight money which have materially curtailed the building of the year.

The point raised certainly is a novel one, and whether it is well taken or not, there is little doubt that Chicago has been building during the last few years at a rate which, if maintained for a year or so longer, would undoubtedly have precipitated all the evils which result from overbuilding.

It generally is admitted by those conversant with conditions in the downtown district that it now is suffering from overbuilding, and during the last year, particularly, the complaint has been more than once voiced by experienced real estate men and builders that many of the outlying and intermediate parts of the city were suffering from the same cause.

During the last three years the flat construction of the city has approximated $120,000,000, a total which few people realize. So much of this class of space has been thrown on the market that many vacancies have resulted, particularly in the older class of buildings, which neither the energy of agent or owner could fill. In certain parts of the city this condition obtains now. That this situation is understood by many flat occupants is evidenced by the reports from renting agents of an unusual demand on the part of tenants for reduced rents. Few concessions are being made, however, and as a whole the situation is a fairly healthy one.

New Apartments in Lincoln Park District.



The Lincoln park district is to have another extra high grade apartment building which is now in course of construction at the northeast corner of Belden and Commonwealth avenues, half a block from Lincoln park, on the grounds of former Aztec Tennis club, and opposite the grounds and residence of George E. Adams. It is being erected for Frank A. Larson, publisher and editor of the Swedish-American Hemlandet newspaper. It occupies a lot 101x157 feet and will contain twelve apartments of seven and ten rooms each, with two and three baths, which rent from $125 to $250 per month.

The building is being erected by Mr. Larson for permanent investment and its high character of construction has the following features: Electric elevator, solid mahogany finish in living room, marble fireplaces, needle shower baths, and large ball and party rooms for use of tenants.

The building will have vapor system of heating and is expected to cost $130,000. The plans were prepared by Architect Andrew Sandegren and is being built by E. P. Strandberg & Co. Paul Steinbrecher & Co. will have charge of the building.

GIVES ESSENTIALS IN REALTY APPRAISAL.

New Yorker Says It Should Be Well Thought Out Judgment of Natural Expert.

M. Morgenthau, writing for the New York Times, gives the following as essentials in the appraisal of property:

"An appraisal should be the well thought out judgment of a man with a natural bent for real estate valuations and also years of actual dealings in the section where he is appraising. To be of value it should be accompanied by his opinion, stating how the valuations were reached, and giving the opinion of the appraiser as to the future. A competent appraiser will, as a rule, check his opinion by consulting other experts.

"The value of a proper real estate appraisal is often almost beyond estimation."

REALTY OWNERS ORGANIZE.

Robert C. Givens Elected President of New Southwest Side Association to Boost Realty.

The property owners in the southwest part of the city, between the drainage canal and the Burlington road and Forty-sixth and Seventy-second avenues, have formed an organization known as the Southwest Property Owners' association and elected the following officers: President, Robert C. Givins; vice president, Frank Kerschman; treasurer, M. L. Greeley; and secretary, W. V. Aikman.

Its purpose is to aid in the proper development of the district, which is thought to have great possibilities, particularly in an industrial way.

It is proposed if possible, to have the sanitary district construct bridges across the canal on the section line streets. Now there is not a bridge between Kedzie avenue and Seventy-second or Harlem avenues.

TEMPLE STOCKHOLDERS BENEFIT BY TRANSFER.

Harris Trust Company Now in Control of Masonic Property at State and Randolph.

Record was made during the week of the transfer of the Masonic temple property at the northeast corner of North State and Randolph streets to the Harris Trust company in a trust agreement for the benefit of all the stockholders of the Temple association.

It will be recalled that a short time ago the property was bid in at judicial sale by Harry E. Weiss, who took title for the reorganization committee of the stockholders, of which George H. High is chairman. Mr. Weiss has now conveyed to the Harris Trust company, which will issue trust certificates in lieu of the stock of the company.

Leases and Loans.

LEASES of store and loft space in the downtown district, like loans, are becoming conspicuous by their absence, which condition is attributed by brokers to the continued stringency of the money market. Merchants who have been considering new locations or additional space have as far as possible postponed final action in the matter waiting a clearing of the financial and general business conditions, and frequently they were forced to this action because of their inability to make the necessary financial arrangements. In the choicer parts of the retail district there is, as usual, but little available space on the market, and, while rents as a whole are held generally on a fairly firm basis, many owners are disposed to make some concessions to desirable tenants. They are not disposed to make any material reductions running for any considerable time, being of the belief that within the next six months, probably, a pronounced revival will take place. Pending a return to better times, however, there is a disposition among many owners to make short term leases on terms favorable to tenants.

Several fairly good sized loans were made matters of record during the week, but as a rule lenders are making exceedingly few engagements. There is a better feeling showing, however, and a suggestive indication that borrowers are of the opinion lower rates are probable in a comparatively short time is the action of one large borrower who refused to pay a 5½ per cent rate on a loan of about $100,000, saying 5 per cent was all he would pay. Even more suggestive is the reported disposition of the lender to accept the 5 per cent rate.

Record was made of the trust deed given James A. Shane to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure a loan of $80,000, five years, at 6 per cent, secured by the property at the southwest corner of Kilbourn avenue and Lexington street, 550x116 feet.

The Roseland Safety Deposit company has given a trust deed to the Pullman Trust and Savings bank to secure a loan of $50,000, 10 years at 6 per cent. The Roseland company is remodeling and enlarging the building it occupies in Michigan avenue eighty-two feet south of One Hundred and eleventh street, which occupies a lot 107x116 feet.

The Royal Jewelers of Detroit, Mich., have leased for a term of ten years from Carl Hansen and George Benson the store in the Flat Iron building at Milwaukee avenue, North avenue, and Robey street, for a term rent of $38,000. The lease was negotiated by A. Clyman & Co.

The first fall luncheon of the Cook county real estate board since the summer vacation, which was held at the Hotel Sherman last Tuesday, was largely attended, about 100 being present. The program included a "silver tongued orators'" contest, as well as vaudeville selections. President Richard W. Wolfe acted as toastmaster and was one of the speakers, the others being William M. Lawton, William C. Regelin, E. J. Price, Herman Teninga, and Robert E. L. Brooks. The latter, who is chairman of the membership committee, reported that 255 new members had been added since the first of the year, the present total membership being about 700. Mr. Teninga, who was the winner of the oratorical contest, the prize being $25 worth of advertising space in the Real Estate Advertiser, dwelt on the unfair attitude of the Underwriters' association toward real estate men in the matter of insurance premiums.

E. B. Beatty of Ben I. Greensbaum's office has leased for the Newark Shoe Stores company to Ben. H. Kaufman, the hatter, the south half of the store and basement at 1221 Milwaukee avenue, for a term of five years from Oct. 15 at a total rental of $12,000. The Newark company recently leased the entire store and basement through the same brokers for five years at a term rental of $24,000.

Chandler, Hildreth & Co. have leased through their north side office for Mrs. Catherine A. Hufmeyer to the MacKinnon Dry Goods company, the triangular corner at Lincoln and Racine avenues and Diversey parkway for a term of years at a term rent of $21,000. The lessee takes the entire first floor of the four story building, which has been remodeled especially for their business. The store has a frontage of 100 feet on Lincoln avenue by 108 on Racine, with a depth of eighty-five feet across the rear.

Willis J. Rayburn & Co. has leased to Sam Mendelson a part of the corner store space at the northeast corner of Harrison and State streets for Hoefeld & Leiewer for a term of ten years, gross rental $70,000. Thomas A. Hall & Co. were also associated in the transaction.

FOURTH CHURCH SALES NOTABLE EVENT OF WEEK

Marks Passing of Prominent Landmark Before Business March.

BOOK CONCERN TO BUILD

While the volume of general business last week was large there was a dearth of really important transactions, the most notable being the sale of the old Fourth Presbyterian church property at the northwest corner of Superior and Rush streets to the Methodist Book concern, which is to improve the property with a modern business building.

The transaction has a special interest as marking the passing of one of the most prominent church landmarks in that part of the city in response to the demands of business, which during the last few years have wrought great changes in that district.

The book concern has not yet determined the exact character of the building to be erected on which preliminary work has begun, but it is certain it will be a thoroughly up to date structure and will cost probably in the neighborhood of $200,000, and possibly more.

Sold for $62,500.

The ground purchased is 125x125 feet and was sold for $62,500, making the sale at the rate of $500 a front foot. The Bowes Realty company represented the Methodist Book Concern and Ogden, Sheldon & Co. represented the trustees of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

The amount of money to be put into the new building cannot be determined until the meeting of the book committee of the Methodist Episcopal church, which takes place next April. The book committee at a previous meeting voted an amount of money not to exceed $100,000 for the purchase of a site with the further provision that, when the land was purchased an additional appropriation of $100,000 would be made for the erection of a building.

May Spend More.

As $40,000 has been saved in the purchase of the property it is thought that a larger appropriation than the amount originally named will probably be made for the new building.

E. R. Graham, head of the book concern, stated that the new building would contain a book store and he hoped to house in it the editorial, Sunday school, and various missionary offices of the denomination.

Other plans proposed by certain leaders of the denomination look to the establishing of the general offices of the denomination within the loop and the carrying on in the new building only the publishing and manufacturing business.

Building Nearly Demolished.

The building of the old Fourth Presbyterian church is nearly demolished and will soon be entirely removed. The organ was given to Christ church, Orchard and Center streets, and was dedicated Sept. 20. The stone is being used in the construction of the Bohemian settlement at Lawndale.

The Kenwood district was represented by an important deal in East Forty-seventh street business property in the sale by Edward I. Bloom to Helen S. Carson of the premises 1308-18 on the north side of the street, nearly opposite Kenwood avenue. The lot fronts 100 feet with a depth of 100 feet, and is improved with a two story building containing six stores on the ground floor and twelve offices on the upper floor.

A nominal consideration is given in the transfer, but the actual price is understood to have been $85,000, the sale being subject to an incumbrance of $35,000.

Trades in Flats.

In part payment Mrs. Carson conveyed the high grade six apartment building at 3831-33 Grand boulevard, valued at $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $14,000. She also conveyed the country home and fruit farm property near St. Joseph, Mich., comprising twenty acres on Lake Michigan, valued at $25,000, clear, and the twenty acre farm near Coloma, Mich., valued at $4,000. J. E. Bistor of W. K. Young & Bro. represented both parties to the transaction.

Mr. Bloom also figured in another important deal on the same street, involving the erection by him of a $100,000 store and office building at the northwest corner of East Forty-seventh street and St. Lawrence avenue, on ground which he has just purchased. The lot, which fronts 125 feet on Forty-seventh street, with a depth of 120 feet, was acquired from Mrs. Isabelle N. Corboy, a consideration of $10 being given in the transfer.

Hyde Park Deal.

An interesting deal in Hyde Park business property was also closed by E. Curtis Hart & Co., comprising the property at the southeast corner of Hyde Park boulevard and Lake Park avenue, which has been sold by Joseph Cormack to Myra C. Schwab, wife of Dr. Leslie W. Schwab, for a reported consideration of $56,000.

The lot is approximately 90x71 feet, and is improved with a new two story white tile front building, containing five stores on the ground floor and seven offices on the second floor, and having a gross annual rental of about $7,000. Mrs. Schwab conveyed in part payment the two apartment building at 4311 Vincennes avenue, clear, some cash, and a block of stock in Swift & Co., packers.

As Mr. Cormack had been carrying the property clear, the purchaser gave a trust deed to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure a part purchase money mortgage for $30,000, five years, at 5½ per cent. J. F. Kyle of Hart & Co. represented both parties.

Shedd Gets Corner.

Of much interest also was the final closing by John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Co., of the Outhet estate property at the southwest corner of West Madison and Franklin streets, the deed being filed for record early in the week.

The price of $670,000 is at the rate of $9,300 a front foot and $49.25 a square foot for the 72½x130 feet comprising the plot. In the transfers to Mr. Shedd, George A. Follansbee conveys an undivided one-twelfth interest personally for $55,833 and an undivided one-half interest as trustee of the Reuble M. Outhet estate for $335,000. An undivided five-twelfths interest was conveyed by Howard H. Harris for for $279,166.

In connection with the purchase, Mr. Shedd has given trust deeds to secure $446,666 of the purchase price of $670,000, running two years at 5 per cent. One for $37,222 was given to M. D. Follansbee, one for $223,333 to Mr. Follansbee as trustee, nd one to A. W. Brickwood for $186,111.

Another down town transaction was the assignment by Peter J. Schaefer to Max Goldstine of his interest in the long term ground lease of the property at the southwest corner of North State and Randolph streets. The consideration is not disclosed, but Mr. Goldstine, who is now the owner of a two-thirds interest in the leasehold, has conveyed it in trust to the Chicago Title and Trust company to secure a loan of $55,000, five years, at 5 per cent.

Leased for 198 Years.

The property fronts 106¾ feet on State street, with an irregular depth of from twenty to ninety feet, and was leased by Frances Bartlett of Boston to Mr. Schaefer, Mr. Goldstine, and Aaron J. Jones, Jan. 2, 1912, for a term of 198 years at an annual rental of $50,000 for the first five years, $55,000 for the following twenty years, and $60,000 for the remaining 173 years.

MISS KNOTT BECOMES BRIDE

Marries David Dangler at Fourth Presbyterian Church.

WEDDINGS OF THE DAY.

of the most attractive weddings of yesterday was that of Miss Lucy Alexander Knott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Adams Knott of 21 East Division street, and David Dangler, son of Charles Dangler of Lake Forest, which took place at 4 o'clock at the Fourth Presbyterian church. The Rev. John Timothy officiated.

Mrs. Roger Shepard (Katherine Kohl) of St. Paul was the matron of honor and the attendants were Miss Eleanor Hamill, who is to be the maid of honor at the wedding of Miss Nora Butler and Edward L. Ryerson Jr. on Tuesday; Miss Gertrude Spalding, who tomorrow evening will wed John Coleman Jr.; Miss Barr of New Orleans, Miss Evelyn of New York, Miss Virginia Whitehead, and Mrs. John Stevenson (Phoebe Eckels).

Alfred E. Hamill served as best man and the ushers were Harry C. Dangler, Walter Knott, J. Laurence Houghteling Jr., Frederick Ackert, Albert Farwell, G. M. McClure Jr., Charles Hickok Cleveland, O.; D. Raymond Noyes, and George Bodman of New York. A reception followed at the family residence. Mr. and Mrs. Dangler will live at East Oak street.

Miss Louis Is Bride.

Another bride of the day was Miss Louis, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman W. Louis of 6217 Magnolia avenue, who was married in the morning, at the family residence, to F. Frothingham of Salisbury, Mass. The Rev. C. L. performed the ceremony. Following the wedding breakfast, at which only immediate members of the family and a few intimate friends were guests, Mr. and Mrs. Frothingham left for a wedding trip to the south.

Miss Mildred Dixon's marriage to Ernest Falthorn, which took place o'clock in the living room of the summer residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur, was of much interest in Chicago, where the bride has been active in the and charity circles. The Rev. Wray Oneal of the First Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. William of Oconomowoc, performed the ceremony.

Wed at Springfield.

marriage of Miss Elizabeth Josephine Chatterton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Chatterton of 820 South Springfield, to Samuel Edwin son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. of 1358 East Fifty-eighth street, took place at 8:30 o'clock last night at St. Paul's Episcopal church, field, the Rev. Edward Haughton officiating the ceremony.

marriage of Miss Mary King Van daughter of George H. Van Pelt of Fullerton parkway, to Michel Pierre novich of Boston and Ragusa, Austria, was a home ceremony of 8:30 last night, Dr. McLaughlin of the Church of Savior officiating.

Park's contribution to the marriage was that of Miss Daphne Edwards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Edwards of 1 Elizabeth court, and Alsip Bell, son of James W. Bell of apolis. The ceremony took place at the First Presbyterian church of Park, the Rev. George N. Luccock officiating.

marriage of Miss Edith Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice of Harvard avenue, to Thomas Louis took place at 4:30 at St. Bernard's church, Englewood.

Sty'es Offered for Coming Year.

These style suggestions for 1915 were offered to the amateur designers by Mme. Alla Ripley, president of the Fashion Art League of America:

Full skirts and shorter coats; both long and short coats are worn, but with the fuller skirts the shorter coats are more youthful looking. Coat suits follow the upper body lines, fastening up to the throat, with military upflaring collars and long close sleeves. But below the waistline they flare, whether long or short.

The full tunic is slowly dying of overpopularity.

Broad belt effects are on the wane, as are all fancy intricate cuts known as "Pen Wipers." Little close fitting jackets with perky flares are only suitable for girls of 20, or thereabouts—the same as the straight waisted frock buttoned up the back and with the long flowing tunic. These are the garments for youth. The death knell of this mode has been sounded.

Separate coats follow the same lines as suit coats, only there is permitted a larger sleeve of generous bell shape, usually three-quarters or seven-eighths in length.

Simple elegance attained without apparent effort is to be desired, but only achieved through the hands of an artist.

Preferred and Common Stock.

Preferred shares have a claim on the earnings and sometimes on the assets of a company ahead of common stock. In other words, after the bond interest and operating expenses have been paid and a sum set aside for depreciation the next charge on the earnings of a company is its preferred dividend. Then if any surplus is left it goes to the holders of common stock.

Preferred stock is sometimes given preference as to assets, and sometimes not. In practice this distinction usually has not much importance. It means that if a company becomes insolvent or retires from business for any other reason the preferred shareholders have the first claim on assets after all debts are paid. If a railway or industrial corporation becomes insolvent there usually are not enough assets to pay all the debts in full and stockholders get nothing except the right to subscribe for stock in the reorganized company.

In the matter of dividends, preferred stocks are much more certain income producers than common, and, on the other hand, they offer only small possibilities of a big increase in market value. The conditions as to payments on preferred shares vary. In some cases a dividend must be paid, if earned. In others, it must be paid before any dividend is paid on the common stock. Often the dividend is cumulative, which means that common shares can receive nothing till the full dividend has been paid on preferred for all the time it has been outstanding.

There is another variation which is not uncommon. Under this plan preferred stock is entitled first to a certain dividend, then the common shares to the same rate. If any further distribution of earnings is made both classes of stock share alike.

Several railway and public utility companies have first and second preferred issues. The nature of their preference is somewhat different from each other, but both have preference over the common.

Most of the large industrial companies have an issue of 6 or 7 per cent preferred stock and one of common. When a company pays its preferred dividend and 4 or 5 per cent on the common shares the preferred is usually quoted somewhere near par and the common 30 or 40 points lower. It sometimes happens that a company makes exceedingly large earnings. Then the surplus goes to the common stock and it may advance far beyond the preferred in market price. The common stock of P. Lorillard & Co. was quoted on July 30 at 160 and the preferred at 115.

Chicago Great Western.

G. W. B.—The Chicago Great Western railroad was reorganized after foreclosure in 1909 and at that time the preferred stock was allotted the right to a dividend of 4 per cent, which became cumulative July 1, 1914. In the intervening five years the average trainload has steadily increased and the percentage of gross earnings consumed by fixed charges and transportation expenses has decreased. In the year ended June 30, 1913, the road earned 3.08 per cent on its preferred stock, but in the year ended June 30 last the rate dropped to 2.02. Earnings now are showing a falling off from last year's poor record. No dividends have been paid and none are likely in the near future. The betterments being made in the property may bring returns later, however. This department cannot predict the course of the market for copper stocks.

HELD FOR KILLING WITH AUTO

Chauffeur Who Ran Down William Dugan Bound to Grand Jury on Charge of Manslaughter.

Ernest Stagger, a chauffeur employed by Frank B. Houston of the Chicago Beach hotel, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury which inquired into the death of William Dugan of 6325 South Seeley avenue. Dugan was killed on Sept. 3 at West Sixty-third and South Peoria streets by an automobile in which two men and two women were riding. The driver of the car did not stop. Witnesses gave different figures for the license number of the car and were not positive of their identification of either Stagger or Mr. Houston's car. Stagger denied he was driving the car on the night in question.

Studebaker

September Was The Biggest Month In The History Of The Studebaker Corporation

In point of sales, in number of Studebakers actually sold and delivered, not only was last month the biggest September, but the biggest individual month in all the sixty-two years of Studebaker business. Isn't it remarkable that this should be true just at this time!

Studebaker Business for September, 1914, (Automobile Division only) Sales of "SIXES" and "FOURS"—$4,277,797.92.

N. B.—These are merely Branch Sales and do not include the tremendous direct sales to Studebaker Distributors and Dealers—which show an equivalent gain

Does this unprecedented Studebaker Prosperity not reflect at least normal business conditions for the whole American people?

We believe, too, that the widely spread volume of Studebaker Sales in September demonstrates that American prosperity is general.

Studebaker dealers everywhere broke records in September. Every state, county, city and village in the country showed tremendous Studebaker gains.

That means that the economic conditions of this country are universally and intrinsically sound.

This means more than isolated optimism.

It means national soundness and national confidence.

Actual September Studebaker Sales.

Analyze those figures. You realize that they are proof, not merely of the national popularity of a long established house and its standard product, but of the unfaltering courage and untroubled outlook of the American people.

Also those astonishing figures prove more than the overwhelming popularity of the Studebaker line, the new Studebaker "FOURS" and Studebaker "SIXES," and the distinctive Studebaker manufacturing methods and ideals and integrity.

Those astonishing figures attest the national appreciation of what has gone before in the sixty-two years of Studebaker history.

That is Studebaker Service.

The Studebaker Corporation does not merely sell a motor. It sells motoring.

A Studebaker purchaser buys not merely a Studebaker car—but he also buys Studebaker Factory Service.

The Studebaker Corporation is represented not merely by salesmen, but by Servicemen.

The Studebaker Corporation keeps Studebaker cars running for Studebaker owners.

Every city and village in the country is a Studebaker service-station.

Studebaker Branches, Studebaker representatives everywhere, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from Canada to the Rio Grande, are equipped, are instructed, are pledged to give Studebaker Service.

For such service the Studebaker Corporation has more than $1,000,000 worth of Studebaker parts distributed among Studebaker representatives.

That means immediate, economical, personal service to Studebaker owners—everywhere.

This one achievement of organization has entered, we believe, largely into the achievement of Studebaker Sales. Studebaker owners everywhere are selling Studebakers for us.

It is impossible for you to obtain, for several times the money, in any other way, so delightful, convenient and profit-producing a summer home as this premium offer of The Trend Magazine puts within your grasp.

And it is impossible for you to invest in property more certain to increase in value.

For Cedar Lake Is the Nearest Summer Resort to Chicago

It is only 39 miles—1 hour and 15 minutes by the Monon Railroad—from Chicago. Trains leave the Polk Street Station at 8:30 a. m. and 12 noon Sunday. No other similar spot is so conveniently located.

The wonderful Cobe Automobile Boulevard, which runs through The Shades, makes Cedar Lake a favorite resort for motorists.

Cool breezes on its wooded hills in summer, fishing, boating, bathing, hunting, make it an ideal location—one where values are bound to go up—one where your orchard home will be a Paradise.

But it is impossible to do justice to this remarkable proposition in an advertisement. Therefore

WHEAT RALLIES, FOREIGNERS BUY

Offerings Scanty and Recent Sellers Scramble to Increase Their Holdings.

CORN AND OATS HIGHER

Wheat sentiment underwent a complete reversal yesterday and as a result showed final gains of 2⅝@3c higher than the close of the preceding day. The change was unanimous enough to amount to a veritable psychological coincidence. Friday's sellers on the break late in the session scrambled in competition for scanty offerings at the start yesterday. All of the legitimate influences which were ignored when they developed Friday were effective. The market proved responsive and on reports of an enormous export demand scored the gains referred to above. Sales to foreigners proved even larger than had been variously reported—which is also true of the entire crop year to date, clearances being at the rate of about 1,000,000 bu for each business day thus far, and there was further selling at the week end.

Cash Wheat Takings Large.

In addition to the buying of foreigners following the advance for wheat at Galveston, they also appeared as liberal buyers of cash wheat here, and there was a great deal of talk, but not much confirmation, as to the amount of wheat actually purchased by these interests. There were 240,000 bu of wheat confirmed for export via gulf, and cash sales here were 65,000 bu.

Miller Reports Crop Losses.

A prominent miller just returned from Europe reported large losses in harvesting of the present crop and poor prospects of seeding of the new as a result of the widespread seizing of farmers' horses and feed and incompetent and inadequate labor as well as the actual devastation by the armies. It was pointed out that this was particularly true of Austria.

Statistics Show Gains.

The week's primary receipts were about 800,000 bu less than for the preceding week and 6,800,000 bu larger than for the corresponding week last year. Primary receipts for the season to date show a large gain over a year ago and total 178,107,000 bu, against 129,564,000 bu a year ago and compare with 128,250,000 bu in 1912. The week's receipts here were 2,887,000 bu and shipments were 2,152,000 bu. Prospects are for another large increase this week in the domestic visible supply. Clearances yesterday were 969,000 bu, and included 24,000 bonded Canadian wheat. The Canadian northwest reported the wheat movement falling off sharply. Estimated cars for Monday, 172.

Corn Rallies Sharply.

Corn sympathized with the strength of wheat, starting out with a sharp advance, and held it well throughout the session. Final range was 1⅛c higher. There appeared to be too much unanimity in Friday's late selling, with the result that competition was a little too extreme Saturday. There was a prospect of a break in the ideal weather over the corn belt, the official forecast indicating rain in many portions. Considerable increase developed in the general public demand and this also helped values materially. Prospects for rather free sales to Europe from the Argentine were reported because of the good weather there, but the shipments from the Danube territory continued to show up small.

Better Cash Demand.

The southwest reported a better demand for cash corn, but the trade here remained slow. There were also indications of farmers' sales during the coming week. Primary receipts for the week were 3,440,000 bu, as compared with 5,810,000 bu last year. The season's receipts at primary points on the crop year have been 219,649,000 bu, as contrasted with 240,650,000 bu last year and 219,230,000 bu two years ago. The week's receipts here were 1,808,000 bu and shipments 830,000 bu. Estimated cars for Monday, 96. Cash sales, 55,000 bu.

Oats Shorts Cover.

The scramble of an overextended short interest in oats, confirmation of an enormous export business, and cash sales here of 165,000 bu was responsible for net gains in oats at the close of 1½@1⅝c. The rally was also assisted by the bullish turn in wheat and corn, and these factors created a strong and active market from start to finish. There was further good buying of the cash article here and at Omaha, and influential and important buying of the futures as well. The continuance of the export inquiry remains the controlling factor, and furnishes a basis for speculative buying on all concessions in price. The knowledge of this is said to be responsible for the strength of cash oats in all markets. Primary receipts for the week were 3,468,000 bu, as compared with 5,396,000 bu last year. Week's receipts were 4,389,000 bu, as compared with 3,771,000 bu a year ago. Sales of around 200,000 bu were made to go into store here. Estimated receipts for Monday, 297 cars.

Provisions Are Strong.

Contrasted with the tendencies of the market during the greater part of the week, provisions turned strong and made final gains of 12½@42½c in the closing session. The packers and the short interests were liberal buyers of October lard, and started others in a buying movement of other products. There was a fair absorption of ribs and pork, which was doubtless influenced by the strength in all of the grain markets. Receipts of hogs for the week at western centers were 338,500 head, against 325,000 head the week before and compared with 410,000 head last year and 381,000 head two years ago. Yesterday's hog run west aggregated 21,000 head as compared with 35,000 a year ago. The cash trade in lard was fairly good, but in meats business was moderate. Estimate for Monday, 20,000 head, and 105,000 head for all next week.

Rye Active and Steady.

Rye sold at steady prices, with No 2 at 92@93c; No. 3, 90c, and sample grade at 91@91½c. Receipts, 8 cars.

Barley was well taken and firm to 1@2c higher, with malting 50@64c and feed 53@55c. Receipts, 76 cars.

Timothy seed was steady at $3.75@5.00 for cash. Cloverseed was quiet at $10.00@13.00 for cash.

Duluth flax closed ½@⅝c lower, with cash on track $1.37; October, $1.35½; November, $1.36; December, $1.37½. Receipts, 20 cars. Minneapolis was ½c lower at $1.35¼@1.38 for cash on track. Receipts, 73 cars. Winnipeg closed 1@1⅛c lower, with October, $1.15½; November, $1.16½; and December, $1.17⅝. Receipts 30 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

A. O. Slaughter & Co. say: "The abnormally large deficiency in the wheat crops of most of the European countries, as shown below, means that the exportable surplus of our crop will be wanted regardless of price. From available information we estimate the deficiency as follows:

	Bushels.
Austria	20,000,000
Hungary	55,000,000
Bulgaria	15,000,000
France	50,000,000
Italy	35,000,000
Roumania	10,000,000
Russia	200,000,000
Africa	10,000,000
Total	395,000,000
Canada	43,000,000
Total deficiency	438,000,000
Probable surplus Argentina	44,000,000
Showing net deficiency	394,000,000

"The Argentine crop is, of course, not available until about March, 1915. Furthermore, the crop outlook in Australia is very discouraging and we have direct information from there saying that Australia might have to import wheat."

Vice President John Washburn of Washburn-Crosby company of Minneapolis, just back from Europe, where he has been since latter part of July, believes there will be an enormous shortage of this year's grain crops in Europe. Mr. Washburn reports that farmers' horses and feed were confiscated without notice everywhere. Women were harvesting the crops in Austria late, much less from grain being overripe, but that armies were damaging and devastating crops over wide area. Crops were harvested under much better conditions in Germany, but great loss will be shown in that country.

Charles Sincere & Co. say: "Southwest leader here grasps the world situation, saying it is a cash proposition, not speculative; that the men active in future contracts fail to see that the present year never has had a parallel. We have been shaking out holders and depressing prices of cash property which the whole world wants. Export business of several million bushels probably the last two days and not half of it reported, as well as foreign buying orders in futures tell the tale."

Merchants and millers here continue to purchase on weak spots, and although their holdings are large it is believed that the demand will be heavy and therefore values have reached a point of interest. Consumption continues on a large scale, and the shortage in some countries which are not being supplied is becoming acute.

W. L. Gregson & Co. say: "The recognized attitude on live hog values, the consequent pressure in the cash meat trade, and the general public indifference towards anticipating future requirements were all against provision values, regardless of what is probably the healthiest position of lard during the last two years."

Primary market receipts for respective crop years to date:

	Wheat. Since July 1.	Corn. Since Nov. 1.	Oats. Since Aug. 1.
1914	178,107,000	219,649,000	77,271,000
1913	129,564,000	240,650,000	61,590,000
1912	128,250,000	219,230,000	62,298,000

Broomhall cables from Liverpool: "Continued large American receipts and expected liberal increase in the American visible helped the decline. Shipments other than American will be light and the demand from outside countries is urgent."

W. G. Fuller, Omaha, wired: "There was a very good demand for oats here after the close yesterday. One of the elevator concerns say they had more inquiries and firmer bids for oats than for the last two weeks."

An official of a big export house here says that the discovery that sales of wheat at Chicago, Duluth, gulf, and seaboard for two days reached several million bushels largely explained the bullish action of market.

Minneapolis wired: "No feature to trade here. There is a little buying based on the strength in Chicago. Understand one of the larger milling concerns sold a little flour for export, but cannot confirm."

Estimated receipts for Monday: Wheat, 172 cars; corn, 96 cars; oats, 297 cars; rye, 5 cars; barley, 70 cars; hogs, 25,000 head. Hogs for all next week, 105,000 head.

Minneapolis wired: "I think that these receipts are coming largely from independent and farmers' elevators. Line houses claim their receipts still light."

Lewis & Co. of Minneapolis wrote one of the large elevator owners that farmers show a disposition to hold their wheat and barley and to sell their oats.

Kansas City wired: "Shorts are buying in their corn here on predictions of wet weather."

Michael A. Bright posted a membership on the board of trade for transfer.

There were large foreign buying orders for wheat which could not be filled.

Bradstreet's correct wheat shipments to 9,963,500, instead of 9,446,735.

OUTGO OF CASH SHOWS DECLINE

Shipments of Currency by Chicago Banks Lower During September.

RECEIPTS ARE HIGHER.

September shipments of currency by Chicago banks showed a distinct falling off. The total was $13,166,694, against $17,531,691 for the corresponding month of 1913. The decrease of $3,600,000 equaled 21.1 per cent.

Meanwhile receipts totaled $14,958,943, against receipts the previous year of $10,358,378.

The figures show that for September there was a net gain in currency of $1,792,249 by Chicago banks, against a net loss in currency one year ago of $7,173,313.

It begins to appear that the policy of maintaining a 7 per cent interest rate in Chicago, in contradistinction of 6 per cent in New York and Boston, is worthy of consideration by local bankers because of certain larger aspects of the money question which may develop later.

U. S. Steel at 46.

Announcement in THE TRIBUNE yesterday that United States Steel common was selling around 46 may have suggested that there is an open and general market for the stock at that price.

There are no general markets in which that or a better or lower quotation can be secured for any but small lots. The principal stock exchanges are closed, and the quotation given, while correct, was for restricted operations.

The responsible banks recognize this in considering the value of loan collateral. Until the exchanges are opened there can be no disposition of collateral and consequent repayment of collateral loans. Such repayment is not being asked by banks understanding the situation.

St. Paul Improves.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul has for the month of August made a favorable exhibit, though relatively it did not equal that of the Atchison. But the St. Paul's showing an increase of $116,565 in gross and a considerably better percentage of gain in net affords some encouragement.

The Chesapeake and Ohio for August showed a gain in gross, but a loss in net.

Trade Averages 70 Per Cent.

An eastern authority estimates that taken as a whole the manufacturing business of the country is on about a 70 per cent operating basis. The steel and equipment companies appear to be suffering most due to the inability of the railroads to increase their revenue. The car manufacturing companies are operating about 40 per cent of capacity. The locomotive companies are doing a little better than 30 per cent.

Shrinkage in Per Cent.

The steel companies, which depend largely upon the railroads to take their heavier classes of steel, have felt this lack of buying power on the part of the railroads for at least two years and in consequence they are operating at less than 50 per cent of their capacity and with the expectation that this will be reduced.

The following table shows the percentage operations of certain industries and affords a fair index of the present state of business throughout the country:

Industry.	Estimated % oper. to capacity.
Car manufacturing	40
Locomotive works	30
Copper mining industry	50
Steel industry	50
Electrical industry	70
Can manufacturing industry	75
Sugar refineries	100
Corn products	85
Air brake companies	65

Pell & Co. Failure.

Schedules in bankruptcy of the New York cotton exchange firm of S. H. P. Pell & Co. show liabilities of $9,888,361 and assets of $8,428,906. The schedules were filed in the United States District court.

The assets include debts due of $2,009,913, notes, stocks, etc. $6,288,703 and deposits $85,742.

Savings in Foreign Countries.

War in Europe according to the Wall Street Journal's view, is fairly certain to reduce the available savings of the peoples immediately involved. The number of inhabitants, including the nations engaged in hostilities, is approximately 426,000,000, including Japan the only non-European nation. The savings reported in the latest available statistics exceed $9,544,000,000. The average savings differ greatly for the different peoples. But for all countries listed below the average is $22.40.

The figures of population, total depositors, savings, and average deposits for eight nations not including Servia, are given below. They compare with 11,097,942 depositors and deposits of $4,661,222,000 for a population of 97,028,000, being an average for depositors of $420.07 in mutual and stock savings banks in the United States. The figures follow:

Corn Products Earnings.

Announcement is made that net earnings of the Corn Products Refining company for the third quarter of the current fiscal year compare favorably with net earnings in the second quarter.

For the first half of this year the company reported net earnings of $1,708,884, and after deducting depreciation, interest, etc., amounting to $620,944 and the preferred dividend of $750,000 there remained a surplus of $321,930. The company is said to be grinding about 85,000 bu of corn a day, as compared with 100,000 bu one year ago.

London Market Situation.

The following was wired from London:

"Buyers of bills were more willing today, following the relaxation of immediate moratorium anxieties. Discounting increases slowly. Much foreign and colonial trade has been transacted without London bills. Throgmorton street was cheerful and the attendance was good in spite of the week end.

"Yesterday's new rule by the stock exchange will stop indiscriminate hammering at the reopening of the exchange. The action of the committee in assuming supervision of the liquidation of securities is generally approved.

"There is more optimism over the outlook. A recent issue of £200,000 French treasury bills is payable on Monday. The Bank of England was a light discounter of premoratorium bills today."

Bank Figures Irregular.

The New York bank statement made an irregular exhibit with large decreases in both loans and deposits, but a gain in cash of $9,077,000. The deficit in the cash reserve decreased $12,722,750, bringing that item down to $17,986,650, against a surplus one year ago of $5,586,000, and a surplus two years ago of $4,787,900. The figures:

Sharp Fall in Clearings.

Local bank clearings for the week made relatively a poor exhibit. There was a decrease of $71,596,240, or 20.4 per cent, compared with the corresponding week last year. This is the largest weekly loss reported. The figures:

Will Suspend Dividends.

Holders of stocks of the United States Printing company of Ohio have received a circular from the company stating that the company will suspend dividends owing to the fact that the United States Printing Company of New Jersey, the lessee company, has failed to advance the rentals from which the dividends are paid. The payment was due Tuesday on $2,500,000 of stock.

In Western Canada.

Sir William MacKenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway company, has returned from a trip through western Canada. In an interview he says:

"In every rural district through which I passed in the west they were plowing. There is more fall work being done in that country than in any autumn that I can remember. I should say that the percentage of the new breaking will be above the average. If the present levels of produce prices are even maintained without going any higher, more actual cash will be derived from the western output next season.

"The marketing of live stock will contribute heavily to this year's revenue from the farms. The railroads are handling an extraordinary amount of stock, considering the recent development of the industry, and there are still large amounts of cattle to come out."

Financial News Notes.

Announcement came from Cleveland, O., that the Firestone Tire and Rubber company's common stock sold at 300 ex dividend.

Within a few days the detailed statement of earnings of the Northern Pacific railway for August will be made public by the company. It is thought that while a falling off in gross will be shown, the decrease in operating expenses will leave a small gain in net earnings.

Charles A. Phelan, chairman of the governing committee of the Boston curb market, is quoted as saying that market will open shortly, though no date has been arranged.

Gold coin to the amount of $210,000 was engaged at the New York subtreasury for shipment to Canada.

Conditions of the coke trade in and about Pittsburgh are declared to be "deplorable." This results from the curtailment of the steel business. One of the largest coke plants is reported to be running four days a week.

It is rumored the American Rolling Mill company is likely to reduce its forthcoming dividend one-half.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Six hundred thousand fleece lined cotton garments for European armies have been ordered from knitting mills in New York state. Two large orders for wool and cotton sweaters are pending. Cotton goods markets were generally quiet and irregular today. Linens were 20 per cent higher abroad. Inquiries were made for burlaps for shipment to South America.

RURAL CREDITS
Farm Land Mortgage Bonds Will Increase Your Income.
For the past five years, Presidents Taft and Wilson, both great Political Party Platforms, Magazine writers, Congress and American Bankers' Association have urged expansion of Rural Credits as one of the great economic needs of the country. They all agree that Agriculture Land is our one inexhaustible resource. Constant cultivation only increases its production and value. Agriculture is our greatest industry, but all the mechanism of Finance tends to divert Capital away from it into other channels, and Rural Credits, though safest and surest, pay the highest rates of income.
Bankers predict America's greatest prosperity during this war and the reconstruction of Europe during the next 10 years. They say there is one sure thing, war or no war, in production of feed, cattle and hogs there will be increased competition for capital. The man who tells you you can't get more than 6% with safety has selfish motives. It's worth more.
I have 10,000 acres of carefully selected land in the South [Perfect Title in Chicago Trustee]; 3,000 acres in cultivation, all better for raising two crops than one, every acre of the 10,000 tillable, no culls. All on macadamized roads, one portion within 12 miles of a city of 200,000, is crossed by two railroads, three stations on the land, commutation service. Another part 2½ miles of city of 125,000, is crossed by Interurban Line now building. Another 2,000 acres is on railroad with station at each end. Not an acre of the 10,000 over 2 miles from a station. All within 12 hours of some of the best markets in the world, and in some of the best climate in the U. S. for both health and production. These are exceptional holdings, are they not, and are worth $750,000, but owing to the Cotton situation, a blessing in disguise, there is no money in the South.
I have issued $200,000 First Mortgage 10 Year Gold Bonds and $450,000 stock. This takes up existing incumbrances, provides $40,000 working capital, and $60,000 to be deposited with the Trustee to be paid out only on sworn vouchers for specified improvements for greater efficiency. Robber capitalists offer $225,000 for the $300,000 Bonds. Therefore, I will distribute Bonds with smaller investors and give them 30% of the Bonds bought in stock. That means $60,000 stock worth face today. Heretofore have leased to incompetent tenants on shares. Demonstration shows that with direct efficient operation 1915 income will be over $100,000. One item: Corn harvested in August this year yielded 50 bu. to the acre. I immediately put this land into Milo Maize which will yield 40 bu. to the acre. This means $50 net per acre in 10 months. Every acre will do this, and in selected tested seed crops much more. Can't I pay your interest? And I will personally guarantee a minimum of 6% on your stock. Have 3 tried managers under direction of employe U. S. Department of Agriculture. These are 10 year Bonds, but I will sell 2,000 acres for enough to pay them off in 3 years. With constantly increased development, remainder will then be worth $750,000—2-3 yours on your stock. Provisions for conversion of Bonds and stock for land. $60,000 Bonds now subscribed. Only 240 $1,000 units remain. Bank references. Call, write or telephone for interview or additional information. Room 620, Lexington Hotel.

BANKERS' PLEAS FAIL TO REMOVE TAX ON CAPITAL

Senate Democrats Decide to Retain Levy in Emergency Revenue Bill.

DROP INSURANCE CHARGE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—Retention, despite general and vigorous protests by bankers, of the proposed tax of $2 a thousand on bank capital and surplus and elimination of the proposed taxes on freight and industrial life insurance, were determined on by Democratic members of the senate finance committee today in their deliberation on the war revenue bill, which passed the house.

The committee determined to disregard the protests of bankers against the bank capital tax, believing that it is necessary as a better tax than the substitute tax on checks, drafts, and other negotiable paper recommended by a subcommittee. The latter tax, it was argued, would fall on the individual and also would be burdensome in administration.

The Graduated Theater Tax.

Proprietors of moving picture theaters and small amusement places will profit by the action of the committee, which substituted for the flat tax of $100 on all theaters proposed in the house bill a graduated tax of $25 for theaters with a seating capacity of 300 or less, $50 for seating capacity up to 600, $75 up to 1,000, and $100 if seating capacity over 1,000.

The committee did not quite conclude its consideration of the bill, but expects to finish on Monday. The revenue to be derived from the measure, it is estimated, will be approximately $110,000,000. Eliminating life insurance will mean a loss of approximately $10,000,000, but this is more than be made up in the tax of cents per horse power on automobiles estimated to bring a revenue of approximately $15,000,000.

New Liquors Will Be Taxed.

The tax on beer remains as in the house at $1.50 a barrel; that on sweet wines at 8 cents a gallon; dry wines, 5 cents a gallon; gasoline, 1 cent a gallon.

The house bill taxes on brokers are retained, with the addition of a $20 tax on commission merchants and an increased tax on pawnbrokers from $20 to $50 a year. The special tobacco taxes on dealers and manufacturers are retained, with the addition of two classifications to provide taxes of $48 and .96 a year on the manufacturers and dealers. The stamp taxes are retained without change, to bring an approximate revenue of [illegible],000,000.

The committee still has under consideration the elimination of casualty insurance, including fire, accident, and damage [illegible].

RESERVE BANKS OPEN SOON.

Institutions in Chicago, St. Louis, and New York to Be Organized First, McAdoo Says.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Federal reserve banks in the Chicago, St. Louis, and New York districts are to be organized in advance of the other nine institutions, according to an announcement made today by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

Mr. McAdoo said that all of the class C directors for the twelve districts will be named by the middle of next week. The directors for the Chicago district will be announced Monday unless there is another hitch in the program.

NATIONS SOUTH BID U. S. COME IN

Trade of Half Billion a Year Offered to U. S. on Silver Platter.

EVEN WILL SEND SHIPS.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1914: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Oct. 3.—"And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; there stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, 'Come over into Macedonia and help us!'"

This, from Acts, xvi., 9, is the text of this letter. Uncle Sam represents St. Paul, and South America Macedonia. The cry is one of great need, and the sound thereof flies across the oceans from one continent to the other. It is the cry of more than 50,000,000 souls, and it voices a need of thousands of millions of dollars. It tells of the wants created by the warring nations of Europe, and it begs Uncle Sam to send his goods over the seas to satisfy them. It is a composite cry, made up of all our sister republics.

Listen a moment and hear how big the cry is. It represents a trade of hundreds of millions of dollars. In 1912 Great Britain sold South America $270,000,000 worth of goods. The sales of Germany amounted to $157,000,000; those of France to more than $100,000,000, and in addition Austria and Belgium each had a large share. These goods were scattered far and wide over the continent. An equal supply is demanded this year, but it is shut out by the war. Truly the cry from Macedonia is loud.

Chile Sends Steamers.

Now stop again and listen more closely. Out of the composite you can hear the voices of the individual countries. That of Chile represents the loss of $75,000,000 in foreign supplies from Great Britain, Germany, and France. The country is alive to its needs, and the government is subsidizing steamers to bring our goods here to make up the deficit.

But what is that shrill, small cry from the top of the Andes? It personifies the wants of Bolivia. It says: "I have been buying goods from Great Britain to the amount of $20,000,000 a year. Germany has been sending me her wares to the amount of $4,000,000, and I have been buying $2,000,000 of France. My wants now are the same, and I rely on the United States to supply them."

And then the voice of Peru. "My needs last year supplied by the British cost me $14,000,000. I got goods to the amount of $5,000,000 from Germany and of $2,000,000 from France. Where shall these goods come from in 1915?"

The same sounds are heard from Ecuador, Colombia, and Venezuela. The imports of each country represent millions, but they are drowned by the megaphones of the mighty republics on the east and southern Atlantic. The needs of Brazil and Argentina are enormous. Last year Argentina paid Great Britain $120,000,000 for her daily supplies; she got $52,000,000 worth of goods from Germany and $34,000,000 from France. The purchases of Brazil from the same source amounted to more than $125,000,000, and in addition was the enormous trade with Belgium, Switzerland, Austria, and other countries, now tied up by the war.

Large Part of World Trade.

Indeed the foreign trade of South America bulks large in the trade of the world. Within recent years the exports to that continent of the three great manufacturing countries now at war have been averaging about six times as much as their exports to China. In 1912 their sales to South America amounted to almost $500,000,000, while their exports to China during that year were less than $80,000,000.

The imports from South America of the countries at war have been quite as large.

The total foreign commerce of Austria, Russia, France, England, Germany, and Belgium amounts to more than $20,000,000,000. That of Great Britain alone approximates $7,000,000,000, and that of Germany is more than $5,000,000,000. France in its trade with foreign nations employs more than $4,000,000,000 a year, and Austria and Russia each more than $1,000,000,000. Little Belgium has a foreign trade which exceeds $1,500,000,000, and the bulk of all this buying and selling and the making of goods for the trade is practically stopped by the war.

Some Striking Figures.

Here are some striking figures of the imports and exports for 1913. In that year Belgium sold $715,000,000 worth of goods, Russia $800,000,000 worth, and Austria $575,000,000 worth. These were the small merchants. The sales of Great Britain all over the world in that year amounted to more than $3,000,000,000; those of Germany were almost $2,500,000,000, while France came in with her share of $1,750,000,000. Each of the warring nations bought almost as much, or more, than it sold.

This gives some idea of the opportunities offered to the United States in the increase of its shipping and banking and trade. Our foreign commerce in 1913 was more than $4,000,000,000. We shall have to increase it over 500 per cent to equal the value of that of the nations at war.

This little republic of Chile, with its population of 3,000,000 or 4,000,000, buys its footgear from outside nations by the thousands of pairs, and the American shoe is so popular with the better classes that out of the supplies sold last year more than 11,000 pairs came from the United States, 8,000 from Great Britain, 6,000 from Germany, and 2,000 from France. We led in the trade, but we should have to more than double our business to supply the present demand. In babies' and children's shoes we did practically nothing. The sales of such goods amounted to 170,000 pairs, and of these only 1,000 came from our country. On the other hand, France sold 60,000 pairs, Great Britain 54,000 pairs, and Germany 46,000. What Chile wants to know is whether the United States can supply the lack of 169,000 pairs of shoes for her babies' bare feet.

There are many other goods which come almost entirely from abroad. This is so with toys. More than two-thirds of them have come from Germany and France, and the Christmas of 1914 will be lean unless Uncle Sam sends the playthings.

Small Textile Trade.

And then take our cotton and woolen mills. We have been shipping less than $1,000,000 worth of textiles per annum to Chile, whereas the sales of Great Britain and India have amounted to more than $10,000,000; those of Germany to more than $7,000,000, and of France to something like $3,000,000. The total amount of goods of that kind that has come from the countries now at war is twenty-five times as great as that from the United States. This means that an increase of 2,500 per cent in our sale of textiles to Chile is among the possibilities.

As to manufactures of steel, our trade with Chile, thanks to the streel trust, is rapidly growing. Nevertheless, the most of the iron and steel still comes from Europe and there are opportunities in all varieties of such manufactures. The country is using about 5,000 tons of corrugated iron and 19,000 tons of galvanized iron per year. Of the first, three-fourths has come from Great Britain, and of the second, Great Britain has sold 14,000 tons. We annually sell about 1,000 tons of corrugated iron and something like 4,000 tons of galvanize diron to Chile. In this same line Belgium has done a big business.

Buys Many Locomotives.

Chile is now taking about 7,000 tons of freight and passenger cars per annum; she buys in the neighborhood of 2,000 tons of locomotives and also thousands of tons of steel rails, railroad spikes, fishplates, and car wheels. In all of these things the United States has a fair trade, but Germany, France, Belgium and Great Britain are doing the bulk of the business.

An almost imperative demand for this trade is American ships and those so backed by the government that they cannot fail to pay a good profit. It is probable that Chile and Peru will subsidize their lines of steamers and send them through the canal to our Atlantic ports. Our government should do the same as to American vessels engaged in the South American trade.

Until now practically the whole of this trade has been in the hands of the English and Germans, and they have so combined that our steamers could not compete with them.

Our freights to South America should be the cheapest of the world. We take a large part of the exports of that continent, and the vessels which bring them should carry back American goods at low rates.

Hog market opened active and 10@15c higher on fresh receipts of only 5,000 head. Shippers and speculators were the only responsible buyers, however, and the orders did not suffice to clean up the offerings. The result was a dull, weak, late market with all of the early advance eliminated. Armour & Co. had 400 hogs direct and bought none here, and there were four other big packing firms out of the trade. Other packers bought sparingly, with some of them bidding 10c lower than on Friday for hogs left on the market late in the session. Shippers bought 1,500 head and there were 3,000 head left unsold at the finish.

Final quotations averaged 10c lower than a week ago, although the top paid early in the day, $9.05, was higher than last Saturday's extreme figure. The general average price for the week was placed at $8.35, the lowest weekly averaged made since early last July and compared with an average of $8.55 last week. Pigs were steady to strong for the day and 15@25c higher than a week ago.

CATTLE.

Native beef steers finished the week at a decline of 25@35c for the bulk, with some of the intermediate grades showing more loss as compared with the close a week ago. Receipts here for the week increased only about 4,000 head, but there were more liberal supplies at other leading distributing points east and west, and local packers had less outside competition to contend with. The market closed at the bottom, and lighter receipts will be needed to place the market on a sounder basis. Cows and heifers came in for a reduction of 10@25c, while all range cattle suffered a decline of 15@25c. Veal calves closed at a loss of 25c for the week, while stock and feeding steers held on a steady basis throughout the period and closed without material change.

Cattle at six western markets for the week, 197,400, against 262,200 the preceding week, 227,100 a year ago, and 236,500 two years ago. Total for 1914 to date, 4,637,000, against 5,434,000 the same period in 1913.

SHEEP.

With receipts of 196,000 head, the largest of the year to date, and shipments of 101,000, the live mutton trade at Chicago this week was voluminous and satisfactory, although prices finished the week at a decline of 10@15c for the bulk of the offerings. The country demand for feeding stock was exceptionally broad, and packers' efforts to force values to a lower level were largely restricted by the competition they had to contend with from country buyers. Fat lambs topped the week at $7.80 and sheep at $5.75, as compared with $8.00 and $5.85, respectively, the preceding week. The market closed in a healthy condition, with pens well cleared and prices giving a promise of advancing to a higher level.

COTTON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The day passed without any developments of interest on the cotton exchange. No reports were issued, and the date for reopening is still a matter of great uncertainty. Those who pin faith in the syndicate plan as a solution of the difficulty were disappointed that no announcement had been made this week, and feared the delay indicated a hitch in the program. However, as no time had been set for a report on the proposition, it is quite probable that the committee will make a statement next week. News that rain was general over the central and eastern belts and would probably spread to Texas was expected to affect the grading and movement somewhat. New Orleans spot quiet; middling, 7¼c; sales, 198 bales.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 3.—COTTON—Spot in limited demand. Sales, 3,300 bales, including 2,900 American, on the basis of 5.20d for middling. Imports, 1,050 bales, all American.

STOCK DEALINGS PROMISED SOON

British Plan of Protection May Mean Resumption at New York.

RELIEF IN EXCHANGE.

New York, Oct. 3.—News from London today outlined a plan for government protection of stock exchange liabilities which offered promise of the conditional resumption of trading here. Dealings in stocks and bonds, under the restrictions imposed by the stock exchange, showed some expansion.

Sales of exchanges by the $100,000,000 gold pool committee against shipments of the metal to Ottawa to the account of the Bank of England afforded immediate relief this week from the severe tension of foreign exchange.

Care for Unemployed.

The formation of a committee to take care of the unemployed in the financial district was a sufficient commentary on general conditions. Terms exacted for corporation refundings were indicated in the New York Central and Erie note extensions for periods of five months to a year at rates of from 7 to more than 8 per cent.

At the same time interior banks were said to be providing for municipal maturities in their localities. Different regions sent varying accounts of conditions. Reports from the grain country were favorable and those from the cotton belt troubled.

Small gains in export orders were reported by the steel trade. These, however, were insufficient to offset domestic contraction. August railroad reports showed that drastic economies are in force to meet the decrease in gross earnings. Enterprises dependent on new capital was practically at a standstill.

Food Exports Are Heavy.

Payment of subscriptions to the New York City notes replenished local money supplies. The disciplining by the treasury department of small banks accused of hoarding aroused controversial discussion. Customs receipts indicated considerable decline in imports. Food exports, however, were heavy. The value of cotton exports showed only slight expansion.

The feature of this week's bank statement was the substantial reduction in the deficit of cash reserves, which is now $17,986,650, against almost $31,000,000 of a week ago. Loans decreased by almost $28,000,000. The cash gain of $9,000,000 was below estimates.

COFFEE AND SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—There was no change in the price of spot coffee today, although the undertone was perhaps a trifle easier because of a decline of ⅛d in Rio exchange on London, assumed to be a further evidence of Brazil's unsettled financial condition and its probable inability to hold coffee off the market. Rio No. 7 was quoted 8½c and Santos No. 4 10¼c. SUGAR—Raw quiet; molasses, 4.27c; centrifugal, 5.02c. Refined quiet.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—SUGAR—The following prices were quoted by wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E. $8.28; powdered, standard, $7.58; eastern granulated $7.08; best granulated, $6.85; extra C, $7.38; canary, $6.58.

The filthy garbage can is an enemy to public health. The Kewanee Garbage Burner is its friend. The garbage can creates and spreads disease. The garbage burner prevents and destroys it. It costs like thunder to maintain the garbage nuisance as you are doing now, but it costs you next to nothing to keep the garbage burner going.

WHY? Because the garbage burner turns garbage into fuel. It helps to keep the fire going that heats the water in the hot water tank. The garbage takes the place of so much fuel in the Kewanee Garbage Burner and just that much fuel is saved to you day in and day out. And this saving pays for the garbage burner in a mighty little while.

The Kewanee Garbage Burner will last as long as your building will. It is made of the same splendid steel plate that is used in the world-famous Kewanee Firebox Boilers, and it is made in precisely the same way. It isn't a big affair but it is the most efficient vehicle you can have around your building. It means clean premises, clean smells and clean air. Put it in your next building and advertise it. Note the result.

A Warm Winter in Your House

Instead of paying your money to the middlemen, why not buy your coal direct from our mines, as thousands here in Chicago are doing? Get better coal and guaranteed full weight. Write or telephone today. You can burn more coal, keep warmer and still SAVE big money by getting coal the Tecumseh way.

USE TECUMSEH COAL
IT IS GUARANTEED

Every pound of Tecumseh coal is guaranteed to give out 13,400 B. T. U.'s with only 9% ash and 9% moisture. The first firing will convince you of the quality of your purchase. Our mines, located near Vincennes, Ind., are almost at Chicago's door. Take advantage of your location and save the expense of long, costly freight hauls from Eastern mines.

The COAL CLUB PLAN has been worked successfully by many of our customers. They buy a CARLOAD and split it between them. The saving is worth it.

WOMEN DEFEAT SANITARY RULE

Memorial House Lodgers Will Bathe and Air Clothing, but Not Fumigate.

PRESIDENT GIVES IN.

When the directors of the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial Lodging House for Women established rules for their new lodging house they did not reckon with the perversity of the female species.

The lodging house was opened on Thursday evening. A large three story and English basement building at 3412 Prairie avenue had been presented to the directors by William B. McKinley of Champaign. The women had put $10,000 into remodeling and furnishing the house. They thought that after twenty years of effort they had finally acquired what they wanted.

The first night thirty women applied for lodging. Each one read the rules posted at the desk near the entrance. One of them said:

"Nix on that fumigation noise."

Others expressed similar sentiments in a more genteel way. The management said the rules would have to be obeyed. Every lodger, according to the rules, had to take a bath, leave her clothes over night in the disinfecting room, and be up and dressed by 7:30 a. m. The women agreed to obey all the rules except the one in regard to the disinfecting of the clothes. They all were turned away.

Then the advice of Mrs. Charles Berrien Hall, president of the board of directors, was asked. She went down the next night. She told the women applicants for lodging that the fumigation would not injure their clothes unless they were brightly colored, and none of them appeared to be.

The women were as insistent as before. They said they considered it beneath their dignity to have their clothes fumigated after the fashion of the "bums" at the municipal lodging house. Mrs. Hall relented and said they could come in if they would take a bath and air their clothes on the back porch.

WURLITZER

Buy "In the Light"

Every figure is bold and plain, and the price shown is the only price and the LOWEST price. To sell for less would be a business impossibility. Wurlitzer also gives you the "LAST" price FIRST.

WURLITZER WILL NOT PAY ANYONE A COMMISSION FOR INFLUENCING A SALE, AND THEREBY RAISE THE PRICE TO COVER THE COMMISSION.

The Wurlitzer proposition to you is "Pay Less and Get More." Therefore when you buy a Piano from Wurlitzer—you do "BUY IN THE LIGHT." Your purchase is made PERMANENTLY satisfactory because, actually, you have bought the BEST for the LEAST.

The STRAD

GRAND PIANO

"The Grand that's different," of petit size and lines luxurious, but with a tone as noble, as full and as mellow as a Grand of double the cost and half again the bulk.

Like catching the blended sweetness of a thousand orchids and reducing them down to an exquisite ounce of rarest perfume, is the way its makers have conceived the crowning construction principle of The Strad.

Just one word—"Concentration"—is its eulogy. The Strad is most savingly priced at $445, because created by Wurlitzer and sold by Wurlitzer eliminates entirely all the entire middlemen's profits.

Terms: $25 Down and $3 a Week

The KNABE

PIANO

Quite aptly is the Knabe Upright described as "the Piano created from an ideal," and inspired to perfection by the rose-hued dreams of the most consecrated souls in music. The Knabe is the chosen Piano of the Vatican, and upon it is played the most majestic sacred music, the Knabe carrying the noble title of "Purveyors to the Holy Apostolic Palace."

Our peerless Mary Garden styles the Knabe of her home, "THE INSTRUMENT RARE AND INIMITABLE."

Knabe offerings in Chicago are made exclusively by Wurlitzer.

THE WURLITZER PLAYER PIANO

—described by a hundred great artists as The Player Piano with the Grand Piano tone. Equipped with a most wonderful Patent Sounding Board, the only Device through which sound was ever entirely set free and the tone completely sustained. The remarkably natural finger-playing action of its player mechanism gives the Wurlitzer Player Piano a pure, exquisite resonance equal to a highly artistic professional Grand Piano performance of a great master.

MAROONS BEAT HOOSIERS, 34-0, IN FIRST GAME

Use Roller in Second Half After Being Held to Touchdown.

BY RING W. LARDNER.

Unless the Indiana football team gets a move on it will hardly be able to finish its schedule before the Christmas vacation. A slower attack than that of the Hoosiers against the Maroons in the first conference game of the season at Stagg field yesterday has not been seen in these parts since Methusaleh's freshman year. The Maroons won the game, 34 to 0, and that's not saying much for them.

However, the so-called battle showed that this year's U. of C. team is going to be a team when the proper time comes, and the faults exhibited by Stagg's men yesterday were only those for which lack of practice is responsible. The material is there, and that's all that is necessary with the Old Man still in existence.

We sincerely hope, for Yale's sake, that the style of play used by Indiana is not the Yale style. If it is the Notre Dame eleven will be leaving the field before Coach Hinkey's squad knows there's been a kickoff.

Calls Out Entire Alphabet.

The Hoosiers secured possession of the ball early in the first quarter. Then their center faced the wrong way and his fellow linemen took up their station several feet back of him, or rather in front of him, and parallel to the Chicago line. The four backs stood in line a few feet back of that. Then the quarter back said, "Formation B," and recited the entire alphabet. Then he counted up to 2,000. And then he said: "Shift!" The shifting was done with all the swiftness of a heavy freight, and when, finally, there were seven men on the line and four back of it, the ball was passed, but one was willing to bet that the center hated to let go of it so soon.

When the ball reached a back he attempted to carry it in the general direction of the Chicago goal, but, with one or two exceptions, his attempt was worse than futile. The crowd, finding no enjoyment in the spectacle itself, began to seek amusement in kidding the visitors and shouts of "Wait a minute!" and "What's your hurry?" interrupted the labored task of giving signals.

Maroons Slow at Start.

The Maroons didn't get started until the second half. In the first two periods their linemen allowed the Indiana forwards to sift through and interfere with the backs' start. On forward pass and punt attempts Pete Russell had to work so fast that he could not do himself justice. In the second half, however, the Chicagoans woke up and showed something. A seventy-five yard run for a touchdown by Russell and innumerable long sprints by Gray discouraged the adversary and gave the Midway rooters something to rave about.

Indiana's best ground gainer was Lieut. Hackett of West Point. The Maroons were caught offside and holding more than was pleasing to the eye, and the officials didn't overlook any bets. Thus, when a Chicago touchdown seemed imminent Mr. Hackett delayed it by walking the other way with the ball, and he always went at least five yards before he was downed.

Gray Stars on Offensive.

Dolly Gray, who got into the game only two or three days ago, did a man's work. He was given the ball more than any other two men put together, and he made life miserable for Glackman and McCoy, who, one at a time, were supposed to prevent gaining around Indiana's left end. When they thought he was going to cut in he didn't, and when they thought he wasn't going to he did. This was perhaps unfair on the part of Mr. Gray, but it helped the Maroons a lot. All the other Chicago backfield men gained more or less ground, and you can search us as to whether they did it because they were good footballists or because the Hoosiers couldn't stop anybody.

The Chicago line was without the services of Capt. Des Jardien, who sat on the side lines and watched Mr. Albert do his work. Albert did it well until late in the game, when he retired in favor of the colossal Redmond. Redmond was the only Chicago player who didn't wear a number and it probably was because he couldn't be mistaken rather than because there wasn't room on his back. The Chicago guards and tackles did well after their indifferent start and Huntington and Sparks, at the ends, played strong defensive games and were sitting on Erehart before he could begin to run back Russell's punts.

Bands Play New Tunes.

The rival bands entertained the assemblage—with new tunes, too—until ten minutes before three, when the Chicago team appeared. Russell sent the regulars through a signal drill and then warmed up his punting toe. Three separate and distinct elevens of Hoosiers were on the field at 3 o'clock and rehearsed signals. Then Capt. M. Erehart and Acting Capt. Gray were called to the center and Gray guessed right as to the coin, which was ably tossed by Lieut. Hackett.

The Hoosiers kicked off to Schafer, who was downed on his own forty yard line. On the third down Russell punted and the fans got their first glimpse of Indiana's [illegible] attack. It gained for a brief spell, possibly because the Maroons had never seen anything like it. But finally Indiana had to kick and Chicago, starting from its forty yard mark, walked straight to a touchdown, Gray carrying the ball over. Schafer kicked the goal.

Erehart kicked off again—we guess it

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Two champion second basemen, Eddie Collins of the Athletics and Johnny Evers of Boston's Braves, have been of greatest value to their respective teams this year, according to the verdict of the Chalmers trophy commission, which was announced yesterday by Chairman Mulford of the commission.

This is the first time the trophy, which entitles its winner to a niche in baseball's hall of fame, has been given to two keystone guardians in the same season, and the second time it has been won by two members of championship teams in one year.

Trophy of Five Years' Standing.

For five years the Chalmers trophy has been awarded at the end of each playing season. In 1910 it was offered for the major league player who made the highest batting average, and the result was so close between Ty Cobb and Napoleon Lajoie that Hugh Chalmers, donor of the trophy, gave each of them a car.

In the following year, 1911, the scope of the contest was broadened and the trophy was hung up for the player in each league who proved of greatest service to his team that season. A commission of eight newspapermen in each league was chosen to select the winners each year by secret ballot on the point system. The highest possible total of points is 64, which can be obtained only when a player is placed first on all eight of the commissioners' ballots.

Seven Pick Collins.

Eddie Collins came within one point of the perfect count this year with 63 points, seven commissioners placing him first in their lists and one placing him second. Ty Cobb in 1911 was given the perfect total of 64 points. Johnny Evers was awarded a total of 50 points by the 1914 commissioners and was given a close battle by Rabbit Maranville, his side kick on the Boston team.

Sam Crawford, Detroit's veteran slugger, ran second in the American league this season with 35 points, and Bush of the Tigers and Baker of the Athletics were tied for third place with 17 apiece.

Big Bill James of the Braves was third in the National league with 33 points, giving Boston's champions one, two, three in their circuit.

Mail Vote Taken.

The votes of the commissioners were cast by mail from the different cities and were opened and canvassed yesterday by Chairman Ren Mulford of the commission and Carl M. Green of Detroit, representing the donor of the trophy.

The two cars which are the visible evidence of the honor won by Collins and Evers will be presented to the rival second basemen during the coming world's series.

QUAKERS' MAYOR JUBILANT.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 3.—Congratulations were wired to Mayor Curley of Boston by Mayor Blankenburg yesterday upon the winning of the National league championship by the Braves, who he promises will meet with a warm reception when the Braves meet the Athletics for the worlds' championship on Friday. He also congratulated President Shibe of the Athletics. The mayor invited the Boston executive to attend the game to be played in this city.

SWATTING DUE IN CITY SERIES; PITCHERS OFF

Sox Stronger on Mound, but Neither Club Has World-Beating Staff.

This is the first of a series of four stories by James Crusinberry comparing the players of White Sox and Cubs. Subsequent articles will discuss the infielders and outfielders of the two teams, with a final summary of their respective chance for the city championship.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Base hits are likely to be more numerous in the annual combat of the White Sox and Cubs this fall than ever before, because the customary air-tight pitching will not appear, unless a decided brace is taken by the hurlers on each side.

The famous White Sox staff, which stirred the entire country with remarkable feats in the early season, has been floundering about in distress since the Fourth of July with only occasional flashes of its former class. The west side staff in general is weaker than it has been in ten years, and only one member has maintained a steady pace from start to finish.

However, a survey of the situation leads one to believe that the same historic condition prevails for the coming series as has ruled for years—that is, that the Sox have a shade the better of it in pitching and the Cubs are better in batting.

Five Cal Pitchers in Form.

Manager Callahan of the south side crew has five slab men apparently in form for the battle. To all indications the success of the Cubs depends on two pitchers. Benz, Cicotte, Wolfgang, Faber, and Scott appear to be the reliable hurlers for the Sox, while Russell, although off his winning stride, must prove worthy against the west siders, because of his being left handed. Big Jim Vaughn and Larry Cheney must be fit to go at top speed for the Cubs, or the series will be short. Bert Humphries and Jim Lavender are liable to come to the front in the crisis, but neither has been as dependable as a year ago.

Besides the six named, Callahan has three other pitchers eligible to take part. Two of them, Lathrop and Jasper, are youngsters, and the other is Big Ed Walsh. None of the three is likely to pitch a ball in the entire series, unless the others "blow up" completely.

Manager O'Day has four besides those mentioned, and all four of them are likely to have a hand in the battle. Pierce, Zabel, Hageman, and Smith are the four. Zabel proved to be a good relief hurler on numerous occasions during the season. Pierce has been unsteady, but always displayed a lot of "stuff" when his arm was right. Hageman has shown ability and strength in the few chances he has had, while Smith, always a smart and clever pitcher, has been on the bench most of the time.

Have Gone Back.

If Benz, Faber, and Scott were in the form now that they displayed in June, and if Russell were going at the pace he maintained throughout the season of 1913, one might reasonably predict that the Sox would win the series in four straight games and still have a couple of swell pitchers left who hadn't appeared. But Russell hasn't been the same all season, and Benz has wavered on numerous occasions, while Scott hasn't shown his customary pace since the first Sunday in September. Faber has pitched only one good game since the first week of August, being laid up with a sore arm during most of that time.

However, to make up, at least partly, for the failure of these four stars, the Sox have Eddie Cicotte, who has gone through the year at his customary steady and reliable pace, and he may turn out to be the savior of the Sox in the series. Besides Cicotte, Callahan has "Little Mel" Wolfgang, who is sure to be a factor in

HUB HURLERS' WORLD SERIES' BIG PROBLEM

James, Rudolph, and Tyler Must Hold Athletics to Win Title.

This is the first of a series of four stories by I. E. Sanborn comparing the players of Athletics and Braves. Subsequent articles will discuss the infielders and outfielders of the two teams, with a final summary of their respective chance for the world's title.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Wherever two or three foregather about a baseball ticker the question most frequently heard is, "What can Boston's pitchers do to the Athletics?" The fan answers are almost as numerous as the fans and differ as widely. The ultimate reply to the question will not be known until the actual test comes this week. It will be the answer to the world's series itself.

Unless James, Rudolph, and Tyler can stop Connie Mack's aggregation of swatsmen a miraculous quantity of horseshoes will be necessary to enable Boston's Braves to cut any figure in the world's championship battle of 1914. That is admitted, because it would be true of any team that faced the Athletics.

Consequently what Boston's pitchers will do in the coming world's combat is of more importance than what Philadelphia's will do, although the Mackmen have not won their four championships and three world's pennants in five years without any pitching at all.

Pitch Over 120 Games.

James, Rudolph, and Tyler have won the National league championship for Boston, so far as pitching is concerned. The other members on Manager Stallings' slab staff have been "fillers" to a great extent, as their chief purpose in the last two and a half months has been to spell the regular trio which has carried the hurling burden almost entirely. James, Rudolph, and Tyler have taken part in over 120 games this season and the schedule calls for only 154.

That means they have done a helova lot of work and until a few days ago it looked as if they might have to go on working hard right up to the finish, with the chance they would have nothing left for the Athletics. The slump of the Giants, thanks to the Cubs, has saved Boston from a grueling windup and given the Brave pitchers just about the right amount of time to rest up without the danger of going stale. Barring accidents, they should be in top form by the first game.

James but Twenty-two.

Big Bill James has pitched the largest number of games for his team this year and has been most successful. If he were not the youngest of the trio he would be the logical choice to pitch the opening game and Stallings may gamble against James' inexperience, for Boston's best chance to win the series is to take chances. James is only 22 years old and necessarily lacks a lot of the hard earned craftiness of some of the veterans whom he will face. He is a big fellow, literally, "tall and rangy," with a world of speed and the strength to maintain it. Speed alone will not long bother such batsmen as Connie Mack will present if he has his own health and that of his regulars. Possessed of height, James can pitch so that the ball looks as if it were coming down hill, an advantage that has made the success of several slatlike flingers.

Rudolph Most Experienced.

Dick Rudolph is the oldest of the Brave trio and the most experienced. He is also the smallest, and few men of his size ever have made good on the slab in fast company. Lacking the strength of a giant, Rudolph has made up for it in smartness and in courage. He is a slow ball pitcher by comparison with James, and he has acquired a great slow delivery, besides the nerve to use it. Rudolph's fast ball is not effective, and he uses it only to work the batsmen, seldom handing up a good one to hit. He usually keeps the fast ones low or wide. With a broad curve to mix with a spitter and his slow ball Rudolph has plenty of goods to keep the batsman guessing, and his control is excellent enough to permit him to use his head effectively.

Tyler Least Successful.

If Tyler is a good left hander he will bother the Athletics more than either James or Rudolph, but no one knows if he is good enough to stand men like Eddie Collins and Frank Baker on their heads. The difference in the class of batsmen he has faced and those he will face in the world's series is believed to be considerable, and Tyler has been the least successful of Boston's heroic trio.

Left handers like Ray Collins of the Red Sox and Tex Russell of the White Sox (when he was good) were able to hold down the Athletics to a few hits, but southpaws of mediocre ability have not been able to bother Mack's left handed swatters to any great extent. Otto Hess, the other Brave southpaw, hardly will do that.

The rest of Stallings' second string of slabmen hardly will show unless in desperate straits. George Davis, the young collegian, has done little besides the no-hit game he pitched, and it is doubtful if he is called upon to any extent. If the names of Crutcher, Strand, or Cocheram appear in a world's series score you may look for a considerable quantity of Athletic runs to explain it. It is always best to remember Babe Adams, however, in discussing prospects of this kind.

Philadelphia's pitchers have not been overworked at any time this year. In fact, we cannot recall when they were ever overworked. The Mackmen cinched the 1914 pennant early enough to preclude the possibility that any of the men on whom the foxy leader expects to depend will not be at his best when the rival major league champions face each other this week.

For some time we have been expressing the doubt at about this time each fall whether or not Eddie Plank and Chief Bender could last through nine innings of another world's series. There never has been any doubt about it at the end of October. They not only have lasted, but they have borne the burden of most of Connie Mack's world's series battles since Jack Coombs was disabled.

Like Christy Mathewson they have been counted as too old and feeble for the excitement of the big doings and yet Big Six was the only Giant twirler last fall able to beat the Athletics, and it was Bender and Plank again who beat the Giants. Still there is always the chance that the well may be approached once too often, even by the stanchest of pitchers.

Veterans Not Worked Hard.

The work that Plank and Bender have done this season does not indicate they will be easy marks for the Boston Braves this week. They have not been worked as often as some of Connie Mack's younger slabmen, but they have maintained practically the same degree of effectiveness against American league batsmen this season as in the past and that league's strength has not been impaired by the baseball war as much as the National's, according to the best obtainable opinion.

None of the batsmen whom the two Mack veterans will face will have anything on either of them in experience or craftiness. Probably no pitcher of this generation ever had anything on Chief Bender in the matter of wits. The redskin depends almost entirely on his brain and instinct. He has had enough of the pitcher's goods to answer all purposes without having anything remarkable either in speed or curve, but his best card is his imperceptible change of pace and his uncanny ability to guess what the batsman expects him to pitch and to hand him something else with perfect control.

Plank depends more on his goods than Bender does and still possesses a wide knowledge of the art of pitching where the batsmen do not like to swing or swing least effectively. The Gettysburg veteran is stronger physically than the Indian and can turn loose greater speed if necessary. He has perfected a cross fire to mix with the sweeping curve that almost every left hander of note employs with best success against left handed batsmen. When Plank pitches he will face a slightly different team from the one Bender will tackle, for Boston has a double set of outfielders for such occasions.

Bush Still Erratic.

Bush, who crowned his first real season's work with a victory over the Giants last fall, has not been particularly successful this season, and Wyckoff has excelled him, although not used as often. Bush was erratic in his work last fall in the world's series and achieved his victory largely through splendid support. He has not overcome his tendency to wildness to any marked extent, and neither has Wyckoff. It is necessary to be able to put them over in a world's series because one usually faces batsmen who did not win their championship title by swinging at bad balls.

Shawkey is more likely to be Mack's best slab card this fall if Bender and Plank fail him. This youngster made good his first year in fast company and was expected to figure in the world's series, too, but Connie Mack fooled the dopesters last fall for reasons unknown but respected by everybody. Unlike most youngsters, Shawkey came back in his second year and did not fall down, as so often happens to the first year heroes. Perhaps keeping him out of the world's series of 1913 was the secret. At any rate Shawkey has had the necessary experience by this time and ranks next in effectiveness to Mack's pair of veterans.

Southpaws Among Braves.

Southpaw pitchers have annoyed the Braves more than northwheelers, but not to as serious an extent as is true of some teams. If left handers prove troublesome in the world's series, Mack may call on Bressler, who has been improving fast all the year, although he lacks experience, or he may take a chance with Pennock, who has greater experience and less control than Bressler.

Simply on their season's performance it looks as if Connie Mack, with Boston's pitchers inserted into his team of champions, could end the world's series in four games without thinking hard, or as if George Stallings would have a hard time winning a game with Philadelphia's hurlers working in front of his Braves.

But in baseball you never can tell.

HIGHLANDERS DOWN RED SOX

Boston, Mass., Oct. 3.—Errors by Boston today enabled New York to win the final game between the two clubs, 3 to 2. Boston tried hard to tie the score in the ninth inning and made two runs, but a brilliant bit of fielding by Peck stopped the scoring. Score:

New York ....1 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2—3 [illegible]

SENATORS PICK UP ONE, 7-3.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 3.—Washington won the final game of its schedule with the Macks today, 7 to 3. Coombs made his first appearance in a game in this city in two years, and did well until the fifth inning, when the visitors scored three runs by bunching three hits with two passes and a sacrifice fly. Score:

Washington ..[illegible]—7 10 1
Philadelphia ..[illegible]—3 [illegible]

Batteries—Ayres, Shaw and Henry; Coombs, Pennock, and Lapp.

RALLY GIVES TIGERS GAME.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 3.—By a ninth inning rally which produced three runs, Detroit defeated Cleveland, 6 to 5, today. Dillinger passed Dubuc and Bush in the last inning and each runner scored on an infield error. Crawford's single then brought Vitt home with the winning run. Score:

Cleveland ....[illegible]—5 [illegible]
Detroit ......[illegible]—6 [illegible]

Batteries—Dillinger and Egan; Coveleskie, Dubuc and Stanage, Baker.

QUAKER EXPERT PICKS MACKMEN TO BEAT BRAVES

Says Athletics Outclass Boston's "Mushroom Champions" in Every Way.

BY WILLIAM G. WEART.
[Sporting Editor Philadelphia Telegraph.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—When the conquerors of conquerors are apparently as good as if not better than ever, and they meet a mushroom champion, there is only one conclusion to draw. This is that the conquerors of conquerors should win.

I look for the Athletics of the American league to repeat their triumphs over the Chicago Cubs and the New York Giants when they meet the Boston Nationals in the coming world's series. Furthermore, I believe the result will be just as decisive this fall as it was when the White Elephants landed the world's series title in 1910, 1911, and 1913. In each of those years it would have taken only five games to wind up the series but for an accident to Jack Coombs in the fifth game at New York in 1911. In that year only six games were necessary to decide the title.

Mackmen Well Fortified.

From present appearances it does not look as if the Athletics ever went into a world's series better fortified in every department than they will be when they face the Braves. In 1910 the team was minus Oldring. In 1911 McInnis was out of the series, except for one play, with a fractured arm. In 1913 there were doubts about the twirling department.

This year Manager Mack has every one of his players in first class condition. The team is better fortified in substitutes. As for its twirlers, any doubt as to that department faded when the Athletics won thirty-nine out of forty-five games during the months of July and August. Mack used two wonders, Bender and Coombs, to beat the Cubs, with Plank in reserve. He had Bender, Coombs, and Plank in 1911. Last year Bender, Plank, and Bush bore the twirling burden. This year Connie has Bender and Plank, both of whom are as good as ever, with a number of youngsters.

Connie Has Many Youngsters.

These youngsters are: Bush, who has had his world's series test and stood it successfully; Wyckoff, a right hander of tremendous speed; Shawkey, a right hander, with curves; Pennock and Bressler, southpaws. Bressler, although he will not be 19 years old until Oct. 23 next, has proved that he is one of the twirling finds of the year. Then there is Davies, a left hander who joined the team last July. In quantity and quality Mack is better fixed for pitchers than ever before.

Team for team, the Athletics outshine the Braves. They are better on the offense and defense. They are better base runners. They have team play down to a science. They are veterans who have gone through the world's series fire and never have been found wanting. Against them will be a combination that has yet to prove its mettle in such a big event.

Athletics Much the Stronger.

Comparing the teams man for man looks very easy. Would any manager trade one of Mack's regulars, catchers, pitchers, infielders, or outfielders, for one of Stallings' regulars even up? I doubt it. Even where the Braves are the strongest, on both sides of second base, the Athletics do not have to doff their caps to Boston. In hitting, base running, and ground covering ability, Eddie Collins is better than Evers, and when it comes to head work, Johnny has nothing on Mack's second sacker. Barry and Maranville are both great shortstops and fair hitters, each being good in the pinch.

Stallings undoubtedly will rely on James, Rudolph, and Tyler to do his twirling. This trio is facing a mighty hard proposition, something harder than they had in any game in the National league race. In four previous world's series the Athletics have played twenty-one games. Only two pitchers, Mathewson and McGinnity, have been able to go the full nine inning route against them in a blue ribbon contest. I look for James to do the best work of Stallings' pitchers, despite the fact that players of different National league teams tell me Rudolph will give the American leaguers the most trouble.

Braves Win in Off Year.

How stubbornly contested the series will be cannot be said. Boston won a championship in an off year in the National league. There was not the class to this organization that there has been in previous seasons. If the class was there, the ball players didn't show it. Long term contracts, with no ten day clauses, militated against the ambition of the ball tossers.

Boston will go into the series with the confidence born of repeated victories. It has been checked only once since it began its memorable uphill struggle early last July. That confidence should count heavily in the early games, but it is likely to ooze fast if the Athletics get the jump in the first two contests.

Player for player, team for team, manager for manager, I believe that the Athletics outclass the Braves. Mack's men are called by members of other teams the "greatest money players" in the game. They should again prove this in the coming world's series.

GIANTS AND BRAVES SPLIT.

New York, Oct. 3.—New York divided the last double header as well as the season's series with the Braves today when it won the second game, 1 to 0, after losing the first, 4 to 1. Boston made fifteen hits in the first game. Hess was effective in the pinches. The second game was brief, as Marquard made the only New York hit. Crutcher forced in the only run in the fourth when he passed four men. Meyers had a finger smashed in the first and was forced to retire. Score:

Boston ......0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 2—4 15 1

Batteries—James, Hess and Tyler; Fromme and Meyers, Johnson, H. Smith.

Second game:

New York ....0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 *—1 1 1

Batteries—Rudolph, Crutcher, Strand and [illegible] Tyler; Marquard and H. Smith.

HARMON HELPS PIRATES WIN

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 3.—Pittsburgh won an excellently pitched game from Cincinnati today, 1 to 0. Harmon allowed only two hits, but both runners were caught off first. Twenty-seven batters faced Harmon. Score:

Cincinnati ....0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0 2 2
Pittsburgh ....0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 *—1 [illegible]

Batteries—Lear and Gonzales; Harmon and Schang.

FANS OF BOSTON PLACE NO HOPES IN N. L. LEADERS

Majority of Followers See Easy Victory for Mackmen in Series.

BY WALTER E. HAPGOOD.
[Sporting Editor Boston Herald.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Here in Boston, the home town of the Braves, there is a marked and surprising difference of opinion as to how Stallings' men will fare against the Athletics in the impending world's series. There are those, principally the fans who stuck to the club through the darkest years a few seasons ago, who believe that the Braves will win and that the series will be a repetition, in the upsetting of calculations of the White Sox-Cubs series of some years ago.

But far more of the Bostonians, loyally and enthusiastically they may have supported the Braves while they were making their fight for the National league pennant, assert that the Athletics are going to win and to win handily. The explanation of this is that the fans here have for years been accustomed to seeing the Red Sox play well at Fenway park and the Braves play poorly at the South End grounds, so that unconsciously, but none the less effectually, they have come to believe the American league the faster.

Braves Strike Fast Pace.

Nor has the career of the Braves since July 5, when they started on their way from the bottom of the ladder to the top, maintaining from that time a percentage of over .800, been sufficient to dispel the popular idea of a marked difference between the playing strength of the two clubs.

The old saying that a prophet is not without honor, etc., is illustrated in the case of the Braves. Stallings' men are unquestionably regarded elsewhere as having a better chance than they are given in Boston. As an illustration: It so happened that the writer was in New York most of the week at the Braves-Giants games. In the metropolis he found the Athletics only 5 to 4 favorites, but in Boston plenty of 2 to 1 money upon the Athletics is available.

Because Manager Stallings, upon whom Connie Mack has mighty little when it comes either to handling a ball club or to declining to discuss his team's chances, has steadfastly refused to blow his own trumpet or to make any statement that could be construed as meaning that the Braves were going to win, has probably tended to keep some of the home fans from backing the Stallings-Evers combination.

Stallings Sure of Victory.

If the truth were known, Manager Stallings fully expects his own club will take the series, and his players are as confident as they were along a few weeks back that they were to be the National league winners. Stallings entertains an altogether different opinion of his pitching staff than the rank and file of the fans.

"Let me tell you one thing," Stallings said to the writer the other day. "The pitching staff is the least of my worries. We'll hit the Athletics' pitchers harder than Connie Mack's boys will hit ours."

These words coming from Stallings himself ought to carry some weight among those who imagine that Collins, Baker, et al., are going to pound the Braves' pitching trio of Messrs. Rudolph, Tyler, and James to the four corners of Shibe field and of Fenway park.

The series is going to be a big surprise to those who can see only the Athletics. The Braves' pitchers ought to offset the admitted superiority of the Athletics in hitting. In defensive play the Braves will have the edge. The Braves' infield as it is playing today and as it has been playing for months is quicker and faster than the Athletics', with all due respect to Eddie Collins and his infield associates.

Macks Lead in Outfield.

In the outfield the Athletics have the better of it, although Mann, who will play right field when a southpaw is pitching for the Athletics, is considered by Manager Stallings as being, from a purely defensive standpoint, about the peer of either Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker. Behind the bat Gowdy's throwing will be a revelation. He's been doing the best work defensively of any catcher in baseball today, although Schang may be a bit more steady and more consistent with the stick, but when Gowdy does hit the ball fairly the drive is good for extra bases.

The Braves are unquestionably the class of the National league—a far better club on the field than they appear on paper. True it is that they have not collectively the experience of their American league opponents, but they have never shown the much predicted inclination to crack under fire. In this year of upsets and defeats of favorites the writer looks to see the Braves accomplish the unexpected with the scores of the games small and close.

HENDRIX CHECKS S'LOUFEDS, 5-1; TINX POUND BALL

Holds Foes at Bay While Zwilling Poles Two Doubles and Triple.

BY SAM WELLER.

Superb pitching by Claude Hendrix and some Mackian slugging by "Dutch" Zwilling gave the Tinx a 5 to 1 victory over Fielder Jones and his crew at Weeghman's park yesterday.

Hendrix repulsed the Sloufeds with two little singles and fanned seven batters. Zwilling poled two doubles and a triple in four trips to the plate, and two of his long blows figured in the making of the local runs.

Three for the Tinx.

Joseph and his brethren gathered three runs in the sixth. Hendrix started the fuss with a single. Flack was safe when Chapman threw his bunt through Hughey Miller's mitts, Zeider sacrificed, and Wilson walked, filling the bases. Zwilling dropped a punk fly just back of second and the ball oozed past Tobin for a double, scoring Hendrix and Flack. Wickland walked, crowding the corners for the second time, and Wilson scored while Hartley was tossing out Tinker. Beck popped, ending the happy frame.

Hands St. Louis Run.

Hendrix handed St. Louis one run in the seventh. He passed Ward Miller and wild pitched him to second. Drake fanned; Ward moved up on Hartley's infield out; then Hendrix hit Chapman. Ward Miller scored when Hugh of the same name singled through Farrell. Boucher fanned.

Otis Crandall batted for Davenport in the eighth and drew a harmless pass. Southpaw Kuepper went to the slab for Fielder Jones. Zeider worked the left hander for a walk and scored when Zwilling poled a triple to center. It was the third blow for Little Alec. Kuepper beaned Wickland, then Zwilling scored, while Hartley tossed out Tinker. Beck skied the side out. Score:

Marion, Ia.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—[1] Is the umpire justified in calling a game when ground hit balls are seen with some difficulty on account of gathering darkness? [2] Is base runner allowed a stolen base in case of a foul tip caught or must he return to his base? [3] In case of a batsman out on pop fly can base runner be doubled if ball is caught and thrown to base before runner returns. [4] In case the ball is muffed, can base runners advance at their peril or is the ball simply out of play. [5] In case of first base being occupied the batsman is out on three strikes, but the catcher drops the ball. Can base runners run bases or is the ball simply out of play whether caught or muffed? W. B. WOODS.

[1] Yes. [2] Yes. [3] Yes. [4] Depends on how many are out and what bases are occupied. [5] Base runners may advance. Rule 59 gives all cases in which the ball is not in play.

J. F. B., Aurora, Ill.: Runner going to first has the same privilege of stopping to avoid being tagged as a runner going to second, third, or home has.

W. M. D., Chicago: The "Merkle boner" did not occur in the last game between Cubs and Giants in 1908, but earlier in the series. Merkle was on first and McCormick on third. Bridwell made the hit which ought to have won the pennant. When the game was played off after the season ended, Pfiester started pitching and was replaced by Brown in the first inning.

J. J. Kremer Jr., Kaukauna, Wis.: The base runner was out and the umpire right in every particular.

Victor C. Lake, Chicago: The Washington club never has claimed a record on seventeen straight victories, and it is not a record. Tinker and Baker are Americans. Chance was made acting manager of the Cubs in the middle of 1905 on account of the sickness of Frank Selee, his predecessor. Chance became actual manager in 1906. He never played on any major team previous to joining the Cubs.

E. A. W. D., Chicago: Knisely made his first hit this year with the Cubs on Aug. 6 against Mathewson of the Giants.

W. Roth, Chicago: Matters of opinion only are not discussed in this column.

Hoy and D., Chicago: The "Merkle decision" game was officially declared a draw by the league directors and ordered played over. Drawn games are included in the official records of the players who take part in it, but not in the standing of the teams.

BIG HITTING DUE IN CITY SERIES

the battle, for he has pitched steady and winning ball ever since the breakdown of the stars gave him his chance to take a regular turn.

On the Cubs' staff, Big Jim Vaughn stands out prominently above all others, and if he could pitch every day Hank O'Day wouldn't need to worry. But Vaughn is a southpaw, and the White Sox have experienced less difficulty against left handers than against right handers this year.

If Larry Cheney has fully recovered from a sore arm he should prove more effective than Vaughn against the Sox. Larry was practically out of it for the month of August, and his condition for the series is doubtful. Recently in New York he shut out the Giants, showing his old time speed for the first time since his trouble.

Jim Lavender gave the Sox some fierce battles in the city series of the last two years, and his spitball is liable to beat them this fall, though his work this year has been unsteady. Bert Humphries pitched a whale of a game against the Callahans last season, but took a beating when he appeared for a second combat. Last year Humphries went at a much better pace than he has been going this season.

It is quite probable that Joe Benz will be the choice of Manager Callahan for the opening game, though Cicotte or Scott may be chosen if they appear to be in better form at that particular time.

The greatest surprises of the season in the Knights of Columbus league were sprung yesterday in the third round of games for the championship of that organization when Carroll council downed McHale at Tigers park, 5 to 2, and Phil Sheridan trimmed University, 8 to 7, at Cubs park. University and McHale councils were figured sure pennant contenders, but their defeats yesterday put them out of the running.

Mokate's great pitching enabled Carroll to beat McHale, for he held the north division champs to five scattered hits. Carroll clinched the combat in the fifth when it scored three runs.

The Sheridan-University contest finished in darkness when Caley stole home in the ninth inning after he had hit a triple to right field after two were out in that session. Scores:

YOUR wife—your family—must be the first consideration in buying an automobile. When the car drives up to the door and the neighbors notice the new acquisition to the family, it's half the joy of life to hear them say, "What a beautiful car—that isn't the common kind—I wonder what make it is."

If you hear it—and she hears it—there are a couple of joyous thrills running up and down two spines. YOU KNOW IT.

But your part—the man's part—is to see that beauty is not skin deep.

It's your part to see that under the hood there is an engine that is a real engine; an engine of power; an engine of stamina; an engine of long life.

And it's your part to know that the construction of the car means "safety first" to every member of the family.

It's your part to have such confidence in the mechanical construction that you know when you begin your journey, whether it be long or short, you will come back just as you started.

Beauty—comfort—safety—speed—long life—freedom from engine worry—gasoline economy—all the modern conveniences, such as vacuum feed, power tire pump, the latest word in silent starters—two unit, three point construction—one man top—these are a few of the things you should have in your new car.

YALE TEAM WINS EASY VICTORY OVER VIRGINIA

Blues Score Three Downs Against Southerners, Legore Starring.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Virginia thoroughly frightened Yale today by three times taking the ball ahead for consistent gains to the Eli twenty yard line. Twice they were held and forced to surrender the leather. On the third occasion time elapsed with the ball at the Yale eighteen yard line. Yale was forced to send a complete set of subs into the play the second half. Capt. Mayer and Gooch for the visitors circled the Yale end time and again.

Yale scored in the opening period on double passes which fooled the visitors completely, the Yale advance finally reaching the Virginia seven yard line, where Knowles plowed over for the score. All the second period play favored Virginia.

Yale's attack rallied in the third period, and, although Wilson fumbled at the Virginia ten yard line, Legore luckily picked up the rolling ball and shot over for the score. Thinking that the ball was dead, the Virginia players made no attempt to tackle him.

Legore's thirty yard run, around end, after taking the ball from Ainsworth, who had been tackled after gaining fifteen yards, gave Yale its final score. Lineup:

HARVARD DOWNS SPRINGFIELD

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—An up to date exhibition of open football with its neatly turned forward passes and sharp end runs gave the big Harvard football team something to worry about this afternoon, although the Crimson overwhelmed the Springfield Y. M. C. A. college team, 44 to 0.

The visiting eleven scored nigh on to 100 yards during the contest on the long baseball caucks, outplaying Harvard in the first and fourth periods. Twice in the last chapter it was squatted within Harvard's ten yard line.

Three fumbles and an intercepted forward pass were later turned into Crimson scores. Lineup:

PRINCETON, 10; BUCKNELL, 0.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Princeton defeated Bucknell 10 to 0 in a game that was a complete disappointment to the coaches, who staked all on the open style of play. Fourteen attempts at forward passing by Princeton resulted in only four gains, ten being intercepted or blocked.

With the exception of a field goal by Tibbott in the first period Princeton showed nothing until the last quarter, when two remarkable passes from Boland to Moore resulted in the only touchdown of the game. Law kicked goal. Lineup:

RECORD FOR DARTMOUTH.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Opposition was rarer than a day in June for the Dartmouth team in its workout with Norwich university here today, and as a result some twenty-eight of the Green football aspirants succeeded in piling up a total of 74 points, which is a record for the alumni field and for any Dartmouth team. Lineup:

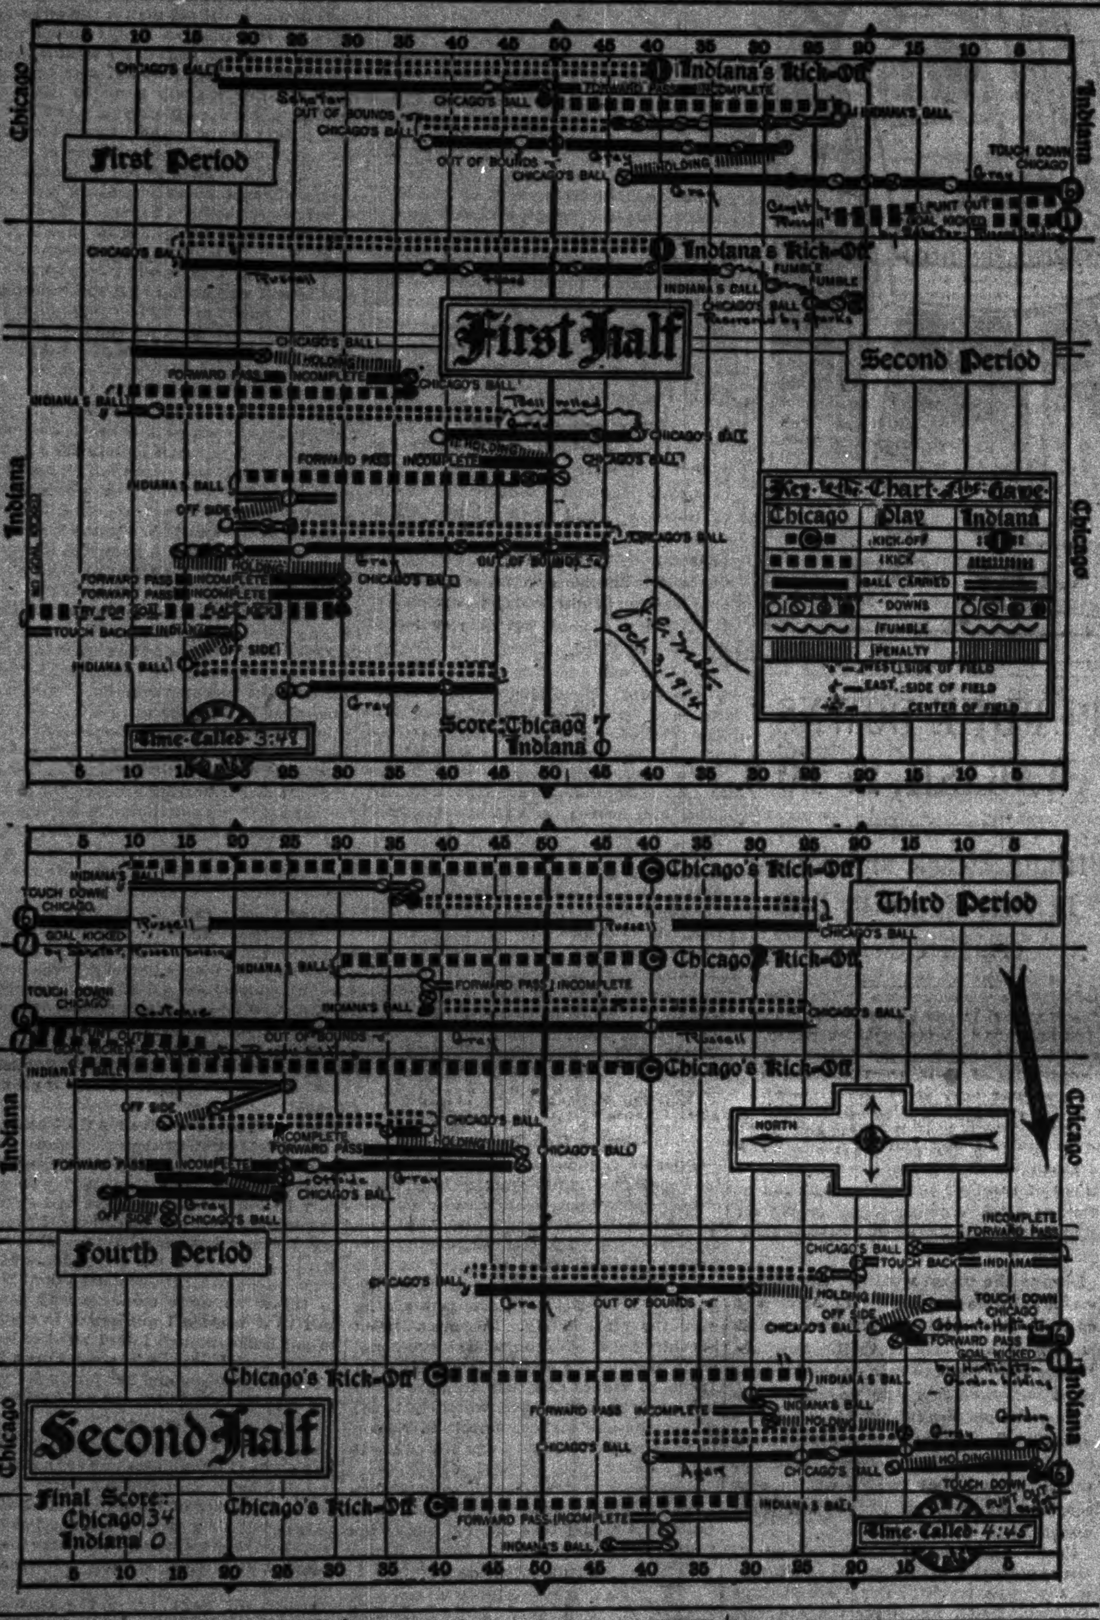
F. & M. BEATS PENN, 10-0.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 3.—Franklin and Marshall college of Lancaster, Pa., sprung the first big surprise of the 1914 football season today by defeating the University of Pennsylvania on Franklin field, 10 to 0. A touchdown and goal and a goal from placement represented the score.

Sensational Play in First Conference Game of Season at Stagg Field.

PETE RUSSELL RUNNING BACK A PUNT 75 YARDS.

Diagram of Maroon-Indiana Football Game Yesterday



MAROONS CRUSH INDIANA, 34 TO 0

was Erehart—and once more the Maroons started goalward. They were on Indiana's twenty yard mark when the first period ended, but when the second opened they began to suffer through penalties and had to kick. A double exchange of boots placed the ball in midfield and a twenty-five yard sprint by Gray followed. Another penalty and two wild attempts at forward passes, on which Russell got himself confused with Red Corriden, forced Chicago to try a field goal. Schafer did the kicking, but his aim was off. Indiana was again obliged to kick and the Maroons were showing a better attack when Mr. Henesge raised his shapely hand, indicating that the first half was over.

The really spectacular play of the day came only a minute or two after the start of the second half. Indiana received the kick-off and tried in vain to make distance through the Maroon line. Erehart (maybe) punted to Russell, who let the ball strike the ground near his own twenty-five yard line, and then picked it up on the bound and stopped running only when there was no farther to go.

Pete Takes Nice Jaunt.

During this little seventy-five yard sprint Pete was near enough to shake hands with almost everybody on the Indiana team, but didn't. Schafer kicked the goal and, having done that duty, retired to the side lines. Flood and McConnell quit with him and Coutchie, Acker, and White got into the game.

The next touchdown, which followed long runs by Russell and Gray, was made by Coutchie, who dashed thirty yards for the purpose. Huntington kicked this goal and the next one, so please remember that, because we don't want to repeat it. Gouwens replaced Sparks at Chicago's left end and the play went on. The Maroons, despite setbacks for offside and holding, marched up to the Indiana fifteen yard line and were there when the third quarter ended.

More subs went in for Chicago, including Gordon, who took Russell's place. Pretty soon he pulled the only successful forward pass of the game, shooting the ball from the fifteen yard line to Huntington, who caught it on the one yard line and fell the rest of the way. You know already who kicked this goal.

Benbrook Laughs at Protest.

With Redmond in the lineup the Maroons simply couldn't help scoring again. Indiana protested that Chicago was using twelve men, but Umpire Benbrook laughed at 'em and pointed out that Redmond was wearing only one suit and therefore could be counted only once. Gordon oozed through for the final score, and the kick out for try at goal failed. It lasted only a few more minutes. Lineup:

YOST MACHINE AT TOP SPEED RUNS OVER CASE TEAM

Long Dashes, Forward Passes, and Line Plunges Bring Big Score, 69 to 0.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Case school of Cleveland proved easy picking for the Wolverines this afternoon, Michigan being on the long end of a 69 to 0 score.

Michigan lost no time in getting started, Splawn running forty yards from a fake punt formation after Case had failed to gain and punted. Half Back Roehm went over for the first touchdown, and after that scores came thick and fast, two more being made before the quarter ended.

The second quarter was a repetition of the first, long runs around the ends, plunges through tackle, and forward passes being the features. In this quarter the forward pass was used five times, of which three were successful. The last one, a thirty-five yard pass from Catlett to Staats over the goal line, failed only because the whistle blew for the end of the period before the play started.

Two passes were tried in the third quarter, both failing. In the last quarter Yost sent in so many substitutes that scores were not so frequent. Case made first down only three times, once when Capt. Parshall caught a punt and ran sixty yards, and again when he launched a forward pass for twenty yards, and again when he passed thirty yards at the close of the game. Lineup:

BADGERS BLANK LAWRENCE.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Lawrence made Wisconsin play football all the time to win her opening contest today on Camp Randall by a score of 21 to 0. The Badgers had to fight a team showing midseason form, and at times the smaller collegians displayed flashes that threatened Badger territory.

Wisconsin secured its first score as the direct result of a series of end runs by Bellows and Cummings, with Kreuz driving off the Lawrence forwards for the score. The second touchdown was made in the second period, after Kreuz had dodged his way forty yards up the field to the Lawrence five yard line, from where he drove over right tackle for the score. Stavrum contributed the third early in the third period, when he picked up a punt, fumbled by Beach, and ran forty yards.

Bellows swelled the point total by kicking three goals from difficult angles. For Wisconsin Bellows, Buck and Stavrum were the brightest stars. For Lawrence, Beach and Tippet won rounds of applause.

The marring feature was an elbow displacement which may keep Clayton out of the game for weeks. Lineup:

Goals—Browne, Jorgensen, Wright, Hoff. Referee—J. Halcrow.

New Trier, champion of the Suburban league, opened its season by defeating the Carl Schurz eleven, 2 to 0, at New Trier. Goals were scored by Bruch and A. Davis.

The Hibernian soccer team defeated the Campbell Rovers 3 to 2 in an exhibition soccer match at the West Side Driving park yesterday afternoon in connection with the benefit entertainment for Father Quille's home for boys.

GOPHERS TAKE RAGGED GAME FROM NORTH DAKOTA, 28-6.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Minnesota was held to a standstill in the last half of its game with North Dakota today, though winning by a score of 28 to 6. The play was crude and erratic on the part of both teams, fumbling in the first period contributing to three touchdowns. After five minutes of play Lowe recovered on a Gopher's fumble and ran eighty yards for a touchdown. Minnesota's offense was weak at times, Solon being the chief ground gainer. A score of forward passes were mostly failures. Lineup:

COLGATE TRIMS CORNELL; LONG RUN RESPONSIBLE.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Cornell suffered its second defeat of the football season here today when Colgate beat the Red team, 7 to 3. A seventy yard run by Robinson after a kickoff to Cornell's twelve yard line, followed by a forward pass over the goal line to Stewart, did the business for the Colgate team. Barrett kicked a drop goal from the twenty-five yard line for Cornell in the third period. Cornell lost a splendid opportunity to score in the last minute after the team had gained fifty-five yards by rushes. A new back field was substituted and Lahr fumbled. The Ithacans outrushed Colgate and outkicked them, but were weak in tackling, lacked punch, and showed poor judgment.

Notes of Maroon Game.

Northwestern next.

Coach Stagg was loudly cheered when he appeared on the side lines in his foreign car.

If there is a penalty for disregarding the conference rule that the players must be numbered in the first two games, it is to be hoped, for the benefit of reporters and spectators, that said penalty is inflicted, so that the offense will not be repeated.

Dolly Gray probably is glad he didn't get out for practice sooner. Undoubtedly no one else would have been asked to carry the ball if Dolly had been in shape.

The Indiana team is heavy and apparently possessed of good material, but its attack will have to be gingered up considerably, else it will have a disastrous season.

The officials walked several blocks before the game, trying to find their dressing room. The gym was deserted, as the players are now robing and disrobing under the stand. The officials did not understand [joke] that and covered a great deal of ground before they located Trainer Johnson, who gave them a key to the room in the gymnasium where the players used to dress.

Hoosiers Beat Denver, 5-1.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 3.—The Indianapolis American association team won the first game of the interleague series from Denver of the Western league today, 5 to 1.

Why the Saxon Is So Good

The Saxon is a better two-passenger car than any other at or near the price, because most others were designed from four to eight years ago while the Saxon was designed one year ago.

The automobile industry has developed rapidly. Engineers have learned much in four years. The Saxon is better than many others because Saxon engineers in planning it were able to profit by all the automobile industry has learned since other sensational-value low priced cars were designed years ago.

The Saxon is not a makeshift. It is not a two-passenger body put on a uselessly heavy chassis designed to carry a five-passenger body. Of what other car is this true?

The Saxon is the modern car. Many of its features will not be found in any other car outside the high-priced class. It is light in weight—only a little more than a thousand pounds—therefore it is low in cost of keep. Only by the best designing skill and use of the finest materials can roominess, comfort, good looks and light weight all be combined in one car.

DRAW MARKS PHILLIPS AND LOYOLA CLASH

High School and Academy Elevens Go 48 Minutes to 7 to 7 Score.

BY PREP.

Wendell Phillips and Loyola academy battled yesterday for forty-eight minutes to a standstill on the former's gridiron, the final result being 7 to 7. It probably was one of the roughest and most bitterly fought combats staged here in recent years, and the feeling led to frequent use of other than legitimate weapons. As a result four battlers were sent to the showers, each team suffering equally.

Loyola set the pace in the opening period, when Palmer, dodging through a broken field, planted the ball behind the goal posts after a sprint of sixty yards. He secured the ball after a punt and evaded at least half a dozen W. P. tacklers. Toward the close of this session the home eleven worked the ball to the visitors' ten yard line, but a fumble proved costly.

Plunges Through Center.

Wendell Phillips made its strongest showing in the second period, when a bit of up to date football paved the way for its only score. With twenty yards to go on the fourth down, Koehler successfully pulled a forward pass play and carried the ball to the sixteen yard line. A fifteen yard penalty placed the oval on the one yard mark, from where Serck plunged through center for the score. Lineup:

Oak Park, 22; Englewood High, 13.

Oak Park was given a scare by Englewood High, but emerged victor, 22 to 13, in a game featured by fifty-six fumbles. Nearly every score was due to loose handling of the ball. Herriman, left tackle of Oak Park, made the star play, when he picked up a dropped ball on his own ten yard line and ran down the field for a score. At half time the count was tied, 7 to 7, but in the second period Oak Park [illegible] with several long end runs, paving the way to touchdowns. Lineup:

Hyde Park, 24; Evanston A., 0.

Hyde Park, orphan of the Chicago league, came back into its own when it trounced Evanston academy, 24 to 0, at Stagg field in the feature match of a double header. The high schoolers played consistently, scoring a touchdown in each quarter. Cockrell, Plank, and Annan featured on the offensive. In the curtain raiser Oak Park minors and Hyde Park midgets played without a score. Heavyweight lineup.

M. P. High, 20; M. P. Academy, 9.

For the first time in ten years Morgan Park High school defeated Morgan Park Military academy for the championship of the suburb, 20 to 9. The vicious attack in the second and third periods, when three touchdowns were scored, brought the victory. The academy scored its touchdown when Wilkerson intercepted a forward pass and ran forty yards to the goal posts. Line-up:

Senn High, 9; Parker High, 7.

Senn came back to the field quarter, and by means of a touchdown defeated Parker High, 9 to 7. In the opening chapter Senn was credited with two points, when it forced Parker behind its own goal line. Guggenheim, Swanson, and Thompson did most of the ground gaining for the victors.

The Lane lightweight eleven defeated the Evanston High school minors, 27 to 0. It was the first time that a lightweight team has represented the suburban school. Bowlin raced eighty yards for a touchdown in the first minute of play.

Lake View won from the Wendell Phillips lightweights, 13 to 0, at Wells park. The victors showed improvement over the play put up in their former practice games. Keiser and Schuman scored the touchdowns. Buehler's right ankle was injured in the second period.

The New Trier minors scored a victory in their opening set-to of the season, defeating Austin, 20 to 0, at Kenilworth.

Irving Park and Schurz High school lightweights battled to a 6 to 6 tie on the latter's field.

PURPLE BEATS LAKE FOREST, 7-0

Northwestern Team Wins North Shore Football Championship.

POOR FORM DISPLAYED.

BY PURPEL.

Northwestern won the football championship of the north shore yesterday by defeating Lake Forest, 7 to 0, on the university field. The Purple after starting out with a quick score by Capt. Hightower showed little but crudeness and mental paralysis. The tackling of Murphy's men was not only inefficient in results, but bad in form.

Hightower scored five minutes after the kickoff on a pretty run of thirty yards through the line, eluding the entire Lake Forest back field. Play during the rest of the first half was even, with the Purple puncturing the north shore line, but unable to gain ground because of fumbles and penalties. Northwestern was contented with line bucking and end runs, while Carrithers' men essayed two forward passes, one of which, just as the half ended, was good for a twenty yard gain.

Immediately after the Purple scored Coach Murphy began sending in substitutes. Capt. Hightower was injured a few minutes before the half closed and was taken out.

Many Players Used.

The tackling of most of the Purple players consisted in a hearty effort to choke their opponents or to untie a shoestring. However, the playing of Northwestern yesterday was hardly a criterion of the team's power, as Coach Murphy changed his players so often that machine play was impossible. It was the plan of the Purple coach to test out his entire squad. Capt. Hightower was a stellar performer. After his exit from the game because of an injury the Purple slowed up.

Lake Forest showed considerable strength, but, like Northwestern, was crude. Coach Carrithers insisted upon using his freshmen and consequently added to the efficiency of his team.

Lake Forest Scares Purple.

The Purple played its worst during the second half and received a scare from the north shore outfit just before the close of game, when a long forward pass and a run by Smith placed the oval on the twenty-five yard line. Capt. Hightower and a host of Purple regulars ran to the rescue and the enemy's efforts resulted in a loss of ground.

Grassetts punted well for Northwestern and ably assisted Hightower on offense and defense. For Lake Forest Capt. Dunsmore, Krueger, and Smith showed class. Lineup:

WOLGAST-MURPHY BOUT OFF.

Cadillac, Mich., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—The war in Europe, hot weather in Milwaukee, and the tightness of the money market were the three reasons Ad Wolgast gave for the calling off of the fight scheduled with Tommy Murphy in Milwaukee on Oct. 10. Wolgast arrived home late this evening.

CLABBY AND CHIP MATCHED.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 3.—Jimmy Clabby of Hammond, Ind., and George Chip of New Castle, Pa., were matched here today to fight twenty rounds at Daly City, a suburb, the last week of this month at 158 pounds, the middleweight limit. The exact date was not named.

ILLINI SWAMP C. B. C. TEAM; ROLL UP COUNT OF 37-0.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Illinois easily defeated Christian Brothers' college today, 37 to 0. Despite a broiling hot sun the elevens battled with great "pep." The Catholics were outclassed and were on the defensive during most of the contest. Their only chance to score came against the Illinois substitutes, who managed to repulse the Catholics at the Illinois four yard line.

The Illini scored five touchdowns. "Patsy" Clark, the new quarterback, starred with two dodging runs for scores, while Schobinger twice crossed the Catholics' goal. Macomber's line buck added the fifth touchdown and a blocked kick netted a safety. Harold Pogue starred with the longest run of the game. Lineup:

LOCAL SOCCER SEASON OPENS THIS AFTERNOON.

The first big battle of the local soccer season will be staged this afternoon, England meeting Scotland at Fifty-second street and Cottage Grove avenue at 3 o'clock. John Bull won the first battle, played in 1912, and last year the wearers of the tartan were successful, both matches being hard fought with the outcome in doubt up to the final whistle. Today's encounter has aroused a great amount of rivalry, and a record crowd is expected. Sheldon Govier will captain the Scotch team and Blockley will lead the Englishmen. The teams are composed of the leading players from the ten clubs of the Association Football league of Chicago. The Chicago Soccer league will stage its annual intersectional match at the West Side Driving park this afternoon.

PURDUE DOWNS WABASH, 27 TO 3

Strong Attack and Sturdy Defense Shown by Boilermaker Team.

GAINS BY OLD METHODS.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—A concentrated attack and a well developed defense which stopped its opponent in three of the four periods gave Purdue a victory over Wabash today on Stuart field in the opening game of the season, 27 to 3.

Despite the warm weather, the Boilermakers displayed plenty of drive and dash in their attacks, which consisted mostly of old style football. Few attempts were made to gain on the forward pass, but when this play was called into action the players executed it in a clever manner. On defense Purdue also showed to good advantage. Today's exhibition would indicate that Purdue will be represented by a team which will bear watching.

Coach Andy Smith took advantage of the opportunity to give all his candidates a thorough tryout. For Purdue Capt. O'Brien, Pultz, and Oxer did the best work. Capt. Rowe of Wabash registered the only score for his team by making a perfect drop kick from the thirty-seven yard line. Lineup:

NOTRE DAME WHIPS ALMA IN EASY MANNER, 56 TO 0.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—By the overwhelming score of 56 to 0, the Notre Dame football team defeated Alma here today. It was a one-sided game, and it is likely that the gold and blue would have piled up a larger score had not a number of subs been used. Pliska and Cafall were the stars for Notre Dame. The half back made many big gains through the Alma line, and Cafall, the quarter back, showed some sensational field running. Notre Dame did not resort to the forward pass, but used line bucking altogether. Wood and Spinney played the best game for Alma. Lineup:

INJURY IN FOOTBAL GAME FATAL TO OKLAHOMA BOY.

Sapulpa, Okla., Oct. 3.—Football claimed its first victim of the season in Oklahoma here today. Ray Allen, 19 years old, of the Stanley High school team was tackled in a game with the Tahlequah Indians and died thirty-five minutes later without regaining consciousness. The boy's mother saw him as he carried the ball to his death.

SPLIT PROGRAM CUBS' PORTION WITH ST. LOUIS

Lavender Pitches to Victory; Grimes Tames O'Days.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—After winning the opening game, 4 to 1, the Cubs broke even with the Cardinals in today's double header by losing the second game, 2 to 0.

Only five hits were made off Jimmy Lavender in the first game, and, despite the fact that he issued six passes and hit two batters, only one run resulted. Three times when he was in trouble as many double plays pulled him out. Opposed to Lavender was Hub Perdue, who allowed seven hits. Two of these were doubles by Zimmerman and Schulte, each figuring in the run getting.

Cubs Never Headed.

The Cubs assumed the lead in the opener and were never headed. Leach coaxed a pass and was forced at second by Good, who laid down a bunt. Saier struck out, but Good stole second and chased to third on Wingo's throw to center field. Zimmerman followed with a long double to right, and Good registered. Schulte got a pass, but Derrick forced Sweeney at third.

Another was added to the Cub column in the third. Good singled for a beginner, and Saier fouled to Wingo. Then Zim singled, and Schulte doubled, Good and Zim scoring on Wildfire's wallop.

The lone Cardinal run came in the fourth. After one was out Wilson singled, stole, and scored on Cruise's single to left.

The last Cub run came in the ninth without the aid of a hit. Zim opened with a pass and went all the way to third on Schulte's sacrifice. Heine scored on Derrick's fly to Cruise.

George McConnell, the ex-Yankee, who recently was obtained from the Buffalo club, made his debut in the second event and hurled well during the seven innings he worked. Only three hits were made off him, but two of them followed a pass in the third inning and produced a run. Hageman pitched the eighth and allowed another run, Huggins stealing home.

Rules Out Runner.

Quite an argument arose in the eighth inning when Umpire Quigley ruled out a runner and refused to allow two runs that would have scored on a triple. With one out, Huggins walked. Hageman also passed Magee. They advanced on Miller's infield out. Huggins and Magee negotiated a double steal, Huggins sliding over the plate safely. Hageman issued his third pass to Wilson, who stole second. Then Wingo hit a drive long enough for a triple to right, and both runners could have scored, but Magee, watching to see where the ball struck, permitted Wilson to pass him on the path and the side was called out.

Bresnahan protested so vigorously when Umpire Quigley gave Huggins a base on balls that Roger was ordered out of the game. Hargrave took his place. Score:

Bill to Steve.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—Steve: the club will be all threw the regular season Monday and the city serious starts next Wed. Im sorry you wont be abel to get here for the games & I would of been glad to fix you out with a ticket though what do you think the ball players there self has to pay for there own tickets for there friends & I should think the club oners would be a shamed to be so cheap but its a wonder they dont make the regular players pay to get in. At that the most of them should ought to pay to get in. well way a long last June I told the girl & her brother & and her old man that I would get passes for the city serious because I thot of course I would and dident have no idea that the oners would be so cheap so the other day the girls brother asked me did I remmember my promus & I says I dident & he remmembered me what it was & the old man & the girl was there at the time so I says sure I will fix you up & the next day I went & seen the secretary of the club & I says I got to get 3 passes for every game in the city serious & he says dont you want us to send a taxi cab a round to your bording house & take you to the games or may be youd like to have us put up a hamock near the bench so as you could lay in it & not set on the hard bench. I says dont get fresh or Ill hit you & he says if you could hit me I must be a lot diffrent then a baseball & I says what do you mean & he seen I was geting mad so he shut up & if he hadent of Id of crownd him. so then he told me that all the ball players would have to pay for there tickets that they was going to use even if it was for there wife & he says I couldent buy no ticket for 1 game but must buy 1 for all the games at each park & he says I could buy gen. add mishion tickets for 1 game on the day of the game but not no reserrved seat tickets so I says how much was the reserrved seat tickets & he says the box seats was $1.50 a game for 1 seat & they was sold for 3 games so it would cost me $4.50 for 1 person at each park & that would be $9.00 for both parks & $27.00 for 3 peeple & I told him to go jump in the lake. then he says I could get reserrved seats but not no box seats for $1.00 a peace for 1 person for 1 game but I would all so have to buy them for 3 games at once that is 3 games at 1 park & 3 at the other park if I wanted the peeple should go to all the games and for 3 peeple that would be $18.00. well I went & called up the girl & her brother ansered the phone & says she wasent home & what did I want & I says I thot on acct. of you people liveing way over here on the west side you might may be not want to see no games on the south side but just the games on the west side & he says we certainly do want to see all the games thats played no mater if they play them out to gary & then he hung up the phone & I was stuy for $18.00 & if we get the loosers end & get $500.00 a peace it will be just like geting $482.00 for me because I am out $18.00 & if we get the winners end or a bout $800 a peace I wont only be $782.00 a head but may be we will loose 4 strate & that would only be 2 games at each park & then they would half to give me $6.00 back for the tickets that wasent used & I would only be out $12.00 or if we win 4 strate it would be the same thing & I wouldent only be out $12.00 but thats bad enough and besides they aint no chance of us wining 4 strate but may be we will loose 4 strate & I hope if we got to loose at all we can loose 4 strate because I dont want to throw no more money a way then I half to & besides I am geting in a hurry to get home though I dont want to leave the little girl but she is costing me a hole lot of money her and her famly & I wish she was an orfun with out no brother.

well Steve Im sorry you aint going to be here but I dont blame you for not comeing & I bet youd come in a hurry if they was any chance of me geting into 1 of the games but they isent a chance but they would of been a chance if this here tommy Leach had of went & jump to the federal when he says he was going to in sted of waiting till next yr. & the reason he dident jump right a way was on acct. he wanted to keep me on the bench in the city serious & not give the fans no chance to see what a misstake O'Day made not useing me all summer but I guess you know the reel reason he is going to the federal next yr. & thats because he knows that taft will step in & make O'Day use me regular next yr. & then where would Leach be at.

well Steve it looks like as if we wasent going to be abel to use bues & Fisher in the serious & that shows that the national comision are puling for the white Sox to win or why wouldent they let us use them 2 men so as 1 of the white Sox would get throwed out at 1st. base onct in a wile. they clame theys a rule where you got to sine up a man before the 1 of Sep. or else you can't use him in the serious & when they made a rule like that it just shows they was giveing our club the worst of it because onct in a wile our club sines up a new man thats worth some thing but the white Sox dont never get no body, & if they did they wouldent use them in the serious because the old men they got is so use to beating us that it aint no trick for them.

well Steve I will write you all a bout the serious & I will tell you all about it so as it will be just the same as if you was here looking at it & it wont cost you nothing. & if I was you I wouldent bet nothing on us in the serious but if you got to make a bet if I was you Id bet on them athaletics to beat that Boston club & if they dont beat them you will know its because coney Macks tired of haveing people shake hands with him.

resp'y, BILL.

HOPPE WINS INMAN MATCH.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—Willie Hoppe, the balk line champion, won his combination billiard match with Melbourne Inman, the English champion, at the Hotel Astor today, when, playing two games at 18-2 balk line, the American made 1,000 points to Inman's 246. Hoppe won the night game by 500 to 85 after taking the afternoon game almost as easily. Hoppe's two victories gave him the match with a grand total of 4,285 to Inman's 3,702.

Inman won all the games at English billiards, while Hoppe made a clean sweep of the games at 18-2 balk line. At the English game Inman totaled 3,000 to Hoppe's 1,285, while at balk line Hoppe got 3,000 to the Englishman's 694.

Interlakes, 1; Lake View, 0.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 3.—[Special.]—In a soccer game today Interlaken school defeated Lake View High school of Chicago, 1 to 0.

RICKEYS TAKE DOUBLE BILL; SOX SEVENTH

Cals Drop in Race When St. Louis Wins Twice, 7 to 1 and 4 to 0.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

The struggling White Sox were thrust gasping into seventh place yesterday by the St. Louis Browns, who took both ends of a double header at Comiskey park. The enemy romped home in the first game by a count of 7 to 1 and grabbed the second, 4 to 0, darkness ending it after six innings. It was a sad blow to Callahan and his tribe, for there is little chance of their getting out of seventh place now, with only one game left to play.

The Sox played in their most [illegible] fashion in both games and everything broke against them, to boot. The pitching was not so bad, but it was unsteady, and the fielding was awful. On the offense the south siders were as helpless as [illegible] boys.

Benz Routed in Opener.

Joe Benz started to hurl the first game, but was lammed out of the game in the seventh and Lathrop and Jasper finished the hopeless task.

Jim Scott went to the slab for the second contest and performed brilliantly at times, but his support was terrible. Big Carl Weilman went through the first game nicely for the Browns, and George Baumgardner never was fussed in the second, only one hit being made by the Sox.

The first game was a romp for the Browns, although the Sox got away in front with a run in the first inning. Weaver led off with a fly to center and [illegible] second on Shotten's muff. From there he got home on Blackburne's sacrifice and Collins' out. From then to the finish the Sox were a minus quantity.

In the second the Browns got two runs, although Benz fanned three men. Howard singled and Lavan fanned. Agnew tripled, scoring Howard; then a wild pitch let Agnew count. Weilman and Shotten fanned.

Nothing more happened till the seventh, when Benz was lammed to the clubhouse.

Sox Also Drop Second.

The second game began like a good contest, but the contest was broken when the Sox handed a run to the enemy in the fourth and another one in the fifth.

The sixth netted two for St. Louis. Austin and Pratt walked and E. Walker singled, sending Austin home and Pratt to third. Williams fanned and E. Walker was caught stealing; then, with the count three and two on Howard, Pratt stole home. Howard walked and stole second, but Lavan ended it with a grounder. When the last of the sixth was over the umpire called the game on account of darkness. Scores:

The SOVEREIGN PONTIFF of the CHURCH of ROME

Giacomo della Chiesa was born at Pegli, in the diocese of Genoa, November 21, 1854. Unlike his predecessor Pius X., he is a descendant of a noble family.

The two hundred and fifty-ninth successor of St. Peter was ordained priest December 21, 1878, created Archbishop of Bologna December 16, 1907 and in May of this year was proclaimed cardinal.

A LAST RUN with DRIVER AL and his PALS

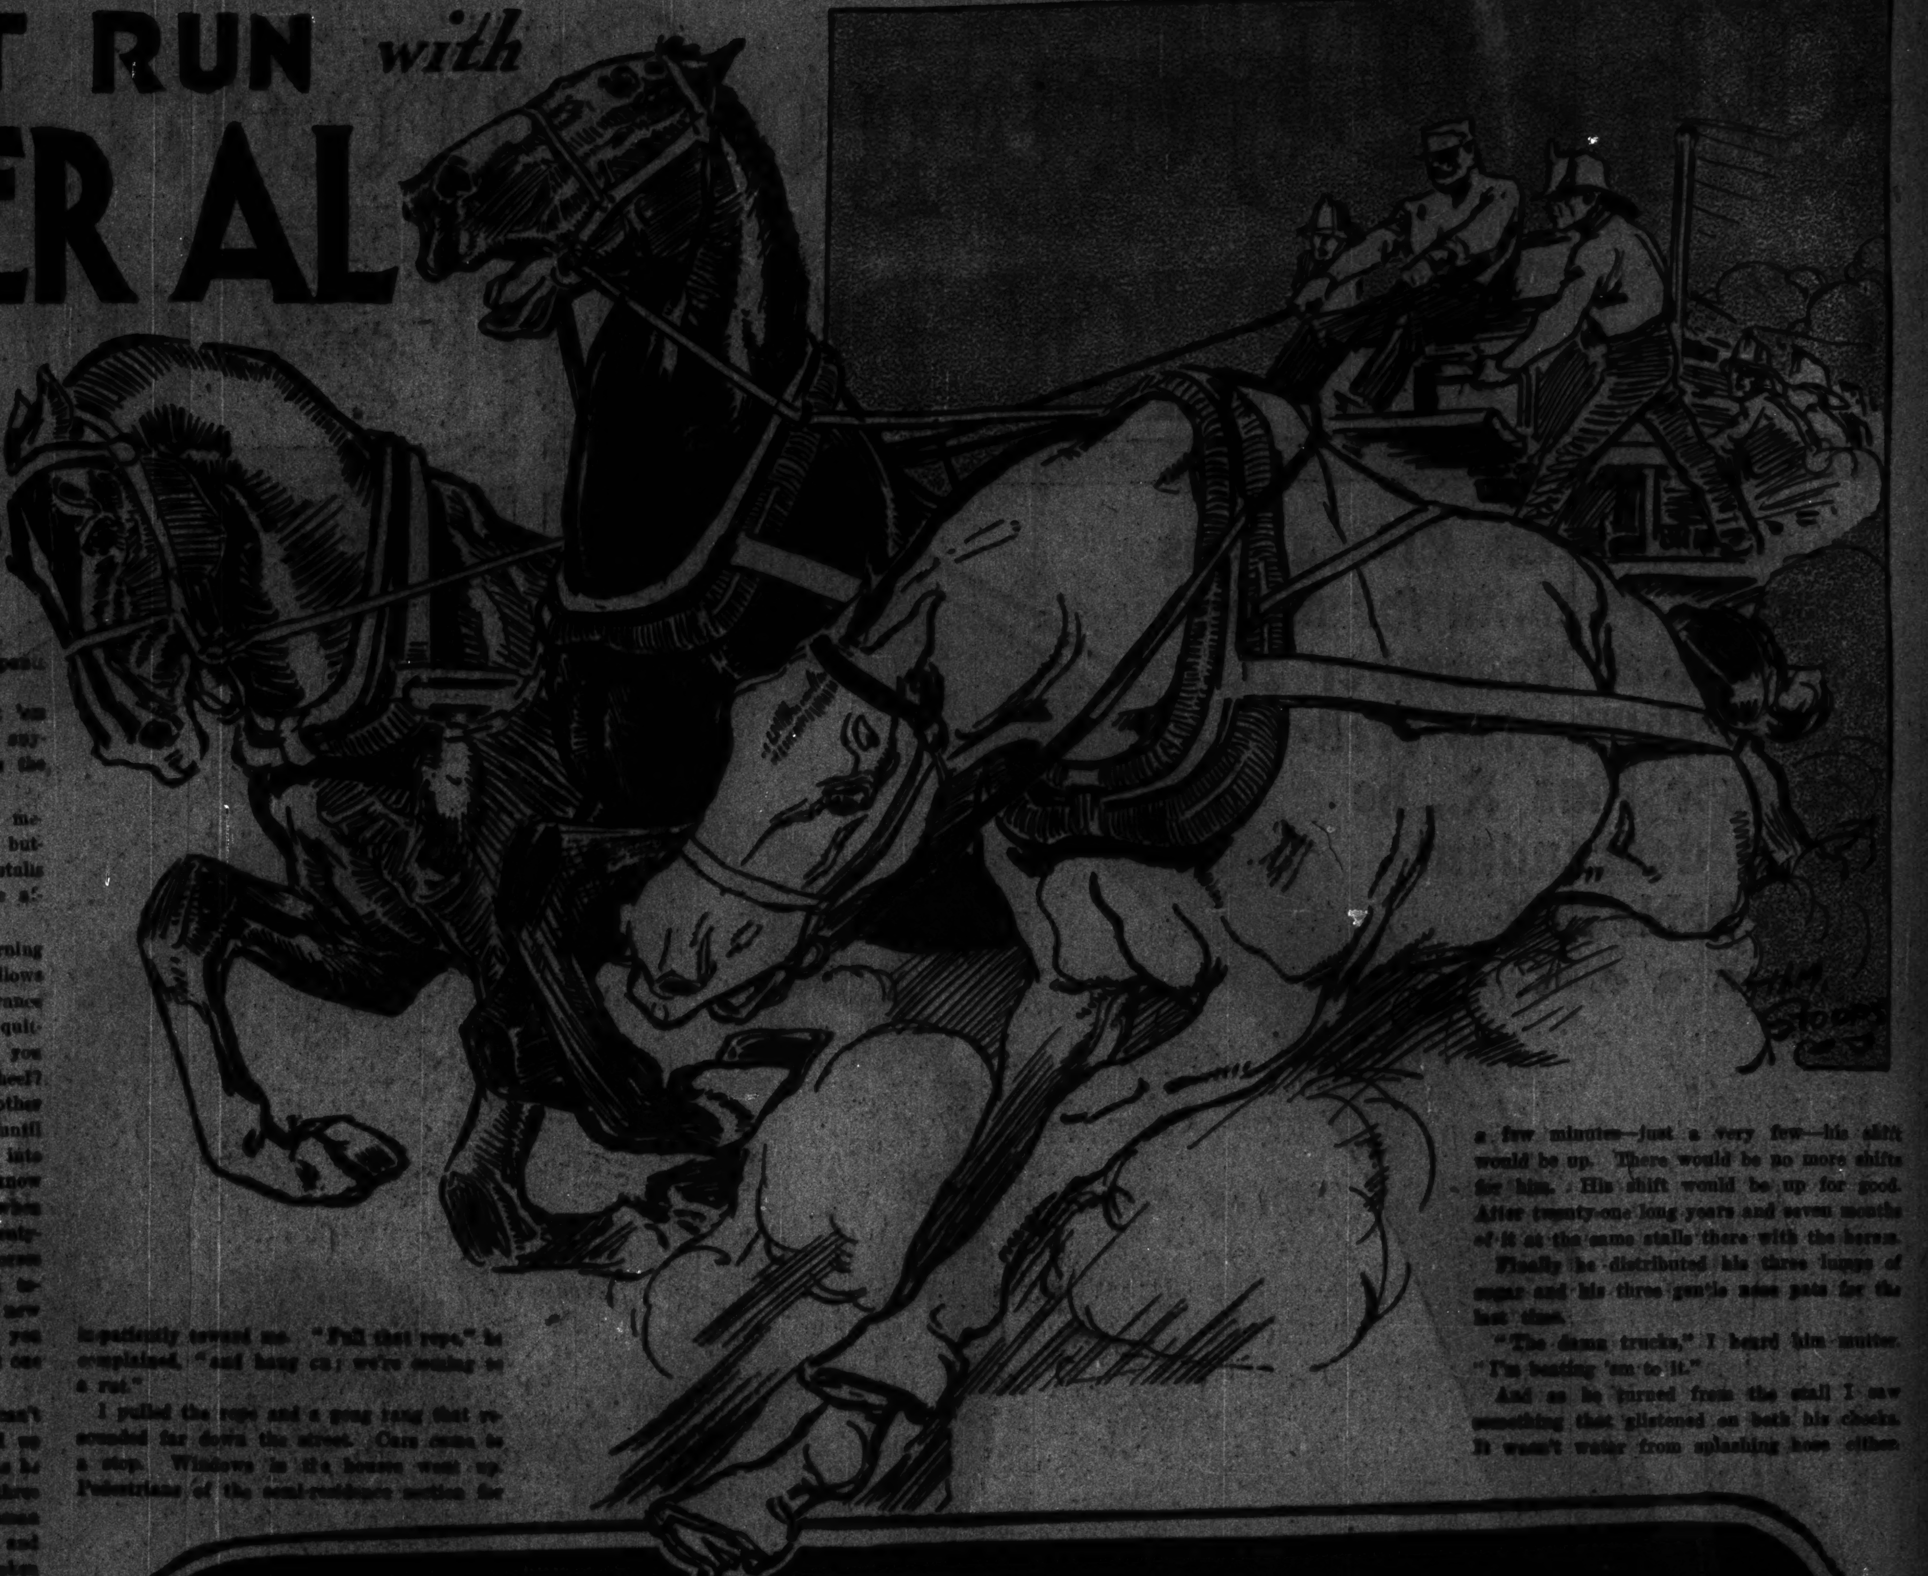
by ONEY FRED SWEET



THERE were at least two members of hook and ladder company No. 19 who wanted to make a "run" before the day was over. Al Warneke, the big, unsentimental looking fellow, who had been a driver for the company for twenty-one years and seven months, wanted to dash madly out of the station before nightfall because it was to be his last day in the service. As for me, it was my first, last, and only day as a Chicago fireman, and while I wasn't wishing disaster to any one in particular, I was secretly praying that, inasmuch as there were bound to be fires anyhow, one of them would happen while I was on the job.

I suppose that is why Al Warneke and I took so little interest in the "rhummy" game up in the dormitory—the long room on the second floor, where each man makes his own bed, at the foot of which are his boots fastened in his trouser legs. Every signal that came in on the tape at the captain's desk down below found Warneke and me listening with double intentness. But the afternoon wore on and it began to look as though there was going to be nothing livelier than a "rhummy" game, after all.

"Just once more," said Warneke to me in an aside—we were sitting near each other at the card table. "I want at least one more trip with the horses. But that's the way it goes. Some days we'll hardly get back to the house before we're called right out, and then again we'll sit around hour after hour with nothing doing at all. I just want one more alarm that's for us—an alarm today before I quit."

"Me and you both," I answered enthusiastically, proudly fingering one of the big pearl buttons that fastened the flowing collar to my blue cotton shirt.

Al Shows Me the Horses.

It wasn't Warneke's and my leaving the circle around the card table when he invited me to go down and look at his horses that broke up the "rhummy" game. It was my attempt to slide down the brass rod to the floor below that did it. My morale—as the war correspondents would say—was not the very best anyhow in the face of the situation. When I got to the edge of the hole down which Al's heavy form had suddenly disappeared, in spite of my blue trousers and my blue shirt with the pearl buttons in two rows down the front, I hesitated. When finally realizing that it would never do to follow out my first impulse of sneaking back and going down the stairs, I did make the plunge, my dangling form, about two feet below where I first struck the rod, was calling forth wild exclamations of advice and criticism from Capt. O'Malley and Lieut. Healy down by the desk.

Simultaneously there came from just above a whole chorus of suggestions, and looking up I saw the peering faces of all the participants of the recent "rhummy" game.

"Never mind," said Warneke. "Let 'em laugh. You came down quick enough for anybody. Come on out and I'll show you the horses."

Just behind the doors that could be mechanically swung open at the press of a button, the patient animals waiting in their stalls turned their unhaltered heads and gave affectionate greeting to the veteran driver.

"Can you beat it?" he asked, turning toward me. "Think of getting rid of fellows like these and putting a machine contrivance in their place! Can you blame me for quitting like the rest of the drivers? Do you s'pose I'd go to the fire 'hold of a wheel? Van Hoggett quit down at No. 2 the other day, but he was fool enough to wait until they'd actually steamed the motor truck into the place. I'm beating 'em to it. I know it's only a question now of days, and when the month is up tonight I'm through—twenty-one years and seven months driving horses out of this same station, and through tonight. Say, you ain't one of these new chauffeur firemen, are you? If you are, you probably wouldn't understand. You ain't one of 'em? Well, listen, I'll tell you.

"There's a lot of folks, I suppose, who can't understand how a man can get wrapped up in a thing like a horse," said Warneke, as he distributed three lumps of sugar and three gentle nose pats, "but a horse gets human after you've been around him a while and you get to know each other. Why, I've broken all three of these horses into the business—starting off a green one each time with two old timers. They aren't on the job any time at all before they know the very minute that we get a 'location' and what it means.

"They've kidded me a good deal because I am afraid somebody'll touch 'em or bother 'em or mistreat 'em, but I can't help it. They can say all they want to about a horse only being good for a mile, and that with one of these motor trucks all you've got to do is throw the gas on and she goes ahead.' I don't suppose there is any use arguing any more. The trucks are coming so fast it's only a question of a little while when there won't be a horse left in the stations. The first year they only put the trucks on as a tryout. Last year they put in twenty of 'em. You can see how it's going. And along with the horses, let me tell you, the men who have driven them are all going, too. Listen!"

"Ding, ding, ding, ding—ding—ding, ding, ding." 4-1-3.

Al's Shift Is Up for Good.

"Ge-ed ap! Ge-ed ap! Ge-ed ap!"

It seemed as if every man in the place was shouting at the three big bay horses that were tossing their heads and making dozens of extra clatters on the red squared concrete flooring. There was a rush to buckle the harness that snapped mechanically from where it hung just above the animals' backs. I was brushed aside, given a snappy word of command, and I am not sure but what I was cursed a little before I had gathered wits enough to take my place standing beside the driver. Just when, during the systematic confusion, Al Warneke took his seat, I do not know, but there he was. The reins coming from the tossing heads of the horses were fastened over their broad, shining backs far beneath us and were being held taut in Warneke's hands. He was like a new being!

There was the usual neighborhood crowd to be warned away from the doorway—a fire run may have been witnessed steen hundred times and yet not lose one of its thrills on the steenth occasion. But I experienced the thrill supreme. From the great height where I stood, my metal helmet pressing hard on my brow, I felt my blue uniformed body swerve with every swerve of the forty foot red wagon as it clattered at breakneck speed out into the autumn sunshine.

"Hold up there, Tom! Nigger, you! Jerry!" called Warneke, as with sensitive touch he held back or gave rein. Then he turned impatiently toward me. "Pull that rope," he complained, "and hang on; we're coming to a run."

I pulled the rope and a gong rang that resounded far down the street. Cars came to a stop. Windows in the houses went up. Pedestrians of the semi-residence section for a moment forgot their purposes. We turned a corner, Tillerman Jensen, who had had such a poor hand at "rhummy" all the afternoon, guiding the wheel at the end of the ladders forty feet back of us.

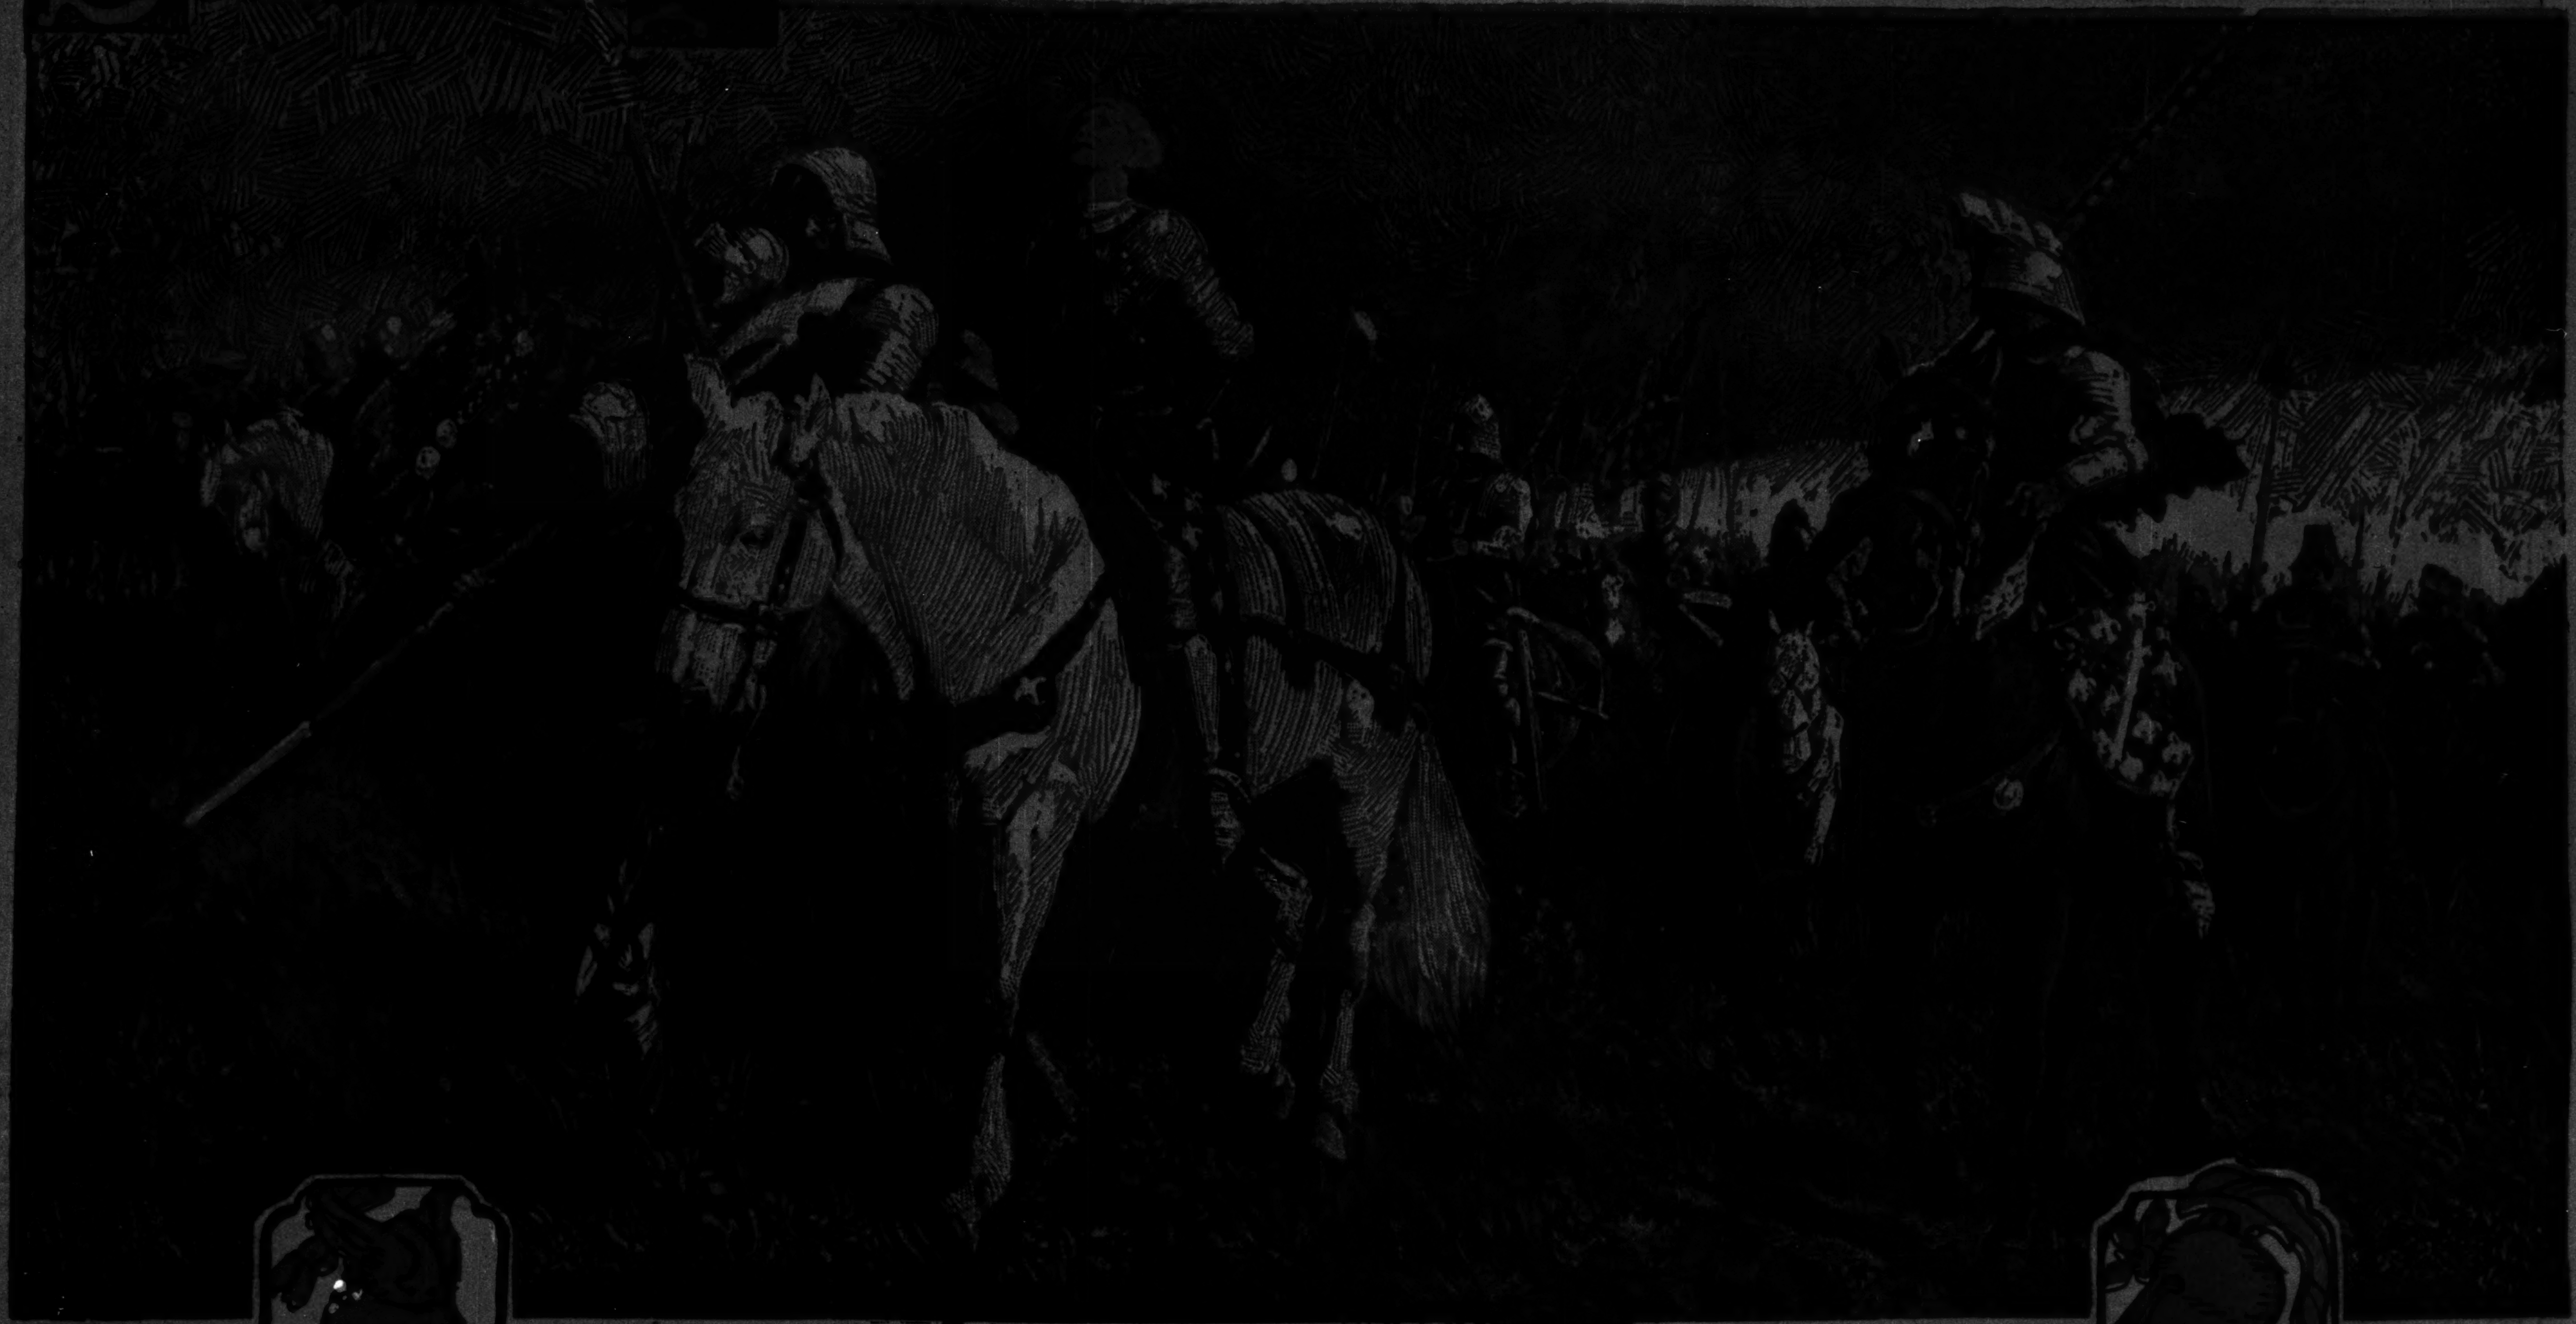
It wasn't much of a fire—that last one that Al Warneke drove Tom and Nigger and Jerry to. It didn't seem any time at all before we were trotting back to the station house and the "rhummy" game was being resumed. But Al Warneke didn't go back upstairs where they were playing. He stayed puttering around and petting the horses long after they had been given the necessary care. I saw him go to the door every minute or two to look at the clock up above the captain's desk. In a few minutes—just a very few—his shift would be up. There would be no more shifts for him. His shift would be up for good. After twenty-one long years and seven months of it at the same stalls there with the horses.

Finally he distributed his three lumps of sugar and his three gentle nose pats for the last time.

"The damn trucks," I heard him mutter. "I'm beating 'em to it."

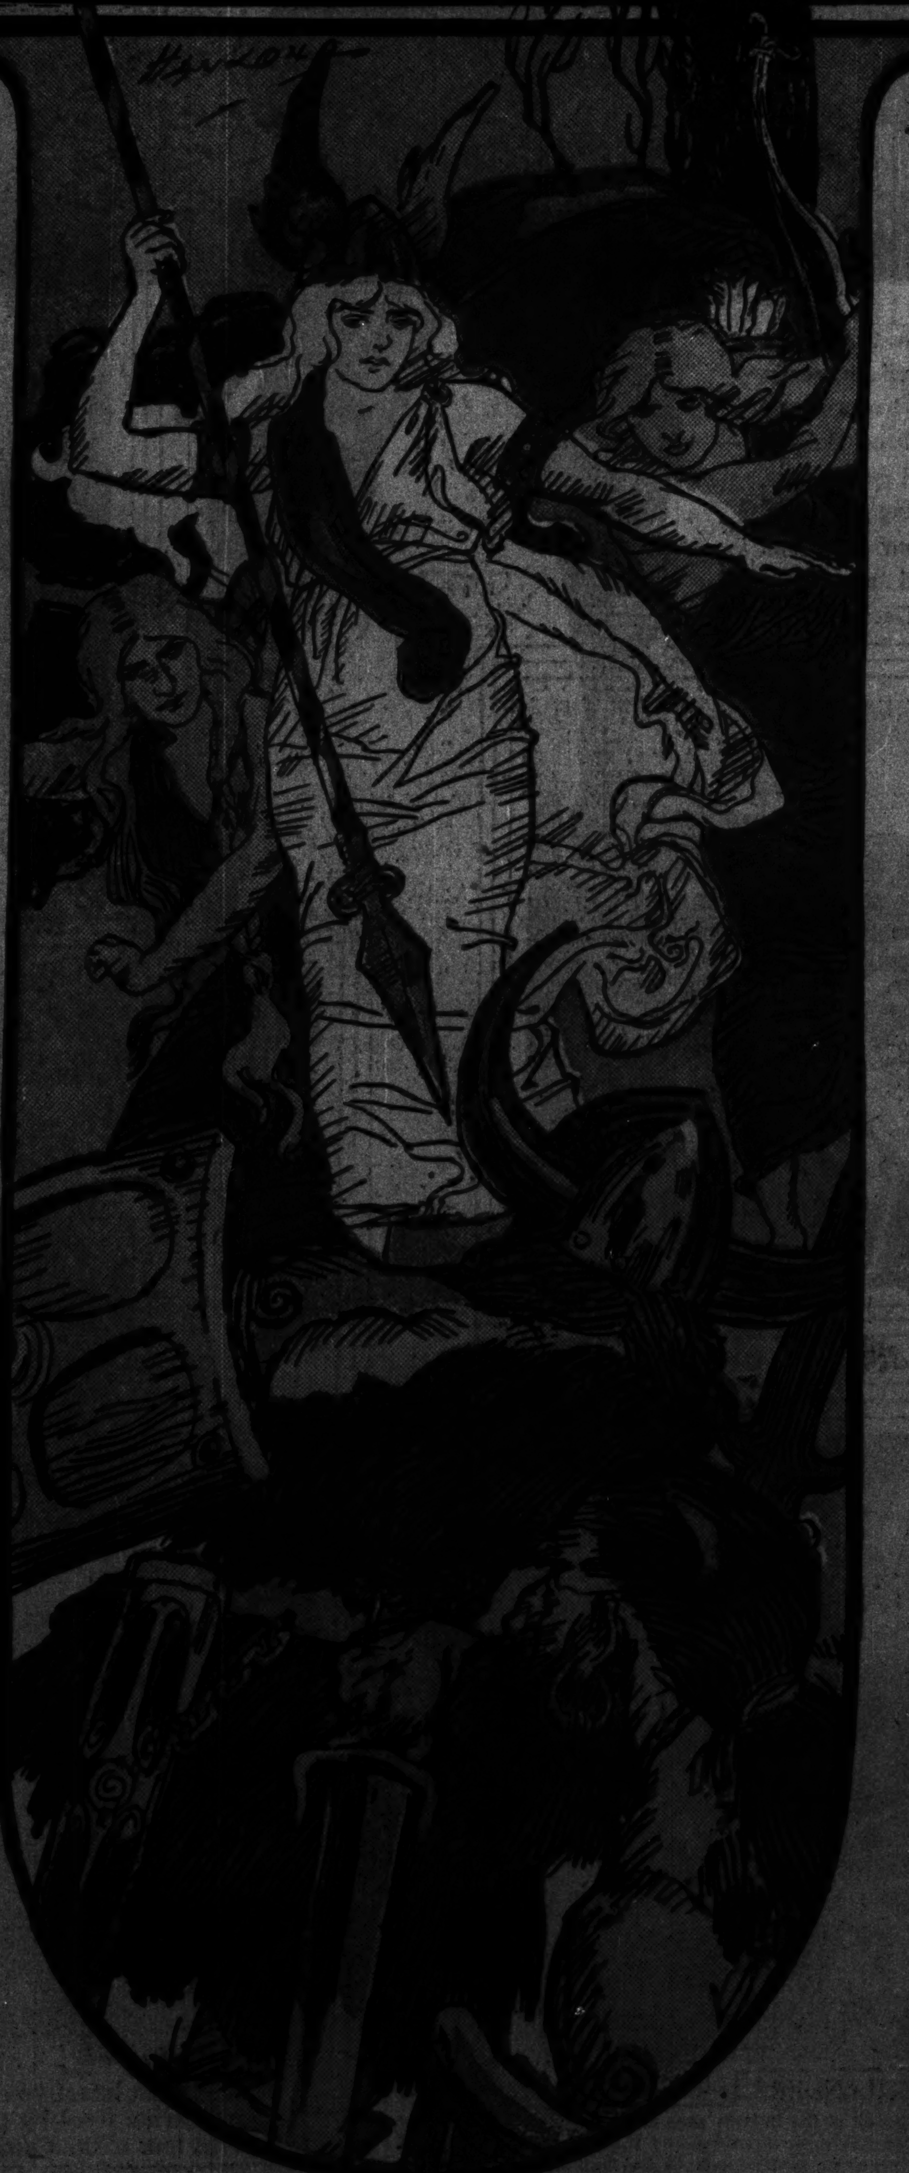
And as he turned from the stall I saw something that glistened on both his cheeks. It wasn't water from splashing hose either.

Super-Feminists: THE WOMEN WARRIORS OF THE WORLD



JOAN of ARC TAKEN PRISONER

AFTER THE PAINTING BY ROWLAND WHEELWRIGHT



WHILE it may be true that the heart of every woman is a romance with its master chord love there have been through the ages other passions which have excercised quite as obsessing a control, and another example of the strength and depth that patriotism can go in feminine hearts is that of the misguided but perfectly sincere Lady Cook of London, who, at the start of the war launched a campaign to raise an army of English women who should be ready to fight and die for their country.

To be sure her attempt was most vigorously and emphatically discouraged. She found few ready to back her project despite the fact that she echoed the urgings of the great and wise Plato of two thousand years ago who declared that all women should be trained in warlike exercises the same as men. To prove her point she drew also for illustration from the story of the long past, not realizing, however, that while women have fought and fought bravely at many periods of history it has never been except when dire necessity forced them to the sword. The many examples of feminine daring which she cited were all of them the result of desperate emergencies when all the men of the land had been called forth and the women were actually needed to preserve the nation from annihilation. The average woman, however, not being militant, English women even not excepted, Lady Cook's project fell on unfertile ground and received only the natural ridicule any sane minded individual might have predicted for it. And the public as a whole remained quite unmoved despite the many examples of feminine bravery which she cited from times so far past as to be more than buried in mythological shadows as well as from periods of history much nearer and closer to our own time present century.

Past Held Many Women Warriors.

Joan of Arc is, of course, the best known of all the women warriors. Hers is the name that comes to every one's mind when the subject of a woman bearing arms is mentioned. But there are many others. The past is filled with their names. Long before history began to write itself for generations to remember there have been women who have held the sword and plunged madly, desperately, into battle.

One of the oldest of existing traditions is a Chinese one. Once upon a time, so the story runs, the Chinese women, discontented with the unequal share accorded to them in the government, rose in rebellion. The revolt came so near to being a revolution that the emperor and his ministers, frightened at the display of power on the part of the women and the ferocious strength which they manifested, decided to prevent a recurrence of the danger and decreed that henceforth the feet of the girls throughout China should be bandaged in such a way as to put it out of their power ever again to take the field as warriors.

None of the ancients, in fact, with the possible exception of the Romans, who never were inclined to swell their ranks with feminine recruits, seemed at all averse to the women exchanging at times the spindle and the distaff for the spear and shield. Not only did they believe that their goddesses took part even in the battles of the mortals, but the supreme direction of military affairs was generally assigned to a female as goddess of war. They seem in spirit somehow to have antedated Kipling by 3,000 years or more in believing that the "female of the species is more deadly than the male."

A Woman Who Had Her Way.

As for the original Amazons, the very fact of their existence is now a much doubted thing. Modern writers have consigned their existence to the ash heap of fiction, along with King Arthur, Hengist and Horsa, and a hundred others. One reason that has been attributed by legend for their numbers falling off and their race finally dying was that no woman was permitted to marry until she had killed from one to three men, and therefore it frequently happened that too many women died single at an advanced age.

Semiramis is probably the earliest and first authentic female warrior. To be sure, her existence has been credited to be anywhere between 2177 and 718 B. C., according to the understanding of various historians, but the inability to decide on the dates of her birth and death seem in no way to have interfered with the exciting events of her life. From all record she appears to have been as beautiful as she was clever and brave, and after having ensconced herself in the affections of the king of Assyria and become his queen, she persuaded him to grant her the privilege of doing whatever she wanted for five whole days. On receiving his promise she promptly threw her royal spouse into prison, ordered his execution, and reigned supreme thereafter for forty-two years. Year after year she is said to have led her country into victorious battle. Her last war was with India, and she has the reputation of being the only sovereign of the ancients except Alexander the Great who ever carried conquest beyond the Indus.

Modern Militant Spirit Strong.

So much for the first of the women warriors.

As we come down through the centuries we find no diminishing of the number of feminine braves. The militant spirit seems no less prevalent in those days than in ours, but rather more strongly developed. There was the wife of Mithridates the Great, a king and warrior who was one of the most formidable rivals that Rome ever had. His favorite wife accompanied him on all of his expeditions and fought beside him on the field of battle. In the great battle fought against Pompey on the banks of the Euphrates, she appeared as a Persian soldier mounted on the wildest of chargers, and fought by the side of her husband as long as the battle lasted and then fled with him at the last after all hope of conquest was gone.

Few realize that Cleopatra, the immortal irresistibly fascinating and feminine queen of the Egyptians, played her part in actual battle and first appeared as an actual warrior in the year 48 B. C., when her brother, Ptolemy, deprived her of her share of the throne. At the breaking of the news to her she promptly withdrew to the country of Syria, raised troops there and reëntered Egypt at the head of her troops, where the war soon terminated by the defeat and death of Ptolemy and the crown being placed upon Cleopatra's head. It is said that during those engagements she acquitted herself with great valor and proved that despite the magnitude of her feminine wiles the capacity for physical bravery was quite as great.

Queen Led Ten Thousand Women.

Another female sovereign of a different type was Boadicea, the British warrior queen, as she has been called. Her career was a sad and stormy one from first to last, and her brave attempt to defy the power of Rome on the field of battle resulted in utter disaster. The final great battle, in which more than 10,000 women were enlisted under her banners, was long and desperately contested.

Before the battle Boadicea, with her long yellow hair floating in the wind, rode up and down in her chariot exhorting the men and women warriors to avenge her wrongs and those of her country. Suetonius, the Roman commander, on his side used all his powers to excite the Romans, and in the end the steady order of the iron legions triumphed over the savage onslaught of the Britons. Some 80,000 Britons were left on the field and Boadicea, rather than let herself be captured and brought before the Romans, who had treated her so shamefully in the past, resorted to death by poison.

The history of the Arabs, the Persians, and other orientals is no less filled with examples of women and war. Indeed, it is claimed by travelers as late as this last century, that it is customary among the Bedouin Arabs when they go into battle to have their army preceded by a maiden of good family, who rides on a camel into the midst of the fight and encourages the men to fight bravely by singing and reciting to them.

Lead Given the Most Daring.

Europe, after the downfall of the Roman empire, bears somewhat of a resemblance to Greece during the heroic age, an age when might constituted right, and rulers, men or women, whichever they happened to be, led their own armies into the field, and the lead was always given to the strongest and the most daring.

There was a Bohemian queen who enrolled the greater number of her female subjects into a species of militia and trained them to ride on horseback, too. Poland also boasts a Wanda, first queen regent of Poland, in the year 700, who never married, insisting that she could rule the better without a husband, and who proved this by leading her country's troops in victorious battles.

Later, at the time of the Crusades, Europe went wild with a blind impulse to take up arms against the infidel, and nation after nation proceeded to battle. There were women too, who took part. Women—

"Of Normandy, of Denmark, of Norway, of Bretagne,
Of Wales and of Ireland, of Gascony, of Spain,
Of Provence, of Saxony, and of Allemayne,
Of Scotland and of Greece, of Rome and Aquitaine."

Called Her Heaven Sent Maid.

Joan of Arc of France is without doubt the best known of the women warriors. A young girl of peasant birth, she left home and family to follow her mission and what she believed to be her divine appointment.

Brightly, serenely, with the faith in her heart that sometimes seems capable of moving mountains, she commanded that famous sortie for the relief of Orleans, and from her phenomenal success in respiriting the French soldiers and leading them to victory she was termed the "heaven sent maid." In victories after that she showed her wonderful bravery. The story of her eventual loss of prestige through the victories of the English against whom she was fighting, her betrayal into the hands of the English, and her subsequent martyrdom are too well known to be more than most briefly touched. There may have been others who possessed the same valor, but none who outdistanced her. And she was peculiarly without any of the feminine cruelty that sometimes has accompanied the most warlike of historical women.

The Hindus of modern times claim a Joan of Arc of their own, a Queen Ranee Lakshmi Bai of Jhansi, who in 1857 joined the revolutionary army against the English. She defeated Gen. Rose by almost superhumanly fierce fighting on several occasions, but met her Waterloo finally at Gavalier. When the English finally entered the fort Ranee was still fighting, mowing down her enemies with her terrible sword. Her sister, who was fighting at her side, fell some time before Ranee.

Female Fighters in the Balkans.

At last, however, the mass of her enemies pressed too close upon her. Their numbers overpowered her. An English soldier crept up from behind and struck her, but still she fought with maniacal fury. Another soldier struck her in the back, and she fell, another Joan of Arc fighting for her country's freedom.

Bringing instances down to our times, the Servian women in the Balkan states have given repeated instances of desperate, determined fighting. Not only have they defended their own homes and firesides, but they have gone out into actual battle and fought with fiercest spirit beside their husbands, sons, and brothers.

Perhaps it is their example more than that of the long ago British Boadicea which is inciting Lady Cook to her militant scheme. Women of history have not fought except where it was vitally, urgently necessary, and the exigencies of the modern European war do not appear sufficiently great to call forth from the women any such drastic measures.

The hardiest of the British troops are these Highlanders composed of the brawny sons of Scotland. LION, King of Killers

THEODORE ROOSEVELT says: "The whole career of a lion may be summed up in the single word rapine." Certainly no animal exceeds the king of beasts as a murderer. The tiger, the elephant, the buffalo, the rhinoceros, the wild hog, even the hippopotamus, are dangerous to the hunter, but for downright bloodthirstiness probably the lion exceeds any one of these.

His career as a murderer begins when he is still but a rounded, plump, beautifully marked little cub; it ends only when, with his back to a rock, fighting royally and fearlessly, his roaring defiance awakening the echoes, the weakened old animal is dragged down by a snarling gang of cowardly hyenas. He kills ferociously, cruelly, but bravely. Apparently he fears no animal alive. Unprovoked, he will not attack a full grown elephant, rhinoceros, or hippopotamus—he realizes that the contest would be unequal—but cases have been known where several lions have brought down nearly full grown animals of these species.

True to His Mate.

The lion resembles the robber knights of mediæval times. For the sake of his lady love he will fight a rival to the death. The general opinion of men who have studied these beasts—though this has been questioned—is that the lion is true to his mate until death doth them part. The lioness, however, is inclined to be a coquette. Meeting a gay young blade of the jungle, she will lure him on, waving her tail coyly at him until she has brought him before her lord and master. Then she will stand aside and watch the murderous battle until one or both of the lions has received mortal wounds.

Like the robber barons, he makes ferocious raids on all of his neighbors—all of the jungle folk fall prey to the huge jaws of the king. Like the robber barons, he eats tremendous meals—even a cub has been known to eat a whole gazelle, though a small one, at one meal. The lion also is attended by a court of fawning satellites, the hyenas, who wait as patiently as possible for the crumbs from the king's table, and right royally does he punish them if they presume too far—a lion has been known to bite off all four feet of a hyena which had ventured to approach the lion before he had eaten his fill, thus leaving him alive but a cripple for life.

Like the fighter of old, the lion is dignified and majestic, though at times he may condescend to romp for a bit with his equals, like the mediæval knight, though this is not the general impression. He is cruel to the conquered, and he likes to roar conceitedly when he has won the fight. He roars, though it must be admitted that he never snarls. As Agnes Herbert says, "Such puerilities are for lesser cats, not for mighty kings. When enraged the upper lip draws down, quite hiding the grim white teeth, conveying an expression of unutterable scorn and contempt. So, with mouth slightly open, an angry lion surveys an insult."

As a Cat with a Mouse.

The lion is a cruel murderer. Perhaps you have had your heart racked by the pitiful squeals of a mouse in the grip of a merciless cat. A man caught by a lion enacts the part of a mouse in the same terrible, deadly game. Even when the victim is dead the lion will bat the body around and gambol with it, making believe that the dead man has retaliating life. This, of course, may not occur in every case, particularly if other men are in the vicinity, but when George Grey, a gallant South African game hunter, was killed by a lion the beast continued to maul the man's body when a number of Grey's friends were but twenty yards away.

Above all the lion is a brave fighter. A slinking murderer when necessity drives, he will charge in the face of odds that would deter a Bayard. The men of a whole village may turn out to assist a white sportsman hunt down some noted man killer. Against such a force a lion will charge straight in the face of a rain of bullets and spears that means certain death. Wounded, he will continue the charge and, wounded again and again, he still will continue his wild rush until a shot reaches some vital spot. Even as he is dying if he can manage to reach a man he will savagely claw him with his last bit of strength. This is mere animal courage, of course—there is none of the moral courage that inspires man to meet death for a cause, but it is courage none the less.

The lion is an implacable foe of man and has been as far back as history records. Born in captivity, never having known freedom, trained for years by one man and apparently either fearing or admiring his trainer, a lion may turn on his trainer at any time and kill him as cruelly as he does in the jungle. The recent killing of Emerson Dietrich in Chicago is an example of this.

Man eating lions in a wild state, however, generally are old and weakened animals. It may hurt the pride of a man to know that he may become an entrée for a lion only when the beast has lost the ability to catch other game, that as a delicacy he is not even considered first or second choice, but on a stormy night, when the lion's roar vies with the deep notes of the storm, a man in an African village may be glad that all lions do not feast on men.

Raids on Stormy Nights.

In time of storm the lion makes his raids; he prefers the night of storm to any other. While the thunder booms overhead the lion makes his descent on the African village, and most dramatic and awe inspiring it is. Agnes Herbert thus tells of the raid of a noted man killer:

"He had been carrying off men from a Somali encampment and finally killed and ate the headman's favorite wife. Meeting a young Englishman, the natives appealed to him and he devised this ruse: Around a Somali encampment is raised a fence of thorns which is intended to stop the lion, but seldom does. It was known that a lion usually forces his way through the weakest point in the barrier, and in plain sight from this point a dummy was set up as bait. A 'machan' was built in the walls of the zareba fence in which the Englishman was to hide and shoot the beast when he started for the dummy. The sights of the Englishman's gun had been made visible by luminous paint.

"In the machan the young man waited alone—the natives feared this lion as an evil spirit. The sky became black and fitful streaks of light cut the darkness like flaming swords. Then the thunder rolled and vivid flashes of lightning lit up the camp. Once in a lull in the battling elements an eagle-owl cried out in exact imitation of the lowing of a leopard—most weird of sounds. Heavy rain commenced to fall—real Somali rain, in rivers and broken water spouts, putting the fires out. Then the storm quieted down.

"Suddenly on the tense silence the listener heard the most arresting sound in the world—the long drawn guttural sigh of a lion. With every sense strung and alert, the sportsman listened and heard quite distinctly the furtive pad, pad of some heavy, soft footed creature, passing and repassing laggingly.

"Then after a dragging hour the storm broke loose in all its fury again. A terrific crash rent the skies, then a hot, furry odor penetrated the machan. The spirit of the storm had come like a ghost, without sound, without warning. There was hardly time to turn around, none to disentangle the rifle—the lion had his prey in a flash.

"Hearing the piteous shrieks, shrieks so awful that they seemed to echo when all was really still, the Somalis rushed out of their waterlogged tents and hurled themselves a compact body of spears to the rescue. The machan was empty, with a great, gaping hole in its rear."

Theme of Song and Story.

From the dawn of history few animals have been better known to man than the lion. The literature of the ancient races abounds in references to the king of beasts. An almost incredible number of them were exhibited and destroyed in the Roman amphitheaters—600 were killed in a single show given by Pompey. Lions were abundant in the countries where civilization was born. The ancient writers considered the lion a most admirable beast—one to be admired at a safe distance, however. They credited him with being courageous, noble, and magnanimous; some of the writers of today have gone to the opposite extreme, accusing the lion of cowardice, meanness, and selfishness. It seems probable that individual lions differ greatly, but that the majority more nearly resemble the picture drawn of them by the writers of old.

Even the men of Somaliland, who know the lion as probably no other men do, have varying opinions of him. They sing:

"This is not a lion—do not think it!
It is a coward and a thief, who would frighten us.
This is not a lion; it is a tyrant and an infidel.
This is not a lion who calls himself the bravest beast of all the beasts; it is a cripple and a poacher.
Have no fear of him."

Then they about face and sing:

"It is not with needles that the lion is killed.
He is great, he is strong.
His roar is thunder, his teeth are spears.
So shall he die.
We are brave, we are skillful.
Allah be praised."

Lions apparently remember their old friends for many years. Hagenbeck had not seen Sultan, a famous lion he had reared, for many years when he ran across him one day in a city zoo.

"Why, there's my old friend Sultan," said the animal trainer, and at the sound of the man's voice the great beast leaped up, and, running to the bars of his cage, rubbed against the man's coat like a purring kitten—but if Hagenbeck had entered the cage the lion, like the mate of the Nancy Bell, might have dined off his dearly beloved friend.

The MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY

By HAROLD MAC GRATH

$10,000 for 100 Words.

$10,000 for an idea, which you must tell in 100 words or less.

There will be no second prize.

Only one first prize of $10,000 for the man, woman or child who gives the best idea to finish "The Million Dollar Mystery"!

$10,000 for an idea.

$10,000 for 100 words.

READ THE CONDITIONS.

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE prints today another installment of "The Million Dollar Mystery," a mystery story for the solution of which a prize of $10,000 will be given by the Thanhouser Film corporation. The story will run twenty-two consecutive weeks in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. As each chapter appears in THE TRIBUNE a two reel film corresponding with it may be seen in the various moving picture theaters. By this arrangement with the Thanhouser Film corporation it will be possible for TRIBUNE readers both to read the story and see the moving picture of it as it progresses from week to week. The first film was released on June 22. Each week another will be released until Monday, Nov. 16. The last chapter of the story will appear in THE TRIBUNE on Sunday, Nov. 22.

CONDITIONS GOVERNING THE CONTEST.

The prize of $10,000 will be won by the man, woman, or child who writes the most acceptable solution of the mystery, from which the last two reels of motion picture drama will be made and the last two chapters of the story written by Harold MacGrath.

Solutions may be sent to the Thanhouser Film corporation, either at Chicago or New York, any time up to midnight, Jan. 14. They must be received not later than that date. This allows eight weeks after the first appearance of the last film releases and seven weeks after the last chapter is published in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE in which to submit solutions. The Chicago address of the Thanhouser company is 186 West Washington street and the New York City address is 71 West Twenty-third street.

A board of three judges will determine which of the many solutions received is the most acceptable.

The judges are to be Harold MacGrath, Lloyd Lonergan, author of the scenario, and Miss Mae Tinee of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The judgment of this board will be absolute and final. Nothing of a literary nature will be considered in the decision nor given any preference in the selection of the winner of the $10,000 prize. The last two reels, which will give the most acceptable solution to the mystery, will be presented in the theaters having this feature as soon as it is possible to produce same. The story corresponding to these motion pictures will appear in this newspaper coincidentally, or as soon after the appearance of the pictures as practicable. With the last two reels will be shown the pictures of the winner, his or her home, and other interesting features.

Solutions to the mystery must not be more than 100 words long. Here are some questions to be kept in mind in connection with the mystery as an aid to a solution:

No. 1—What becomes of the millionaire?

No. 2—What becomes of the $1,000,000?

No. 3—Whom does Florence marry?

No. 4—What becomes of the Russian countess?

Nobody connected either directly or indirectly with "The Million Dollar Mystery" will be considered as a contestant.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Stanley Hargreave, millionaire, having joined what he believed to be a great social movement, finds that in reality he has been trapped by the Black Hundred. After a miraculous escape from the den of the brilliant thieves he lives the life of a recluse for eighteen years. One night, surrendering to a restless spirit of rebellion, Hargreave enters a Broadway restaurant and there comes face to face with the Black Hundred's leader, Braine.

After the meeting, during which neither man openly recognizes the other, Hargreave hurries to his magnificent Riverdale home and lays plans for making his escape from the country. He writes a letter to the girls' school in New Jersey where sixteen years before he had mysteriously left on the doorstep of the institution his tiny baby daughter—named "Florence Gray" by the note attached to the basket—and arranges that she be sent to him at once. He also pays a visit to the hangar of a dare-devil aviator.

Braine and members of his band surround Hargreave's home at night, but as they enter the house the watchers outside see a balloon leave the roof. The safe is found empty—the million which Hargreave was known to have drawn that day gone. Then one of the men outside announced that he had punctured the balloon and sent it to the bottom of the ocean.

The next day Florence arrives from the girls' school and is greeted by the butler, Jones, whom Hargreave has taken into full confidence. She is later visited by Countess Olga, Braine's companion, who claims to be a relative. Two bogus detectives call, but they find themselves thwarted by Norton, a newspaper man, who happens to be on the scene at the right moment.

Later Florence is lured from home by the band, but succeeds in freeing herself from their clutches. The next day Jones removes a box from its hiding place and, pursued by Braine's men, rushes to the water front. A race in motor boats ensues and Jones drops the box into the sea.

Concealed above the rendezvous of the Black Hundred, a man learns of the recovery by a sailor of the box Jones dropped into the sea and of its subsequent return to the sea, and he quickly communicates the fact to Jones. A duplicate box is planted and later secured by the band, but before its contents are examined the box mysteriously disappears.

Finding himself checkmated at every turn, Braine endeavors to enmesh the Hargreave household in the law in order to gain free access to the house. The timely discovery of the plot by Norton sets the police at the heels of the pack and results in a raid on the gang's rendezvous, which, however, proves to be barren of results.

CHAPTER XV.

If the truth is to be told, Jones was as deeply chagrined over the outcome of the counterfeit deal as was Braine. They had both failed signally to reach the goal sought. But this time the organization had broken even with Jones, and this fact disturbed the butler. It might signify that the turning point had been reached, and that in the future the good luck might swing over to the side of the Black Hundred. Jones redoubled his cautions, reiterated his warnings, and slept less than ever. Indeed, as he went over the ground he conceded a point to the Black Hundred. He would no longer be able to keep tabs on the organization. They had deserted their former quarters absolutely. The agent of whom they had leased the building knew nothing except that he would have to repair the place. The rent had been paid a year in advance, as it had been these last eight years. He had dealt through an attorney who knew no more of his clients than the agent. So it will be seen that Jones had in reality received a check.

More than all this, it would give his enemies renewed confidence; and this was a deeper menace than he cared to face. But he went about his affairs as usual, giving no hint to any one of the mental turmoil which had possession of him.

It is needless to state that Norton did not scoop his rivals on the counterfeit story. But he set to work exploring the cellar of the gutted building, and in one corner he found a battered die. He turned this over to the secret service man. There was one man he wanted to find—Vroon. This man, could he find him, should be made to lead him, Norton, to the new stronghold. He saw the futility of trying to trap Braine by shadowing him. He desired Braine to believe that his escape from the freighter had been a bit of wild luck and not a preconceived plan. Braine was out of reach for the present, so he began the search for the man Vroon. He haunted the water front saloons for a week without success.

He did not know that it was the policy of the Black Hundred to lay low for a month after a raid of such a serious character. So the Hargreave ménage had thirty days of peace; always watched, however. For Braine never relaxed his vigilance in that part of the game. He did not care to lose sight of Jones, who, he was positive, was ready for flight if the slightest opportunity offered itself.

Norton went back to the primrose paths of love; and sometimes he would forget all about such a thing as the Black Hundred. So the summer days went by, with the lilacs and the roses embowering the Hargreave home. But Norton took note of the fact that Florence was no longer the light hearted schoolgirl he had first met. Her trials had made a serious woman of her, and perhaps this phase was all the more enchanting to him, who had his serious side also. Her young mind was like an Italian garden, always opening new vistas for his admiring gaze.

He went about his work the same as of old, interviewing, playing detective, fattening his pay envelope by specials to the Sunday edition and some of the lighter magazines. Sometimes he had vague dreams of writing a play, a novel, and making a tremendous fortune like that chap Manders, who only a few years ago had been his desk mate. He really began the first chapter of a novel; but that has nothing to do with this history.

Already, then. The chess are once more on the board, and it is the move of the Black Hundred.

The day was rather cloudy. Jones viewed the sky wearily. He could hear Florence playing rather a cheerless nocturne by Chopin. Fourteen weeks ago this warfare had begun, and all he had accomplished, he and those with him, was the death or incarceration of a few inconsequent members of the Black Hundred. Always they struck, and always he had to ward off. He had always been on the defensive; and a defensive fighter may last a long while, but he seldom wins; and the butler knew that they must win or go down in bitter defeat. There was no half way route to the end; there could be no draw. It all reminded him of thunderbolts; no man knew where they were going to strike.

SHE FLUNG HERSELF INTO THE WATER

HE DROPPED TO THE WATER WITH ALL THE SKILL OF AN OLD TIMER AND TOOK HER ABOARD

The telephone rang; at the same moment Florence left the piano. She stopped at the threshold.

"Hello! You? Where have you been? What has happened?"

"Who is it?" asked Florence, stepping forward.

Jones held up a warning hand, and Florence paused.

"Yes, yes; I hear perfectly. O! You've been working out their new quarters? Good, good! But be very careful, sir. One never knows what may happen. They have been quiet for some time now. . . . Ah! You can't work the ceiling this time? . . . Window over the way. Very good, sir. But be careful."

The word "sir" caught Florence's attention. She ran to Jones and seized him by the arm.

"Who was that?" she cried as he turned away from the telephone.

"Why?"

"You said 'sir.'"

Jones' eyes widened. "I did?"

"Yes, and it's the first time I ever heard you use it over the telephone. Jones, you were talking to my father!"

"Please, Miss Florence, do not ask me any questions. I cannot answer any. I dare not."

"But if I should command, upon the pain of dismissal?" coldly.

"Ah, Miss Florence," and Jones tapped his pocket, "you forget that you cannot dismiss me by word. I am legally in control here. I am sorry that you have made me recall this fact to you."

Florence began to cry softly.

"I am sorry, very sorry," said the butler, torn between the desire to comfort her and the law that he had laid down for himself. "It is very gloomy today, and perhaps we are all a little depressed by it. I am sorry."

"O, I realize, Jones, that all this unending mystery and secrecy has a set purpose at back. Only, it does just seem as if I should go mad sometimes with waiting and wondering."

"And if the truth must be told, it is the same with me. We have to wait for them to strike. Shall I get you something new to read? I am going down to the drug store and they have a circulating library."

"Get me anything you please. But I'd feel better with a little sunshine."

"That's universal," replied Jones, going into the hall for his hat.

Had the telephone rung again at that moment it is quite probable that the day would have come to a close as the day before had, monotonously. But the ring came five minutes after Jones had left the house.

"Is this the Hargreave place?"

"Yes," said Florence. "Who is it?"

"This is Miss Hargreave talking?"

"Yes."

"This is Dr. Morse. I am at the Queen hotel. Mr. Norton has been badly hurt, and he wants you and Mr. Jones to come at once. We cannot tell just now how serious the injury is. He is just conscious. Shall I tell him you will come immediately?"

"Yes, yes!"

Florence snapped the receiver on the hook. She wanted to fly, fly. He was hurt. How, when, where?

"Susan! Susan!" she called.

"What is it, Florence?" asked Susan, running into the room.

"Jim is badly hurt. He wants me to come at once. O, Susan! I've been dreading something all day long." Florence struck the maid's bell. "My wraps. You will go with me, Susan."

"Where, Miss Florence?" asked the maid, alive to her duty.

"Where? What is that to you?" demanded Florence, who did not know that this maid was a detective.

"Why not wait till Mr. Jones returns?" she suggested patiently.

"And let the man I love die?" vehemently.

"At least you will leave word where you are going, Miss Florence?"

"The Queen hotel. And if you say another word I'll discharge you. Come, Susan."

There happened to be a taxicab conveniently near (as Vroon took care there should be), and Florence at once engaged it. She did not see the man hiding in the bushes. The two young women stepped into the taxicab and were driven off. They had been gone less than five minutes when Jones returned with his purchase, to find the house empty of its most valuable asset. He was furious, not only at the maid, who, he realized, was virtually helpless, but at his own negligence.

In the midst of his violent harangue the bell sounded. In his bones he knew what was going to be found there. It was a letter on the back of which was drawn the fatal black mask. With shaking fingers he tore open the envelope and read the contents:

"Florence is now in our power. Only the surrender of the million will save her. Our agent will call in an hour for an answer.

"THE BLACK HUNDRED."

As a matter of fact, they had wanted Jones almost as badly as Florence, but her desire for a book—some popular story of the day—had saved him from the net. The letter had been written against this possibility.

Jones became cool, now that he knew just what danger to face. The Queen hotel meant nothing. Florence would not be taken there. He called up Norton. It took all the butler's patience, however, as it required seven different calls to locate the reporter.

Meantime the taxicab containing Florence and Susan spun madly toward the water front. Here the two were separated by an effective threat. Florence recognized the man Vroon and knew that to plead for mercy would be a waste of time. She permitted herself to be led to a waiting launch. Always when she disobeyed Jones something like this happened. But this time they had cunningly struck at her heart, and all thought of her personal safety became as nothing. For the present she knew that she was in no actual physical danger. She was merely to be held as a hostage. Would Susan have mentality enough to tell Jones where the taxicab had stopped? She doubted. In an emergency Susan had proved herself a nonentity, a bundle of hysterical thrills.

As a matter of fact, for once Florence's deductions were happily wrong. When the chauffeur peremptorily deposited Susan on the lonely country road, several miles from home, she ran hot-foot to the nearest telephone and sent a very concise message home. Susan was becoming acclimated to this strange, exciting existence.

Norton arrived in due time, and he and Jones were mapping out a plan when Susan's message came.

"Good girl!" said Jones. "She's learning. Can you handle this alone, Norton? They want me out of the house again, for I believe they were after me as well as Florence. Half an hour gone!"

"Trust me!" cried Norton.

And he ran out to his auto. It was a wild ride. Several policemen shouted after him, but he went on unmindful. They could take his license number a hundred times for all he cared. So they had got her? They could wait till their enemy's vigilance slacked and then would strike? But Susan! The next time he saw Susan he was going to take her in his arms and kiss her. It might be a new sensation to kiss Susan, always so prim and offish. Corey street—that had been her direction. They had put Florence in a motor boat at the foot of Corey street. He was perhaps half an hour behind.

Florence never opened her lips. She stared ahead proudly. She would show these scoundrels that she was her father's daughter. They plied her with questions, but she pretended not to hear.

"Well, pretty bird, we'll make you speak when the time comes. We've got you this trip where we want you. There won't be any jumping overboard this session, believe me. We've wasted enough time. We've got you and we're going to keep you."

"Let her be," said Vroon tersely. "We'll put all the questions we wish when we're at our destination." And he nodded significantly toward the ships riding at anchor.

Florence felt her heart sink in spite of her abundant courage. Were they going to take her to sea again? She had acquired a horror of the sea, so big, so terrible, so strong. She had had an experience with its sullen power. They had gone about four miles down when she looked back longingly toward shore. Something white seemed to be spinning over the water far behind. At first she could not discern what it was. As she watched it it grew and grew. It finally emerged from the illusion of a gigantic bird into the actuality of an everyday hydroplane. Her heart gave a great bound. This flying machine was coming directly toward the launch; it did not deviate a hair's breadth from the line. Fortunately the men were looking toward a huge freighter a quarter of a mile farther on, and from their talk it was evident that that freighter was to be her prison—bound for where? Nearer and nearer came the hydroplane. Was it for her?

It was impossible for the men not to take notice of the barking of the engines at last.

"The thing's heading for us!"

Vroon stared under his palm. It was not credible that pursuit had taken place so quickly. To test yonder man-bird he abruptly changed the course of the launch. The hydroplane veered its course to suit.

Florence heard her name called faintly. One of the men drew his revolver, but Vroon knocked it out of his hand.

"There's the police boat, you fool!"

"Jump!" a voice called to Florence.

She flung herself into the water without the slightest hesitation.

All this came about something after this fashion. When Norton arrived at the foot of Corey street a boatman informed him that a young woman of his description had gotten into a fast motor boat and had gone down the river.

"Was there any struggle?"

"Struggle? None that I could see. She didn't make no fuss about going."

"Have you a launch?"

"Yes, but the other boat has half an hour's start, and I'd never catch her in a thousand years. But there's a hydroplane a little above here. You might interest the feller that runs it."

"Thanks!"

But the aviator would not listen.

"A life may hang in the balance, man!" expostulated Norton, longing to pummel the stubborn man.

"What proof have I of that?"

Norton showed his card and badge.

"O, I see!" jeered the aviator. "A little newspaper stunt in which I am to be the goat. It can't be done, Mr. Norton; it can't be done."

"A hundred dollars!"

"Not for five hundred," and the aviator callously turned away toward the young woman with whom he had been conversing prior to Norton's approach. The two walked a dozen yards away.

Norton had not served twelve years as a metropolitan newspaper man for nothing. He approached the mechanics who were puttering about the machine.

"How about twenty apiece?" he began.

"For what?" the men asked.

"For sending that paddle around a few times."

"Get up into that seat, but don't touch any of those levers," one of them warned. "Twenty is twenty, Jack, and the boss is a sorehead today, anyhow. Give her a shove for the fun of it."

It was a dumfounded aviator who saw his hydroplane skim the water and a moment later sail into the air. These swift moving days a reporter of the first caliber is supposed to be able to run railroad engines, submarines, flying machines, conduct a war; able to shoot, walk, run, swim, fight, think, go without food like a python, and live without water like a camel. Norton had flown many times during the last four years. At the moment he called out to Florence to jump he dropped to the water with all the skill of an old timer and took her aboard. And he could not use a line of this exploit for his paper!

. . . .

Jones heard the bell. It was the agent from the Black Hundred. He smiled jauntily.

"Well, old fox, we've cornered you at last, haven't we? I want that money, or Hargreave's daughter takes another sea voyage, and this time she will not jump overboard. A million; and no more nonsense."

"Give me fifteen minutes to decide," begged Jones, hoping against hope.

"Fifteen seconds!"

"Then we can't do business. What! Give you a million, knowing you all to be a pack of liars? Bring Miss Florence back and the money is yours. We are tired of fighting." As indeed Jones really was. The strain had been terrific for weeks.

"The money first. We don't lie any better than you do. Fork over. You'll have to trust us. We have no use for the girl once we get the cash."

"And you'll never touch a penny of it, you blackguard!" cried Norton from the doorway.

The agent turned to behold the reporter and the girl. He did not stop to ask questions, but bolted. He never got beyond the door, however.

"Always the small fry," sighed Jones. "And if I could have put my hands on the money I'd have given it to him! Ah, girl, it doesn't do any good to talk to you, does it?"

"But they told me he was dying!"

Jones shrugged.

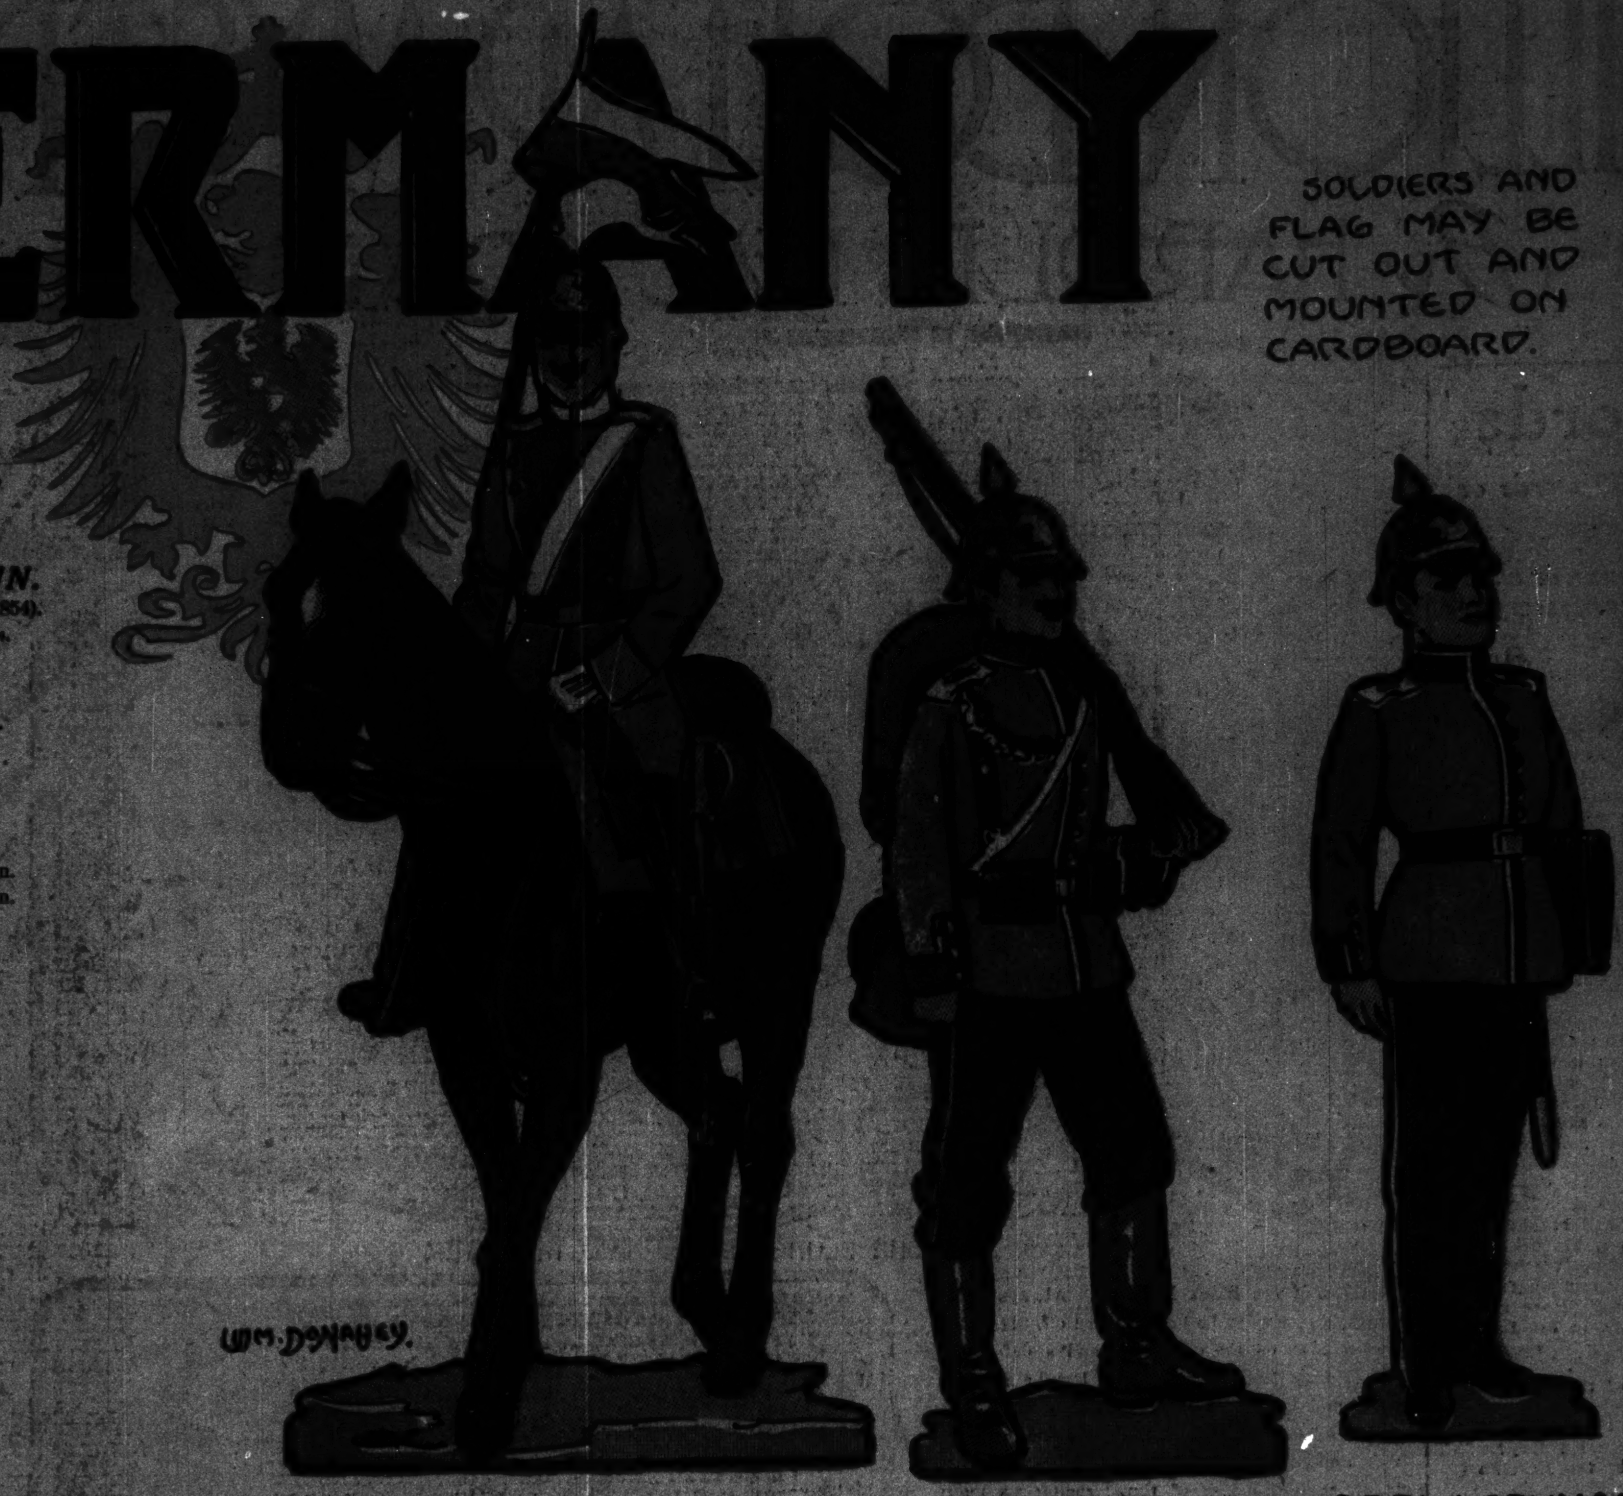
GERMANY



GERMAN FLAG.

TOLD BY GEORGENE FAULKNER THE STORY LADY.

DIE WACHT AM RHEIN.

By Max Schneckenburger—Carl Wilhelm (1854).
Translated by Lady Natalie Macfarren.

LIKE gathering thunder spreads a cry,
Like crash of arms when battle's nigh,
The Rhein! There's danger to the Rhein.
Who'll shield it from the foe's design?

Chorus.
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine,
Dear Fatherland, no fear be thine,
Steadfast and true, we guard our German Rhein.
Steadfast and true, we guard our German Rhein.

The tidings flash through million hearts,
From million flaming eyes it darts;
Our valiant sons in danger strong
Will guard our hallowed stream from wrong.

What though the foe my life should quench,
I know thy wave will ne'er be French;
And ample as thy tide of blue,
The living streak of heroes true.

The shades of heroes past and gone
Upon our deeds are looking down;
By home and fatherland we swear
The foemen from thy banks to scare.

While through my veins the life is poured,
As long as I can hold a sword,
No stranger shall our land despoil,
No foeman desecrate our soil.

Proclaim the vow from shore to shore,
Let banners wave and cannons roar.
The Rhein! The lovely German Rhein!
To keep it Germans all combine.

Chorus.
Dear Fatherland, all fear resign.
Dear Fatherland, all fear resign.
Stout hearts and true will keep watch on the Rhein.
Stout hearts and true will keep watch on the Rhein.

THE Roman conqueror, Julius Caesar, told us that the Rhine separated Gaul from Germany, but even in that early day this general statement was not quite correct, for certain tribes of the Germans occupied the left bank of the Rhine.

The Rhine valley, with its fertile fields and rich vineyards, was a coveted treasure land desired by both France and Germany. The French claimed all the territory on their side as the natural boundary to their country, while the German empire claimed the river as a German river and occupied the country on both banks. So constant warfare was waged between these two nations for the possession of this Rhine country.

The rich provinces of Alsace and Lorraine first belonged to Germany, then later they were conquered by France, and for several hundred years they were under French rule. When the French took possession they gave French names to all this territory, required the French language spoken and tried to suppress all that was German. And later, when Germany again controlled the land, the people were obliged to come under German laws, the children were not allowed to speak French, German was taught in the schools, and everything was done to overcome the French influence.

Now in this present period of terrible warfare we find these two governments, France and Germany, turning again toward this coveted country along the Rhine. The old fight of centuries is revived again and the old question, "Will the Rhine still be a German river, or will it become a boundary line between Germany and France?" is a question of today.

This song, "The Watch on the Rhine," was an outpouring of the German spirit in regard to their feeling of right in the matter of the Rhine. It was their river, and they sang songs and told stories about it, and for generations they had lived along its banks and brought forth fruit from its fertile fields. It was their life and they were willing and ready to give up their lives in its defense.

The song was written in November, 1840, by a young man named Max Schnekenburger. He was a native of Thalheim, in Wurtemberg, and was living at Berne when he wrote these verses. He never wrote anything else of any particular merit, but these verses appealed so universally to the German people and so heartily voiced their feeling in regard to their beloved river that the song was destined to become a national hymn. The young poet died in Berne in 1849 without even the slightest thought that his song would bring fame to his name. A long time after his death his body was brought back to his birthplace and a monument was erected over his grave at Thalheim.

Several times the words were set to music, but not until they were arranged by the musician, Carl Wilhelm, did they become universally popular. Carl Wilhelm was a music teacher and conducted choruses. He composed many songs, but none of them was considered great and he never dreamed that this song would become a national hymn when he wrote the music.

A story is told in regard to his writing of this song. One time a schoolmaster, who was a friend of Wilhelm's, asked him to compose a chorus for his young pupils to sing at commencement time, and this song was written for that occasion and sung with spirit by the pupils. The schoolmaster saw the value of the composition at once, and he sold it without consulting the author, while the composer himself was in ignorance of its merit for some time. However, in 1871, after the music became famous, the composer was granted an annual pension of $750 for it. He only lived two years to enjoy this pension, but that was long enough for him to know that his song had achieved fame and that it had become a national hymn.

It became a national song during the Franco-Prussian war in 1870, when Von Moltke and King William, with Bismarck and the Crown Prince Frederick were able to force the French army back from the Rhine valley. Then this warlike song became a song of the battlefield, and inspired the soldiers to save and protect their river from the French invaders.

The same song is being sung by the German troops of today. Will it inspire them to hold for the "Fatherland" the River Rhine?

"The Rhine! The lovely German Rhine,
To keep it, Germans all combine."

Next Sunday we will tell the story of the French national song.

Thanks a Thousand Times
I received the Machine a month ago and I am very pleased with it. It is a beauty in every way. I thank you a thousand times for it. I am proud to own it and I have had so much fun with it that I could not write to you before to tell you that I received it. John Crymes, 534 Ave. C., Bayonne, N. J.

Fifty Friends Saw It
I received your Motion Picture Machine last Monday and that night I showed it. I had about fifty friends. They could not all fit in my theater. I am very proud of my Machine, it is a dandy, and my friends say they wish they could have one too. Alex Mentler, 2656 Lisbon Rd., Cleveland, Ohio.

Been Offered $40.00
I do not suppose you remember me, but I am one of the boys who received a Motion Picture Machine some time ago, and will say it is the finest Motion Picture Machine I ever saw for a premium. It shows a beautiful picture on the screen. Well, many thanks to you and I wish that every boy in the United States could own one. I have been offered $40.00 for it, and could have got more for it. Walter Jones, Yellow Pine, Ala.

20th Century Entertainer
I received my Motion Picture Machine and thank you. I worked it the same day I got it, and it worked fine. I find it a Twentieth Century Entertainer, and I don't think any home is complete without one of your Motion Picture Machines. Henry Thurman, 317 S. Johnson St., New Orleans, La.

Gives Shows Regularly
I find my Motion Picture Machine a fine one. I am satisfied with it in every way. No Machine can come up to it. I give shows regularly and everybody is satisfied with its fine work. W. A. Mulford, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

Sold 300 Tickets
I am very thankful for that wonderful Machine and I think it is the best I have ever seen. I am going to have an entertainment to-day and therefore I have not much time to write letters. I think I will make about $10.00. I have sold 300 tickets already. Joseph Rauch, 2411 W. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo.

Made $15.00 With It
I thought I would write you a few lines to let you know I received my Motion Picture Machine, and it is a beauty. I never saw a better Machine than this. The first day I got the Machine, I started off and made $15.00 with it. Master J. Hughes, 908 Hamilton, Duquesne, Pa.

Made $2.00 in One Night
With all pleasure I write to tell you that I received my Motion Picture Machine about six months ago, and I made $2.00 in one night, and hope that my friend Jerry Leigh's will be as good as mine. And I lost my list, so please send me another one. Paul G. Taylor, 5 Pratt St., Newnan, Ga.

More Than Expected
I am very well pleased with the Motion Picture Machine which I received in good condition, as it is more than what I expected. I thank you very much for it and it is the first time I ever tried such a thing. Ben W. Jenson, R. R. 2, Des Moines, Iowa.

THE crimes against beauty that are committed in the name of fashion are manifold! Walk down a frequented thoroughfare and in a few short blocks you will see atrocity after atrocity perpetrated by slavish followers of the moment's "mode."

There is the painfully thin woman in an eel tight, perpendicularly striped dress, but so displaying every last cadaverous charm!

From out of a movable, funny, stuffed out bundle of stiff frills and furbelows a full moon face beams most contentedly because her dressmaker designed her costume after one she saw recently on a French mannequin. The mannequin weighed 125 pounds. This roly-poly comedy 200.

Then along comes a miss with hair so "French curled" that she is actually cat-licked in appearance. Her eyes look like holes and her nose like a very humorous proposition.

Following her is a grandmother, most obviously "trying to play pranks in the face of high heaven" with bangs, spit curl, and dress designed for two generations younger.

A few steps behind her is a ponderously proportioned woman whose thirty-six waist is expanded five or six inches with a broad plaid sash or frilly girdle. "I do believe this belt makes me look larger," she reflects as she catches a glimpse in a shop mirror. "But they are awfully stylish." And she smiles a smile of self-approval and falls in step again.

Lo! Queen Bess has come to life! No! Queen Bess never looked as if she were choking to death as does this funny, three-chinned individual with the much ruffled neck ruff tied tightly between her first and second chin. Elizabethan ruffs are the dernier cri. And what care the neckless one that they were intended for women with long slender throats?

If you are tall and angular don't add to height and angularity by wearing clinging satins with perpendicular stripes.

If you are short and fat avoid stiff and much beruffled silk dresses or dresses made of large patterned materials.

If your waist is 36 don't add ten inches with frilled belts and huge plaid girdles. They are designed for the twenty inch waist.

If your face is long and thin avoid the long drop earrings. If it is round and fat let no hoop rings hang from your ears.

If your ankles are thick and your feet large don't call attention to the fact by wearing the "fashionable" light spats.

If your neck is of the double chinned variety leave the fluffy neck ruffs to your long necked sister.

If you attempt to hide your 45 years in debutante dress you'll only make a laughing stock of yourself, whereas 45 in consistent dress is a charming age.

Don't follow fashion blindly—simply because it is the fashion.

REMEMBER—Style has no victory unless it spells becomingness.

The basque dress must be worn, and when worn by a certain type of women is attractive, but why, in goodness' name, does that heavy, coarse, but well meaning person wear that especial brand of basque waist that ends in a vulgar bow? It is a case of give me style or give me death!

"Give me style or give me death," says the fat woman as she adds to her rotundity of face with large hoop earrings.

"Give me style or give me death," says the sharp, long-drawn-out faced woman as she attaches to her ears two inch drops, which obliterate any possibility of the suggestion of plumpness.

So also says the large footed woman as she adds largeness to her "understandings" with extremely short skirts and light spats or white topped shoes.

There is one thing woman must learn and it is style has no victory unless it spells becomingness. Fashion as set down by any one person should not be followed blindly. Beauty in dressing should not have a desire to attract attention as its sole aim.

The study of clothes is not a frivolous subject unworthy of thought or consideration by serious people. The same effort and thought which are necessary to attain a high standard in any other art is necessary to attain good taste in clothes.

Every woman owes it to herself to know, in a general way, the colors which are best suited to her and the type of clothes which she looks well in, with strict regard to the general lines and proportions that suit one's figure. These are facts which do not change, no matter how much the fashions may vary for the moment. The fashion may be changed every few months, but the structural points of these same fashions must be changed and adapted to make them what is becoming to your own personal requirements. This is how you gain individuality in clothes and is a point sadly misunderstood by the majority of women in their attempt to follow the prevailing fads too closely.

Fashions are most flexible and are intended by the originators to be used only under conditions suited to the individual woman. No true designer ever intended that a fashion should be followed blindly, simply because it is a fashion. He knows too well that is how a fashion loses its charm.

The secret of a whole world of thoroughly bad and unbecoming dressing lies in the fact that women wear what is the mode simply because it is said to be the mode without any inquiry as to its suitability or becoming qualities. Don't buy your adornments from the shop window because they please your fancy and wear them for the same indiscriminating reason!

The art of dressing well is not a caprice or even a matter of instinct. It is a matter of knowledge and of good judgment. Ignorance on this subject is quite as inexcusable as in other things.

Dress has everything to do with your beauty. Whether rich or poor every woman may be well dressed. Beauty in dress isn't a matter of lavish expenditure. The poor girl has an equal chance with her rich sister of making a success of her attire, of setting off her charms, of concealing her defects, if she will only study becomingness and suitability of clothes.

Foster the critical habit as regards your appearance. Don't forget your defects and congratulate yourself that your good points will mask the effect of the bad ones. We all have some good points and some bad ones. With crude cruelty we must confront our mirrors and discover that which demands improvement.

If you are tall and angular don't accentuate your "boniness" with clinging satins and goods with stripes running up and down. If you are fat avoid the stiff silks that stand away from your figure in frills and avoid also figured materials and plaids.

If you have a waist circumference that is clumsy fashion your frock entirely by that thick waist.

If you are a pale blonde don't wear a biscuit hued dress. It will make you look old and sad.

If you are over 60 avoid pink. Pink is for youth. Be especially careful of green. It has a tendency to quarrel with your complexion unless it is fresh and you have plenty of color.

Spend your money cheerfully on a good corset and use your best and most persistent efforts to gain symmetry of figure by exercise. Avoid the dernier cri—"the latest thing." Dress yourself prettily, daintily, and tastefully, and in keeping with your position and the occasion. Remember, in all exaggeration there is danger! With individual suitability you can gain a victory in charming dress.

Lillian Russell's Hints to Beauty Seekers.

READER: When using bran or oatmeal in place of soap, it is best to make small cheesecloth bags, filling them with the oatmeal or bran, and then washing the face with these just as you would with a wash cloth. Oatmeal or almond meal are cleansing. Wax or lanolin, sometimes both, are used as the base of all cold creams, and nothing is better for cleansing the face than a good cold cream. It will not clog the pores. I have a formula for bath bags, to be used in place of soap, also a good formula for cold cream, that I shall gladly send to you if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

R. A. L.: The best brush to use on the hair is a bristle brush. The bristles should be long but not stiff. They should be long enough to touch the scalp when brushing the hair. When the ends of the hair are split they should be cut or singed. Massage your scalp for ten minutes each night. This will distribute the oil more freely through your hair. If you care for instructions for scalp massage send me a stamped, addressed envelope and I shall send them to you with a formula for hair tonic.

LOUISE: Hangnails usually come from improper manicuring. Unless you keep the cuticle around the nails pushed back and free from the nail it will become dry and will split and peel down the finger, causing painful hangnails. It is not a difficult matter to gently push the cuticle back from the nails every morning after washing the hands. Never use a steel instrument to do this, for you are liable to bruise the nails. Use the blunt end of the orangewood stick. Never pull hangnails off, for this may cause you a great deal of trouble. Clip them as close as possible to the finger with a small pair of curved scissors, then apply a bit of peroxide and rub on a little cold cream. They will soon heal. If you care for them and will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be happy to send you complete instructions for manicuring.

IRENE: I am sending you formula for hair tonic with instructions for scalp massage. I would advise you to stop using the dry shampoo. This makes the hair soft and fluffy for a few days, but it really makes it more oily. The articles used in dry shampoos are difficult to get out of the hair and scalp and they clog the pores, preventing the hair from getting the proper nourishment. Don't put too much soda or borax in the water when shampooing your hair. No wonder your hair is losing its brightness and is turning darker. Don't use a bleach on your hair. You will ruin it. When washing the hair make a shampoo of a good white soap and water. Shave a small cake of soap into a pint of boiling water and allow it to dissolve. Let it cool so it may be used on the head. Rub this well into the scalp. It will form a thick lather. Do this three times if your hair is heavy. Rinse thoroughly and dry quickly. Keep on massaging your scalp. If the ends are split cut them off evenly. If you will use the hair tonic with the massage it will make your hair grow and give it more life.

AMBITIOUS: I am sorry, but as my department deals entirely with beauty problems I am unable to give you the desired information.

* *

MISS TINNEY: I don't think it is the powder that has caused the change in your complexion. The complexion usually depends upon the general health. If you have good health your complexion will be good. A good powder will not harm the skin, providing the face is taken care of each night when retiring. The face should always be cleansed thoroughly, so as to remove all dust and dirt from the pores of the skin. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I will gladly send you a formula for a good face cream that is an excellent cleanser.

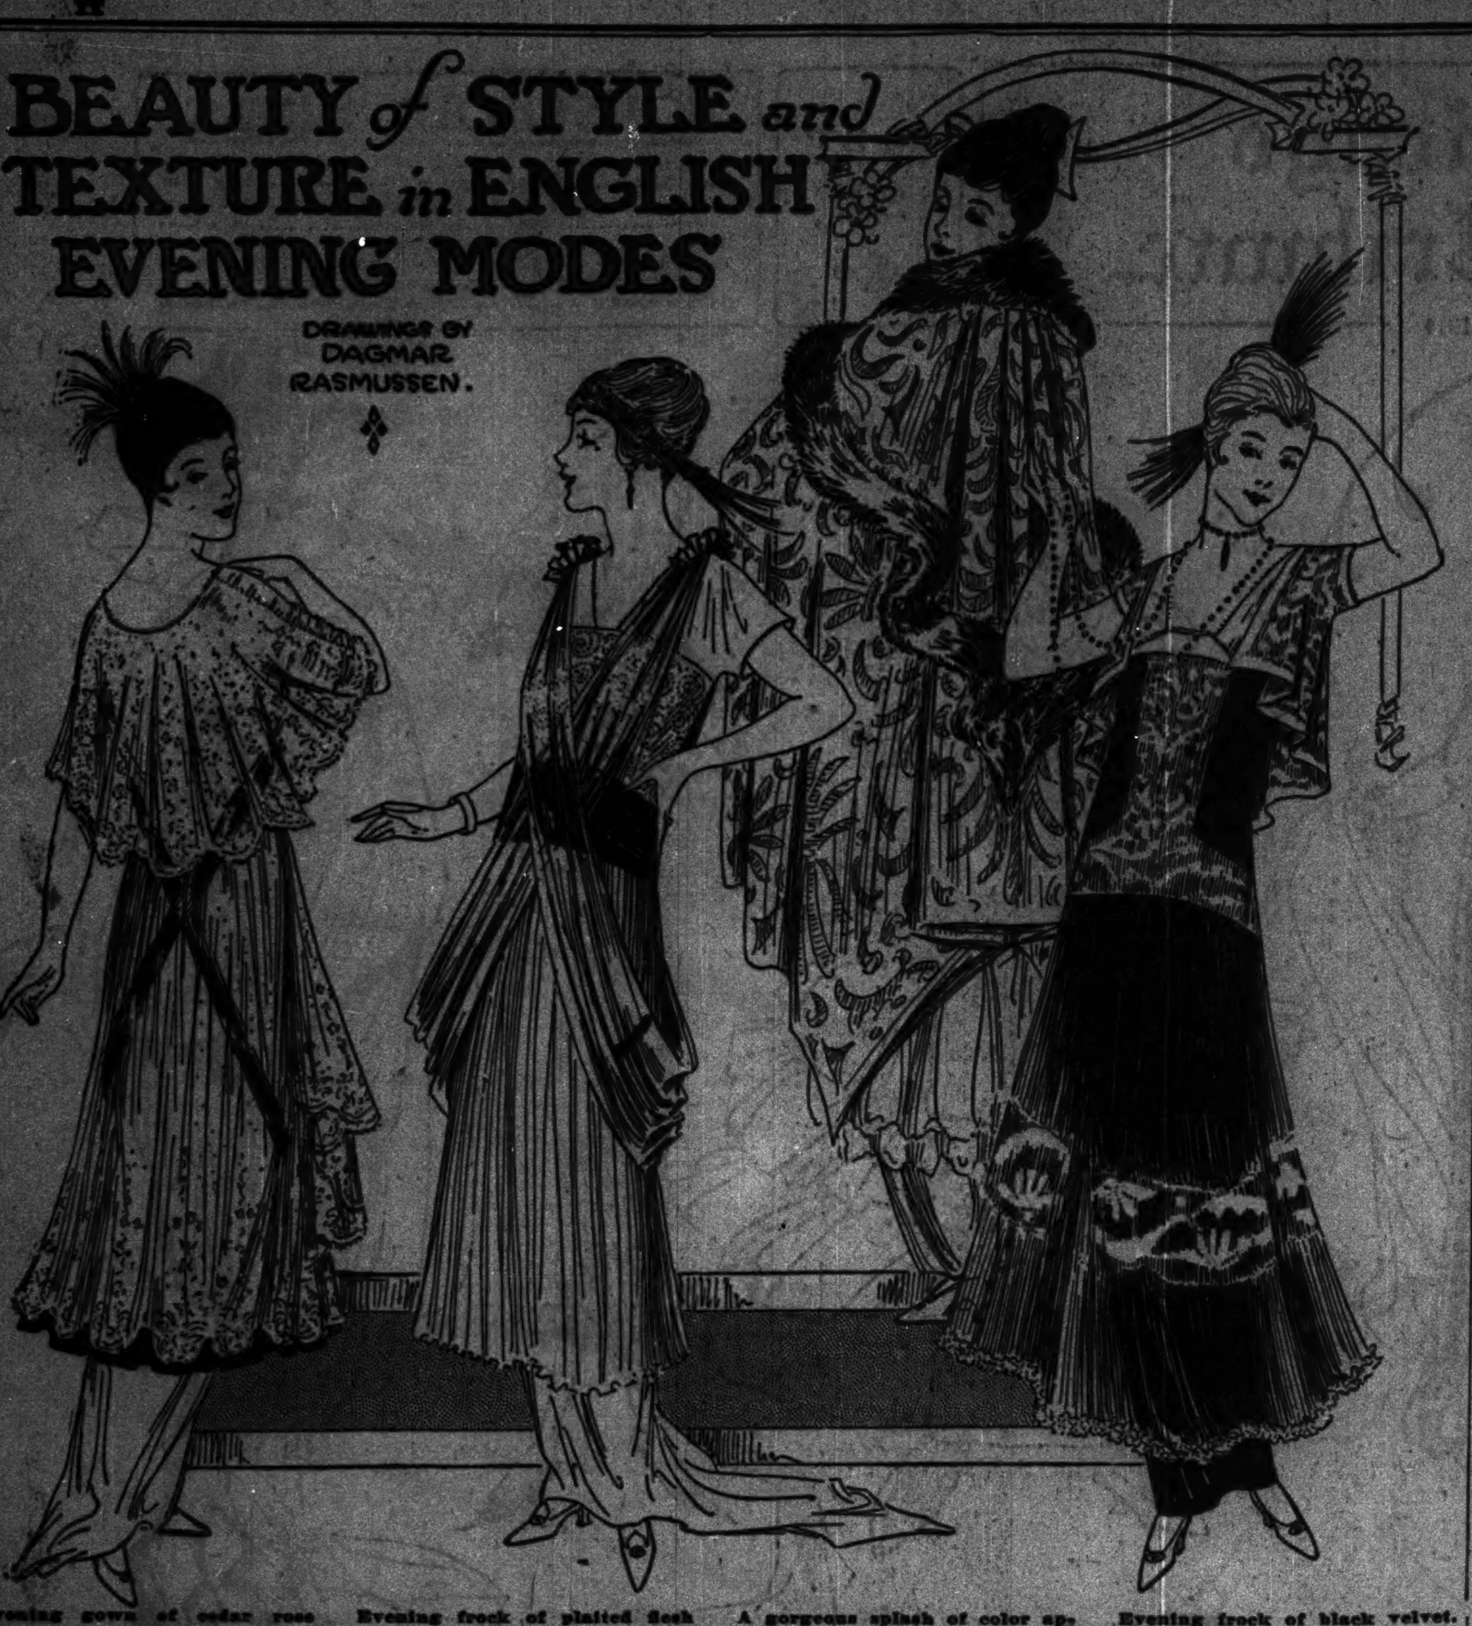
BEAUTY of STYLE and TEXTURE in ENGLISH EVENING MODES

DRAWINGS BY DAGMAR RASMUSSEN.



Evening gown of cedar rose satin brocaded in gold. The bodice is made in the new cape style. There is black velvet edging the tunic at the hem.

Evening frock of plaited flesh colored tulle. The corsage is embroidered in silver. The cross-over effect in front is in sheerest veiling and is caught on the shoulders by white and silver ornaments.

A gorgeous splash of color appears in this evening cape of brocaded black and gold material. It reaches the now popular voluminous proportions.

Evening frock of black velvet. The overdress is of gold chiffon. The bodice and new cape effect are of gold brocade.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—The note of transparency still survives despite all vigorous and even violent attempts against its existence. The only saving hope in sight is that whereas in the past bodices have dropped lower and still lower, at the present time the corselet is creeping up higher, and those who have waged persistent war against the insidious too transparent frock which willful femininity has indulged in can cease from their arduous struggles serene in the conviction that the end has at last been glimpsed.

A gown shown here lately emphasized this fact in a pleasing way. The skirt was of white velvet, and the corselet, which was sleeveless and low in the back, crept up in the front almost to the neck line.

Many of the new evening gowns are glittering masses of crystal and iridescent spangles. The bodices are loose and fall straight in many cases from just above the bust to the hips. Often then its fullness is caught by a wide sash or by a band of metal embroidery.

The regulation princess and the moyen age are both seen in stunningly brocaded goods. One superb cloth of gold was brocaded in black and red roses. It was a direct modeling after the gowns of the Francesca da Rimini period, except that a sumptuous mantle of net instead of velvet was worn over it.

Paillettes appear in abundance on the evening frocks. Some of them are all of pearl or again of black jet. For evening wear it would be hard to imagine any kind of a chiffon frock in any color which was not quite possible at the present moment.

Glorious splashes of color together with a truly wonderful commingling of tone and texture characterize the new models in evening wraps, and despite the terrific upheaval which is taking place on the continent and which is being felt all over the British isles to an enormous extent couturiers still are able to concentrate on the output of novel creations. It is the only way to do, the only wise course to follow. Even in time of war business cannot afford to be wholly paralyzed.

And in the fashion world as everywhere else the new is forever transcending the old. The last sign of the cape which has enjoyed such favor the past warm months is seen this fall in the new mantles for evening wear. It would be hard indeed to speak in terms of hyperbole as far as their fullness is concerned. All the designers seem to be in league to determine just how much material they may put in one wrap. Some of the wraps are so huge they seem to have lost all semblance to form and balloon out on all sides in most fantastic shapes.

This fullness does not hold so true for the fur evening wraps. They are many of them tight on the shoulders and under the arms and then they flare out to wide lengths below the knees.

Referring again to the brilliance of color in the evening wraps one sees them in vividest shades. Gorgeous orange velvet, brilliant red, striking vivid blue all go to make up the orgy of color which for the moment is sweeping the dressier fashion fields. White fox and ermine are the most worn furs, although skunk is seen on some of the simpler and less expensive wraps.

It is an interesting fact to observe here that fur coats are not as popular this winter as coats of velvet or velour de laine trimmed with fur, and it is interesting to note, too, that fur bandings are not put on flat but are padded out in a way which suggests a roll of fur instead.

Muffs of velvet are given first place this season in public favor. The velvet is draped and plaited and trimmed with a striking sort of stone, if such ornamentation is desired. If a more simple effect is preferred then fur may be used.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

THE TRIBUNE will pay $1 for every letter published on the subject: "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life Was When ——." Address Contest Editor, SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

A Slight Mistake.

I was already approaching middle age, but was very slight in build, and smooth shaven. My wife was considerably heavier than I, and at the time I speak of was worn out from a long journey. We started into a city clothing store, but changed our minds before we were well inside.

As we turned to go a clerk rushed after us and called: "Stop a moment, madam; did you want to get a suit or an overcoat for the boy?"

This experience is submitted without my wife's consent. Z.

He Knew "Muvver."

Not long ago I took my nephew, aged 5, to a town several miles from here to see his mother, who is a member of a musical comedy company. While seated in the fourth row in the theater the child's mother came on to sing her number, and the boy cried out so that nearly every one could hear, "Is that muvver? Talk to her, auntie. Call her. I want her to come down here." I had a difficult time quieting him, but I managed to escape from the theater before the ushers requested that I go, while the audience gave me its undivided attention. Hadn't Eaten Breakfast.

"The most embarrassing moment of my life," says my father-in-law, "came to me in Ireland when I was a small boy."

He and his chum would never allow a strange boy to come on their street without picking a fight, and so one morning a lad several inches taller than the young warriors appeared and was promptly thrashed. My father-in-law says he did it alone, feeling rather chesty about it he gathered a good sized crowd by hooting, and after the retreating foe.

When the little fellow was far enough away to feel safe he turned around and called back in a trembling voice: "Yes, you licked me, but I bet yer if I could have me breakfast every mornin' like youse do, youse couldn't do it."

"My mother sent me after him," says my father-in-law, "and he had a very good breakfast that morning, anyway." J. P. K.

Marion Harland's Helping Hand

By Marion Harland

Marion Harland's Helping Hand Corner appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"WHAT must you think of my long silence? I hope you don't think me the most unappreciative being in the world for not thanking you long ago for your kindness in asking for a machine for me; but, to tell you the truth, I was ashamed to write. I have decided, though, that in justice to myself I must tell you the plain truth. After my letter to you appeared in the paper a man wrote me that he would send me the sewing machine I wanted. It was shipped to me collect, as I had understood it would be. The next day after it arrived in the city my husband lost his position through a cutting down of the force and we could not get the machine, as it took all we had to move to smaller quarters, get groceries, etc. By the next month storage, etc., charges made the freight bill too large to take up, and, do you know, my husband has never secured regular work since. The city is overcrowded with men and we have practically been living from hand to mouth ever since I wrote to you last. So you see that by now the machine is probably beyond my reach, possibly sold for storage. And O, how overjoyed I was that I was really to have a machine of my own, only to lose it when nearly in my grasp. So I am still pegging along in the same old way. Since I wrote you both babies have had the mumps. With the little baby the trouble settled in a weak tonsil and caused an operation to be necessary, so that he was at the hospital for three weeks, and then I had the chickenpox and both babies took it from me, and after that they had the whooping cough. Now, thank goodness, they seem to be about all right again, except for teething with the 10 months old baby. He has seven teeth now. MRS. W. L. G."

A chapter of distresses! My heart goes out to the poor mother in her disappointment about the machine and the anxiety for the babies, as well as the other trials of which she writes in a portion of the letter which I have not put into print. I hope members of our big and helpful body of workers will see if they can do something to lend her a hand. Surely there must be another sewing machine looking for an owner. I don't believe any one could make better use of it or would appreciate it more than Mrs. W. L. G. I shall be delighted to supply her address to any one who wishes to do something for her or for the babies.

Invalid for Thirty Years.

"I wish to bring to the attention of the Corner some one who is worthy of any help she may receive at the generous hands of the Cornerites. A young woman I know has been an invalid for thirty years. She is not even able to leave her chair to go to bed, or for one blessed thing. She is a dear, patient girl, and gives her poor, widowed mother as little trouble as possible. If you could only get her a wheel chair through the Corner I am sure you would be doing a wonderful kindness for the poor girl and she would be so thankful and happy. Her mother is not only old and poor but in poor health as well. I am no relation to them, only a friend, but I would be willing to pay all expenses of expressage, etc., for the sake of getting the chair to this sufferer. Her initials are M. A. D.

"MRS. R. L. T."

It is some weeks since I have asked for a wheel chair in this department. So many requests of the sort overwhelmed me that I had to call a halt, but I am glad to print this application, and I hope it may soon receive a favorable answer. I shall be happy to supply her name and address to any one who can send her the chair, or to give the address of the friend who asks for it and offers to bear the expense of transportation. In helping the girl her mother is helped as well, not only by a saving of labor but also by the cheer and happiness she would feel in seeing her daughter's burden lessened and her life brightened. Those of us who are not shut in by illness can only dimly understand what such close confinement must mean to a sufferer. An invalid for thirty years!

Seeks Her Father's People.

"You are so kind in helping others that I am going to ask you to assist me in finding my father's people. He died when I was an infant, but he and his family formerly lived in or near Georgetown, Ky. My grandfather's name was Thomas Cummins and my grandmother's maiden name was Mary De Hagen. My father's name was Caswell Cummins. I am lonely, and anything you can do for me in the way of putting me in touch with my relatives would be highly appreciated.

"MRS. M. E. P."

Many family connections have been reestablished through the efforts of the Helping Hand, and I hope we may be able to bring you into communication with the members of your father's family. I shall be happy to give your name and address to any one who has information to give you.

Training for a Nurse.

"If there are any hospitals in this city where they will take inexperienced girls and train them to be nurses, I would like to know of them. I would be much obliged if you could put me in touch with some one who could tell me anything on the subject. I am anxious to learn this profession. I would also like to get hold of the song, 'Indianola,' [illegible] is an old Indian song. If I am helped on these points I will be glad to return favors in any way I can. L. Y. N."

I do not know of any such hospital, but you might write to them for the information. I hope the song may be forthcoming.

Bright Sayings of the Children.

"The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The stories may be sent in either by children or their parents. The only condition is the story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. Address bright sayings plainly to Aunty Bee, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Each letter must have the name and address of the sender.

Bright sayings of children are printed every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Little Walter's father was called away on an extended trip. Returning home he was surprised to find his son's face badly scratched up.

"Why, Walter, whatever happened to you?" he asked.

"Fell down," answered Walter.

"But what scratched your face so terribly?"

"Face fell, too," was Walter's reply.

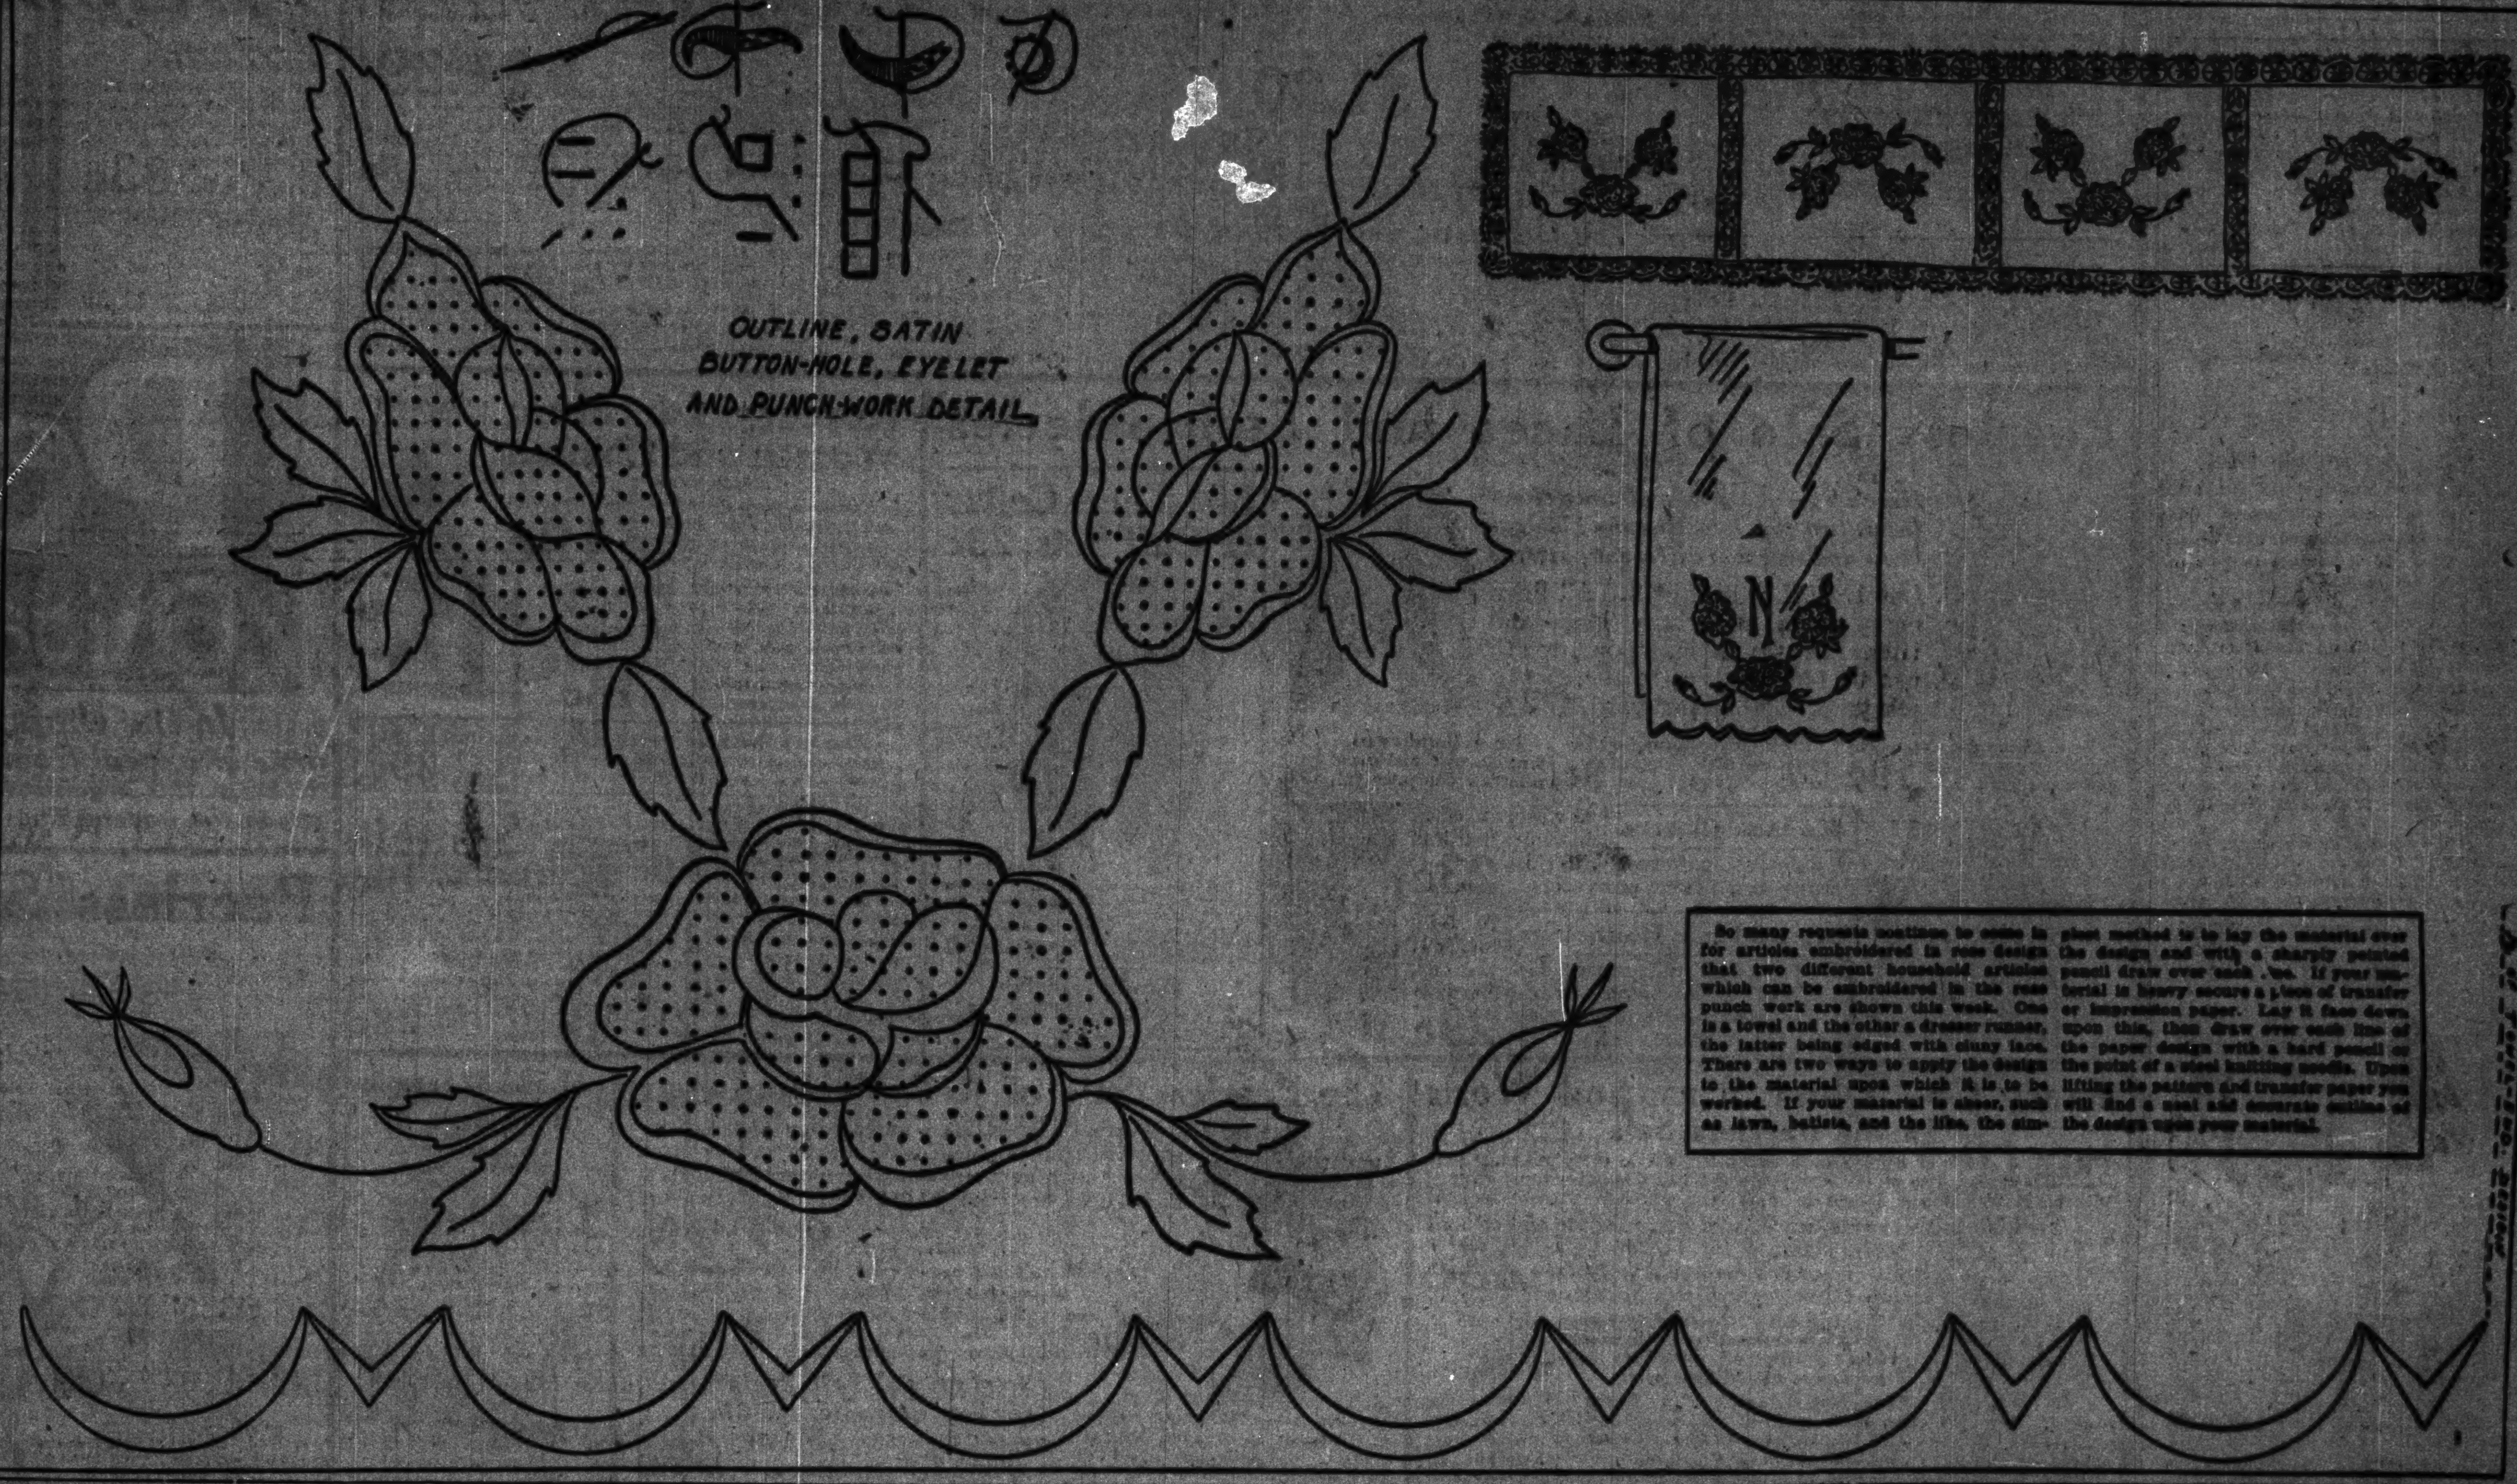
Rose Design for Dresser Runner or Towel.



So many requests continue to come in for articles embroidered in rose design that two different household articles which can be embroidered in the rose punch work are shown this week. One is a towel and the other a dresser runner, the latter being edged with cluny lace. There are two ways to apply the design to the material upon which it is to be worked. If your material is sheer, such as lawn, batiste, and the like, the simplest method is to lay the material over the design and with a sharp pencil draw over each line. If your material is heavy secure a piece of transfer or impression paper. Lay it face down upon this, then draw over each line of the paper design with a hard pencil or the point of a steel knitting needle. Upon lifting the pattern and transfer paper you will find a neat and accurate outline of the design upon your material.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

EDITED BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Jane Eddington's articles are printed every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"COOKING the sweet potato is an art, for the delicate flavor of potato is lost if it is not properly cooked," say the Creole cook. The old method of baking these potatoes in the ashes, covered over with coals, was ideal because time entered as an ingredient, and it is needed to bring out their flavor. The old field slaves used to put the potatoes in the ashes after one meal, go back to the field, and leave them till the next meal. The delicate flavor was most grateful.

Baked Sweet Potatoes.

There are various methods of cooking sweet potatoes by baking. Quick heat is needed when the potatoes are ready to put into the oven, but not hot enough after that to blacken the skin or dry it up so that it becomes crumbly. The long, slim potatoes are best for cooking just right by this method.

Another way of baking them is to boil them until they are nearly done, then to drain, peel, and bake them. Some people consider them drier and nicer in this way, but they are not if the baking is perfectly done the other way. This is a good way to prepare them, however, when they are to be finished with roasting meat. They are considered the vegetable to be served with roast pork in particular and are well basted with the cooking liquid. If they are not boiled beforehand they need to be baked about an hour and a quarter.

Boiled Sweet Potatoes.

The essential thing in boiling sweet potatoes is to pour off the water just as soon as they are soft and then to dry them in the pot. They should never be served straight from the water.

Fried Sweet Potatoes.

Cold boiled potatoes are most commonly heated up by frying, but raw sweet potatoes are sliced and fried in deep fat and prepared in various ways, sometimes served with melted butter, as Filipinos serve "grilled sweet potatoes," which he prepares as follows: "Plunge four medium sweet potatoes into two quarts of boiling water with half a teaspoon of salt and boil for thirty-five minutes. Drain, skin, then cut each one into four even slices, lengthwise. Oil the inside of a double broiler (use toaster as well) and broil for five minutes on each side. Remove, lightly roll in a tablespoon of melted butter, and serve.

Roasted Sweet Potatoes.

Roasted sweet potatoes are rightly those cooked in the ashes, but they are sometimes called roasted potatoes when the skins, after being washed and wiped dry, are greased before they are baked. In this way large potatoes can be used and their skins will not be crumbly. No potato needs to have a burned skin when it is baked if the oven heat is right.

Sweet Potato Cakes.

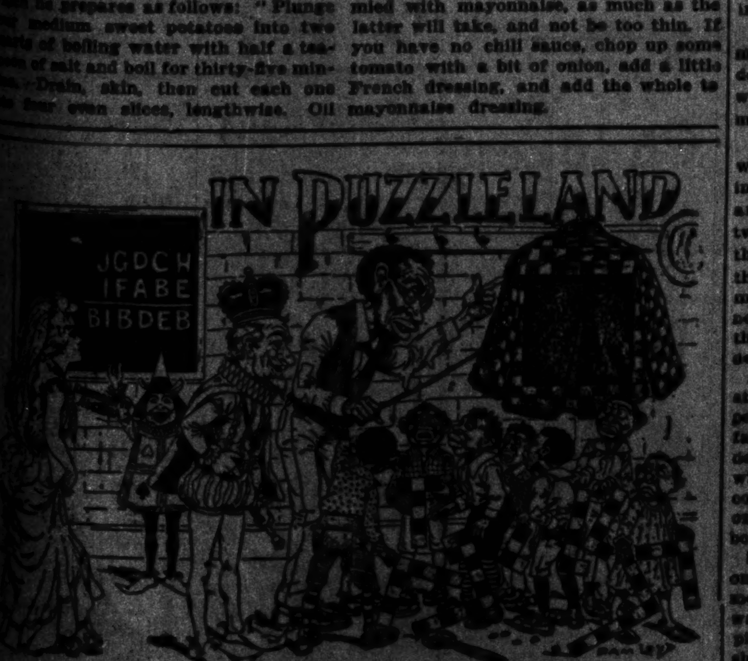
These cakes are delicious and have a great deal of food value of a balanced sort, but are a little difficult for the amateur, because the mixture is sticky. Use mashed potatoes which have enough milk mixed with them so they can easily be put into cakes. Into potato enough for six or eight pretty good sized cakes stir two unbeaten eggs. Flour the hands and make up into cakes to be baked or fried in a small amount of fat. White potato or bread crumbs may be added to a little sweet potato to make such cakes, but it will be necessary to use more butter. They may be made up in perfect balls and served alternately with meat balls.

Sweet Potato Croquettes.

Use one pint of hot mashed sweet potato, beating into it salt and pepper and a tablespoon of onion juice and one tablespoon of butter. When partly cold mold into any desired shape, dip into beaten egg, roll in fine dry crumbs, and fry a golden brown in hot fat. Serve with pork tenderloin or roast pork.

Thousand Islands Dressing.

ANNA LEWIS: Sorry you did not see the recipe for Thousand Islands dressing. It has been printed in both daily and Sunday papers within two months, and previously, and for over a year has been the recipe most in demand. You should have sent your address, then the recipe would have been sent by mail. It is not necessary to begin at the beginning, since the dressing is simply chopped chili sauce mied with mayonnaise, as much as the latter will take, and not be too thin. If you have no chili sauce, chop up some tomato with a bit of onion, add a little French dressing, and add the whole to mayonnaise dressing.



King Puzzlepate visits the Darktown kindergarten and finds that Prof. Johnsing is having trouble with his class of pickaninnies, who have taken the liberty of constructing a checkerboard out of the back of his coat. He is ordering the champion of that checker club to patch up the coat or suffer dire consequences. Of course, it is a simple problem, but it will entertain our puzzlists to cut out those eight pieces and see how quickly they can be arranged into an eight by eight checkered square.

In the second puzzle Tommy Riddles and the Princess Enigma have discovered a problem in simple addition on the blackboard, where the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 0 are represented by the letters A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J. Can you find out by rules or experiment which letters represent the numbers so that substituting numbers for letters on the blackboard the sum will prove to be correct?

If you can't figure this out the answer will be found on page 8.

JANE BARTON. - - - THE HOME DRESSMAKER.

Suitable Outfit for Nurse.

RECENTLY a trained nurse of my acquaintance, a young girl not long from the hospital, said to me, "You help solve the clothes problems of every other business woman. Why do you never write anything directly for us?"

Today my talk shall be chiefly for that ever growing coterie of young women, the professional nurses, though the business woman at large may find the suggestions helpful in planning her wardrobe.

As most of the nurses' waking hours are spent in uniforms the first interest centers in them. What shall they be made of? How shall I make them? How many do I need to run me comfortably? How can I get them at least cost? All these questions bother the novice.

A three or four gore skirt pattern generally keeps in good style until worn out. The fewer the seams the less work for the home dressmaker; thus the two piece pattern is a good model if not made ultra narrow. If one tires of all the skirts alike use one pattern but alter the opening or trimming for each one. A plain seam turned and stitched tailor fashion on the outside makes a neat finish. Stitch about a quarter inch from the seam.

Remember, in making a uniform that time saving must be considered, therefore have a skirt that opens simply with buttons and buttonholes at front or side. A convenient skirt buttons like a tennis skirt, so it may be opened from the bottom when desired. As it takes longer to adjust a belt and buckle the high waist line is preferable. Finish to a heavy belting that hooks in the middle. In the middle of the front have a narrow strap underneath the skirt into which the patent hook can be slipped if one is worn. There is no possibility of skirt and waist missing connection if an eye is sewed an inch to each side of the center of the back of the blouse and hooks to correspond are sewed inside the skirt band.

Have all the material shrunken before making up. It costs little to have this done at the store—indeed is preferable when a piece is bought, as pressing so much material is hard to manage.

The nurse's skirt must clear the ground well, but do not make the mistake of having it too short, especially if one is short and stout. From an inch and a half to two inches is quite short enough. Finish the skirt before turning up. It simplifies the work if the exact turning line is marked from the first skirt, then one need not bother with the others. A hem from three to five inches deep is the proper depth.

Never sew buttons to a uniform. Instead, work buttonholed eyelets and use pearl buttons that have a shank and coil fastener. This not only simplifies laundering, but two or three sets of buttons will be enough instead of buttons for each costume. These are used the same way on the sleeve of the blouse and down the box plait in front.

Some nurses make their uniforms in a one piece dress. This is undoubtedly more convenient to don quickly, but as the waist soils sooner than the skirt the two pieces seem better liked. A tailored shirtwaist opening in front in an inch and a half box plait is the preferred model. If one is thin a Gibson tuck sometimes is used, but the most stylish models are plain with set in sleeves and a small patch pocket on the left side set about at the bust line.

Adjust the gathers, two rows, and sew them to an inch wide tape that comes only to the under arm seams. The fronts, being left loose, launder better and are quickly arranged in becoming fullness especially if pinned down to the corset with a hook attached to a safety pin. All one's skirts being slipped under this hook, one can keep neat under the hardest lifting.

The neck is gathered into a narrow band that has two buttonholes in front and another in the center of the back for easy adjusting of the collar. Often the button is sewed to the back, as collar buttons have an uncomfortable way of losing themselves.

The ordinary shirtwaist sleeve with turned back cuff often is used, but most nurses, I find, prefer the one piece sleeve, made an easy fit and fastening on top of the arm with from three to five buttons and buttonholes. This does away with the troublesome sewing on of a cuff—the inch wide bias facing that fits around the bottom of the sleeve and up the opening, which shuts like a placket, being easily put on. Make eyelets for the button shanks on the under part. The cuff wrinkles easily and often catches on the patient's hair.

In sewing in the sleeves a bit more fullness must be allowed than is fashionable, and the armhole should be made easy, as the waist tears quickly in lifting. A yoke at the back of the blouse is more serviceable than the plain back, and where the nurse is large an extra piece of the material is sewed into the side seams under the arm. This is hemmed and not stitched tight on the opposite edges, but is caught into the belt at the waist line.

A serviceable model is a one piece apron coming to the bottom of the skirt and lapping in the back with the strap ends buttoning on the fronts at about the collar bone. Two patch pockets are set on each side of the front just below the hip line. Such an apron requires about two and a half yards of thirty-six inch goods. It is quickly made—having no gathers or bands, and is easily laundered. Should sleeves be desired, loose ones can be kept to slip over the blouse for the roughest work. Another convenient model is the regular studio apron with long sleeves.

As a nurse spends most of her life in a suit case, convenience in packing must be considered. Therefore, choose garments that do not crush easily and take up little room. The underwear of cotton crepe is much liked by many nurses, as fewer sets need be taken on a case. It is easy to wash out a piece and have it dry over night. In the same way the fine cotton crêpe blouse for afternoons out is just the thing, and next to that the crepe de chine blouse is satisfactory. Cotton combinations are a far wiser choice than the gauze shirt and cambric drawers.

A stylish street suit and becoming hat is essential to the nurse. Remember much depends upon first appearances. A prejudice is much more easily acquired than overcome; so do not think just anything will do for clothes save when you are off a case. As you may have to be out in all weathers choose a material and color that is rain and spot proof. A thin serge of dark blue is possibly the wisest choice. If certain that the right quality of mohair can be had they wear wonderfully, as they are cool and shake dust easily. This is a lottery, as I have had them break in a few wearings.

For and By Business Girls.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. She will answer letters, either through this department or by personal reply. No want will be too small—no difficulty too great for her to consider. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Mary King.

Not Afraid of Hard Work.

THE ambitious business girl, I believe, is always interested in the woman who has made good in business, and is anxious to hear the story of her success.

The other day I met a woman who has made a decided success in business, and asked her to tell me her story. She laughed at my request. "My story? I haven't any. There was nothing exceptional or particularly interesting about my career. Perhaps I have done well, but it always surprises me when people speak of me as a successful woman, as it all has come so gradually that it does not seem to me to be anything out of the ordinary.

"If my success, as you call it, can be attributed to any one particular quality that I possess it probably is due to my ability to concentrate my mind on the work I happen to be doing and to work steadily. Looking back over the various positions I have held, I cannot recall one that might be called an easy one.

"It would make an interesting story, perhaps, if I could tell that I was such a wonder that shortly after I started to work my employers, recognizing my exceptional ability, promoted me over a number of girls, with a large increase in salary. But I can't say anything of the kind, as I possess only the average amount of brains.

"I started to work when quite young in a clerical position, and after doing that kind of work for two or three months, at the suggestion of one of the older girls in the office, I took up stenography at night. It was hard giving up three evenings a week after working hard all day, but it was well worth it.

"Shortly after I finished my course one of the stenographers in the office resigned, and I summoned up enough courage to ask my employer to let me try to do her work, and he consented, though rather reluctantly. O, the awful blunders I made at first! I was horribly nervous and self-conscious, as most beginners are. My employer, however, was most patient and considerate, and the other stenographers were wonderful to me. After my nervousness wore off I discovered that I liked the work immensely. As I was naturally quick, I turned out my work in a hurry, and so I was given a great deal of it to do. I worked with that firm as a stenographer for two years, and then secured a new position at a much higher salary.

"My new employer had a reputation for paying his employés well, but getting the maximum amount of work out of them. Everybody from the general manager down to the youngest office boy worked every minute of the working day. There was no chatting or visiting among the employés. They were all too busy. I had so much work to do that on my way home at night I used to plan ways of saving time and energy, so that I could accomplish as much as possible in a day. The work was purely mechanical, and there was nothing interesting about it, but the training was splendid.

"My third position was easier. It was with a smaller firm, and I was the only stenographer. I had acquired such speed in my former positions that during the first few weeks I often found time hanging heavily on my hands. My employer, noticing that I didn't have enough work to keep me busy all the time, and that I was restless when idle, let me do some of the things that he had been doing himself, and in this way I learned a great deal more about the business than any of my predecessors had known.

"My employer evidently was well satisfied with the way I did the tasks he gave me to do, and before long he was asking my opinion about things connected with the business that the average stenographer is never consulted about. I was never afraid to express my opinion, and if I did not always agree with my employer I did not hesitate to tell him so and to explain why. He seemed to have confidence in my judgment, and often did a thing my way after we had talked it over when it had been his intention to do it in an entirely different manner. My employer started jokingly to call me his assistant, but before long it occurred to me that it wasn't so much of a jest after all, and I asked for an assistant's salary and it was given to me."

This woman is perfectly right. There isn't anything remarkable about her business career. The only thing in her story that stands out is the fact that she was not afraid of hard work. Of course, she has ability, although she modestly leaves that out of her story, and did her work well, as her success proves. But how many bright, capable girls work year after year for the same small salary merely because they like to take things easy.

The majority of us, I think, would be willing to exert ourselves a little to learn as much as we could about the business we are in if we realized that by doing so we are furthering our own interests.

It's Distinctive of Tribune advertising that in it the primary emphasis is laid on quality.

Tribune advertisers know that Tribune readers, as a class, will not buy goods at any price if they have not real merit.

Hence they talk quality first and then quote such price inducements as they may be able to offer.

This situation has been firmly established by The Tribune's consistent policy of insisting on the maintenance of high standards by advertisers, and of educating its readers to appreciate and respond to good advertising.

The result is mutually beneficial. Advertisers with worthy propositions are assured a hearing by an alert audience of men and women ready to buy if the merchandise conforms to the advertising.

Readers have submitted to them daily in pleasing form the best that the business world has to offer—from bran bread to bonds—from pencils to pianos.

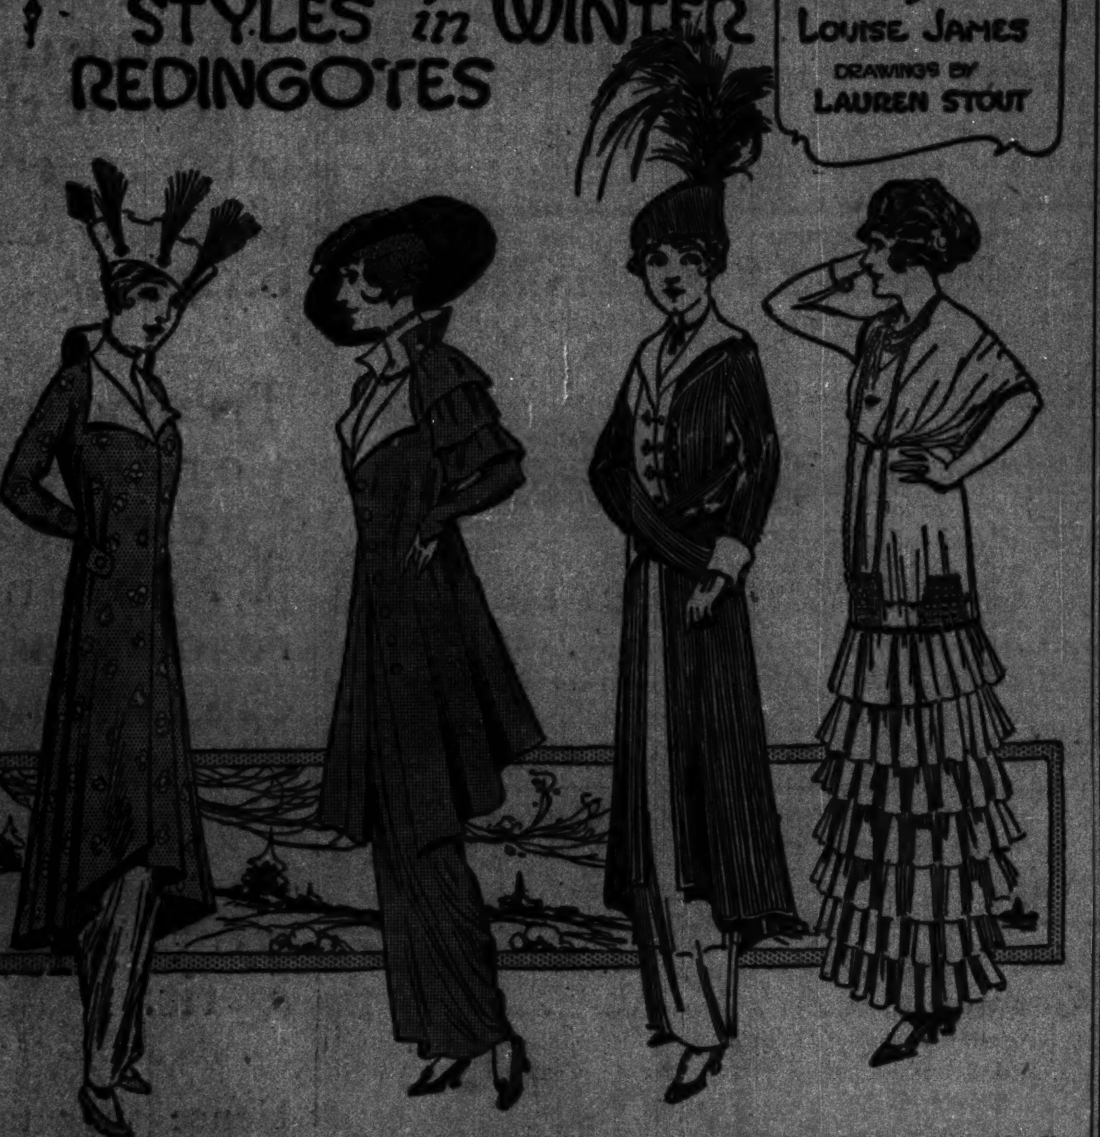
SMARTEST STYLES AT COMMON SENSE PRICES

Edited by Louise James and Carolyn Wilson

VARIED SHAPES and STYLES in WINTER REDINGOTES

By LOUISE JAMES

DRAWINGS BY LAUREN STOUT



Redingote with narrow but kimonolike sleeves, waist line curved to figure, and then abrupt flare extending in width at hem of four and one-half yards.

Afternoon frock with yoke skirt and ruffles. Blouse effects in three tiered cape coat. Buttons of jet and wide width displayed at bottom.

One of the new straight line coats with cross over effect in the front. Broadcloth vest in the front.

Afternoon frock with yoke skirt and ruffles. Blouse is perfectly simple, with no suggestion of the basque.

FROM all signs of the times it appears that the more fashionable the suit the longer the coat. There is no escaping this fact, though really the average woman should not want to escape it, for the long coat is decidedly becoming to most women, which perhaps accounts for its quick and certain rise to popularity. Nor is there any stinting in the variety of the styles offered the public in these same long coats. Every effort has been made by the designers to attract and please, and out of the wide difference in shapes and fashions the redingote and the godet coat have emerged victorious, rivaling each other for public preference.

One sees the redingote in different varieties as the season advances. Sometimes the lower part of it is attached to the body part by frock coat seams, and again the coat is cut strictly in one piece, but on redingote lines. When this is done the fullness given by the flare is cut into the coat below the belt line. The one factor that all redingotes have in common, however, is the flare from the waist down. Sometimes this flare amounts to ripples or again it may be scarcely perceptible according to individual preference. Some of the coats are six yards wide about the hem. When this coat is combined with a skirt which is four and five yards about the hem the figure is endowed with considerable fullness.

It is necessary when these redingotes reach almost to the bottom of the skirt that the material should be comparatively light. Accordingly, the soft, satiny cloth fabrics may be used to good advantage and in any of the new shades, such as the sphinx gray which is on the gunmetal tone, the raisin, and Japanese blue, and the dark brown, which is deeper even than the tete de negre we all know. If the coat has revers they could be developed in velvet to match, or of a lighter shade. Many of the coats are showing a return to collars and revers, though the snug little round collar that clings close to the neck is newer and much more practical for the cold winter weather.

Braiding is again in our midst, and popular, too. Black silk braid of almost every conceivable width is worn. Sometimes the apparent length of an extremely long redingote may be shortened by a deep belt in soutache of the same shade as the cloth. Then, too, the skirt may be trimmed below the knees with a braid the same as that on the coat, but narrower.

I think that one of the most attractive braids put on the market this season is that of a soft silk which comes in sash width. This is a most simple and at the same time ornamental accessory and may be used on the coat in sash fashion, coming from a back panel of the redingote caught together in the front and finished with long tassels. This same braid is conveniently soft and may be made to stretch far beyond its apparent width.

Mentioning tassels, they have come in, too, for their share in the trimming vogue. Not only are they used for sash ends but also can be added to pointed collars, to bolero jacket effects, both front and back, and even on the irregular ends of some of the newest tunics.

I might say something here about the new tailored waists which are more or less of a reversion to the type of shirt which was generally worn before frills and furbelows became the rage. They are high in the neck and have long sleeves with a narrow cuff fitting closely about the wrist. Then, too, with the snugly set in sleeve we see the dainty little shoulder yoke, which further accentuates the demure effect. If desired the raglan sleeve may be worn with this same severely tailored style, and I have even seen them with the much worn kimono shoulder line. This last, however, is not strictly modish.

Some of the newest blouses have the new neck line, which is square cut, and then again some others have the neck line which is oblong—that is, falling wide at the shoulder line and coming up rather close to the neck in the front and the back. This line, however, is trying to any woman except the type who has a plump neck.

In the illustrations I have had sketched three of the newest style coats. On the one at the extreme left the kimono sleeve is shown, but the close shoulder effect gives it the appearance of a set-in sleeve. In the second illustration the three tiered cape effect adds a touch which, while it is not novel, is at the same time different and not so much worn as to be tired of. Huge jet buttons down the front testify to the vogue of jet.

The crossover effect on the third figure is the same note seen so often in the new blouses. There is a girlishness about it that to a slight extent detracts from the maturity of a figure.

This cross-over effect which has developed into the surplice gown is threatening to drive the basque frock from the field. Already the basque dresses are sharing their laurels with the surplice ones, and there is no gainsaying the fact that the latter are infinitely more becoming to all women excepting those endowed with an unusually perfect figure.

If you would like to get a mental picture of the new silhouette in its embryo state, it is something as follows: It might be called bell-like, flaring from the tip of the shoulder quite to the ankle. Generally the skirt is short, from four to eight inches from the ground, and must of course be full. This fullness may be achieved in several ways. It may be shirred or it may be circular or it may be plaited. The waist has lost its bagginess. If one wishes it may be cut to fit the figure closely. The sleeve is no longer loose and baggy. It may, however, be raglan, but should cling close to the arm in long, tight lines. And—sad news, but news that seems more or less authentic—the high, tight collar has already been glimpsed and is steadily approaching.

He Didn't Call Again.

A few years ago while working for a west side hospital I was greatly troubled by a policeman, who would come into the engine room every night, remove his shoes, and go to sleep. One night when he awoke and started to put on his shoes he found they were fastened to the floor with four two inch screws. Needless to say he now sleeps at home. W. H. M.

She Introduced Them.

Before I was married I spent one summer in a small village. One of the girls—Miss N. had been engaged to a Mr. G., who lived in a neighboring town, but they had quarreled bitterly over some trifle and were not even on speaking terms.

I did not know anything about this, and one evening, at a dance, I met this Mr. G., who engaged the next two-step with me. One of the girls, overhearing, remarked as Mr. G. walked away, "Miss N. is just wild to meet Mr. G. If you get a chance, be sure to introduce them." Then she managed to let the rest of the girls know of her prank, so they could watch developments.

Bearing her instructions in mind, as soon as our two-step was over I watched my opportunity, and as we were making our way toward our seats I managed to lead the way past Miss N. I stopped and introduced them, then gazed in astonishment at them.

Miss N. was glaring at me angrily, thinking I had done this maliciously. Mr. G. looked painfully hurt and embarrassed. Suddenly a gleam of humor came into their eyes and they burst out laughing.

The girls, who were watching interestedly, were surprised to see the estranged couple dance the next waltz. This led to a reconciliation, and that fall I was maid of honor at a pretty village wedding. A. W.

Didn't Know His Address.

I formerly worked for a man who was very particular about the addresses on the envelopes before they went out. He used to look them all over carefully, and never forget to caution me about getting them right.

One day a letter came back with the word "deceased" written after the party's name, and I thought of a way to fool my employer. I hunted him up, and with a very penitent face told him I had sent one of his personal letters to the wrong place.

I won't repeat the lecture I got. After he got through lecturing me on my carelessness he added, "Now send the letter to the right place." I said very meekly, "I can't, the man is dead." M. D.

Have You Ever Seen a Burglar?

You probably have had a thrilling or a humorous encounter with a real or imagined burglar. Probably you can remember that time when you awoke to feel the "cold steel of the revolver" pressing against your neck or the time you almost ended the career of Sister Susan, the somnambulist, by a blow of an Indian club which luckily hit the chandelier instead. For every letter either exciting or funny that is published "The Tribune" will pay $1. Address Editor of the Burglar Contest, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Hoops Frightened Him.

When I was a girl I wore hoops, the ing ones being in the height of style. occupied the front bedroom upstairs. e time during the small hours I was akened by strange, muffled sounds. On opening my eyes, imagine my consternation on seeing a man entangled in my hoopskirt, which I had left on a chair near the window. He had climbed the porch, evidently.

After considerable floundering, he succeeded in extricating himself and immediately left by way of the window. As for me, I was too frightened to make a sound, much less give the alarm. A. E. G.

Lost Her Ring.

Perhaps I have never seen a burglar, but surely thought I did. One night while returning from a visit to my uncl my way led through a narrow street.

I was hurrying along, as it was getting quite dark, when I saw a man coming along the street toward me. I was badly frightened, because I had just received a darling little pearl ring from father and mother, which I prized highly, as it was my first "grown up" ring. Thinking only of my ring, I drew it off my finger quickly and slipped it into my glove.

I passed the man safely, and upon reaching the main street discovered I had lost my ring. S. A. W.

And the Thief Ran Away.

On being awakened one night by the sound of a burglar in the adjoining room, my first thought was to reach the telephone and call for help. Going noiselessly to the landing on the stairs I announced our danger to a kindly old gentleman across the street just before the intruder had time to dash past me.

By that time the shrieks of my sisters had aroused the neighbors, and soon the sound of a terrible struggle below told us that the burglar was being grappled with. Hastily donning kimonos we crept timidly down to the dark kitchen from whence issued the sound of blows and groans.

I switched on the electric light and disclosed two of our good neighbors on the floor, bruised and bloody, locked in a deadly grip, each firm in the conviction that he had the thief, who by that time had calmly escaped with all our jewels. C. A. H.

They Fell Downstairs.

While visiting my aunt in Indiana we were awakened by a burglar in our room. She saw he had taken her jewel case, which held all her jewels, and she gave a scream. He started down the stairs and she after him.

About five steps from the bottom was a small landing. He fell and she fell over him down the rest of the stairs to the floor.

I stood at the top with my mouth wide open, unable to utter a sound. We both were nervous, and my aunt lost her jewels. M. M.

Mandel Brothers forward another step —with the beginning of the new month, with new stocks, new incentives and a new outlook, this store rises to still higher importance in its representation of "business blessings" widely appreciated, now that the war reawakens America to receive Opportunity.

Crepe meteor and crepe de chine for 1.55

—the brilliant all-silk crepe meteor and the soft lustrous all-silk crepe de chine—complete assortments—black, white, ivory and a broad range of street and evening shades. Both fabrics 40 inches wide, and, at 1.55, both are values that cast an attractive light upon what is perhaps the most extensive and most magnificent silk collection in this country. Second floor—at Mandel's—"the store famous for silks."

Double width, all-silk crepe de chine at 1.35—black, white and a broad range of street and evening shades; exceptional value.

Chiffon voiles, special, 75c

—imported, all-silk voiles, 40 inches wide and in black, white and street and evening shades. No voiles like these anywhere else in America at 75c.

Yard-wide dress satins, 98c

—rich, lustrous all-silk messaline satins, in black, white, ivory, cream and over fifty fashionable shades suitable for street or evening wear.

The new 40-inch colored silk nets, 98c yd.

These charming novelties are of fine quality, in all the wanted shades, and 42 inches wide. Such nets are very much in demand at present for entire dresses, for waists, etc. First floor.

The new cotton nets, 72 inches wide, in two great lots, at 50c and 75c yard—they're special quality and much in the favor of fashion's devotees; white, cream, ecru and flesh tints in our collection.

Sample pieces of net laces at half price—several very remarkable lots at 25c to 1.95 per yard—lengths 2½ to 6 yards, and all widths; white and ecru.

Silk lace allovers, 98c

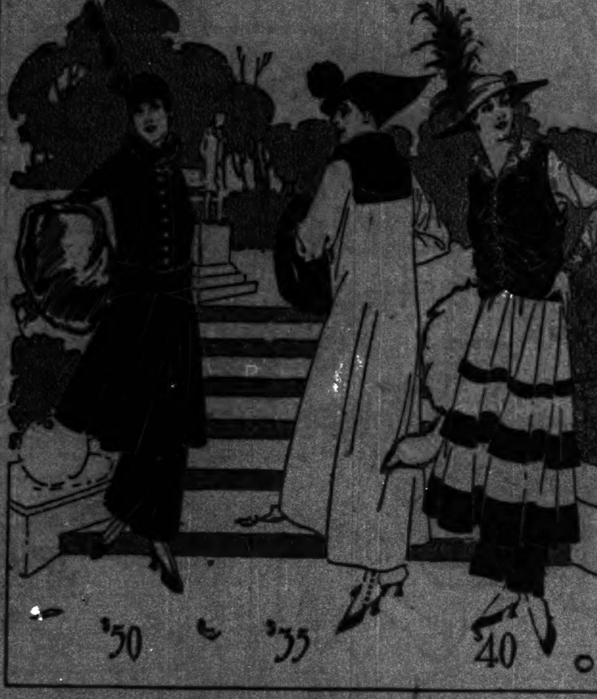
—many new patterns, in the 36-inch width; black, white and ecru; very popular for waists, and these should be especially so at 98c, which is about half the usual price.

40-inch chiffon cloth, 75c

—a very special quality at this low price; and this chiffon cloth may be had in every wanted color, as well as black and white.

Full coterie of new fashions here

To many the outbreak of the European war seemed to mean inevitable curtailment of the range and interest of fall fashions in America. But—fortunately—here, at least, this seeming has not become reality. We have told how our Paris organization sent us foreign models even after the declaration of war. The rest is explained by our rare facilities for reproduction and adaptation.



Velveteen suits, fur trimmed, $50

—three models at this price, one illustrated. They're in black, navy, brown and green.

Broadcloth suits, $30

—a new redingote model, with a velvet vestee and fur-trimmed collar and cuffs. Black, navy and brown. Fourth floor.

Afternoon frocks, $40

—as illustrated—of georgette crepe and chiffon velvet, most tastefully combined.

Tailored dresses, $25

—adaptations of the "Vionnet" model: all-serge, or serge-and-broadcloth.

Semi-dress coats, $35

—many styles at this price. The one shown made of wool plush, with deep cape collar of near-seal. Interlined & lined throughout with peau de cygne.

Street coats, $25

—decidedly dressy, but none the less practical. Exceptional values in coats of wool-plush, vicunas, diagonals and broadcloths, at $25.

October sale boxed hose

Nearly 22,000 pairs of hose sold since the October sale began last Thursday morning.

Women's silk hose, 3 pairs for $3

—plain black pure thread silk hose, all-silk, or with lisle tops; double soles, heels and toes.

Women's thread silk hose, 3 pairs for $4

—extra heavy and plain black, with double soles, heels and toes; all-silk, or with lisle tops.

Women's silk lisle hose, 6 prs. for $2

These with double soles, heels and toes, and wide garter tops.

Silk lisle or cotton hose, 6 pairs, 1.85

—plain black hose, with double soles, heels & toes; wide garter tops.

FIRST FLOOR.

Soon the frosts, and then—furs

Even if we did not feel the "change in the air," even if we did not see the "gold in the falling leaves," still might we know that winter is near for our fur salon is a busy place these days. Some women, of course, are buying now for the reason that the style wanted cannot be expected to await late selection—a very good reason, too, since Mandel fur styles have so many admirers. Fifth floor.

Russian pony coats, 40 inches long, 24.75

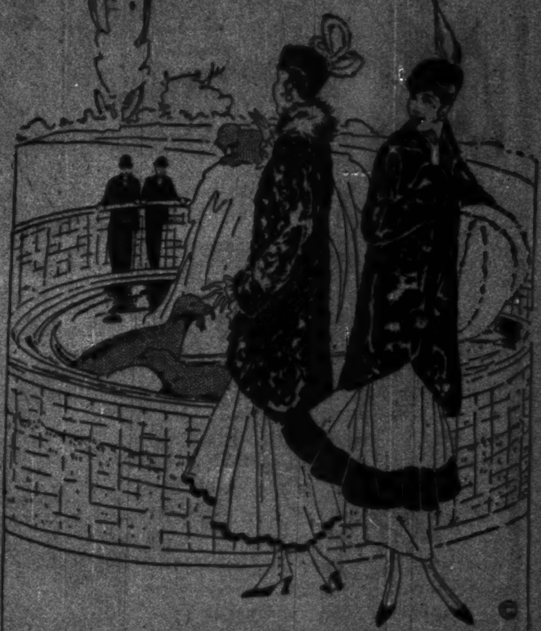
—these are made of soft skins that are very prettily marked. The coats are lined with plain satin; their style is perfect, their value most certainly is unique.

40-in. caracul coats, $40

—these with combination collar of black or fitch opossum; choice of fancy brocaded linings; the model illustrated at the left.

40-in. near-seal coat, $45

—a new style, with combination collar of black opossum; plain, soft silk linings. This coat quite capable of interpreting special buying advantages that are here as nowhere else in Chicago.

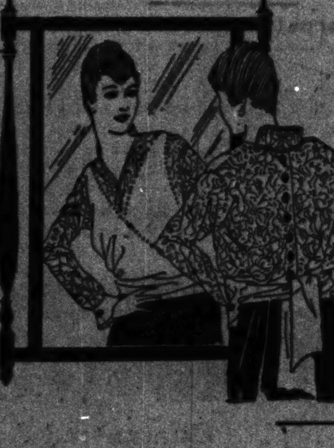


Hudson seal coat, fine quality, 40 inches long, $100

—elegant in fashion, true to the highest expectations in the matter of quality. These coats have the new style flare skirt, and long sleeves with cuffs. Choice of fancy linings. Illustrated on right.

A new surplice blouse for 5.50

It is made of silk shadow lace and satin in combination; all-white or black-over-white.



Georgette crepe blouses, 8.75

—a new over-blouse model, of white crepe and trimmed with colored chiffon. Third floor.

Costume blouses of crepe de chine, lace and satin; basque and basquette effects, in black, white or colors; at 3.95.

French armure-poplins and granite fabrics, 1.50

These fabrics among the fancy dress goods that give superb character to smart style. They are in black and beautiful fall shades, and all are 54 inches wide.

Use them for dresses, separate skirts, or entire suits—they're ne plus ultra in either case.

Wool-and-silk canton crepes, 1.98

Canton crepes are particularly desirable for fancy gowns and dresses, because they are so light in weight and so "clingy." Black and an excellent range of colors, including olive, Russian green, wistaria, cadet, medium and dark navy, wine, seal brown, golden, plum, etc. Second floor.

1-clasp pique gloves, 1.25

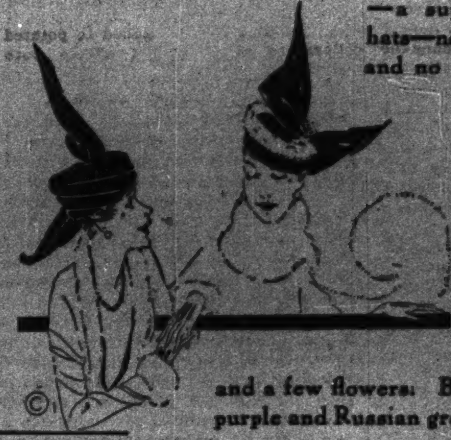
They are in white, black, tan and gray—and with backs silk embroidered in contrasting shades.

Imported lamb-skin gloves, 1.15

—glace finish; Paris point or 3-cord backs; all desirable street shades and white and black. First floor.

Gotham maker's sample hats

—a superb assortment of pattern hats—no hats like them in Chicago, and no two in the lot exactly same style—nor have you seen such values



—all at $18

—125 in the collection—chic sailors, tricorne hats; demure turbans and toques. Finest of materials and trimmings; light weight velvets, ostrich jets, furs and a few flowers: Black, dark blue, dark brown, purple and Russian green. Fifth floor.

Furniture, indeed, a "friendly" bridal gift

—shows that the giver has the thoughtfulness of a true friend. Pleasant to select here—such splendid fireside chairs, sewing tables, piano benches, ferneries, tea tables, bookracks, etc.

Martha Washington sewing tables of solid mahogany, 12.75

A large compartment at either end; the top drawer with sliding drawer for pins, needles, etc.; the second drawer with metal racks for spools. See the illustration. Seventh floor.

Colonial sewing table for $15

—a solid mahogany table, style pictured. The top 16x33 inch size when open. Two convenient drawers in this table.

Union suits of silk lisle, 1.10

—medium weight swiss ribbed suits in low neck, sleeveless model, and ankle length; sizes 34 to 40. A saving of about 35% on this lot.

Hand crochet vests, 35c

—lisle thread body—crochet openwork over the bust; dainty style and notable value.

THIRD FLOOR.

Thousand specials in American cut glass

Many weddings this month, and Christmas is not so far away—there are rare possibilities to get beautiful presents at small prices, in this sale, which includes several prominent glass cutters' surplus output.

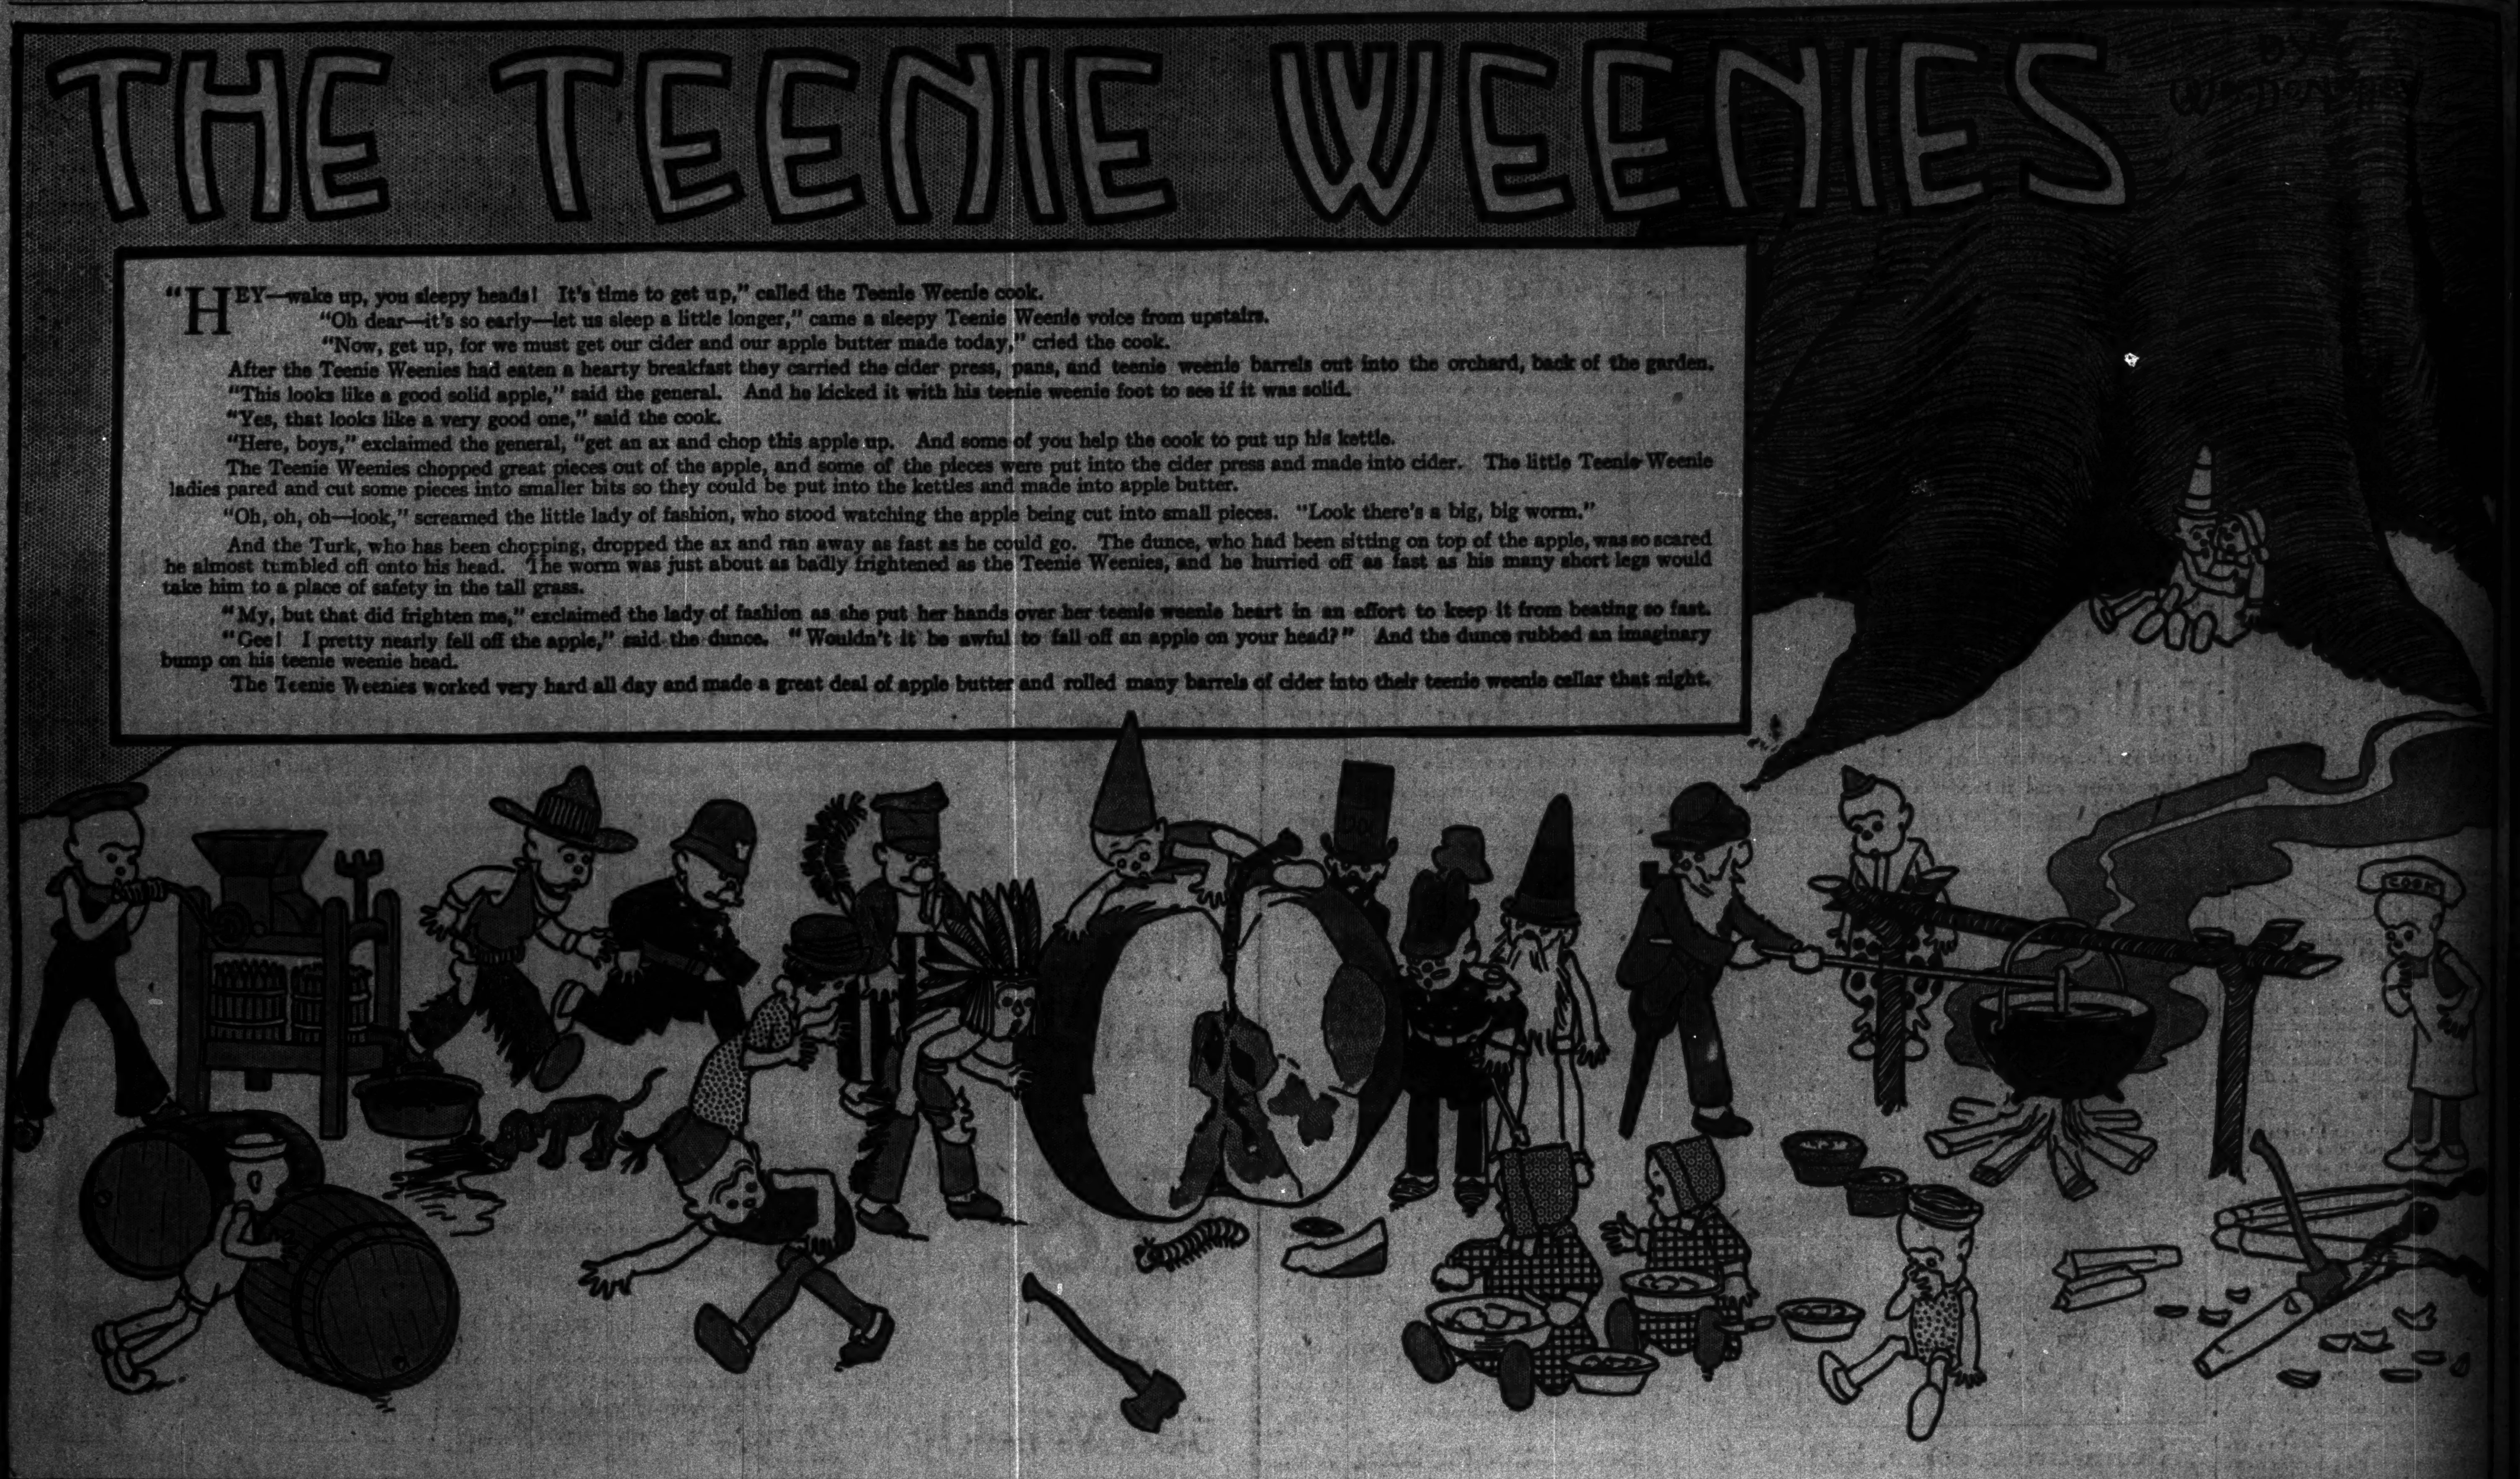
THE TEENIE WEENIES

By Wm. Donahey



"HEY—wake up, you sleepy heads! It's time to get up," called the Teenie Weenie cook.

"Oh dear—it's so early—let us sleep a little longer," came a sleepy Teenie Weenie voice from upstairs.

"Now, get up, for we must get our cider and our apple butter made today," cried the cook.

After the Teenie Weenies had eaten a hearty breakfast they carried the cider press, pans, and teenie weenie barrels out into the orchard, back of the garden.

"This looks like a good solid apple," said the general. And he kicked it with his teenie weenie foot to see if it was solid.

"Yes, that looks like a very good one," said the cook.

"Here, boys," exclaimed the general, "get an ax and chop this apple up. And some of you help the cook to put up his kettle.

The Teenie Weenies chopped great pieces out of the apple, and some of the pieces were put into the cider press and made into cider. The little Teenie Weenie ladies pared and cut some pieces into smaller bits so they could be put into the kettles and made into apple butter.

"Oh, oh, oh—look," screamed the little lady of fashion, who stood watching the apple being cut into small pieces. "Look there's a big, big worm."

And the Turk, who has been chopping, dropped the ax and ran away as fast as he could go. The dunce, who had been sitting on top of the apple, was so scared he almost tumbled off onto his head. The worm was just about as badly frightened as the Teenie Weenies, and he hurried off as fast as his many short legs would take him to a place of safety in the tall grass.

"My, but that did frighten me," exclaimed the lady of fashion as she put her hands over her teenie weenie heart in an effort to keep it from beating so fast.

"Gee! I pretty nearly fell off the apple," said the dunce. "Wouldn't it be awful to fall off an apple on your head?" And the dunce rubbed an imaginary bump on his teenie weenie head.

The Teenie Weenies worked very hard all day and made a great deal of apple butter and rolled many barrels of cider into their teenie weenie cellar that night.

Love Letters

$20 for Two Love Letters.

"The Tribune" will pay $10 for the best love letter written by a man to a woman and another $10 for the best love letter written by a woman to a man. No letter copied from a book or magazine will be considered. You may submit as many letters as you like. They may be either real or imaginary. Letters will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Deserted.

A traveler in the western mountains, caught in a storm, pushed open the door of a shack and on a cot found the partly decomposed body of a child clasped in the arms of its dead mother. On a table lay this letter, submitted by C. T. Frederick, 2940 Gladys avenue:

"Dearly beloved: I would that God, in His mercy, may never call upon you, or any human, to endure the privation that I have endured during the past winter. 'Truth is even stranger than fiction,' so strange, indeed, that never did I dream that the thought of you, and you alone, could bolster up that feeling of discouragement and dejection that I have been heir to each day that came and seemed without end.

"Dear heart, each night it has been my prayer to God almighty to spare you through your entire life from the misery that I have been called upon to endure during any single day of the past winter. Each day that has passed failed not to bring its sting with suffering; suffering which could only be endured because of the surmounting knowledge—I love you.

"I love you, sweetheart, love you with a love that only woman can know. Day after day my heart keeps telling me, lest because of the hardships I forget. Night after night I have awakened in the midst of the most pleasant dreams shouting, 'I love you! I love you!' But why do you not come to me? Can't you hear me calling you? O why do you not come?

"Each night I find whatever pleasure I now have in recalling it all again. Listen, sweetheart, I see it all again; see you as I first saw you; see it all again. How I looked to you, as a tree beside the mountains looks upon their massiveness for protection. I seemed so weak; you so strong—my ideal. As I loved you then I love you now. I can see it all again from the night when we were all alone, how we sat upon the sand and watched the waves by the twinkling light of the stars. It seemed as though heaven herself had bowed down to crown me with a wreath of happiness when I felt your arm around my waist; your breath upon my forehead, and I heard you whisper, 'I love you.' Happiness without end.

"The future you pictured; our future. I could see it all as you drew the picture with words—words that could flow only from lips as yours. You and I together. What could interfere? What in all the world could compare with our love? The kisses—you kissed me once; you kissed me again and again. How could I resist the kisses that burned upon my lips when locked in your strong arms? Never did I think the world could hold so much happiness within its bosom for such a one as I, when, for the first time, while the waves made music on the sand, I drank from the cup that you said held the only true happiness.

"Why are you not here now, so that we may live it over again? I would gladly endure many such winters as the one just past, knowing we could live again in that love. For would it not be as easy to cast all cares aside as it was then? Then—that night, when a strange feeling crept over me and I cried myself to sleep. I hastened to tell you of it; your smile as I was telling you, seemed to light up my whole being; your words to reassure and strengthen me; your kisses to transport me to worlds beyond, where all was happiness. I lived only in my love for you. The memory is all I have.

"Why did you make me go away to remain here alone? Why would your father have objected if he knew we loved? I only received one letter from you in all this long time, and I wrote to you so often. You said my mother died of a broken heart. Why could she have grieved when I was so happy? And I did not know she was dead. You say you are going away somewhere to make your mark in the world, and then come to me. I can hardly wait till you come.

"You say I should not write again till I hear from you, for you may not get my letters, and you do not know just where you are going. Why do you need to 'make your mark'? Come to me, sweetheart, for I want you; I need you. Let us live in love. Can't we be as happy as we were—then?

"I did not want to tell you how hard it was for me here, but baby cries so much, and it wrings my heart to hear him cry. It is so cold and I feel so weak. I am hardly strong enough to hunt wood. I cut some branches and stored them, but they burn so fast. I have only a few left. Baby looks just like you, and I want to call him Billie, as I called you. And to think that you have never seen him. Won't you be happy to see him when you come? He cries so much.

"I shall go to town tomorrow to get the letter I expect from you, but I must walk, for the horse died yesterday. It seemed so weak and had no feed for it. I'll take Billie with me tomorrow. I have not eaten for two days, for it was too cold to go for supplies, and I have no money. Maybe I can find a place to work in town and then we can stay there, for it is so lonesome here.

"When I get your letter I'll know where to send this; till then good-by, sweetheart. With love and kisses and prayers for your coming. May God bless you. Please hurry and come for I want you and Billie wants you. Forever your V."

Her First One.

J. W. Anderson, 1511 West Monroe street, sends this week's best love letter from a man to a woman, the woman in this case being 5 days old—and probably willing to admit it:

"My Darling Little Girl: I believe this is the first really truly love letter you ever received, but from what your grandma writes me concerning your charm of disposition and looks, it won't be the last, and I fear that some of the ones to come won't be written by your daddy. You will be able to read the future ones all by yourself, but, since you will be only 5 days old when you get this, you had better get mamma or grandma to help you with the hard words, but don't show them the whole letter, because when a fellow writes a love letter he is quite apt to say things that sound sort of foolish to a third party; for instance, I wouldn't like to tell everybody that since I got a telegram on Saturday night my chest has been projecting so far that there is only one lone button left on my coat.

"This daddy feeling is of two parts; one part is that I want to go out and cry the news about you from the housetops—in fact, I did start out to tell some one, and the only person I could find at that time of night was Mike, the cop. I told him about you. He listened all through to the very end of my somewhat incoherent oration, and then—'G'wan, what are ye so excited about? I've got sivin!' Mike has about as much sentiment about him as your Uncle Bill's old Jersey. I didn't want to hurt his feelings by explaining that, although he might have 'sivinty,' they were not my Martha Catherine.

"That will give you an idea of one part of this 'daddy feeling'; the other part is sort of solemn like. Whenever I think that I must see that you grow into a fat, rollicking baby, then into a red ribboned, pig tailed little schoolgirl, then into a put up your hair miss, then into a clean, wholesome, God fearing young lady, and then—ah! well—I'll be getting old then, and maybe I will have done my part. We mustn't be so solemn about it.

"I suppose you think this isn't very much of a love letter, but I am hoping that you won't be overcritical of your first one, and you must remember that it is pretty hard for a fellow to tell a girl how beautiful and good she is when he has never seen her, nor a picture of her, and the information about her goodness, coming at a very critical period of her life, cannot be relied on, anyway. I can say that daddy loves his little girl, and if I said it in a thousand different ways it would mean the same thing.

"Lovingly, DADDY."

The Queerest Man I Ever Worked For.

Many business girls have had queer employers at some time or other during their business careers and some of these men have the most unexpected eccentricities. Those of us who have been in business life for many years probably know a number of such queer characters. "The Sunday Tribune" will pay $1 for each letter published on the subject of "The Queerest Man I Ever Worked For." Address letters to Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

A Mania for Dimes.

The queerest man I ever worked for was one who had a mania for saving dimes. Every dime he could get hold of he would put in a big leather bag and carry it around everywhere he went. Many times he would change a five dollar bill and get dimes for it. He was not stingy or miserly in any way. Often we had to wait for two or three days for our pay, he having turned all his paper money into dimes. He always asked us if we had a dime for two nickels and when he would pay his check in a restaurant he would look in the cash register. If he saw dimes he would say, "Gee, those dimes look nice." I heard he had many thousand dollars in dimes put away in a vault. He was a good man to work for, honest and a shrewd business man. MRS. J. T.

Playful Old Boy.

One near sighted employer for whom I and five other girls once worked had a peculiar inclination for lightly pinching us on the arm or cheek whenever he came near us. We considered it a sort of old man's playfulness because his demeanor, otherwise, was always above reproach. Still his actions were not pleasant and, in fact, became boresome after a time. Finally, after numerous consultations, we decided to teach him a lesson.

One morning we came to work with as many pins secreted about our arms and shoulders as possible. During that morning his hands were scratched four times. At first he believed it was accidental, but before noon he began wearing a sheepish grin that made us all smile.

His annoyances discontinued, and since that day I never have heard a complaint about him. M. F. C.

Doris Blake Says

"October's Birthstone Is the Opal, Hops Her Flower."

Articles by Doris Blake and her replies to letters appear every day in The Daily Tribune.

If you were born between Sept. 23 and Oct. 23 you come under the sign of Libra. The great characteristic of people born between these dates is their remarkable foresight, according to Butler in his "Solar Biology." "They are very positive and decisive in everything they do. They are not prone to reason except from the standpoint of intuition and observation. It is advisable that they carry out their first decisions in all matters they undertake, unless they are acting for or under the control of another."

Libra people are susceptible to the psychological influence of other minds, who act mainly upon their principle of intelligence. They thus take on the mental conditions and nature of others and feel and act like them. Many of this class are found among the spiritualists because of their great susceptibility to psychic control and their natural spiritual intuitions.

So long as Libra people follow their own intuitions they will rarely be deceived or cheated.

There is a greater variety of dispositions among Libra people than those of any other sign, but their usual bearing is modest and retiring. They have great imitativeness. They are originators and inventors in mechanical matters, but imitators in other departments of life. It is seldom that any great height is attained by those of this sign except in the educational sphere. They have fine sensibilities and are just and honest in their dealings. They have in their innermost selves a fine ideal world of love, order, harmony, and equity. If they do not find this in the outer world they are inclined to fits of melancholy.

They are affectionate and demonstrative in their love, active, industrious, and social.

The Libra girl should marry a man born under the sign Gemini (May 20 to June 21) or under the sign Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19).

The October birthstone is the opal, which denotes hope and sharpens the sight and faith of the possessor.

Wants Him Back.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 19. Last winter I kept company with a young man of 22. He cared for me then, I know, as I have my reasons for thinking so and asked me to go out several times, which I did, but as I did not care for him and did not want to encourage him I refused to keep company with him. He asked me why, but I did not tell him. I am sorry for it now, as I think I have made a mistake. Would it be proper for me to write and tell him so, or what shall I do? "H. M."

Yes, you might write a note to the young man and tell him that you would like to have him call upon you some time. Of course you can hardly expect him to accept the invitation enthusiastically, since you [illegible] you did not especially care for his company. You will have to be a little tactful in your treatment of him.

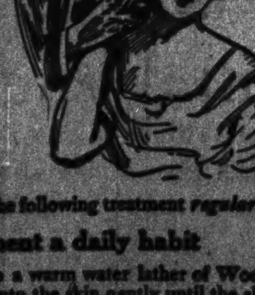
Doesn't Know His Name.

"Dear Miss Blake: A young man has been working a few doors away from where I live. As we have a confectionery store he came in quite often and so I have gotten to speaking to him. Now I do not know his name, and when speaking to him sometimes feel embarrassed. My friend would like to be introduced. Do you think it proper when meeting him on the street and while talking to ask him his name, for he has always been so friendly? X. Y. Z."

It is perfectly proper for you to recognize the young man when you see him on the street since he is a customer of your store, but it would not be proper for you to stop and talk with him nor to ask him his name. If he is not interested enough to ask your mother or some older person in the store to introduce him to you properly, he surely is not particularly eager to further the acquaintance. I should not do anything about it if I were you until he makes some move toward getting better acquainted.



A skin you love to touch

Why it is so rare

A skin you love to touch is rarely found because so few people understand the skin and its needs.

Begin now to take your skin seriously.

You can make it what you would love to have it by using the following treatment regularly.

Make this treatment a daily habit

Just before retiring, work up a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the skin gently until the skin is softened, the pores opened and the face feels fresh and clean. Rinse in cooler water, then apply cold water—the colder the better—for a full minute. Whenever possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice. Always dry the skin thoroughly.

Use this treatment persistently for ten days or two weeks and your skin will show a marked improvement. Use Woodbury's regularly thereafter, and before long your skin will take on that finer texture, that greater freshness and clearness of "a skin you love to touch."

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of a skin specialist. It costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Do this today—Now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's. Tear out the cake now. Take it to your druggist or toilet counter today. Begin tonight to get the benefits of this facial soap. For sale by dealers everywhere.

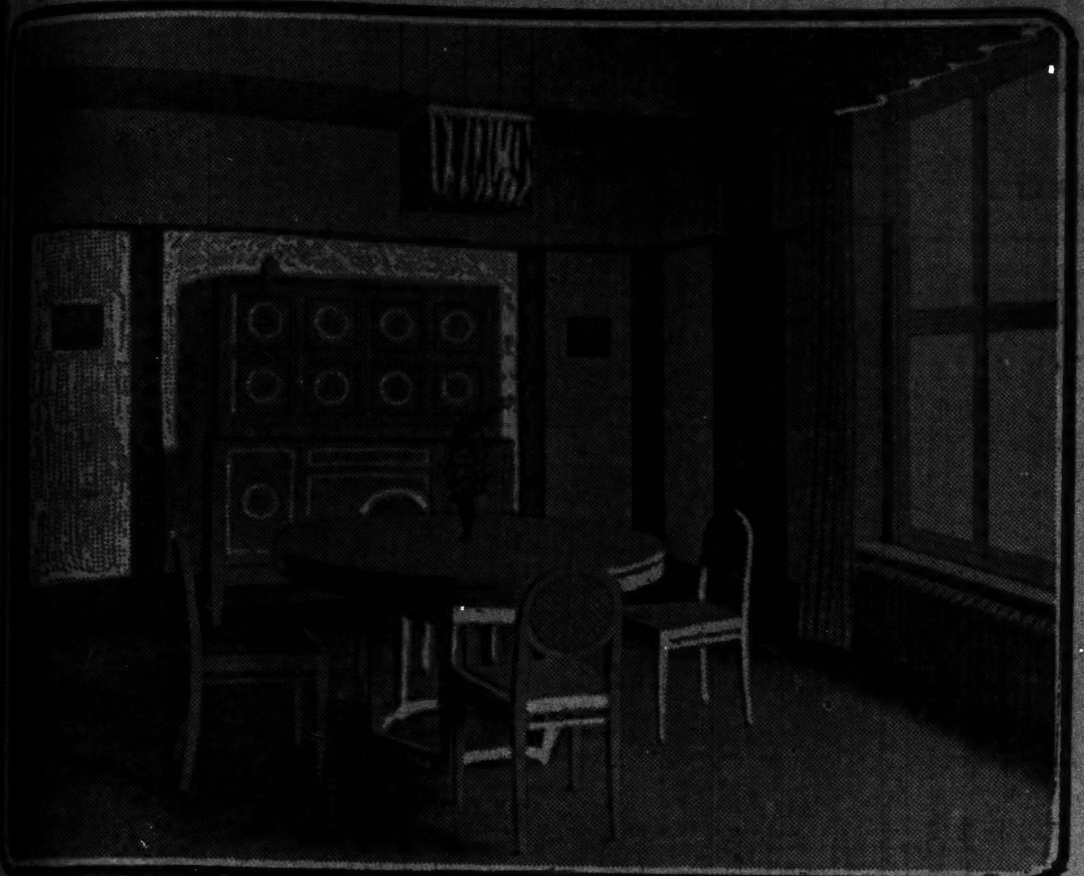
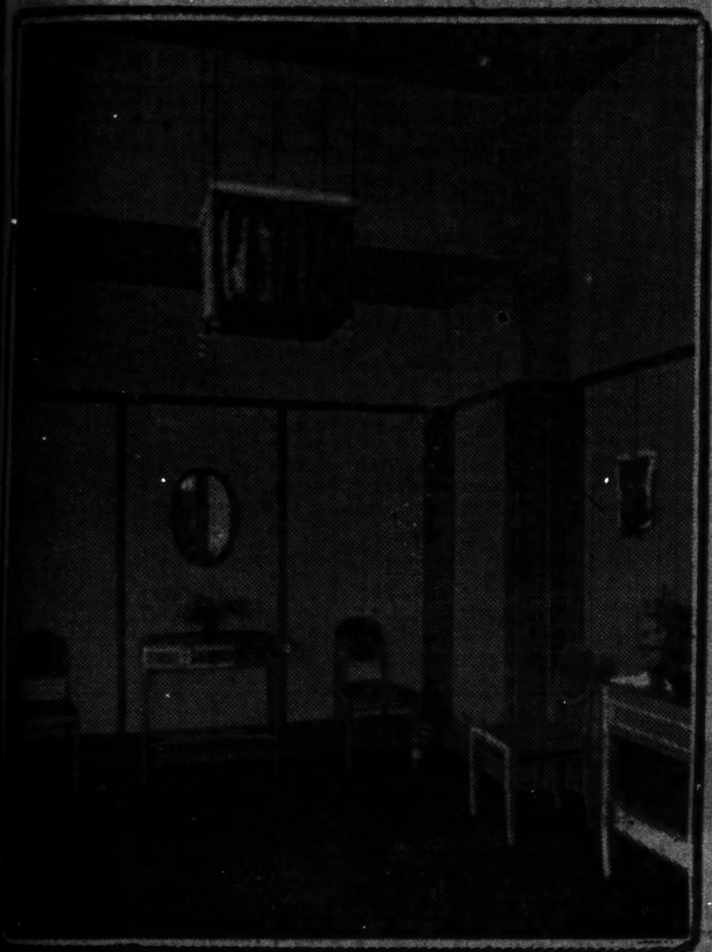
The Home Harmonious

by Anita de Campi





Two Views of a Dining Room, decorated by the celebrated German artist, Alfred Grenander.

Have you a house furnishing or home decorating problem upon which you need assistance? "The Sunday Tribune" puts at the disposal of its readers the experience and cultivated art sense of Miss de Campi, who will conduct this department. Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any of her problems pertaining to interior decoration. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

JUST at present there is a rage for painted furniture. All furniture dealers have to do with any old stock they have on hand is to paint it up, and presto! it is sold on sight.

It is not exactly a new fashion. To be certain, the first examples we have of it date from the time of the Pharaohs. That wooden furniture was painted and gilt at that time is shown in such extant fragments as the throne of Queen Hatshepsu. From an economic point of view, it is a pretty good fad, for it gives many of our old things a new lease on life. Much of the new painted furniture is high priced, but this fact incites in us a determined ambition to go home and try our luck at it. It looks so simple—chairs, tables, dressers, stands, beds, even, painted light gray, or citron, or blue, or tan, or cream, and all ornamented simply with a hair line in a deeper shade of the same color. Sometimes the thin stripe, that is first outlined in pencil and then painted, is done in a contrasting color—blue or pale gray, for instance. The rug in a room furnished with painted furniture should be self-toned and match the dark, ornamental painted stripe.

The accompanying illustrations show two views of a room decorated by an artist celebrated for his interiors, Alfred Grenander. The ceiling and cove are light gray. The side walls are painted white and divided into panels by means of a brilliantly colored, striped wall paper that is cut into strips and applied under a tiny molding. Such molding can be had from any wall paper dealer at a few cents a foot. The little floral wreaths seen in the wall paper strips have been traced off onto the furniture, on the square panels of the big sideboard, and on the front of the little serving table, and painted in color. The furniture is painted a light gray, and the chairs are upholstered in green and gray linen. The painted ornaments, consisting of small wreaths of bright colored flowers, are inclosed in larger circles of light green lines.

Squares and circles are seen again in the linen curtains and valence at the window. All of this looks as though it might be easily and inexpensively imitated by an amateur decorator. A good and readily copied feature of this room is the lighting fixture. A perfectly plain frame of gray painted wood is suspended from the ceiling by means of green silk cords, and a valence of green silk hangs from it. A home made lamp shade of this kind suggests itself as an effective mask for some of the electric light atrocities seen in the average flat buildings. Make the frame, either square or round, large enough to conceal the offending drop fixture completely.

Gay colored garlands, posies, and medallions sound alluring, but unless they are beautifully done they are apt to be messy. If, however, you wish to have further ornamentation on your painted furniture, other than the little contrasting line, the work may be accomplished without much difficulty by means of stenciling. Stencil patterns may be bought at art stores or department stores. The safest plan in using stencils is to keep to self colors.

I have lately seen a mission set "done over" by a venturesome artist. It was painted in a shade best described as oyster green. It was ornamented with little Dutch trees in multicolored pots. The whole set made the delightful furnishing of a sun parlor. The little painted trees in pots were, of course, exact replicas of real, full sized trees and pots used in the same sun parlor.

One has only to look at the many collections of handiwork done by the children in the lower grades of the public schools to realize with what facility little children can stencil. And children's furniture stenciled is as cunning as can be. Some of the newest models are adorned with conventionalized animals—roosters, rabbits, does, storks, crows, etc. Children are born decorators. Why not let them experiment on their nursery set?

Stencils are by no means to be confused with painted motifs, nor the latter with lacquer. Lacquer is by far the most valuable work. The best known artist who painted under lacquer was Vernis-Martin, the originator of that style of painting. But collectors are eagerly looking for the work of the humble followers of Vernis-Martin—many of them workmen of rare skill—who, about a century ago, took up the business of coach painting. Specimens of old fashioned carriage panels are anxiously sought for. On these panels formerly were painted all manner of subjects—ships, flowers, scenes, etc. Sleighs of the early '70s and snow chairs are greatly in demand. The painted work on them is now being utilized for cabinet work. They command good prices. So if you happen to have an old one in your barn don't throw it away.

Many artists of recognized ability are putting their best efforts into the painting of table tops. Dining room tables, I mean—big square or round surfaces. The designs vary. Some have simply corner ornaments, some are in one big garland, and some are closely covered with a complication of fruit, flowers, and foliage, with it, maybe, a few birds and butterflies and bees as well. Over this marvel of intricate work is placed a fitted sheet of glass, instead of a table cloth. A logical completion of this idea would be to have the table service all of crystal. What an idea! Fancy a piece of beefsteak uncompromisingly placed on a chrysanthemum, or on a butterfly's back, without the saving grace of opaque porcelain between. No—the plan might work for a tea, where only the daintiest of confections were served, but for a dinner table it would be outré, to say the least.

Let us hope that the modern decorator, in taking us back through the ages, clear to the throne of Queen Hatshepsu, in his avid search for something new—let us hope that he may not linger by the wayside, else we might find ourselves stalled en route at that most ridiculous of all decorative eras, the era of which we have always been so grinningly amused to hear our mothers tell—the "period" of decorated snow shovels and coal scuttles and gilded rolling pins.

Answers to Queries.

W. G. S.: Blue, gray and white would be a good color scheme for a small cottage. Let the woodwork inside and out be white. The parlor fabric paper and the bedroom blue and white stripe. The wainscoting in the kitchen may be gray and the upper wall white. Have blue repp inside curtains. I wonder if you could make three window boxes for your bay window, paint the boxes blue and cover the sides that face in with blue Dutch tiles. A mantle shelf with a double row of the same tiles above it could be easily contrived and interesting, especially with a pot of yellow flowers at one end of it—chrysanthemums or daffodils, according to the season. Blue may not sound "cozy," to use your own expression, but warmer colors in small spaces tend to diminish the apparent size of rooms.

WANDERLUST: To my thinking, mission furniture is so primitive looking that it calls for the most primitive sort of background and accessories. However, I think the wall you describe, brown with black stenciling, would be far too somber. Let the wall be clay gray instead. Use pelts and Navajo rugs for your floor. Let your inside curtains and curtain in front of the sanitary cot be of monk's cloth. The loose cushions might be of leather or of leather cloth. Bright bits of color may be supplied in ornaments of Indian pottery and Indian woven baskets. If you decide on this mode of treatment keep to the purely primitive. No frills and fussy collections of luxurious things. Let the one big combination bedroom, dining room, kitchen and living room that you describe depend for its charm on its cheerfulness of color, simplicity of arrangement and almost austere neatness.

A. M. S.: Unless you own the apartment building in which you live I should advise to make no alterations in the mantel piece. Place a small screen before the gas grate. Your selection of plain curtains shows good judgment. Let your over drapes, which should hang quite straight, be in one of the soft shades of rose that you describe in the groundwork of your rug. I am presuming that to be the same shade as the rose colored calcimine in the dining room. Some silk and linen mixtures are being shown in the department stores. These are guaranteed not to fade, and while they cost nearly as much as silk draperies they have more body and wear longer. Use old rose velvet or velveteen portieres between the rooms. Make them to hang in straight full folds—no drapery. Arrange them so that they may be easily drawn when required. I do not understand the large figured paper of which you sent a sample. Is that a border or a side wall paper? If the latter, keep your inside window draperies unfigured, as too much design is wearying to the eye. Following the straight lines and squares in the design of your inclosed sample, inside curtains would be good, in old rose silk, trimmed at the side and bottom hems with inch wide velveteen ribbon to match the velveteen portieres.

MRS. R. P.: With oriental rugs, oriental hangings would be more appropriate than rose silk. Bagdads are the least expensive. Kiskiliems are beautiful in color and design, and are fairly imperishable. Match one of the shades of camel's hair tan that you will surely find in your rugs and draperies, for the color of your walls, in all three rooms. Simple curtains are in better taste than elaborate ones. If those that you have are in good condition I can see no reason for changing them.

Have You Received a Compliment?

That made you happier than any other you ever received?

That made you laugh outright because of its absurdity?

That made you smile because of its awkwardness and backhandedness?

That made you writhe because of its homely truthfulness?

Write it out and mail it at once to Doris Blake, Chicago Sunday Tribune. The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published.

Did He Get the Order?

An agent called at our house and tried to persuade my mother to let him have a picture of mine to enlarge. "The young lady will make a magnificent crayon," he said. "She has such light hair and dark eyebrows and eyelashes, and a nice sinister expression." G. A.

Evenings Getting Longer.

A friend called one Sunday afternoon to take me out auto riding. We got back about 6 o'clock and I asked him in to supper. After supper we sat down in the parlor, and I thought we were getting along beautifully, when all at once he pulled out his watch, looked at it, and said with a sigh, "Only 8:25 o'clock. My, how long the evenings are getting." E. H.

Looking Into the Future.

On the last day of school I gave the children a little treat and one little first grade boy who had won a big spot in my heart was holding his sack of candy in his chubby hand when he came up to say "Good-by." His eyes filled with tears when I laid my hand on his shoulder and he said: "Good-by, Miss E——. I don't want to go home, 'cause next year we'll get a teacher that ain't no co-u-nt. Boo-hoo." E. G. B.

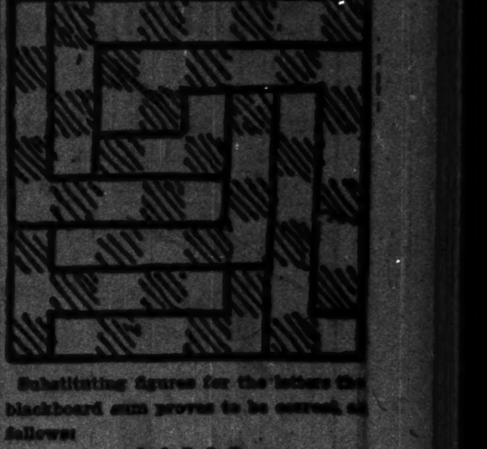
Could It Have Been One?

My husband and I were calling at a neighbor's house. The men were chatting together and the neighbor's wife and I having a little visit. Finally she said to me: "How pretty your husband's hair is; it lays just like a toupee." B. W.

Answers to Darktown Kindergarten' Puzzles.



Substituting figures for the letters the blackboard sum proves to be correct, as follows:

The Darktown students patched the checkerboard as follows:

A Stack of Hot Waffles

Hot waffles on these good Fall days—so daintily browned that your mouth waters the minute you see them—so crisp and tender that you can't wait till you crunch your teeth in them, and with their tempting hollows floating with butter and syrup—food like that makes breakfast an event instead of merely a morning routine.

Waffles like that depend very largely on the flour you use. You can't get the fineness of flavor, the lightness, the goodness, without perfect flour, without flour as good as you want your waffles to be.

Life is too short to work hard to get a good breakfast and then be disappointed. Don't run any risks. Get the flour that measures up to the highest flour standard in the world—the PILLSBURY STANDARD—and your waffles will be irresistible.

Get Pillsbury's Best

RECIPE FOR WAFFLES

2 cups Pillsbury's Best. 1 tablespoonful melted butter.
1½ cups milk. 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder.
1 tablespoonful sugar. ½ teaspoonful salt. Honey. 2 eggs.

Sift the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar, add the milk and the well-beaten yolks of the eggs. Then add the butter and lastly the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Fry on a very hot, well-greased waffle iron and serve immediately with fresh honey, maple syrup, jelly or molasses. The above will make two dozen waffles.

PILLSBURY'S COOK BOOK, containing over 200 recipes, will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents, coin or stamps, to cover mailing cost.

Baby Week

BEGINNING tomorrow and continuing throughout the week, we shall conduct a Baby Week on our Third Floor. Not alone will babies' wear be offered at prices that mean economy to the mothers, but several interesting features have been inaugurated to help make this a gala event. It is a part and parcel of our policy to keep in close touch with the babies. Just as soon as they are able to understand, we want them to know that they have been outfitted at The Fair. To further this end, we are willing to sacrifice profits for this big occasion.

Pure White Diamonds, $65 Per Carat

First Floor

WE purchased 150 diamond rings, all set in 14 K. solid gold Tiffany mountings. These are all fine white diamonds, perfectly cut, and ranging in size from ⅛ to ⅞ carats. We have secured these rings at a concession. We will offer them at a hitherto unheard of price—specially priced for tomorrow's selling at, per carat, only $65

This price of $65 a carat means, as an example, that a ¼ diamond set in a 14 carat solid gold Tiffany mounting, will cost you 16.25

This is a great opportunity to buy pure, white diamonds and hold your purchase until the holidays. Fine diamonds will hardly be sold again this season at such reductions.

Why Not Take a Daily Walk Along That Matchless Promenade, the Lake Shore Drive?

By Mme. X.

HAVE you noticed the recent efforts of the weather hereabouts to make you forget everything else? The sunny haze of the days, the glowing sunset, the nights serenely cool have all combined to quiet nerves ajar with a world seemingly full of misadventure. But apparently unmindful of it Chicago society folk—that contingent, at any rate, which has returned to town—goes bustling about its indoor business.

A daily walk on the matchless Lake Shore drive in the late afternoon reveals few of the fair pedestrians whose birthright of at least partial leisure would enable them to enjoy a before dinner stroll there. In any older, more established city that lakeside promenade would be full of smartly dressed people, men and women, sauntering or walking briskly, chatting, glancing at each other, or watching the sunset's effects at the end of lamplit streets, or reflected on the eastern sky and the stretches of water. Each year this column exhorts those who are able to do so to help make the drive an interesting, fashionable rendezvous and so add to the big city atmosphere of Chicago.

Two or three years ago, Mrs. Harold McCormick made a spring time effort in this direction by organizing a coterie to gather twice a week for music and tea in the refectory in Lincoln park with a walk there and back as part of the ceremony. But this was only partly successful, as most of those who went to the teas rode there in motors, though some of them returned on foot via the park's green lawns and the Lake Shore drive and gave a brief air of spring gayety to the picture. Don't neglect your opportunities, those of you who live near the lake's shore, north or south! They are rare and [illegible].

The Chicagoans who are still fortunate enough to be in their neighboring country homes are profiting by this delicious autumn weather and devoting themselves to outdoor sports with a greater zeal than usual.

Never has golf been more popular than now. A renewed enthusiasm for it among the women seems to have sprung up this summer at all the north shore country clubs. Tuesdays—the women's day at Onwentsia club—and Thursdays, when they play mixed foursomes, are gay and crowded occasions. The more exacting and passionate among the male golfers of Lake Forest have attached themselves to the unmolested green stretches of the Old Elm golf course, which they proclaim to be the finest in the west (whereat the Chicago Golf club at Wheaton smiles a superior smile). Exmoor, Skokie, and the Lake Shore golf courses are all as crowded as possible, while the new Indian Hill course at Winnetka has been the absorbing problem to Winnetka golfers of both sexes.

Winnetka—or a large part of it—has developed a violent case of golf fever this summer, and the Allen Haineses, Robert Stevensons Jr., Willoughby Wallings, D. M. L. Fiskes, George Higginsons, Ayres Boals, Archibald W. Shaws, and Frank Blatchfords are among those suffering acutely from the malady.

Further south, the Kenilworth, Wilmette, and Glenview courses are also populous, while to the west and south Chicago is quite girdled wtih a chain of golf clubs, all in full swing.

Did you know, by the way, that we have no golf "links"? That term is only applicable to a course laid out, as St. Andrew's in Scotland is, right on the sea, links being a Scotch term for sea shore, as witness Robert Louis Stevenson's tale yclept "The Pavilion on the Links."

So far the season's social gaieties seem pretty well confined to weddings and their accompanying festivities, but on Friday and Saturday evenings the Aldis playhouse once more opened its doors to the coterie interested in the clever and capable work of the Lake Forest Players. On these occasions two comedies were given, a translation from a little playlet of Schnitzler's by Mrs. Nitze, called "The Literary Sense," which was acted by Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Charles Atkinson, and Percy Eckhart, and a reproduction of a former success, "The Grasshopper," presented by Mrs. Ezra Warner and Prentiss Coonley.

The first play is a whimsical psychological study amusingly worked out. The second is a gay little farce depicting the effects of seasickness on an elopement. Mal de mer is a perfect cure, apparently, for a mal-adjusted love affair.

Both evenings were, as usual, delightful socially as well as artistically.

The managers of the Bachelors and Benedicts, at a meeting last Wednesday, fell in line with the general trend of today and decided to turn their annual ball—one of the gayest of the winter—into a "hard times" dance. It will be held at Lincoln hall, probably on Thanksgiving eve, and the whole effort will be to have it as simple and as merry as possible. The board also voted to turn over their surplus funds—a goodly sum—to the United Charities immediately.

This response of the younger, supposedly more frivolous element of society to the call of the hour, is a fine indication of the spirit of the times. The governors of the assemblies had already decided to make their two balls informal picnic affairs and to give their surplus to the United Charities, an act which repeats on a larger scale their gift last year to the same organization.

The removal of the Frederick Delanos to Washington for the winter not only deprives Chicago society of a prominent and popular family, but bereaves the Friday club of its new president. Mrs. Delano was elected to this high office last spring and the selection was considered a particularly happy one from the club's point of view. The members are now wondering what the correct procedure is; whether a new election should be held or whether the first vice president, Mrs. George Isham, should be expected to fulfill the duties of chief presiding officer sans the title.

It is not with entire willingness that the feminine contingent of the Delano family are separating themselves from Chicago this winter. Besides having undertaken the presidency of the Friday club—one of the principal women's organizations in Chicago—Mrs. Delano was planning to introduce her youngest daughter, Miss Laura Delano, to society. While Miss Delano can make her debut in Washington, it is pleasanter for a young girl to step over the threshold of the gay world in company with her intimates, those youths and maidens with whom she has grown up.

In going away the Delanos leave a charming, comfortable home in Wellington avenue in which they have lived for ten or fifteen years. It is a perfect type of the colonial both within and without. Generously proportioned rooms, large hall, wide and sweeping staircase, white woodwork, mahogany furniture—everything contributes to that dignified, substantial, cheerful effect which is one of our best heritages from our sturdy New England ancestry who expressed themselves and their self-respecting family lives by the solid worth and simplicity of their surroundings.

On the western confines of the Indian Hill club at Winnetka Mr. Delano has bought a tract of land where he proposes to build a house entirely for himself. He may invite his wife and daughters out to visit him, but they will be there only on the footing of guests. While a similar idea has lain dormant in many a family man, few have had the energy or initiative to carry it out. It is an experiment worth trying. It might be an agreeable as well as an enlightening experience for many a wife to be her husband's guest with no responsibilities or cares of menage. Certainly it would be enlarging to the average man's knowledge and understanding of a woman's sphere to equip and run a house.

Although it is usually one of the world's gayest capitals, Washington is not considered an especially advantageous place for debutantes. Its cosmopolitan society is adapted to the riper experience and culture of older people. The ingenue is rather lost there. Conversation is an art that still flourishes in Washington, and the men and women of the world who constitute such a large element in the gay life of the place have as a rule the savoir faire, suavity, and poise which only comes from a wide acquaintance with life in many lands.

Besides this, except for the secretaries and attaches of foreign embassies and legations and young government officials, there are few young men as partners and playmates for the debutantes. Agreeable and presentable as these youths are, from the parental point of view, they are not as desirable "partis" as young men in professional or business life. So, Washington debutantes enter the gay world under quite different auspices from those of the "buds" in other cities.

Aside from all this, Washington does not this winter promise so much socially as usual. For one thing the White House is in mourning, which makes a difference, especially in official circles. But the chief factor in the sadder social skies will be the chief factor in everything for us all—the European war. This terrible cataclysm will eliminate almost entirely the brilliant foreign element which always contributes so much to Washington's social functions.

The members of the various embassies and legations representing the nations in conflict with each other will feel disinclined either to entertain or be entertained. Indeed, it would be an awkward matter for an American hostess to pick her guests so that no representatives of the nine warring nations should meet their confreres of an unfriendly country. Truly the whole social outlook at the national capital is overcast and unpromising.

No community is so well equipped as Washington for entertaining. Their houses are built for it. Their servants are trained to it. Their markets are supplied for it. From the days of the Roosevelt administration Washington has been one of the world's gayest, most delightful capitals. The breakfasts, luncheons, receptions, dinners, musicals, and balls so crowded each other on the social calendar that not even London at the height of the season was more strenuous. Engagements were made and dates set weeks ahead. Six weeks' notice was none too long for a dinner of any size or importance. The diplomatic, governmental, and social circles were on the go morning, noon and night. Whereas in former times foreigners considered it exile to be sent to this country, of late years Washington has grown to be a post much coveted, especially among the younger diplomatists, who like to mingle gayety and work. This will all be changed now. But, then, what capital will be anything but shrouded in somber apprehension this winter? What social cheer is there to be found in any country?

The destruction by fire last week of Charles B. Pike's beautiful house at Lake Forest is a veritable calamity to that community. Not only was it a charming example of architecture but it was in its interior equipment a rare combination of good taste and sumptuousness. It had many treasures in it, collected during years of extensive traveling, which are, alas! quite irreplaceable. Old pictures, quaint carvings, exquisite "meubles," tapestries and brocades, and, above all, Mr. Pike's remarkable collection of books. He is a connoisseur in both bindings and editions, and the rare volumes that are now smoke begrimed, water soaked, or charred represent years of careful collection.

It is a curious sign of the times that both Mr. and Mrs. Pike bear this great loss with the new philosophy born of the present European calamity. It is impossible to look on the gaunt ruins of this once lovely home and not think of the pictures of Belgian and French devastation in the daily and weekly papers and, so thinking, to realize that our standard of personal grief and trouble is quite different from what it was two months ago.

One [illegible] remark was overheard during the course of the Pike fire. As a couple of men were carrying out a rare old carved oak or inlaid table one said to the other:

"This looks to be so old it seems it ain't hardly wuth saving."

WEDDINGS.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Do you realize that in Chicago a group of well known west siders have been dancing together for twenty-five years as members of one organization? Perhaps this record is equaled by no other company of friends in the state—surely not in a city where friendships and residences are as transient as in Chicago. The organization which this year in its series of dances celebrates its silver jubilee is the Neighborly club, a rather modest circle of which the public has heard but little but whose reputation is such that for its silver year as many as possible of the old members, now living in other parts of the city, have rejoined that they may take part in its parties again. The first of these dances will be given on Oct. 14 at the West End Woman's club.

The club was the outgrowth of an evening of dancing spent by a circle of close friends back in 1889. They were neighbors, and the evening was so successful that the men, then beaux of the old west side section, determined to continue the dances as an organization. More friends and acquaintances were admitted, the circle grew to more than 100 members, and in 1892, under the chosen title of the Neighborly club, it was incorporated. The first president of the club was Frank Hill and the first secretary and treasurer was Thomas Bunton. Mr. Bunton served as secretary and treasurer continuously for nineteen years. For the twentieth year of the club's existence he became the president. Then he moved to the north side, but he has rejoined the club for the present year, and in celebration of old times again is serving as secretary and treasurer. Mr. Bunton is the organizer of the club. The other officers of the silver year are Charles F. Bowey, president, who, with Mr. Bunton, has the honor of being the only member of today who was a member twenty-five years ago; Charles T. Harper, vice president; and James A. Doig, Otto A. Rohn, A. J. Langon, and W. W. Alston, directors. The business of the club is managed by this group of seven men, who, following the lines laid out by the first officers, meet but once a year to transact the business.

The club, which has run the course from lancers to tango in popular dances, has followed the popular halls of the west side in the history of the society life of this section of this city also. The first dances were held in Occidental hall, then Van Buren's hall came upon the social horizon and was the place of meeting; this was followed by Illinois hall and Fort Dearborn hall, with the West End Woman's club becoming the choice of the members five years ago.

In all the twenty-five years the same plan of entertainment has been followed. The club has given a dance on the second Wednesday of every month from October until May, the last event being a "white party" and the only informal dance in the series. A dance never has been missed in the quarter of a century. It is interesting to note also that William Kreil, who furnishes the dance music, has done so for the twenty-five years, beginning as pianist in the original orchestra—Fitzgerald's.

Today the club has within its circle the children of some of its original members, and not only do the old members come from all sides of the city, but regularly come nonresident members from Rockford, Bloomington, and other down and up state cities. In its early years the club annually gave a theater party—it holds the record for having given the largest event of the kind ever arranged in Chicago when it took the whole lower floor and part of the balcony at the old Garrick—and this feature will be revived this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hull will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Saturday evening at the residence of Dr. W. O. Nance, 5512 East End avenue.

St. Joseph's Ladies' Aid society announces the first of its winter series of card parties, to be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at 739 East Thirty-fifth street. The beneficiary is St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless. The hostesses on this occasion will be the officers and board of directors of the society, as follows:

Mesdames—
J. H. Beder,
Edward Grant,
James Kiely,
W. C. Martin,
Thomas Flaherty,
John Hughes,
J. J. Reilly,
J. J. Gleasner,
George Neybert,
J. E. Baggot,
Walter Snell,
M. Creighton,
D. J. Normoyle,
Miss L. Detiner,
Miss I. C. Gleasner.

Subsequent parties will be held on the first and third Mondays of each month.

The Girls' Friendly society of St. Simon's church, Leland and Racine avenues, will give "A Trip Around the World" on Thursday evening. The parish house will be decorated to represent all nations and the girls will wear costumes characteristic of the nation they represent. There will be dancing and refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. James Warner Middleton of 126 Maple avenue, Oak Park, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on the evening of Sept. 23. About 125 guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Middleton are old Chicago residents. Mr. Middleton's stationery store, one of the first in Chicago, stood on the present site of THE TRIBUNE office at the time of the great fire.

Mrs. H. Walsh will be hostess at a card party to be given at her home, 5253 Congress street, for the benefit of the Resurrection church.

MISS JULIE MANIERRE
MOFFETT PHOTO

Miss Julie Manierre, daughter of William R. Manierre of 1507 North Dearborn parkway, will give a dramatic interpretation of "Chitra," written by Tagore, Hindu poet and dramatist, in collaboration with Miss Dorothy Meadows, at the opening luncheon and program of the Dorothy Meadows circle, to be held in the ball room of the Hotel La Salle on Friday. Among the speakers on the program are Miss Katharine Kaelred and Brandon Tynan, in "Joseph and His Brethren"; Miss Peggy O'Neil, the leading woman in "Peg o' My Heart"; Mme. Borgny Hammer, the Scandinavian actress and interpreter of Ibsen rôles; Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association; Miss Ellen Van Volkenberg, associate director of the Chicago Little theater, and Miss Edith Adams Stewart, director of the Little theater of Milwaukee. Miss Belle Watson Melville of Oak Park, the national lyceum celebrity, will act as toastmistress. Luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock and the program will begin at 3.

Emanuel Women to Hear Miss McDowel.

Temple Emanuel Woman's auxiliary will hold a meeting and reception at the temple auditorium on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. There will be music by Arthur Oglesbee, Miss E. Reynolds, Maurice Goldblatt, and Alfred Miltenberg. Miss Mary McDowell of the University of Chicago settlement will give an address. The officers of the club will be in the receiving line. Mrs. J. Henry Steiner is president of the club.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. Dumont Clarke will spend the winter at Lake Forest in the residence of Mrs. Carke's parents, Dr. and Mrs. James G. K. McClure. Dr. and Mrs. McClure and family have returned to their town house at 2348 North Halsted street.

Mrs. Ida Morgan Palmer has given up her apartment at 3912 Lake Park avenue, and in the future will reside with her sister, Miss Anna Morgan, at Eastgate cottage, Ravinia.

Mr. and Mrs. John Paul Welling (Harriet Walker) have taken an apartment at 64 East Elm street.

Mr. and Mrs. Secor Cunningham, 999 Lake Shore drive, have returned from Hyannisport, Me., where they passed the summer. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Aldis Browne, have moved in from Lake Forest and are again at 150 East Superior street.

Sailing for Europe Like a Funeral.

By Mme. Y.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—I remember writing an account last spring of the pleasure and excitement of going down to see the big boats off for Europe. It was one of the most joyous pastimes in which to indulge then. Everybody was in a hilarity because vacation time was at hand and half of America was off to visit the fascinating Europe. Ours was the land of mad activity and Europe the reposeful continent of poise and dignity.

To see them off today is a different matter, indeed. I went over in May on the Mauretania and the steamer was like an excursion river steamer with its packed, excited crowds seeing friends off, and gathering at the dock after the gang plank was drawn in to wave and cheer and make a sort of comic opera chorus gesture in unison of giving the boat a push to send her out to sea.

This last week the same steamer put out to sea and the spirit hovering over it was as if some one had died. People well known and rich and elderly were going back to join their regiments. Sad eyed women made up the crowd who saw them off. Other women of the passenger list were going over to help in whatever way they could. No one was thinking of personal pleasure.

Among those going were Mrs. Reginald Brooks and her sister, Mrs. Paul Phipps, sisters of Mrs. Waldorf Astor, who has herself, as is known, been taking the stump in England urging men to go to the front. Now she has called for her sisters to come over and help in the work of relief. These are all the Langhorne girls of Virginia, the famously beautiful family of which Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson is one.

Mrs. Phipps, who was Miss Nora Langhorne, and one of the loveliest of the girls, expressed herself thus: "We are all very much excited. We do not know what is going to happen. You see Mr. Phipps was ordered to Canada at the beginning of the war to be aide de camp to the Duke of Connaught. He has never been in the army, but his brother, William Phipps, is flag lieutenant on board the Iron Duke of the royal navy. Naturally my mother-in-law is greatly upset. My two children have gone to England and Mr. Phipps went over from Canada a fortnight ago. My sister and I are going to see what we can do to help. We have brought a lot of sewing with us and are going to distribute things among the passengers and ask them to sew for the Red Cross on the way over. I understand that the fifty stewardesses on board are each to knit a woolen helmet for men in the navy at the request of the admirals."

Other perplexed passengers were the children of Major and Mrs. Martin Archer-Shee, with six attendants. If all goes well, they ought to be an awfully interesting family in the years to come, for they are as near of an age as could well be, and they have a charming mamma and papa. But note the title of major before their papa's name, and draw your deductions as to what this hasty trip across the Atlantic means. He has gone to join his regiment. His wife, an American girl, who was Miss Frances Pell, daughter of the late Alfred Pell of New York, hurried over a week ago to be as near as possible to her husband, at the same time doing something which she could not possibly be induced to do under ordinary circumstances—leaving her children to come tumbling after as best they could with paid attendants. The whole family had been spending the summer at their country place near West Point.

Baron de Belleville and his son, Baron Henri de Belleville, were on board, to respond to an order from their country for their return. They came to this country about a year ago with their families to make their home here. They expected to buy a model farm. Although men of wealth, they have not made a selection of a home, as they have been studying climates and soils. Now they are going back, leaving ten members of their families, including wives, children, and cousins, many of whom went to the steamer in tears to bid the baron and his son farewell. They were extremely sad over the idea of this elder man, almost 60 years old, being asked to fight.

Meantime, at home, every fashionable country club has its Red Cross committee. Every fashionable sewing circle of the winter is to sew for the Red Cross. Charity bazaars are to send their earnings to Europe. Alas for the poor of our country! Lady Paget has appealed to her friends among the fashionable women of America to send socks to the British army. The Countess of Szechenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, and is the mother of a young child, has indicated that she would accept relief funds to carry on aid for the wounded and the distressed of her country. Her husband is reported to be among the wounded. Hon. Alfred Anson has gone to join his regiment, notwithstanding he has been regarded among our Newport set to be almost an American since his marriage with Mrs. John J. Emory. A report comes from London that John Bigelow Dodge, son of the Mrs. Hon. Lionel Guest, is to become a naturalized British subject and go forth to fight in Winston Churchill's regiment, now training in Kent.

All of these activities, affecting so closely the friendships and family ties of the smart set, keep the war ever in mind and turn our activities toward the work of relief.

Last summer at Newport Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish asserted that one of the prime duties of women at this time was to encourage home industries. With that end in view, the fashion show at the Ritz on Nov. 4, 5, and 6 will be a show to demonstrate American fashions, with Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas (called the best dressed woman in America), and Mrs. French Vanderbilt (called summer before last the best dressed woman in Newport) acting as patronesses.

I have one more report to make regarding the rapid dissolution of the Gaynor household, on which I have reported step by step, from the death of the late mayor through the marriage of each of his daughters. Mrs. Gaynor—lonely woman—has decided to take smaller quarters than the big house in Brooklyn, which two short years ago was scarcely large enough. There is a "To Let" sign on the front of the building, but at the same time there is also there still a little decoration in the form of a tribute to her husband from the city of New York. Two handsome lamps set in wrought iron brackets, one on each side of the steps, burn there every night. The city placed them there and the city will not take them away until the property changes hands. Meantime, Mrs. Gaynor is at her summer home in St. James, L. I., but the lamps are lit by a city lighter just the same.

Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. W. Pierson Hamilton and granddaughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, will make her début this winter. The family lives in that circumscribed area around Thirty-sixth street and Madison avenue which houses so large a number of the closely knit family of Morgan. Another of the winter's crop of debutantes will be Miss Gretchen Damrosch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch.

An Attractive Corset

You do not buy a corset for its looks but for its effect upon your appearance.

Redfern Corsets are attractive in themselves, but they possess that far more subtle charm—the fashionable lines that so well set off the simplest frock or most elaborate gown.

The leading stores are always pleased to fit a Redfern—because they give perfect satisfaction. Two of the most popular styles this season are:

Mrs. George E. Watson is president of the North End club, which will give a "mythological pantomime" called "Pipes of Pan" early next week. The play has been written by Mrs. Lulu Jones Downing, a member of the club. Among the young women who will serve tea in connection with the play is Miss Margarette Perkins. Miss Grace Hickox will read the poem. The dances have been arranged by Mary Wood Hinman and Miss Dorothy Graham is directing them. Mrs. Charles B. Stearns will be chairman of the day.

By Inez Travers.

THE Riverside Woman's club resumed its activities at the opening meeting of the season last Thursday. The purpose of the club is social and educational. It was formed to unite the women of Riverside in intercourse and sociability and to promote the welfare of Riverside.

Since its organization a few years ago the club membership has increased rapidly. At the present time there are nearly [illegible] hundred members. The bylaws of the club are much the same as those of the Chicago Woman's club, but at present it has but two departments—civics and education.

At the first meeting Dr. Charles Zueblin of Boston spoke to the members on "The New Civic Spirit."

In connection with the club a course of lectures on topics of the day by well known speakers is held in the public school of Riverside. Owing to the fact that there are a number of smaller clubs in the suburb which hold weekly meetings, and to which most of the members of the Woman's club also belong, it was thought advisable that the meetings of the Woman's club be held monthly on the first Thursday of each month.

The program for the coming season will be as follows:

[illegible] 5—"Objects and Aims of the New Philanthropy," Sherman C. Kingsley.
[illegible] 3—Reserved.
[illegible] 7—An opera lecture recital in melodrama by Anna Irene Larkin, reader, and Henry Weber, pianist lecturer.
[illegible] 4—"Social Activities in Relation to Education," Prof. Nathaniel Butler.
[illegible] 4—"A Timely Topic," Mrs. George [illegible]
[illegible] 1—"The Spirit of the Times in the Theater," Mrs. Aletta Waterbury Goss.
[illegible] 6—Annual meeting.

Although there is no philanthropy department in the club, the members care for the needy in their vicinity and are constantly concerned with the betterment of the conditions that cause poverty and want not only in Riverside, but in all parts of our country. The good work the members do locally is only an expression of the practical ideas on social economy they have gained through the influence of the club.

The officers for the season 1914-'15 are: Mrs. M. D. L. Simpson, president; Mrs. [illegible] Campbell, first vice president; Mrs. J. Miles, second vice president; Mrs. E. Evans, recording secretary; Miss Grace Smith, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. E. Miles, treasurer.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS.

The Chicago Woman's club will give a reception to its president, Mrs. Harlan Ward Cooley, Wednesday afternoon, at [illegible] o'clock in the club parlors. ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER.

> Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: I wish to ask your assistance in regard to what steps you would advise me to take in order that I could become a good conversationalist. K. H."

Brilliant conversationalists are born, not made, but one can do much toward cultivating the art of conversation. Perhaps you are bashful. Perhaps you are self-conscious. Self-consciousness and bashfulness are more often the cause of being unable to talk than an inherent lack of conversational gifts. Exert your best efforts to be interested in what the person talking to you is saying. If he happens to be talking about anything which you know nothing about ask questions. Don't be afraid to let a man know that you are sincerely interested in his work. Never be bored. An interested listener is sure to make an interesting conversationalist. Study and read. Keep abreast of the times. When you know that you are going to meet some one who has a particular hobby, find out as much about that hobby as you can before you meet the man or the woman, and talk with him or her as if you were in earnest. Be frank and don't be rude. Impress upon your friends that you are above all else sincere and interested in their work and their views on all subjects. Before you know it you will find yourself perfectly at ease while you are talking.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: Will you please answer the following questions in regard to mourning? For what length of time should a widow wear mourning? For what length of time should a veil be worn? When the veil is put back should a face veil be worn? When should the border on cards and stationery be lessened and when should it be given up? L. J."

A widow wears mourning usually about two years, lightening it at intervals of six months. An older woman often clings to mourning for the rest of her life. The long veil is not worn in this country as much as it used to be. If you choose you may wear a heavily bordered crêpe veil for six months. The heavy veil over the face is so injurious to the eyes, weakened by weeping, that it is generally thrown back and a face veil of tulle or net edged with crêpe is worn. The border on calling cards is lessened after six months and at the expiration of a year. It is discarded after two years. Many women prefer to use black bordered cards only for a year, at which time they go into second mourning. The etiquette of mourning is not so strict as it used to be. If you take notice you will see that there are nowadays few women who wear heavy mourning. White and lilac suitably relieve mourning after a year and a half, and after two years colors may be worn.

"Dear Miss Van Rensselaer: Will you please send me a form to use in acknowledging the flowers which were sent to my husband and me when our day old baby died? B. A."

A few words of thanks on a visiting card is regarded as sufficient recognition for flowers or other evidences of thoughtful sympathy sent to those who are bereaved. If you wish to have cards engraved or printed you may use them, although the more personal acknowledgment is generally used if one has only a small acquaintance.

Surprising Results from the Use of

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

For imparting health to the scalp and luxuriance to the hair nothing excels Newbro's Herpicide. It is familiarly known to thousands of users throughout the World as the Original Remedy for destroying dandruff contagion and saving the hair and as a delightful hair-dressing. The letter from Mrs. C. K. Sharp of Luverne, Ala., which comes voluntarily and unsolicited, is a glowing tribute to the wonderful power for good concealed in this well-known scalp prophylactic.

READ MRS. SHARP'S LETTER

Luverne, Ala., Feb. 16, 1913.

I want to give my testimonial on the wonderful results of using Herpicide. December 14th, 1911, we adopted a little girl from the Orphanage. Her head was almost entirely covered with what we term "scaled head," one side being entirely bald. I used every remedy I ever read or heard of, including physician's prescriptions, but they availed nothing. At last, in desperation, and as an experiment, because it isn't advertised for that, I began on Herpicide. The first few applications stopped the itching. After using two and a half bottles she was entirely cured.

I wish you could see her hair. If I had used any more Herpicide I don't know what we would have done with it as she already has hair enough for two. The bald places are well covered and it is peculiar that all the new hair is curly while the old hair is straight. The child, whose name is Elcurtis, is now eight years old and calls herself the "Herpicide Girl." MRS. C. K. SHARP.

Each day reveals almost marvelous and frequently astonishing results achieved by the use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE. There are surprises in every bottle which may be expected by the one who uses HERPICIDE carefully and intelligently. While the results are not always of such an astonishing nature as those experienced by Mrs. Sharp they are invariably satisfying.

HERPICIDE eradicates the contagion that causes dandruff and thus checks itching of the scalp and falling hair. The life, luster and luxuriance of the hair, so intensely admired by everyone, has come to be naturally associated with NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE, the exquisite and delightful hair-dressing.

THE VERY REV. F. X. McCABE C.M., LL.D
PHOTO LANGCUSA
BISHOP SAMUEL FALLOWS
PHOTO GENERIS
THE REV. JENKIN LLOYD JONES
PHOTO MOFFETT

Speakers who will have part in Peace Sunday either with addresses or sermons will be Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church, the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, pastor of All Souls' Independent church, and the Very Rev. Francis Xavier McCabe, pastor of St. Vincent's Roman Catholic church and president of De Paul university.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

TODAY will be observed with practical unanimity throughout the United States as a day of prayer for peace. The proclamation of Oct. 4 as the day to be especially set apart for this purpose came from President Wilson at the suggestion of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America.

No doubt the desirability for such a day occurred to many and may have occurred to the president before it was brought officially to his attention, but if there is credit to be given to any person or organization it belongs to the federal council, its president, the Rev. Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago; its corresponding secretary, the Rev. Charles S. Macfarland of New York; the chairman of its commission on peace and arbitration, the Rev. Frederick Lynch of New York, and the Rev. S. L. Gulick of Japan, a special representative of the council, who with the others signed the letter to the president.

The letter suggesting the appointment of a day of prayer for peace was sent to President Wilson by the representatives of the council on Aug. 20. When President Wilson appointed Oct. 4 he sent a reply to the federal council saying that he was glad he could comply with its request.

The criticism which would call in question the appointment of a special day for prayer for peace would likewise apply to the setting apart of a national thanksgiving day. Christians are commanded in everything to give thanks in the same connection in the Bible where they are commanded to pray without ceasing. A special day for either prayer or thanksgiving refers to its public demonstration, not to its exercise as an act of private devotion.

In addition to the special services in the Chicago churches at the regular hours of worship, union meetings will be held in halls, tents, and downtown in the Auditorium at 3 o'clock and in the evening at Orchestra hall at 7:45 o'clock.

The chairman of the auditorium meeting is Bishop Samuel Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church. One of the speakers at the meeting of the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall is the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, pastor of All Souls' Independent church. A pastor who will hold one of the special services in his own church is the Very Rev. Francis Xavier McCabe, pastor of St. Vincent's Roman Catholic church, Sheffield and Webster avenues, and president of De Paul university.

The program at the Auditorium meeting includes an organ overture and a funeral march played by Harrison M. Wild; peace anthem and as a closing number, "The Star Spangled Banner," led by D. W. Towner, assisted by associated choirs; prayer by the Rev. John Timothy Stone and Rabbi Julius Rappaport; an aria by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, and addresses by Bishop Fallows, Gov. E. F. Dunne, Bishop Charles P. Anderson, Miss Jane Addams and the Rev. J. P. Brushingham.

The subject for the Sunday Evening club is "International Brotherhood." Prayer will be offered by the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Kenwood Evangelical church. In addition to Dr. Jones, the speakers will be Joseph H. Defrees, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, pastor of St. James' Methodist Episcopal church. L. A. Goddard, president of the Chicago Peace society, will read the Scripture lesson. A special program of music, instrumental and vocal, will be given.

In Roman Catholic churches the day is regarded as especially significant, for it marks the feast of the holy rosary, which was instituted because of the naval victory of Lepanto gained by Don John of Austria over the Turkish fleet on Oct. 1, 1571. The victory accompanied the processions made at Rome on that same day by the members of the Rosary fraternity. The feast, which at first was only observed in certain localities, was made universal in the church in 1716.

Father McCabe, in St. Vincent's church, will take occasion of the feast in preaching a sermon on peace in accordance with the proclamation of the president.

Emphatic denial is made by Father McCabe and all official Roman Catholic authorities of all reports which represent Pope Benedict XV. as having made any comments, official or otherwise, on any phase of the present war. As members of the Roman Catholic church are found in every one of the contending armies, there is to be no prayer in any church for victory of any nation, but for peace to come to all.

An appeal has been sent out by various denominational missionary societies and by the Red Cross for contributions to their respective causes. The treasurer of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America, Alfred R. Kimball, 105 East Twenty-second street, New York, offers to act in behalf of any persons or churches who do not have denominational channels or the Red Cross through which to send.

Somewhat more than forty-seven bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church have promised to be present at a special session of the house of bishops which was called to meet in Minneapolis next Thursday. Because of the closeness of the margin of the number who have promised and the number required to constitute a quorum, some anxiety is still felt lest in the last moment the required number should not be present. Bishop Edsall, formerly of Chicago, will be the host of the bishops during the meeting.

The general convention of churches of the Disciples of Christ and their international missionary societies will be held in Atlanta, Ga., beginning net Thursday and continuing to Oct. 14. The meetings will be held in the armory. Speakers of other denominations who will speak at the convention include the Rev. Henry F. Cope, secretary of the Religious Education society; Robert Speer, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church; the Rev. Charles Scanlon, secretary of the board of temperance of the Presbyterian church; George Innes, Philadelphia, of the United Presbyterian church; and Fred B. Smith of New York. The Rev. Peter Ainslie, Baltimore; the Rev. G. H. Combs, Kansas City; the Rev. C. S. Medbury, Des Moines; and the Rev. A. E. Corey of Cincinnati, are among the leading ministers of the Disciples church who are on the program. C. C. Morrison, editor of the Christian Century; the Rev. Austin Hunter, the Rev. H. L. Willett, and the Rev. E. S. Ames are among the Chicago ministers who will attend the convention. Myron C. Settle of Gary, Ind., will speak on the work of religious education as practiced in Gary in connection with the public schools.

C. W. Williams of Galesburg, Ill., a Congregationalist layman, will begin today evangelistic services in De Long, Ill., establishing a new precedent for such kind of work. Mr. Williams is wealthy and instead of taking offerings from the people for his services pays for the services of an organist and special singer out of his own pocket and gives his own service without charge. He was converted in a meeting held by "Billy" Sunday in Galesburg several years ago. After his conversion his first act was to give $35,000 towards the Galesburg Young Men's Christian association building.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY By Mme. Z.

MISS HELEN SMITH

Miss Helen Smith and Miss Winifred Drukker are two Washington girls who are to be among the season's debutantes.

Fall Buds and Brides Commanding Notice Despite the War.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[Special Correspondence.]—Debutantes and brides who by right ought to have the center of the stage at this time of year are having rather a hard time getting their fair share of attention nowadays, when every one is absorbed in the great struggle "across the pond."

No one has much time even for brides, and it looks sometimes as if the poor little buds would be allowed to bloom almost unnoticed. But when the time comes they will doubtless get their fair share of attention. They are entitled to a little attention even if all Europe is at war, for there are some decidedly interesting girls in the group, and new names are being added daily.

One of the most promising of them is Francise Williams, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John R. Williams. In the first place she is a pretty girl. Then she comes of a family widely known and popular in army circles. Moreover, her eldest sister is Mrs. Joseph Leiter, and her second sister is Mrs. William McCombs; the one naturally a leader in the wealthy resident set and the other equally naturally of considerable influence in political circles. Now, if there is any sort of good time that one or the other of these can't get for their pretty little debutante sister, Washington doesn't quite see what it is. Aside from all this, entirely on her own merits, Francise would probably be a notable belle. It runs in the family. Each of her sisters was in turn pretty nearly the most popular debutante of her season. For the present, Francise is down at White Sulphur Springs with her mother, presumably getting all rested up for the ordeal of the winter.

There is quite a bunch of official debutantes in the offing, but it is more or less uncertain which of them will come into port. Miss Laura Delano is positively announced as one of this season's buds, but so far Washington has not laid eyes on her. It is promised that the Delanos will take a house here this winter and that Miss Laura, who graduated from Bryn Mawr last June, will make her debut in Washington this winter.

Miss Gregory, daughter of the new attorney general, is counted as probably among the winter's debutantes, and there seems to be some question as to whether in the persons of the two Burleson girls Texas will not contribute two more debutantes to the cabinet set. They were not formally presented last year; nominally, they were "continuing their studies in the university," but as a matter of fact they were part and parcel—a very attractive part and parcel—of the debutante group.

Miss Jane Cowan, daughter of Mrs. Shields, is regarded as a probable debutante, and Miss Winifred Drukker, daughter of Representative Dow H. Drukker of New Jersey, is positively announced as about to take her place in Washington society. Miss Drukker is a pretty girl who has been a student at Mount Holyoke college, and as Mr. Drukker is a comparative newcomer his daughter is not as yet well known in Washington.

Another pertty girl whose debut is among the earliest scheduled is Miss Helen B. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Richard Smith of Twenty-first street. Miss Smith is a Washington girl with St. Louis connections, being the granddaughter of the late John F. Gibbons of St. Louis and descended from some of the old French families in that city. She has, however, been educated in Washington and has a great many friends in the resident set who will see that she has the best sort of a time.

Among the notable debutantes of the resident set are promised Miss Elizabeth Hoar, daughter of Mrs. Rockwood Hoar, and granddaughter of the late Senator Hoar, and Miss Frances Moore, daughter of the late Clarence Moore, who went down with the Titanic. Miss Moore was presented at the English court last winter, but this will be her first winter in Washington. Mrs. Delos Blodgett expects to present her daughter, Miss Hel Blodgett, and Miss Frances Traver, daughter of Mrs. Robert Traver, and Miss Judith Norment, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Norment, are all girls of the resident set who are expected to make their formal bow to society this season.

Items relating to the plans for the ers-Taft wedding are slowly filtering out. First came the announcement of the when and the where; then a week later the who, so far the girls of the wedding party are concerned; now the personnel of the masculine contingent completes the list. The name of George Harr of Washington was given out last week as Mr. Taft's best man. To that are now added as ushers those of Charles T of New Haven, Stephen Phillips of Boston, Stanhope Bayne-Jones of Baltimore, Carl Lohman of Akron, John H of Pittsburgh, Walter Logan in New York, Adrian Van Sinderen of New York, and Harry Bingham of New York—all of them classmates of Mr. Taft at Yale.

Extraordinary

700 Salt's Silk Velvet Hats at an Unheard-of Price, 95c

This is less than the actual cost of making these hats. The manufacturer in turning them over to us must have suffered a tremendous loss, as Salt's Genuine Silk Velvet Hats have never to our knowledge appeared on the market at any such price as this.

There are 700 in the lot. Enough to supply women who come promptly. Three different shapes in sailors, and several turbans, all at 95c.

Next—An Offering of Imitation Paradise Plumage at 50c

White and black. Not much of this imitation Paradise is left in this country, as it is produced in Germany and France. Hence the importer was willing to let go all he had on hand, at a great sacrifice, and we can turn the whole lot over to our trade at 50c. Fourth Floor.

Another Day of Silks

Rothschild's special silk and velvet offerings are attracting wide attention because of the high merit of the merchandise and the exceptionally low prices.

A Sale of Chiffon Velour Velvet, 42 Inches Wide, $4.50 Grade, $2.95 Yard

This surpasses all velvet offerings made so far this season. These Chiffon Velours are found in the very best stores at $4.50 a yard. The quality is superb, soft and lustrous, and the width is 42 inches.

The colors are taupe, wine, navy, marine, oriental blue, Gobelin, silver-grey, prune, golf red, purple, sapphire and peacock blue.

On Monday we shall offer these Velvets at $2.95 a yard. Can you imagine the result?

Double Width Crepe de Chine Genuine $2 Quality—$1.38 Yd.

This is an extra heavy weave beautifully finished. Very scarce as a result of their popularity, in shades for street and evening wear, including white and black.

40-In. Lyons Crepe Georgette Popular $1.25 Fabric—98c Yd.

In this fine fabric we show a range of 50 different shades, all specially dyed to our order.

44-In. Colored Canton Crepe Genuine $2 Quality—$1.38 Yd.

A splendid fabric for fall and winter garments, all the new fall shades are represented—made to sell for $2 a yard, special for tomorrow at $1.38.

42-In. Lyons Black Velvet Regularly $6.50—$3.50 a Yard

We could sell thousands of yards of these goods as the market will soon be depleted. Second Floor.

Finest All Wool English Gabardine, 54 Inches Wide ($2 Quality), 98c a Yard

There is no mistake in this. We are actually going to sell these $2.00 English Gabardine Suitings at only 98c a yard. Black only. Fine for tailored suits. Very much in fashion.

English Balmacaan Coatings $2.50 & $3 Grades at $1.78 Yd.

The cloth now being worn in capes and coats—hundreds of yards.

42 Inch Silk and Wool Poplin Regular $2 Quality, $1.48 Yard

A large assortment in which we give you choice of a big variety of colorings. Second Floor.

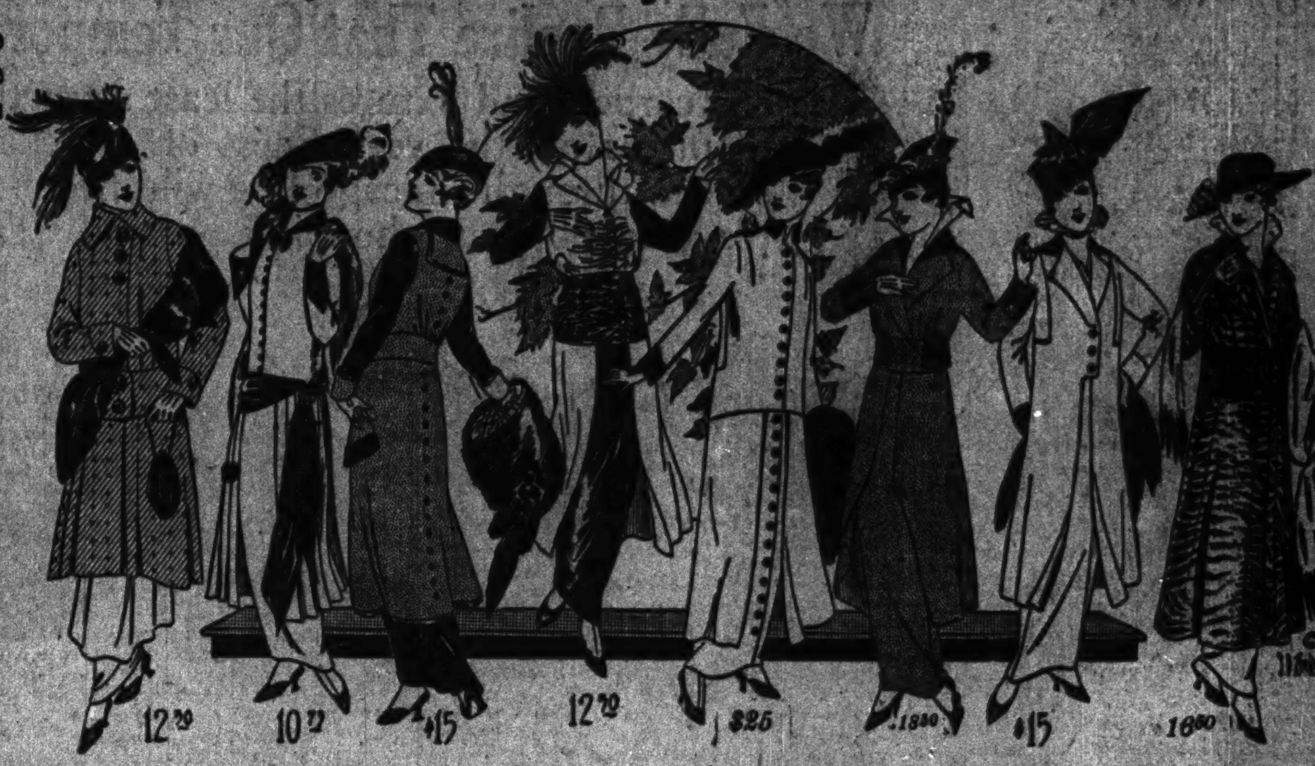
For the Past Two Weeks We Have Been Quietly Gathering In Large Lots of Fine Garments for Which Manufacturers Have Been Anxious to Find a Market—and Now We Are Ready to Begin

A Sale of Suits, Coats, and Dresses

Nine of our leading manufacturers have contributed to this event, resulting in these fine special offerings, which we shall turn over to the public tomorrow.

Over 5,000 Garments of Various Kinds, All in the Latest Fashions, Will Be Ready to Go on Sale Monday Morning at Prices That Will Bring Women Hurrying From All Parts of the City.

Some of the garments are simply amazing. There is one lot of fifty evening gowns valued as high as $65 that will go in the sale at $25. They will be taken by noon. All through the entire assemblage the offerings are very extraordinary. There are nine great lots.



Lot 1. Women's Tailored Suits in Redingote Models at $15.00

These Suits come from one of our very best makers, who stretched a long point to give us something unusual at $15.00.

Finely tailored, in latest Redingote model, lined with satin to waist. Velvet collar, military button front, large lapels. Materials are diagonal and etamine cheviots, in black, navy, brown and green.

Lot 2. Worsted Poplin Suits in Long Coat Styles at $18.50

These are $22.50 suits. Tailored in fine wool poplins, broadcloth and gabardines. Long coats with plain or fancy backs, with braid or velvet.

Black, blue and green. All $18.50.

Lot 3. A Large Number of Elegant Broadcloth Suits, $25.00

Long Coat Suits, tailored from fine broadcloth, in black, navy, plum, green and brown.

These are very elegant suits, equal to usual $35.00 and $40.00 models.

Single breasted basque style, with velvet military collar. We shall sell these suits for $25.00.

Lot 4. Crepe Basque Dresses in Black and Colors at $10.75

Not one of these Dresses should be here by Monday night.

They are made in latest basque styles, with long fronts and plaited skirts.

Materials are crepes and serge, with satin sleeves and vestee, $10.75.

Lot 5. Fifty Evening Gowns, Worth to $65.00—All at $25.00

These Gowns are copies of foreign models. The manufacturer in New York, wishing to dispose of them, let us have the entire fifty at a large discount.

All are handsome models, in black and evening shades, with lace waists and draped skirts. Values to $65—now marked $25.

Lot 6. Silk and Satin Basque Dresses, Specially Priced, $12.50

Combinations of silk and satin or crepe and velvet, in black and richest autumn colors.

Most fashionable basque effects.

Such dresses at $12.50 are indeed out of the ordinary.

Lot 7. Combination Serge and Velvet Dresses at Only $15.00

About one hundred of these Dresses. Made up in the extra long overdrape coat effect over velvet, with braid and sash.

Another model has a velvet slip over crepe or poplin.

Black or blue. $15.00.

Lot 8. Smart Autumn Coats in Broadcloths and Mixtures, $12.50

Large, roomy, loosely cut models with belted back and front, newest set-in sleeves and storm collar.

Also more conservative models in broadcloth, lined throughout. All at $12.50.

Lot 9. Black Striped Ural Lamb Coats, One Hundred at $16.50

A great offering. Just one hundred in the lot. Worth not less than $20.00.

Remarks on the Visit of Sir J. Forbes-Robertson.

By Percy Hammond.

KEEPING well in mind the admonition that all things are relative, there can be no harm in hailing Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson as the First Actor. He is that in the esteem of a great many persons, some of whom are playgoers, some theatergoers, and yet others actorgoers. He comes back tomorrow for what he says is the last time to a community that held its own with other cities of the United States in neglecting him in his earlier attempts to interest and entertain us. It seems safe to predict that Chicago will make his final visit prosperous—less, perhaps, because it is labeled his final visit than because it is newly become the fashion to laud his talents, although those talents are now his in no greater measure than when a decade ago he first ventured here as a star.

Mr. Forbes-Robertson's welcome then might have been warmer had the manner of his exploitation been more expert. He or his sponsors took too much for granted and assumed that his well established repute in London would suffice to win attention for him here. He came, however, in a day when the late Richard Mansfield was making use of about all the adulation the American theatergoer had for the actor who pointedly bid for support because of the "intellectual" aspects of his work. Mr. Mansfield had achieved his position after many years of struggle. His labors were the harder because they were commenced at a time when Edwin Booth was still active and were continued against the fresh memory of the quality in the latter's acting which seems to have warranted the public's regarding him as "great." Mr. Mansfield, as he progressed in popular favor, learned the value of adroit exploitation—the trick of "keeping himself in the air," as he himself once described it—and so bettered his instruction that by 1903 his position was impregnable against far greater assault than the modest English player then endeavored.

Returning, Mr. Forbes-Robertson made his next appeal in a play so peculiarly uninteresting—Mr. H. V. Esmond's "Love and the Man"—that its very weakness served to make for the actor's first American recognition. His Hamlet was asked for by those who had neglected it in his earlier visit. Thus his acting of the part was the subject of an inverted process: many players have stepped from prosperity to Hamlet, but Mr. Forbes-Robertson alone is of record as having stepped from Hamlet to prosperity.

How strong a hold the Forbes-Robertson Hamlet took upon the American playgoer was illustrated on his third visit, in 1906-'07, when his brilliant footlighting of Shaw's super-burlesque, "Cæsar and Cleopatra," failed to prevail against the association of the actor with the part of the Dane. Yet in no other part acted by him—in this country at least—has this actor manifested such variety, so much of artistic ease and plasticity, so much of humor, and so much of forthright charm as when he played Shaw's Cæsar. That was—and probably remains—a masterpiece of high comedy acting, like the Benedick of Irving, the Capt. Bluntschli of Mansfield, the Portia of Miss Ellen Terry, the raissonier of John Drew in "His House in Order." A perfect thing, as I recall it—perfect alike in the actor's reading Cæsar's description of the Appian Way and in his understanding of Cæsar's petty passional jealousy of Marc Antony when the latter is praised by Cleopatra. I believe that the playgoers of New York City, who had seized upon the first opportunity to neglect "Cæsar and Cleopatra" in 1906, made a fashion of the play when Mr. Forbes-Robertson farewelled there last winter, and did so well in buying seats for it that it was acted more frequently than any other of the many dramas he mounted in that engagement, which lasted through many weeks.

A full measure of popular support was at length given to the English actor when, four years ago, he returned in that deft fustian "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." It was in this obsequious and sagaciously achieved "frame-up" that he knew for the first time in his long career what is classified in the elegant lingo of the theater as "Mansfield business." The play itself was the sublimation of what Mr. Cohan calls "hokum," and so also was the manner in which Mr. Forbes-Robertson acted his part. I prefer to believe—and I should like to be assured that I am right—that it was his personal sense of humor, grimly exercised, which led him into the saccharine and smug successes marking his Chicago performances in the play. FORBES-ROBERTSON as "HAMLET."

Faversham, "The Hawk," and Mlle. Dorziat.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Mr. William Faversham's reëntry into theatricals as an active actor-manager Monday night at the Shubert theater was felicitously accomplished, though with[illegible] the suggestion of a sensation that means financial re[illegible] in a dull season.

Mr. Faversham came in with a new play and a new lead[illegible] woman. The play is "The Hawk," the leading woman Mlle. Gabrielle Dorziat, a French actress who speaks as [illegible] English as Mme. Simone and who projects something [illegible] same style type of personality—an eager, technically [illegible]ished, professionally poised, self-assured type that misses [illegible]thing save the "mysterious subtle something" that suc[illegible]ully eluded Mark Twain in art criticism but has been [illegible] always to excite an audience to an immediate and [illegible]pathetic friendship.

In "The Hawk," which was written by Francis de [illegible] and adapted by Marie Zane Taylor, Mr. Faver[illegible] is an ingratiating card sharp, a Hungarian baron who [illegible] at baccarat and other sports in order to be sure of [illegible] that he may buy his pretty wife all the jewels she [illegible].

[illegible], however, is more complex than he suspects. She [illegible] jewels, yes. She demands expensive frocks, yes. She [illegible] for the luxurious life, yes, yes. But she also has [illegible]. She always has had ideals. And because Mr. [illegible] treats her as a child, a plaything, a jolly, true [illegible] short visioned comrade, she never has had a chance [illegible] them.

The chance comes with Conway Tearle, who plays the [illegible]. Conway has probably helped more dissatisfied married ladies of the drayma to live their own lives than any [illegible] representative of the concentrated lure of passion we [illegible] on the stage. He points out to Mlle. Dorziat that her [illegible] is being stunted, if not wasted, and that love and a [illegible] artistic sphere are calling her. He loves her, does Conway; loves her with a passion that blots out the world and all that belongs to it, particularly her husband. He [illegible] keep their love pure, if she insists, but sooner or later [illegible] must leave her husband and come to him. It is fate.

But in the second act Mr. Tearle catches Mlle. Dorziat [illegible] Mr. Faversham a third ace in a poker game. The [illegible] is of considerable strategical importance to Mr. Faversham, for with its assistance he advances his right wing [illegible] envelops the fortune of a visiting American millionaire, [illegible] which Mr. Tearle is horrified.

So that is the sort of idealist she is! An ace slipping [illegible]! A cheat! A thief! Bah!

A verbal castigation that arouses Mlle. Dorziat to an [illegible] protest. She is a cheater because she has been [illegible] to cheat. Either she must help her husband or prove [illegible] to him. Either they must win or go to work. Ah, [illegible] depends upon her support and the hawk's success. Yet, [illegible] Gawd, how she loathes it! How she loathes it! How [illegible] loathes it all!

Then, suggests Conway, the die is cast. She must come with him. She must be saved. She must, she must!

Notes of the Plays and Players.

Miss Billie Burke's adopted daughter, Miss Cherie Watson, will be a member of Miss Rose Stahl's company this season, playing an unnamed play by Channing Pollock and Rennold Wolf.

Miss Emma Trentini has arrived in America to begin rehearsals of the Vienna operetta, "Polen Blut."

Miss Alice Gerstenberg of Chicago desires it to be known that P. Bartholomae filched from her the plot of his latest musical comedy, "Miss Daisy." Says she:

"Mr. Bartholomae and I are old friends, and it never occurred to me that there would ever be the least doubt about his mentioning my share in the writing of the play called now 'Miss Daisy,' but first produced as 'A Model Maid' and known under that name when it was given first, in Providence. He added the lyrics, as my play was not a musical piece.

"He promised to mention my name on the program last Monday night when the play was transferred to the Lyric theater, New York, but told me that the printers had left it off by mistake. He then promised to see that it was put there, but so far has not lived up to his agreement with me, although a contract was drawn up acknowledging my share in the authorship of 'Miss Daisy.'

"I have no desire to harm Mr. Bartholomae, but I do want my name mentioned, as I have several plays now in the hands of agents and it will be of assistance to me to have it known that I am part author of a play which has had a production at a New York theater."

New York newspapers tell of the appearance here tomorrow night of "Miss Daisy." The managers of Chicago theaters profess ignorance of its coming.

Capt. Beresford, the husband of Miss Kitty Gordon, announces a belated departure for England, there to enlist himself in the ranks of the allied armies.

◆

"The Salamander," one of Owen Johnston's magazine effusions, is to have the good fortune to be acted in its leading rôle by Miss Carol McComas. Several other actresses have been tried in the part and found wanting.

The Aladdin story furnishes the "argument" of "Chin-Chin," Fred Stone's new vehicle. It has been used more often in the theater than any other story from "The Arabian Nights." When David Henderson was producing extravaganza in the Chicago Opera house he staged two Aladdin pieces—his first production, in 1887, called "The Arabian Knights," and his last, in 1894, called "Aladdin." Glen MacDonough and John Philip Sousa collaborated some years ago on an Aladdin extravaganza called "Chris and the Wonderful Lamp."

The run of "Joseph and His Brethren" in the Auditorium will end next Saturday. The play will then be sent on a tour of the middle west. It is said that its weekly expenses in Chicago have, including the rent of the big theater, been $14,000, exclusive of advertising of any kind. The figures may possess meaning to the layman when it is explained that more than 75 per cent of the plays put on in the theaters where $2 is the price of a seat cost more than $2,500 weekly for operation. The estimate does not include musical comedy; but even the most pretentious examples of that kind of entertainment cost less than $10,000 weekly.

Andreas Dippel is not to bring his opera comique venture to Chicago this season. He has placed his first work in rehearsal—a piece called "The Lilac Domino."

The small cities are not doing well by the drama. "Nearly Married," a success here last season, is being withdrawn. A "Potash & Perlmutter" company is being taken from activity because the one-nighters are not responsive; and the same report comes to hand regarding a "Peg o' My Heart" company. As to "Within the Law," whose receipts last season were well nigh sensational, it is seemingly "all through." Long life is given to few plays nowadays unless they be associated with stars. A success seldom survives its second season.

One of Massachusetts' foremost shoemakers, Mr. Emerson, is risking part of the great fortune made with a trademark brand of shoes in backing grand opera in Boston. As that city has been deprived of its regular operatic fare, and as the Century Opera company is to come to Chicago to relieve the famine caused by the abandonment of the community's own company, he is to finance an organization to sing the standard repertoire at low prices—low, that is, for grand opera.

Although he aimed his play directly at the Boston state of mind, that community is not overly kind, it is reported, to William Hodge's "The Road to Happiness."

Frank Tinney has been added to the cast of the revue called "Watch Your Step!" The cast already was one of celebrities.

Playbills of the Week.

NEW PLAYS.

Blackstone—Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson in the following repertoire: "Hamlet," Monday and Friday evenings and Wednesday afternoon; "The Light that Failed," Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings; "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," Wednesday evening and Saturday afternoon; Shaw's "Cæsar and Cleopatra" will be the bill throughout next week.

Illinois—"The Midnight Girl," a musical comedy in which Miss Margaret Romaine and George McFarlane have the leading rôles.

PLAYS THAT REMAIN.

Auditorium—"Joseph and His Brethren"—a romantic melodrama based on the Biblical tale. Much scenery and many actors are involved.

Cort—"A Pair of Sixes," which is a farce with Frank McIntyre and Miss May Vokes in it.

Grand—"Under Cover," a sleuth play about a smuggled diamond necklace, with H. B. Warner as the leading character.

Garrick—"Peg o' My Heart," a Cinderella thing, imbued with thrills and laughter. Miss Peggy O'Neill provides them both.

Powers'—"The Yellow Ticket," wherein Miss Florence Reed enacts the rôle of a persecuted Jewish maiden who murders her persecutor and marries an American journalist.

Olympic—"Potash and Perlmutter," a character sketch of Jewish commercial types. In case you don't care for the play you will like the acting of Barney Bernard, Alexander Carr, and Leo Donnelly, because it is unusually good.

La Salle—"One Girl in a Million." Felix Adler is in the rôle of a noble second story burglar, and Miss Eva Fallon is the heiress who redeems him. There is pretty music and a pretty chorus.

Princess—"Today," by George Broadhurst. Arthur Byron as a deceived husband kills Miss Bertha Mann as an unfaithful wife in a grim last act.

OUTLYING THEATERS.

MISS GRACE CHILDERS in "ANNIE LAURIE" at the CROWN

Crown—Rodney Ranous and Marie Nelson in "Annie Laurie."

Imperial—The musical comedy, "September Morn."

National—Harold Bell Wright's "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

Victoria—Eugene Walters' drama, "Fine Feathers."

MISS EMMA CARUS AT THE MAJESTIC

VAUDEVILLE.

McVicker's—Jones, Linick & Schaefer vaudeville—two bills a day—afternoon and night.

Majestic—Miss Emma Carus and Carl Randall in songs and dances, and Corradini's menagerie are the head liners. Others are Homer Lind, Eddie Leonard and Miss Mabel Russell, Yvette, the violinist, and Harry Breen.

Great Northern—Frank Morrell in songs; the Eight Sons of the Desert, Arabian acrobats; Anita Primrose, in character studies; the three Jordans, club jugglers; Theo and her dancing dandies, a terpsichorean novelty; Anna Miller and company, in character bits; Collier and De Walde, roller skaters; the four Kings in a comedy musical offering; Woodford's white models, an animal posing act, and many others.

Columbia—Sam Sidman and Miss Gertrude Hayes in "The Follies of the Day."

Colonial—Jones, Linick & Schaefer vaudeville, with the program changing Monday and Thursday.

MISS HENRIETTA CROSMAN AT THE PALACE

Palace Music Hall—Miss Henrietta Crosman, in a playlet, "The Word," and George Damerel and fifteen others in a musical drama of the Philippines, "Ordered Home," are the topliners.

William Faversham and "The Hawk"

It is at this juncture that Mr. Faversham returns, suddenly. And he, too, becomes emotional. Ah, ha! So this is what has been going on under his very nose, his very roof, his very eyes! Well, let them go on! He never has known what he would do in such a situation, but now he knows! He will disappear! He will leave them to their guilty love! He will have nothing, nothing more to do with them. BUT—

Let them not cross his path again! For his is a vengeful race!

One of the protective features of the French divorce law decrees that before a wife can secure a divorce she must first gain the consent of the husband she is eager to leave. And it is in the last act, when Mlle. Dorziat is obliged to ask Mr. Faversham to release her that she may marry Mr. Tearle, that the break comes. She finds the hawk a pathetic sort of wreck. He has acquired the drug habit. He is without funds or food or clothes. He turned honest at cards after she left him and lost everything! Everything!

His condition excites the sympathy natural to an understanding of the higher life she has been studying with Mr. Tearle, and as a result Mlle. Dorziat goes back to the husband because he needs her, thanking the lover that the good he has taught her has given her the strength to make the switch.

Thus we get a new turn on the old triangle. But not a sufficiently acute turn, I fear, to remold it or bring it closer to the heart's desire as dramatic entertainment. It still impresses one as being supremely unimportant whether the lady cleave unto the husband or fly with the lover. Neither is a particularly attractive choice—in the play. And the drama that impresses as being unimportant these important days is, as we have before observed, not the drama that is likely to succeed.

Mr. Faversham's performance is excellent, dignified, theatrically restrained, vocally eloquent, personally ingratiating. Mlle. Dorziat impresses her complete capability and fine training, and Mr. Tearle, by a carefully modulated performance as the lover measures well up to his more distinguished associates.

Probably not within the history of the theater has a play suggested itself for use in so many ways as "It Pays to Advertise." Certainly not within our day. The sensational success of this laughter play was immediate. It earned its laurels by being an exceptionally sane and interesting entertainment.

But after it had done this it began gradually to attract attention as a preachment on the value of advertising. Eager promoters made it a point to keep tickets on hand in order to be able to take their prospects to see it and thus shape their mood. Advertising agents promptly began quoting the statistics used in the play, and vouched for as being real by the authors, Walter Hackett and Roi Cooper Megrue. And last week the proprietors of the Baltimore Sun, being so mightily impressed by it, made arrangements to give a special performance of the farce in Baltimore the afternoon of Tuesday, Oct. 13, at which their advertising patrons and all the city's leading merchants and business men will be invited guests.

The Baltimore plan is but the beginning. Other nearby cities are clamoring for the farce, that the business getting value of its arguments may be locally spread. And it is the first of the new plays to inspire anything resembling a desire on the part of its managers to put out additional companies to play it.

The history of "It Pays to Advertise" again illustrates the part that chance plays in the fascinating gamble of play production. For years Walter Hackett, one of its authors, has been a hack worker in theatrical circles. He probably has sold more ideas for plays that never were written, or, being written, failed to live up to the promise of his enthusiastic predictions, than any other man known to Broadway. A dozen times he has flirted furiously with success, only to be put off with a bowing acquaintance.

Several years ago in working out an idea that had been suggested to him he told Mr. Megrue the skeleton plot of the present farce, and then forgot it. Megrue, however, clung to it, and finally began expanding it into play form. Something like a half dozen versions were written before the present story of the pinhead son who is tricked into going into business, and who succeeds so well by an extensive advertising campaign that he forces his father to buy the trademark of his firm for a quarter million dollars, was evolved. Then Cohan & Harris took it up. And now these fortunate youths have a hit on their hands that seems likely to equal, if not to exceed, that of "Potash and Perlmutter."

Two plays long known to Chicago have just reached New York. "Daddy Long-Legs," with Charles Waldron again supporting Ruth Chatterton, is a success at the Gaiety theater, but "Tipping the Winner," with Edith Taliaferro and Mollie Pearson featured at the Longacre, is not.

Heard in the Lobby.

THE appended fragments of conversation are presumed to be characteristic remarks by the audience in the lobby as it leaves the theater after the first performance of a musical comedy. Addison Burkhardt, colibrettist of "One Girl in a Million," compiled them, at performances, of course, of other plays than his own.

"But, I liked the music."

"You steered me up against this!"

"I'll bet she paid for those flowers herself!"

"I thought the scenery was very good!"
"I've seen much better on Ham Lewis."

"Well! Boys, I'm cured."

"Wasn't that Ashton Stevens who came in before the closing chorus?"
"No, he left after the opening chorus."

"I wonder if the little chap with the red hair was the comedian?"

"A woman who sat in front of us said 'it was the best show she had seen in years.'"
"Yes, that was the composer's wife."

"Of all the shows I ever saw, this—"

"Chicago's getting to be quite a producing center."
"—Yes, on South Water street."

"You think it will go?"
"—Yes, in about three weeks."

"Some of those girls on the stage didn't seem to have a thing on."

"No, not a thing on some of the girls in the audience."

"Well, dear! Where shall we go now?"
"After that, home."

"What act did you like best?"
"How many were there?"

"Still, I think all the show needs is a little pruning."
"No—it's full of prunes now."

"Judge Pam seemed to be enthusiastic. He clapped his hands every minute."
"Yes, clapped them right over his ears."

"Yes, and to think I bought the tickets from a speculator."

"O! Hello. I saw you at the show sitting on the aisle."
"Yes, and I was wishing I were on a desert isle."

"What did you think of the soubrette's voice?"
"She danced very well."

"The comedians seemed nervous. What they needed was life."
"You're too severe, twenty years would be enough."

"Well, I think the show will get the money."
"So did Jesse James."

"Say, who wrote this show?"

Notes of the Plays and Players.

John Bunny, the hero of uncounted one reel "comics" in the literature of the "movies," is to play an eight days' engagement in the Auditorium starting Saturday, Oct. 17. His entertainment is a miscellaneous program of minstrelsy, specialties, and musical farce, and represents the first experiment yet made to exploit the popularity of a motion picture actor.

Other favorites of the "movies" have had employment in the spoken drama—Miss Mary Pickford, for example, who was in the New York City cast of "The Good Little Devil" and Miss Viola Dana, who acted here last season in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." But neither young woman was engaged on the strength of her vogue with patrons of the "movies," but because of suitable personality in each case.

EDWIN ARDEN as BARON ANDREY in "THE YELLOW TICKET"

Miss Olive Wyndham, who has been in Chicago for more than a month acting the principal part for the camera in a photoplay to be exhibited in the interests of the suffrage campaign, has been offered the ingenue character in "While the City Sleeps," the Edward E. Rose melodrama, which is to be produced on Oct. 25 in the Auditorium for the Policemen's benevolent fund.

Harry Lauder is on his way from Australia and will start this season's American tour on the Pacific coast. His Chicago week will be that starting Nov. 16, and will be played in the Auditorium. His company this season will be far more pretentious than in the past, and will include Ching Ling Foo and his troupe, the band of Chinese magicians and gymnasts who contributed at least one-third of the entertainment in "The Follies of 1912."

Complaint is made of an oversupply of "burlesque"; and it is the expectation that one of the circuits will be radically reduced as to the number of theaters within the next three or four weeks.

Holbrook Blinn is to revive Chester Bailey Fernald's "The Cat and the Cherub," originally produced in 1897. It was his acting in this play which first won recognition for Blinn himself. He had been an unaccounted player in this country, and made no especial impression in this little tragedy of San Francisco's Chinatown when it was acted in New York in avowed opposition to "The First Born," which it greatly resembled in theme. But when, later, the two plays were hurried to London in bitter rivalry—the rivals were David Belasco, who auspiced "The First Born," and William A. Brady—"The Cat and the Cherub" was given acclaim because of Blinn. He remained there many years.

Cyril Maude is to return from London next month for a tour in "Grumpy," in which he had a run of months last season in New York. It is the plan of his manager, the Liebler company, to divide the season between Boston and Chicago. He will not be seen in any other play from his repertoire.

"The Law of the Land," melodrama by G. Broadhurst, is to be acted by Miss Julia Dean, George Fawcett, Milton Sills, etc.

Welcoming Forbes-Robertson.

any rate, it is good to know that so good an actor at length realized pecuniosity even in a piece so tawdry and dishonest.

Returning now, Forbes-Robertson will find himself more demonstratively welcomed than ever before. There is none to quarrel because this is so, for he may be said to have earned and to deserve all that the public can do for him. His creative career is behind him; he is become so strongly defined a personality of the theater that, although he may elect to add parts to his schedule, it is safe to predict just how he will play such parts. That his unexpectedly long stay last winter in New York might be marked from period to period by comparative novelty, he showed himself in two or three characters—Shylock and Othello, for example—which did not permit him to add to his vogue. There is no indication in his Chicago prospectus that he is to step outside the safe limits of his known parts—Hamlet and Cæsar, Dick in "The Light that Failed," and the Stranger in the Jerome morality. The list is sufficient—not only for all the purposes of his final visit but also for all the purposes of the public.

And if Mr. Forbes-Robertson be not the First Actor, this writer confessedly does not know who the First Actor is.

Aborn Reticent About Chicago Season of Century Opera Company.

MISS LOIS EWELL
MARCELLA CRAFT AS MIMI.
MARCELLA CRAFT AS SALOME

Miss Marcella Craft, a Chicago girl, may appear in opera here this winter with the Century company. Miss Craft has sung in Germany for five or six years. One of her roles is Madame Butterfly. Miss Lois Ewell has become the most popular of the Century singers. She began in musical comedy.

By Ronald Webster.

SARGENT ABORN, the younger of the brothers who have made opera at popular prices a reality, presented on his arrival last Thursday the picture of the shrewd and reticent business man—not the temperamental artist. At the time I met him the contract had not been signed.

When he said on parting, "I hope I see you again," the phrase conveyed nothing but politeness. He was on Thursday prepared to make an announcement that the Century will come here. He was prepared, however, to talk about the season thus far in New York. It has been exceedingly successful. Figures of attendance, just on from New York, confirm his statement. The total for the first two weeks was just short of 35,000.

He had no information about Marcella (really Marcia) Craft, the soprano, who is claimed by a half dozen cities, but whose parents live in Chicago. She is now with the Century company, but she has not sung yet. She is expected to take the part of Madame Butterfly.

A tall stranger is said to be responsible for the beginning of Miss Craft's musical career. She sang a solo (she was then 13 years old) in the Presbyterian church at Riverside, Cal. The tall stranger said, "Little girl, take good care of that voice."

She studied in Boston and then in Italy, finally bringing up at Mainz. From there to Kiel and from Kiel to Munich. It was in Munich that she became famous as the "modest Salome."

She has never sung in opera here. Many are curious to hear her. Those who heard her in Munich seem to want to hear her again.

"Madame Butterfly" is to be included in the Century list of operas. The results of their voting contest have become public. "Aida" won it. Others were "Samson and Delilah," "Louise," "Rigoletto," "Butterfly," "Boheme," "Barber of Seville," "Tales of Hoffman," "Thais," and "Hänsel and Gretel."

A lady bored with opera said the other day (she was seated on the porch of a country club on the north shore), "I'm glad we're not going to have opera this year. I'm sick of all the old ones. This will give the composers a chance to write some new ones."

Mme. Gadski's program for her Chicago recital on Oct. 18 will include songs by Schumann, Schubert, Franz, Wagner, Brahms, Taubert, and Strauss. A few by English composers, but none apparently by Americans, are mentioned by the press agent.

Humperdinck is the latest of the composers to regard the movies as a field for music. The situation is at present almost on a par with that in extremely cheap melodrama where the villain is heralded by soft music on the violin. It has been suggested that because of the sudden changes of mood in films it would be almost impossible for a composer to make the score fit the film. If he should, the censor would have to be reckoned with and the music would come out wrong. About the only way out seems to be through improvisation—an art almost as dead as that of letter writing. Maybe the movies will revive it.

Mr. Gunn's American contest is approaching. The judges will have to hear one concerto by MacDowell almost forty times. How they will enjoy it!

Boston grand opera begins at the Boston theater tomorrow evening and is to continue for twelve weeks. The company has been recruited from Boston singers and from members of South American companies. The chorus and the orchestra have been taken from among those used by the Boston opera company. "Aida" has been chosen for the opening bill. The répertoire is to include all of the standard Italian operas.

Andreas Dippel's opera company is to open in New York at the Forty-fourth Street theater with the "Lilac Domino" or the "Purple Domino," the inconsistency in the title being the result, I suppose, of the translation of the piece from the French. The music is by Charles Cuvillier, a young Frenchman now with the army near Verdun. Mr. Dippel's company will probably be heard in Chicago.

Karleton Hackett has been engaged by the Chicago University Lecture association to deliver a series of lectures at the North Side Center, Fullerton Avenue Presbyterian church, beginning Oct. 5.

George Hamlin, the tenor, was to have arrived in Chicago on Friday. Mr. Hamlin was compelled to cancel all his continental dates.

Both Cleveland and St. Louis are to have the San Carlo Opera company this winter. From announcements printed in the papers of the various larger cities, it is safe to guess that the residents are to hear more music and better music than they ever have heard.

Information has come in that the Max Bendix orchestra, which played with success at the Midway Gardens during the summer, will continue its connection with the summer park. Mr. Bendix is at present in New York conducting an operetta and his musicians are scattered all over the country. The directors hope that the orchestra will give winter concerts during the 1915-16 music season.

A movement is under way for the celebration of "composers' night" on Feb. 6. The purpose is to persuade the various musical organizations in America to devote themselves on that evening (a Saturday) to the works of American musicians. An appeal for coöperation to this end is made by Ray C. Edwards, director of a school of music at Ruskin, Fla.

Mark Hambourg, who is one of the many musicians planning to earn some money in America this winter, has prophesied that this country will be deluged with musicians. "All the leading virtuosi," he is quoted as having said, "will be out of a job. Touring the continent of Europe is out of the question. Competition will render it difficult to make trips in America profitable." It is to be hoped that all our women's clubs will not patronize these foreign virtuosi out of sympathy or establish series of concerts "for the relief of destitute foreign artists." "Johann Schmitt" looks so much better on a program than "John Smith" that many of them will be sorely tempted.

Francis Macmillen, the violinist, is expected in America on Oct. 10. Mr. Macmillen also has a war story.

Frieda Hempel of the Metropolitan opera in New York writes to her manager that she has sold the decorations bestowed upon her by King Albert of Belgium to buy cigars for the German soldiers.

Gustave Holmquist is to succeed Arthur Middleton as basso of the Sunday Evening club quartet. The other members are Mrs. Mabel Sharp Herdien, Mrs. Rose Lutiger Gannon, and John B. Miller. Edgar A. Nelson is at the organ. The quartet will be heard for the first time this evening at Orchestra hall.

Paul Althouse, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera company, will be heard for the first time in Chicago on Oct. 18, when the Apollo club presents Elgar's "Caractacus."

Women Give "Inside Information" on Cook County Candidates.

Downstate women who are to take an important place in the activities of the forty-sixth annual convention of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association to be held in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel Oct. 28, 29, 30, and 31.

By Marion Walter Lovett.

"FIRST Aid to the Woman Voter" is the pet title that has been given by some member of the Woman's City club to the catalogue of "inside information" on all the candidates to be voted upon in Cook county on Nov. 3. The central municipal citizenship committee of the club, Miss Jane Addams, chairman, is getting out a card catalogue containing the full records of all persons running for office, including those for whom the women cannot vote, and it will be kept in the headquarters of the club, 116 South Michigan avenue, for the benefit of all women voters.

The information will be given out as freely to women unaffiliated with the club as to those who are members. Miss Grace Nicholes, the executive secretary of the committee, keeps the files in a convenient place on her big roll top desk in the headquarters of the club and is ever ready to furnish the perplexed woman voter with reports on the candidates for municipal judgeships, county commissioners, etc.

No one thing could have been undertaken by an organization that would have proved of such practical aid to the women of the county as this catalogue. There are hundreds who say, when asked if they intend to vote, "I'd vote if I knew anything about the candidates. I do not know where I can find out who the good candidates are, so I think I'll stay away. Then I cannot make the mistake of voting for the wrong man."

The "first aid" file meets the needs of the women who find themselves in this predicament. It takes but a few minutes for the "home" woman who is downtown shopping to run over to the headquarters of the Woman's City club and get the information on the candidates from Miss Nicholes.

For months the members of the various committees of the club who attend the meetings of the municipal and county boards have been quietly collecting first hand information on the men who are standing for reëlection and turning it over to Miss Nicholes for her catalogue. Other women have been looking into the lives of the candidates who have not held office, inquiring into their business affiliations, their political friends and "backers," etc. This has all been transferred to Miss Nicholes, who has made pithy notes on it in the "first aid" file.

Another convention of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association—the forty-sixth—is upon us. It will take place in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel, beginning on Oct. 28 and closing Oct. 31. Women representing practically every civic and suffrage organization in Chicago as well as those throughout the state will assemble in the city for the consideration of important matters concerned with the movement in Illinois.

While the women will undoubtedly continue to approve the nonpartisan stand that has always been taken by the state suffrage association, some of the sessions will take on a decidedly political color. All four senatorial candidates have been asked to speak and the two women candidates for county commissioners, Miss Harriet Vittum and Miss Mary McDowell, have been invited to address the women.

This year as last the women will consider the alteration of the state constitution. This alone will develop into a Heculean task for the delegates if the procedure at Peoria is any indication of the snares and pitfalls and irritations that lie in wait for progressive people who attempt to make over a constitution to meet the needs of a growing organization.

Last year after hours of discussion, during which the delegates were accused of coming to the convention with their "minds wrapped in cotton wool" because they did not see the advisability of accepting the proposed changes presented by Mrs. Ella S. Stewart, chairman of the constitution committee, some one discovered that the changes could not be legally made, as they had not been submitted to the women a month before the opening of the convention.

This settled the matter. The old constitution was given another year of life and the convention voted to give the state board the power to appoint a new constitution committee. Care was taken to select women who would represent all the various suffrage elements in Chicago and downstate and the proposed bylaws were drawn by a most representative group of women—Mrs. Mary R. Plummer, Mrs. Mary Codding Bourland, Mrs. Alice Bradford Wiles, Mrs. Helen E. Stewart, Mrs. Carrie A. Bahrenburg, Mrs. S. H. McClung, and Mrs. G. A. Soden, chairman. Mrs. Grce Wilbur Trout, the president of the state suffrage association, is an ex officio member of the committee.

Provision is made in the bylaws drawn by this committee that the dues of affiliated suffrage organizations be greatly reduced, as it was the consensus of opinion that these branches should not be taxed heavily for their representation in the state association. The dues defray but a small portion of the expenses of the state association. Voluntary contributions form the larger part of its support.

A special appeal has been made to the women downstate to attend the convention this year, as it is argued that the necessity for coöperation among the suffragists of the state is of even more importance now than ever before.

In answer to the rumor that the work of the state suffrage organization is finished Mrs. Trout and others on the state board reply: "The state organization work has only just begun. The next year is to be a settled year. The state association can devote itself to practical educational and organization work throughout the state.

"Now the awakened interest of the women must not be allowed to sink back into that land of political apathy where so many of our best men have been sojourning for many years. The women must continue their activities. These activities must be augmented and the women must also inspire apathetic men to help in civic affairs.

"Through a central suffrage organization, representing all the women of the state, no feeling of rivalry and jealousy between the women of Chicago and the women downstate can spring up. But one idea will always be fostered and made permanent—working with a common purpose and united effort for the best interests of this great state of Illinois."

Many of the downstate women will tell of the effectual work being accomplished in their communities. Mrs. Charles Webster of Galesburg will give an account of the efficient work of the civic league of her city, which got out a tremendous registration last spring. Mrs. Mary Codding Bourland of Pontiac, Mrs. H. M. Brown of Peoria, Mrs. Carrie Alexander Bahrenburg of Wellesville, and Mrs. S. H. McClung of Monmouth will recount the suffrage and civic activities and plans of the districts.

Mrs. Trout will give the president's report on the opening evening session of the convention, and it will be followed by a reception, which Gov. and Mrs. Dunne will attend if Mrs. Dunne's health has so improved that it will be possible for her to attend.

Mrs. Frederick A. Dow, the president of the Illinois federation of women's clubs, will represent that organization at the convention and address the delegates.

Opposition to the reëlection of Mrs. Trout and of other members of the board is led by an element backed by Mrs. Catharine Waugh McCulloch, Mrs. Florence Bennett Peterson, and Mrs. Ella S. Stewart. It is reported that Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge and Mrs. Mary R. Plummer of the University of Chicago will receive the support of this element.

The Lighter Side of the War.

THE LATIN TEMPERAMENT.

"CROWDS gathered in front of the German embassy and booed the attachés as they entered and left the building. Strong antagonism is shown here toward the Germans and the war fever is high."—Dispatch from Lisbon, Portugal.

If war were declared, they probably would slap an attaché on the wrist and say: "Take that, rude person!" Or they might thumb their noses in the direction of Berlin.

An Englishman at the outbreak of the war wrote the admiralty office offering his motor boat, lying idle at Southampton, for national service. The reply ran: "We have already commandeered it. Come down and drive it."

Four-fifths of the barristers in the Paris law courts have been mobilized. It is presumed that Gen. Joffre exercised his usual intelligence and sent the shysters, ambulance chasers, and attorneys for both sides in the Caillaux trial to the front ranks.

"The apaches have been rounded up from the tough districts of Paris and forced to join the army."—Dispatch. The resourceful press agent again. He even gets by the censors. Of course, every one knows that the Paris apaches are property bandits, well rehearsed, whose depredations exist only in the minds of the thrill seeking American tourists.

One of the curious effects of the war will be the scarcity of glass chimneys for gas burners and oil lamps, most of which are made in Austria. But maybe we can worry along somehow.

ADD HORRORS OF WAR.

"The country, THE PEOPLE, and each arondissement THEREIN presented immediately a magnificent and marvelous spectacle of unity."—From Sam Blythe's war story in the journal alleged to have been founded by Ben Franklin.

GOODYEAR NO-RIM-CUT 34×4
ALL-WEATHER TREAD

A New Tire Day
Begins When Men Adopt No-Rim-Cuts

400,000 Know It

400,000 men—at least—have proved out and adopted Goodyear tires. They find in them a quality supreme and unvarying. They find safety and sturdiness, less trouble, more mileage.

No rim-cuts. A way we control prevents them.

Less blow-outs, because the "On-Air" cure—used by us alone—removes a major cause.

Loose tread risk reduced by 60 per cent, by a patent method we alone employ.

Less punctures—less wear—because of our double-thick, very tough All-Weather tread.

In these four ways—combating your four chief tire troubles—No-Rim-Cuts excel every other tire. Their resistless appeal will win you soon or late.

When it does, it will mean the comfort, tire security which you never can get without them. Ask any Goodyear user.

The Winter Tire

For winter use get All-Weather treads. When you know them you will use them all the year around.

They are tough and double-thick. They are flat and regular, so they run like plain treads. Their grips are sharp and resistless, and so deep that they last thousands of miles.

Other anti-skids cost more—some one-third more—than these. But a glance will tell you that All-Weather treads excel them. And every test will prove it.

The LOVE AFFAIRS of PEGGY

[Copyright: 1914: By The Tribune Company.]

Peggy, having helped the Rollins family to help themselves, looks about for other worlds to conquer and finds that she has bumped into something strange and unheard of. The screen clamors for—whom? Who shall our screen Peggy be?

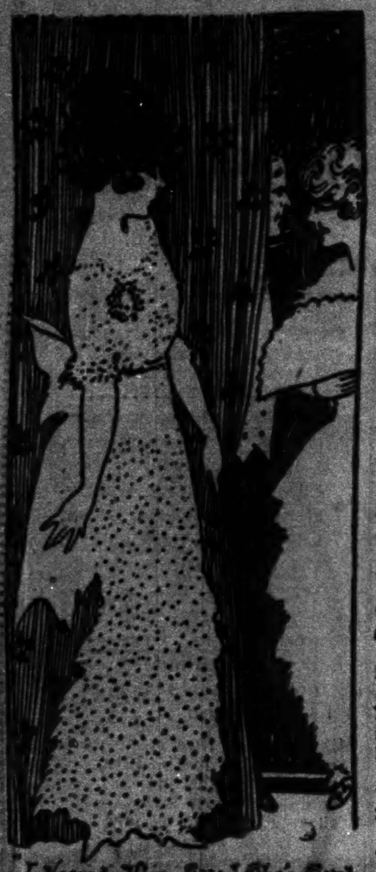
JOURNAL, when I was vurry young, it used to delight my soul to take Fox's Book of Martyrs and a dill pickle and hie me to some sheltered nook there to read and shudder delightfully for hours—never dreaming, alas, that one day I might be one of them! Bess—cat!—is the cause of it all!

No sooner did she learn that I was doing good to the Rollins family, buying flour for 'em with my fudge money and teaching 'em to make French toast, than she began to act queer. To snicker. To look owlishly wise.

"Let me help you, Peggy," she said one day. "I'll swear off marshmallows and matinees for awhile and do good with you."

"I don't object to your doing good," I told her, "but you'll have to find a family of your own. The Rollinses are mine. I got 'em first—and, anyhow, they're bashful with strangers."

Bess smiled unpleasantly. "Of course you're such an old, old friend—known 'em a week!" she said.



"I Heard Him Say: 'She's Such a Pretty Girl, It's Too Bad She's Strongminded.'"

I replied with dignity: "Time isn't everything. Don't you know that after you're dead a thousand years is like a minute?"

Bess' smile grew. "O, of course, if you're a dead one, Peggy——" she said, and that was all she said.

I couldn't think of any fitting reply at the moment. After she had gone I thought of slathers of answers that would have reduced her to utter despair. However, that is always the way. And coolness sprung up between Bess and me, though we still spoke and smiled and didn't tell anybody, and Bess still managed to be over at our house lots of times when Dr. Dulin's car stood out in front of his. And she developed a love of fresh air that kept her out on the porch. (Journal, and he never once came out while she was there! Tee-hee!)

But he came over to see dad and mother quite regularly—far be it from me to say, journal, they were not the ones he really came to see—and he gave me oodles of advice on the care of the sick and antiseptics and how to make bandages in case they'd run out of 'em in the hospitals in Europe, and took me to the Rollinses as often as he thought they needed me.

So, in spite of Bess' disappointing actions, I was quite content and began to cultivate qualities which a doctor's wife should have, when, all together and at the same time, two things happened.

Mr. Rollins got a job, and——

Dr. Dulin introduced me to his fiancée! A blonde! Far be it from me to say her hair is not natural—but I suspect henna.

However, journal, all at once I beheld my career of usefulness gobbled up by an unkind fate, and I left lamenting, with unlimited fudge money on my hands and a mad desire to do something desperate to drown my sorrow.

Mother suggested another family she had heard about, but I shook my head, a hard expression in my young eyes.

"Useless to urge me," I told her. "I am through with doing good. Just as you get attached to them they go and get independent, and, and, things——!" I gulped, turned away from her, put on my hat, and, going to the nearest candy store, invested in five pounds of candy, which, in the solitude of my room, I ate. Later it was necessary to call the doctor. I would have none of Dr. Dulin, however, journal, and it was our own matter of fact family physician who attended my case and refused to call it a case of nervous breakdown, as I had hoped he would, merely that most unromantic of cure-alls, known to our best families and many that are not our best, and departed calmly for his next case.

As I was recovering Bess came to see me, her eyes glowing with unholy delight.

"Peggy!" she gasped. "Such a piece of news!"

"What is it?" I asked—never waiting.

"Dr. Dulin—is—engaged!" she said in a loud whisper. (Journal, I thank my stars I have poise if nothing else.)

I said: "My goodness, darling, didn't you know that? I've known it for ages. S-she's a dear friend of mine!"

"O," Bess said. "How're the Rollinses?"

"Simply fine," I told her. "We got Mr. Rollins a job at last and now he and his dear little family are happy."

"O," Bess said, "so you don't have to go there any more?"

I remarked icily: "No. I have helped them to help themselves. Now they can go ahead and do it!"

"Um-hm," Bess said sulkily. "Say, Peg, I'm having a party tomorrow night and there's the grandest man to be there. You'll be sure to come, won't you? Even if you wouldn't introduce me to Dr. Dulin, I'll introduce you to Ted Barclay."

"Why, Bessie, dear," I exclaimed, "I was dying to, he just never happened ——"

"I understand," Bess said. "You'll come, won't you?"

Of course I promised—just to please her. And, I must be truthful, to please myself a little, too. You see, I had led such a sort of sequestered life while doing good. I figured I needed just some such little excitement to rouse me to a love of life again. I would wear my rose voile. Immediately I began to feel better.

Well, journal, the next night I went. It was quite a party and the young man was all that Bess had cracked him up to be. He was broad shouldered and a peachy dancer. But I noticed he sort of stood aloof from me. He seemed to find all sorts of things to say to the other girls, but when he danced with me he was terribly ill at ease, and when he did open his mouth asked me questions about Socrates and what did I think the women would do with the vote when they did get it? To which I mumbled something—knowing nothing at all regarding either subject. (I simply couldn't make him out, journal, until——)

I happened to be standing behind him and Bess. They were talking.

He said: "She's such a pretty girl, it's too bad she's strong minded."

And that Bess sighed, shook her head, and answered: "Yes, it is a pity. And she used to be so nice."

The idea that doing good for one week should make me strong minded. If there's anything I am not—it's that. You can ask my mother.

You just wait, journal. I'll fix that girl.

The Voice of the Movie Fans.

Dear Miss Tinee: I am a movie fan, a real right regular one, who cannot live without at least two or three shows a week, and I usually enjoy myself unless there is a Keystone film on the bill. There is one thing in life I resent, and that is the attitude of the Keystone company toward the American sense of humor. What do they think we are, a lot of vulgarians? Where do they get the slapstick stuff they garnish with drunkenness and serve up to us a comedy? If they think that there is anything funny about a delicate little scene where a big fat man puts his foot into the lap of a slender girl or where a doting husband steals the money out of his wife's purse in order to go out and get pickled they are surely mistaking the bump of viciousness for the bump of humor. The most objectionable thing I have ever seen on any screen or on the stage is the Keystone film called "Mr. Full and Mr. Fuller," and it is hardly of lower caliber than the rest of the Keystones. May your department live long and prosper; it is certainly great having a place where a fellow can get a thing or two off his chest.

R. S. TRAVERS.

Dear Miss Tinee: I wish so that you would interview more of the "movies" people. All those that you know and have told me about I like so much better. I feel as though I knew them through you. I wish so that I could know more of them that way. Mr. Kerrigan, for instance. So many of my friends wish you knew him and would tell them about him.

LOUISE.

Dear Miss Tinee: I certainly am registering a fearful kick on the way you have been treating us for the last two or three weeks. Your page has been getting consistently worse from Sunday to Sunday, and your many followers and admirers are getting sore. You certainly stirred up a hornet's nest for yourself when you started to answer the movie fans' questions, and the illustration at the head of your page yesterday contains more truth than poetry. Come, now, give us something good next Sunday.

Bryant Washburn

INTRODUCING Mr. Bryant Washburn, "villun-in-chief" of the Essanay concern's eastern company. Mr. Washburn, to get right down to particulars, is 25 years old, of nationality English and Danish, has dark brown hair and brown eyes, and is married—it happened quite recently, by the way—and he admits it! What do you think of that? He is five feet and eleven inches tall and weighs a hundred and forty-five pounds. Mr. Washburn has been in pictures three and one-half years, all of which time he has been in the employ of the Essanay company. Before being won over to the film and screen he was on the stage, where he appeared in "The Wolf," "The Remittance Man" with George Fawcett, and in "The Fighter." "I like pictures best, though," he says, "because I think they afford far greater opportunity to the player. My favorite photoplay is 'The Elder Brother.' The one in which I think I was best was 'Grip of Circumstance.'" Mr. Washburn was born in Chicago and is a graduate of the Lakeview high school of Chicago. He is a great out of door fan, his favorite sports being baseball and boating. "There is still lots of room for improvement in pictures," he says. "My idea for the betterment of the picture industry would be to have better stories, with more attention paid to the casting and to the little details."

Answers to Movie Fans. - By Mae Tinee.

Owing to the number of queries received and the somewhat limited space allowed for answers, it is not always possible to print information as rapidly as the writers desire it, as the letters must be answered in turn. All, however, receive careful attention.

When stamped and addressed envelopes are inclosed, Miss Tinee will be glad to answer personally any letters addressed to her. Address all queries to this department to Mae Tinee in care of this paper.

Questions that have been repeatedly answered will receive a reply only when a stamped and addressed envelope is sent.

Questions considered as ridiculous will not be answered.

Questions regarding relationship will be answered to the best of our knowledge, but we are not responsible if mistakes are made.

If you are interested in photo-play writing send a stamped and self-addressed envelope to this department for the information you desire.

AMBITIOUS ABE: I'll send you some interesting printed material on the subjects of photo play writing and how to become a photo player if you'll send me a written request for the same, accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

I. E. B.: I think Crane Wilbur's most successful picture has been "The Perils of Pauline." He was also good in "God Is Love," a photo-play adapted from Tolstoi. Francis Ford and Grace Cunard say they are not married. I believe that sometimes moving picture people do not use their own names. Ruth Stonehouse is an American. Warren Kerrigan is not married.

INTERESTED READER: Gerda Holmes was the girl you saw in "The Song in the Dark." Yes, just wasn't she a wonder in it!

SILLY LILLY: If the letter you wrote Grace Cunard was anything like the one you wrote me I don't blame her for not answering.

PINKIE: Blanche Sweet is with the Mutual company. Norma Phillips is "Our Mutual Girl." I don't remember the name of the actress you mention.

READER AND FAN: Mary Pickford is with the Famous Players company. August Carney is with the Universal company. You're welcome.

JO: Earle Williams lives in New York most of the time. He's not so vurry old.

HELEN C.: If you'll send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope I'll send you some printed material on scenario writing.

JOHN: Stamped and self-addressed envelope, please.

DAREDEVIL: You heard Jack Richardson was killed by a bomb? Well, I didn't. I don't know Mr. Cozen's age.

D. E. M.: You're not trespassing at all! Yes, the Essanay players have returned from New York.

BROWNIE: Charles Chaplin is with the Keystone company. I don't know whether or not he'd like to meet you. Maybe he'd answer your letter.

G. V. O.: No, Marguerite Snow is not Frank Farrington's wife. G. M. Anderson is married to a nonprofessional. I don't know his age. You're welcome!

A. E. D.: You would better send for a list of studios. Then you will know just where to address all your favorites.

BOTHERSOME: O, but you're not! I didn't see the play you mention. You just tell that stubborn club you belong to that I'm not a man, so there! And they'd better stop thinking me one or—beware! [Poem—did you notice?]

FLORA: You say "she" is your favorite actress, but you fail to mention her name. I'm a poor guesser, Flora!

M. I. S. C.: When one person takes the part of a number of people in a screen production it is done by the process of "doubling." It would take me too long to tell you in the paper just how this is done, but if you are enough interested to write personally, sending a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply, I'd be delighted to explain the process to you to the best of my ability.

JULIA GOLD: I have no way of obtaining a position for you, so I don't believe I shall need your picture. If you're on the stage now and like the work I'd advise you to stay there.

L. V. and M. C.: You might inquire at the offices of the Selig company, 20 East Randolph street, about a permit for visiting the plant. The Essanay company is not receiving visitors at present. The management declares they find it necessary to get some work done.

R. M. E.: Xavier.

L. B., G. R.: Harry Morey took the part of Mr. Lennox in "My Official Wife." I don't know the actor's name in the other play you mention.

In Movie Land

Can the following awful report be true? Inventor Russell E. Smith, who puts in his spare time, amounting to about eighteen hours a day, writing photoplays for the Mutual, has put across another one. He has patented a process for deceiving baby into going to sleep. Russell practices singing like a phonograph. After getting the baby going and almost out he switches on the automatic singer and sneaks away from the cradle, the innocent and unsuspecting infant falling into a deep slumber, believing that base and hypocritical dad is still lingering near.

Eight stone elephants, of life size, will adorn the massive concrete entrance of the Selig jungle zoo at Los Angeles.

Wallace Beery, the w. k. "Sweedie" in Essanay comedies, has a joke on somebody. He wears a huge diamond ring, but he also had a splendid imitation of this piece of jewelry for which he paid 10 cents. Recently some one broke into his apartment and stole the fake ring. It will be a sad disappointment when the thief learns the value of his plunder.

Carlyle Blackwell's first release under the Favorite Players' brand and through the Alco release, "The Key to Yesterday," was privately viewed by several picture men at the studio before being shipped east. It is said to be a splendidly acted picture.

Edna Goodrich will return to America early in November and work will begin on her pictures for the Jesse L. Lasky company shortly thereafter.

Francis Ford and Grace Cunard are reviving Lucille and Loubuque in a splendid romance, "The Mystery of the Throne Room," in which Grace Cunard takes the dual part of Lucille and a madcap queen. The action takes place in an imaginary European principality in which some beautiful costumes will be worn. The photoplay is written by Grace Cunard. Mr. Ford will again be the heavy.

A Thanhouser company, headed by Mignon Anderson and Morris Foster, has just returned to New Rochelle after an expedition to the Yellowstone national park, where pictures were taken which when released will bring to "movie" fans the scenic wonders of the nation's first playground.

John Bunny, "the man who has made more people laugh than any other living person," says: "I've succeeded because I made funmaking a serious, painstaking study."

There is delivered into Japan every year approximately 2,000,000 feet of film. As kissing is contrary to eastern custom all films showing players thus saluting each other are barred.

Edna Maison looks bonnie in the western costume with the picturesque hat and unruly black hair of a western girl which she assumes (not the hair, but the rest of it) in Lloyd Ingraham's "Nan of the Hills," by James Dayton. There was a time when she played many western parts and audiences like to see her return to them once in awhile.

Is Bryant Washburn the "handsomest foul fiend of pictures?" A devoted admirer of the Essanay villain recently spoke of him as such.

William Garwood writes from Santa Barbara to the effect that there is a delay in putting on his present picture owing to the recent accident to Jack Richardson, who hurt himself badly in an automobile accident. He will be able to play again in a day or two. Sydney Ayres is leaving the company so that Billy Garwood will have a new director—who, deponent sayeth not. This means that William is probably sporting in that fearsome violet suit on the shore of Santa Barbara, shocking all and sundry and having his usual good time.

Apeparances are often deceiving, but nowhere "deceivinger" than in the case of the movie villain, who is almost invariably a double dyed gentleman whose wickedness goes no deeper than his makeup. Carl Stockdale, the stock villain in the Western Essanay pictures, is reported as being one of the kindliest of men who would be widely mourned in truth if he came to any one of the ends in real life that are always being meted out to him in the pictures. Besides being [illegible] manly popular he is greatly loved by his horse and his collection of dogs, and whenever he finds a dog in distress he takes it home with him to care for it.

Dolly Larkin, who has been with Frontier for the last six months as leading woman, has closed with that company.

Edward Abeles, working in the Jesse L. Lasky film in "The Making of Bobby Burnit," was called upon in one scene to pretend to shoot a helpless farm hand. A stranger coming across Abeles in the acting of shooting, took it upon himself to crack the estimable comedian across the head with a heavy walking stick, [illegible] spoiled the whole scene and hurt like the deuce, to quote Abeles.

Adele Lane is the latest actress to be injured in pictures. The little Selig performer has been acting in several animal photoplays of late and has come through without being hurt until a short time ago, when she was doing a scene which called for her to struggle with a bear. The bear clawed her right hand in the scene and in a retake the animal mauled her left hand and arm so that she has both of her arms and hands bound and is in considerable pain. These animals are uncertain quantities.

While spending a week end with relatives at Lake Hopatcong recently, Miss Nesbitt, the leading woman of the Edison company, was given a royal reception by many of the natives and vacationists. When it was ascertained that Miss Nesbitt would visit Hopatcong for a brief holiday plans were at once formulated for a reception and dance to be given at one of the principal hotels in her honor. Upon arrival at the lake Miss Nesbitt unreluctantly accepted an invitation to attend the dance. Not anticipating any celebration or demonstration, she was astounded when her screen admirers collected in the gayly decorated ballroom and showered her with congratulations for the delightful characterizations she has displayed in the Edison films.

Ed J. Le Saint, the Selig producer, is putting on a particularly pleasing one-reeler entitled "One Traveler Returns," in which Stella Razeto takes the part of a minister's daughter, a delightful character. The plot hinges around a young man who marries a parson's daughter and who has previously had dealings with another woman, and the manner in which the latter plans revenge and how her spirit prevents the consummation is novel and absorbing. Lamar Johnstone plays the lead, Jack Macdonald an old lawyer and Adda Gleason the other woman.

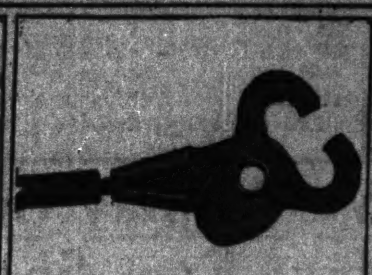
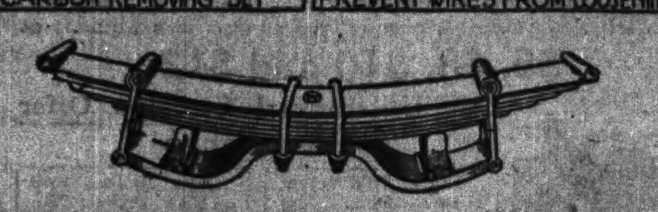
SMALL AND COMPACT CARBON REMOVING SET



SIMPLE LOCKING TERMINAL TO PREVENT WIRES FROM LOOSENING



DEVICE TO PREVENT SPRINGS FROM BREAKING THROUGH RECOIL.

THE more attention given the car that is laid up completely for the winter, the better condition it will be in in the spring, when it is to be put into service. As a matter of fact, a car that is not to be used in the winter should be placed in a shop for a general overhauling, for the repairman can take his time on the work, do a better job, and give a lower price than if the work is to be done in the spring, when the rush is on.

If the owner is mechanically inclined and has had some experience in the care of his car he can do much of the cleaning and adjusting himself, and thereby save a considerable sum of money. He can at least rid the motor and other parts from all dirt and grease and make the little adjustments that must be made. If he has a good place to work he can do a little at odd times and accomplish much that would otherwise have to be paid for.

One of the chief things to be accomplished is to clean off all accumulations of heavy grit, before it becomes baked on during the winter months; and, above all the carbon should be removed from the cylinders, so that it will not become impossible of removal. There are many concerns now that make a specialty of carbon removing through the oxygen process, which does not require the removal of the cylinders and which requires only a few moments of time. After the carbon is removed the motor should be run just enough to permit the cylinder walls to be coated with oil to prevent rusting.

Nowadays little individual oxygen outfits for carbon removing may be secured on the market, so that an owner may have the means of removing the carbon when occasion requires, and thus save both time and expense in the care of the motor.

Every part of a car should be closely inspected by the owner, cotter pins should be replaced if missing, nuts should be tightened, bolts should be replaced if worn excessively, the transmission and gear cases should be cleaned of heavy grease and kerosene run through to remove dirt, the clutch should be cleaned and in the case of a cone type it should be treated with neatsfoot oil to keep the leather soft; the car should be washed, so that no grit will remain to destroy the varnish, and then every bright part should be given a thin coating of light oil or grease to keep off the rust that will surely manifest itself before spring comes. The work of cleaning off the oil in the spring will not amount to much, but the car will be in good condition and will be well worth the trouble spent upon it in the fall.

Even the brass parts should not be neglected, for once having become black from tarnish it is almost impossible to return them to their original brightness except by the aid of a buffing wheel. Metal polish should be rubbed over all the brass in rather generous quantities and then left on, leaving a white coat that will protect the luster and make cleaning in the spring a mere matter of an ordinary job of polishing.

It is of course a good idea to cover the car with several old sheets to keep off dust, but it must be remembered that a car will sweat if in an unheated place, where the temperature changes, and it will be necessary once in a while to remove the covering so the moisture may find its way out; in this connection, it is well to air the barn or garage so that moisture may not accumulate and thus do more or less damage to the body of the machine.

Many devices have been brought out with a view of preventing the breaking of automobile springs. It is known that it is the upward thrust that breaks the spring, so that to prevent this has been the aim of all spring men. This is the reason for rebound straps, but these add such a shock as to make them undesirable except on racing cars, where comfort is never given the least consideration. Something new in this line has been invented by a California man. It consists of a long clip which has a roller on the top of the spring and a rubber buffer under each end of the clip, the buffer being lodged against the bottom leaf of the spring. In this the buffer prevents the downward motion of the spring, whereas the roller on the top prevents the recoil that is so fatal to all springs.

Inventors and designers of springs have been endeavoring for years to find some effective means of preventing recoil and at the same time not destroy the life of the spring. There have been many schemes brought out and something of the sort illustrated would seem to be somewhere near the solution of the problem, for there is unquestionably a strong demand for anything that will do the work.

Nothing is more annoying to a motorist than to suddenly find his motor missing and to discover the trifling thing of a terminal being loose or broken. It has not been an easy matter to find a means of preventing a wire from detaching itself from a plug or some other terminal point. A recent invention is a little combination clip and terminal, where a sliding part similar to a window lock serves to hold the connecting wire in place and to prevent the terminal from slipping from the plug or coil binding post, inasmuch as it locks itself around the plug in a way that precludes the possibility of jarring off.

Answers to Inquiries.

"I intend making a motorcycle trip from Chicago to Braidwood, Ill., which is on the Chicago and Alton railroad, and would appreciate some idea of the route to be taken. JOHN B. RAISLER, Chicago."

Go out Archer avenue to Summit, at this point turn right across the drainage canal and at the first cross road, with a green saloon on the right, turn sharp left. Follow this road to the first fork and turn left straight into Joliet. From Joliet there is a direct road to Braidwood, which is only a short distance.

"I noticed recently through the daily press that the General Federation of Women's Clubs had formulated plans for beautifying the Lincoln Highway from ocean to ocean. I think instead of planting flowers they would better properly mark the monument they have laid out for the martyred president. They have it marked in distress; they probably intended to mark it with the national colors, but they came a good ways from it. Let us have it marked with red, white, and blue, the national colors, instead of blue, white, and red. Let us have the national colors and nothing else. The way it is is only a distress sign, with no meaning to the marking whatever.

"G. A. D., South Chicago."

"Kindly publish in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE the best route to Vandalia, Ill., and state if possible the road conditions.

"G. C. E., Chicago."

Take Archer avenue to Summit, cross the drainage canal and take the first angling road to the left. Follow this to the first fork and bear left into Joliet. Proceed along the west bank of the canal to the first bridge, which cross. Turn immediately right and proceed through Channahon to Morris. Here cross the river and go directly to Dwight, where you will strike the Chicago road to Bloomington. From Bloomington there is a wide dragged road to Decatur. Probably the best way would be to go from Decatur through Macon to Taylorville, where you can make inquiry about a road to Vandalia. If you find no such road proceed to Litchfield and make further inquiry.

"Will you please print in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE the best automobile route from Chicago to Lancaster, O., by way of Springfield and Columbus.

"READER, Chicago."

Follow the South Bend route as given in THE TRIBUNE of Sept. 27 as far as Valparaiso. At this point take the direct road through Hanna to Plymouth. You will strike some sand near the Kankakee river, but the road is generally good in dry weather. Continue straight through Warsaw to Fort Wayne and Lima. From Lima the road is south and easterly through Bellefontaine straight to Springfield, and from Springfield it is directly east to Columbus.

"If you can inform me where to get a book of road maps and road conditions I will be highly gratified.

"H. V. GUSTAFSON, Chicago."

There are a number of reliable road books printed, and they may be found at automobile supply stores and the leading book stores of Chicago.

"Can you give me the route from Chicago to Butte, Mont.? I wish the names of the towns en route. I would also like the route from Rochester, Ind., to De Kalb, Ill. G. A. S., Rochester, Ind."

Take the Michigan road directly north from Rochester to South Bend, where you will meet the Lincoln highway. Follow this all the way to Rawlins, Wyo., and from here branch off northwesterly to Butte. De Kalb is on the Lincoln highway, so this will also be the route from Rochester to that point. The distances and a map of the Lincoln highway were published in THE TRIBUNE Sept. 6 and 13, and contain all the information desired.

"Will you give me the road to Galesburg, Ill., and also tell me where the Cannon Ball trail is?

"JOHN ALLEN, Chicago."

The Cannon Ball trail is one of the best marked trails in the middle west and runs from Chicago to Kansas City. It is the one THE TRIBUNE advises you to follow to Galesburg. The route is by way of Aurora, Mendota, Princeton, and Kewanee. Country roads are marked with cement posts, while the towns are stenciled on poles. From Chicago to Aurora this trail follows the same line of roads as the Starved Rock trail. In dry weather the roads are excellent.

"Will you kindly give me road directions from Chicago to Saugatuck, Mich., by way of St. Joseph and South Haven? I intend to make this trip on a motorcycle. Please designate gasoline stations and landmarks along the way and state what equipment I should carry for the trip. I intend to stay in Michigan two weeks, and would like to know about the license there. W. J. O., Chicago."

The road from Chicago to Saugatuck is not particularly inviting for motorcycles, inasmuch as it is rather sandy and there is no way in which you can reach these points without encountering sand. The logical route would be through South Chicago, Whiting, East Chicago, Gary, Chesterton, Michigan City, New Buffalo, and then the road close to the lake into St. Joseph, which is 117 miles. You will find good roads all the way to St. Joseph with the exception of a few miles of sand near Bridgeman. The road out of St. Joseph is through Benton Harbor to Watervliet, and then north along the shores of the lake through South Haven, and Douglas to Saugatuck. It is fifty miles from St. Joseph to Saugatuck, making the total distance 167 miles, which should easily be ridden in ten hours. The matter of equipment is more to the writer's judgment, and the motorcycle rider should know what to carry with him on a one day trip. Your Illinois license will suffice, and gasoline may be procured in any town along the way.

"Please give me the most direct route to Starved Rock and also to Milwaukee.

"H. BOWENS, Chicago."

You will strike the Starved Rock trail at the extreme end of Washington boulevard. It is marked all the way to Utica. Ottawa is about eighty-eight miles from Chicago. To get to Milwaukee go out in Sheridan road to Evanston and then follow the lake shore through Highland Park, Lake Forest, Waukegan, Kenosha, and Racine into Milwaukee.

"Please advise me as to the best road to take and the number of miles from Chicago to Hot Springs, S. D., and oblige.

Chicago to Rockford by way of Elgin, Marengo, and Belvidere, eighty-eight miles; Rockford to Dubuque, Ia., by way of Freeport, Shullsburg, Wis., ninety-four miles. From Dubuque you can take no better route than the Hawkeye trail, which extends across Iowa from Dubuque to Sioux City. The Hawkeye Highway association keeps the road dragged, which is also marked between the cities. The distance from Dubuque to Sioux City is about 348 miles. From Sioux City go north to Sioux Falls, S. D., by way of Elk Point and Beresford. The distance is eighty-six miles and the roads are good dirt practically all the day. From Sioux Falls follow the South Dakota Scenic highway to Chamberlain, going by way of Bridgewater, Mitchell, and Kimball, a run of about 150 miles. From Chamberlain follow the last half of the highway to Rapid City, a distance of some 240 miles. This run takes in the famous Bad Lands and the poles along the road are well marked with black and white bands. Take the Black and Yellow trail from Rapid City to Deadwood by way of Sturgis and Whitewood. This is one of the most scenic drives on the whole trip and is about fifty miles in length. From Deadwood take the Deadwood-Denver trail to Hot Springs by way of Sylvan Lake and Custer. This is a run of about ninety-five miles.

"Can you tell me the best route from Stratford, Ont., to Chicago? Will a motorist have to pay a license in the different states through which he travels and will he have to have a passport? He is also going to return to Canada.

"K. M., Chicago."

It is assumed you are making inquiry for a Canadian who wishes to drive to Chicago. THE TRIBUNE cannot advise about a passport; better consult Canadian authorities on the point. There must be a road from Stratford south to the Niagara Falls-Detroit road at London, but THE TRIBUNE has no data on it. It will be best to take the Detroit road at London. From Detroit the road is marked to South Bend and from that point to Chicago it is easy to find. The condition of the Canadian roads is not known at present, but is generally good. The road from Detroit to Chicago is good for the most part. From London to Detroit it is 142 miles; from Detroit to South Bend 210 miles; from South Bend to Chicago 105 miles, a total of 507 miles from London.

"Will you please let me know the best road from Chicago to North Judson, Ind.?

"FRED E., Chicago."

Chicago, South Chicago, Hammond, Highlands, Hobart, Valparaiso, Malden, and San Pierre to North Judson. It is fifty-five miles to Valparaiso and thirty-five miles to North Judson. The road is fine to Valparaiso and in dry weather it is good the rest of the way.

"Will you please give me the shortest route by motor from Chicago Heights to Mishawaka, Ind., and greatly oblige?

"HUBERT SMITH,
"Chicago Heights, Ill."

Take the Lincoln highway, which passes through Chicago Heights, and follow directly east to Mishawaka, the road being marked all the way and the distance being eighty-eight miles. You will pass through Dyer, Valparaiso, La Porte, and South Bend.

Speed Artists Break Away from Managers.

By Reed L. Parker.

DIRT track racing has come into its own. Instead of being a part of automobile sport to be frowned upon and ignored, the long distance contest over one mile circuits has become an element worth the attention of any person interested in speed contests. The reason for the sudden elevation of this particular branch of the sport is the willingness of the stars to disengage their interests from those of "managers"—men who have been promoting hippodromes and fooling the public for years.

Among those who are setting dirt track racing on a superior level are Bob Burman, Barney Oldfield, Ralph De Palma, and Ralph Mulford. Burman began his "honest driving" this year. Since he became affiliated with L. C. Erbes, Burman has quit managers and now is a driver of independent tendencies. Burman has the Peugeot that Jules Goux drove in the 500 mile race at Indianapolis this year. Since obtaining it he has set up several marks. His records have been gained without the aid of a manager, and are bona fide in every respect.

Oldfield has a manager, but the "boss" does not interfere with Barney's driving at officially open meets. Barney quit managers two years ago. Since then he has become a greater star than ever. His driving has improved, and now he is considered one of the most likely contenders at any race meet.

Mulford never has been hampered by a manager, and his escutcheon, like that of De Palma, is free of "sinister bars." Both De Palma and Mulford are driving dirt tracks independently and their presence alone insures the respectability of competition. De Palma has his Mercedes with which he won both races at Elgin this year, and Mulford now is affiliated with the Duesenberg team.

At Kalamazoo last Saturday De Palma and Burman hooked up in a 500 mile race, Burman winning. De Palma was forced to withdraw in the thirty-fifth lap while in the lead. On Wednesday, Oct. 14, Mulford, De Palma, and Burman will clash in what probably will be the greatest dirt track meeting of the year, at Galesburg, Ill. They will race for 100 miles. A substantial purse has been offered by the promoters. Besides, the three stars a number of drivers of lesser experience have been entered. The Galesburg meet should be the best of the year.

A suggestion to establish a national press bureau for the distribution to magazines and newspapers of progressive industrial news has been made in a letter written to James H. Fahey, president of the national chamber of commerce, by H. C. Bradfield of the Cole Motor Car company of Indianapolis. Claiming that such a bureau at this time would be one of the greatest assets for industrial development in the United States, Mr. Bradfield suggests in his letter that from ten to fifteen men be gathered in an organization in Washington, D. C., to give to the public real, live, progressive industrial news, which, he maintains, would eliminate pessimism, encourage capital, and probably result in the establishment in the United States of lines of business which would make products formerly imported into this country from Europe.

Letters of protest against the tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline, naphtha, and other similar products provided in the war revenue bill that was passed in the house of representatives have been addressed to members of the senate by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. The chamber points out that this is an excessive tax of 15 to 20 per cent on a necessity and not a luxury, that the great majority of automobiles today are bought and used by farmers and others of moderate means, and that the tax will fall upon the consumer and not the producer of gasoline. Attention is also called to the fact that this tax will fall directly upon commercial, manufacturing, and agricultural industries and will increase the cost of the necessities of everyday life, since approximately 100,000 motor trucks and delivery wagons are used by manufacturers, by wholesale and retail dealers in coal, groceries, meats, dry goods, and clothing, and by department stores, produce dealers, farmers, truck gardeners, and dairymen. The senators are reminded that in most states automobile owners pay a personal property tax on their cars and trucks and also a heavy tax annually under the guise of a "registration fee," which amounts in the aggregate to upwards of $10,000,000 a year. The fuel tax will be a third heavy burden and in some cases a fourth, since in some counties and cities an additional special tax is exacted for local road and street improvement.

In the appointment of R. D. Chapin and S. D. Waldon on its good roads committee, the national chamber of commerce insures a continuance of the active work that has been carried on during the last year toward the advancement of road building and the education of the public to the reasons why road improvement is beneficial to every one. Among other things the good roads committee points to some of its activities as follows: Formulated a good roads platform or declaration of principles favoring the construction of permanent roads, which was adopted by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce; coöperated with the Lincoln Highway association in promoting a transcontinental route for which subscriptions aggregating about $5,000,000 have been obtained; supported activities of the American Automobile association in favor of federal legislation for road improvement, the creation of state highway commissions, and other good roads work; coöperated with the American Highway association, American Automobile association, and various state associations in promoting and conducting annual national good roads conventions.

M. L. Pulcher of the Federal Motor Truck company and P. D. Wagoner of the General Vehicle company have been added to the commercial vehicle committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the other members of which are: Windsor T. White [White], chairman; Alvan Macauley [Packard], and H. Kerr Thomas [Pierce-Arrow].

A remarkable advance in the construction of portable wireless sets for army field service has been made by the signal corps of the army. For the next field operations of the army there is available a wireless truck which can be set up for use in twelve minutes and send messages within a radius of 800 miles under favorable conditions. The truck was built specially for the signal corps by the White company of Cleveland. In tests that have already been made this set has received messages from points 2,000 miles distant. The great range of the new equipment and the speed with which it may be brought into action is due to the employment of a powerful electric generator driven through a train of gears by the thirty horse power motor of the truck.

With the exception of a tendency toward conservative buying on the part of automobile purchasers, the European war has affected the automobile trade to a small extent in the east, according to I. Philip, general sales manager for Dodge Bros. Mr. Philip has just returned from a two weeks' trip to New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and other eastern points and is enthusiastic over prospects for the coming year.

The King Motor Car company of Detroit announces that its young racing driver, Arthur Klein, who has been performing exceptionally well in his car on the west by winning a number of valuable prizes, has entered the Corona road race, the Los Angeles-Phoenix road race, and the Panama-Pacific road race. In addition to the above events Klein has also been entered in the Grand Prix and Vanderbilt cup races.

On Oct. 1 C. P. Henderson became associated with the Cole Motor Car company as general manager of sales and advertising. R. P. Henderson, his brother, also joined Cole as assistant to C. P. Henderson. The Cole advertising remains under the direction of Homer McKee, who will handle it as a representative of a Chicago advertising agency. McKee remains in Indianapolis and there will be no break in the continued exploitation of the standardized Cole.

A special dividend of 10 per cent on the common stock of the Chandler Motor Car company, the second common stock dividend paid within ninety days, has been declared, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock. Besides the dividends already declared the company increased its surplus out of earnings to an amount equal to its original cash capital.

RAYFIELD CARBURETORS

Will the Model G Rayfield lower your gasoline bills?

Yes; at least 10% to 50%.

PROBABLY you know that your carburetor pretty nearly governs the amount of gasoline you use.

What you may not know is that the Model G Rayfield is absolutely guaranteed to save you enough in fuel bills to pay for itself in a short time.

We know that the Model G Rayfield is the best carburetor in the world; best at every point. With the Rayfield on your car, you will not only cut your gasoline bills decidedly, but your car will have a speed, a power, a getaway quick as a cat, which will open your eyes to what a real automobile should be.

The Rayfield can be put on any car and is guaranteed to excel at every test.

It only requires a very short time in order to put on a Rayfield. Any good mechanic can install and adjust it.

For particulars, apply to a dealer, your garage man, or Negligent or improper adjustment has ruined many automobile bearings and is liable to result in scored shafts, stripped gears and big repair bills.

Hyatt Quiet Bearings are non-adjustable, as the hollow flexible rollers give just enough under load to make them less subject to wear—hence there is no necessity of adjustment.

This is only one of the "care free service" features of Hyatt Roller Bearings.

Two books, one about motor car bearings in general for prospective purchasers, the other for automobile owners, will be sent on request.

1915 Overland $1075

Model 80
F. O. B. Toledo

Every Advanced Feature

But No Advance In Price

THE new Overland has one of the most advanced and most admired body designs of the season. The full sweeping stream lines are clean cut, trim, uninterrupted and perfectly proportioned. A slightly sloped hood, a perfectly rounded radiator edge and gracefully crowned fenders add both charming grace and excellent taste to this smart model.

The new Overland has a larger tonneau. You know how cramped and uncomfortable three adults usually are in the average car. There is plenty of room in the 1915 Overland—ample for three large people and enough length for the tallest.

The new Overland has the most advanced and most practical type of rear springs. They are of a new design, underslung, and much longer than heretofore. Being unusually flexible, their action absorbs all road shocks and rut jolts, and perfectly smooth riding is the comfortable consequence.

The new Overland has the most advanced electric lighting and electric starting system. All electric switches are conveniently located on steering column—directly in front of the driver. No stretching forward or bending down. Every electrical control is right at your hand.

The new Overland has the most advanced ignition system. A high tension magneto is used which is independent of the starting and lighting unit. On most popular priced cars the cheaper battery system is furnished. As the magneto long ago demonstrated its superiority over the battery ignition, even though it costs considerably more, the Overland is equipped with a magneto.

The new Overland has larger wheels and tires. 34 inch x 4 inch all around, with demountable rims, mean minimum tire expense, minimum tire trouble, and maximum riding comfort.

Yet, in spite of these and numerous other advanced and costly features the price has not been advanced.

Orders are now being taken for immediate delivery.

Here are some of the big features

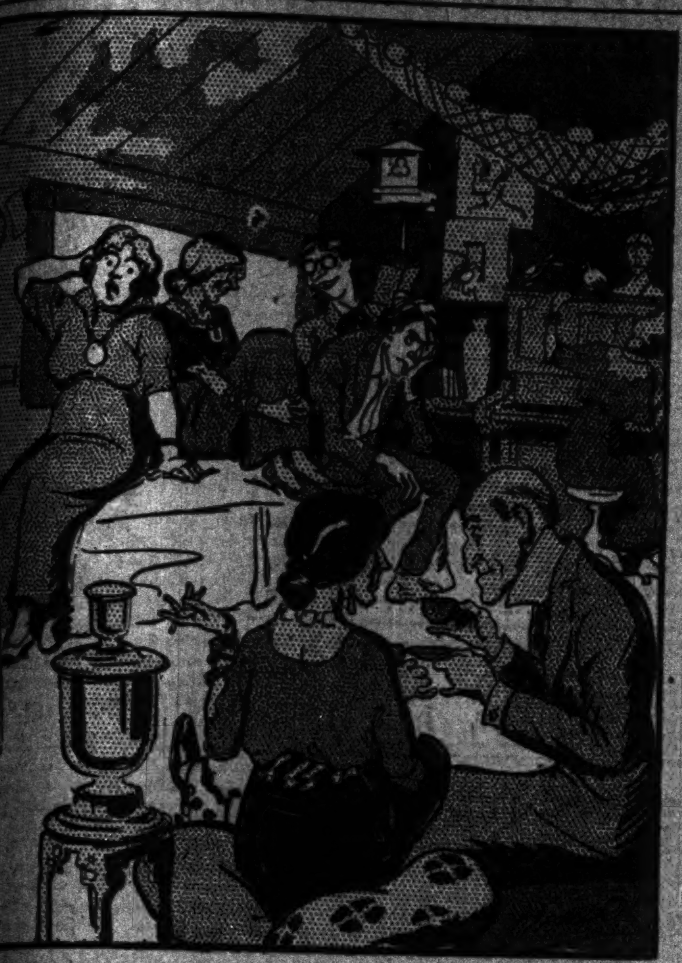
Yes, Sir-ree, There's Real Bohemia in Chicago.



By Burton Rascoe.

FOR the sake of anonimity, let me give his name as Raoul. Raoul is romantic, artistic, paint brushy, palettey. It exudes Bohemia. All the romance of Du Maurier, all the [illegible] art is all assumption of Trilby, and the exquisite nothing matters philosophy of "In the Brave Days When I was [illegible]" is contained in that one supreme achievement in nomenclature. That his real name is more Anglo-Saxon than John Smith is irrelevant—almost irreverent, for he piloted me into more night life than I had ever dreamed of in my Chicago.

That the left bank of the Seine before the American invasion might be duplicated and improved in this precocious youth of town which has its grip upon a large share of the world's commerce; that the studentenleben of Munich and Leipzig and Vienna before the European war might be visualized and made permanent in this city of iron and steel and pork and [illegible], these things I ne'er had wot of.

Of course, I had played poker with Steve in Hitchcock hall on the Midway and had [illegible] argument about it and about. I had gazed with esthetic raptures upon the trophies of after victory stews—scraped from their places before press-establishments, barber shops, beaneries, clothing stores, and tobacco shops. A bench with the sign "Wet Paint" [illegible] upon it, and a quadrangular glass case with various makes of collars [illegible], showed the rare and artistic discrimination of Steve. A broken wheel [illegible] seven passenger touring car hung in the middle of a cluster of pennants; posters from Le Rire and Simplicissimus [illegible] with enviable taste; girls' handkerchiefs, fans, ribbons, baseball masks, chest protectors, tennis racquets and football helmets—all arranged with the additional view of obscuring every inch of wall paper—these I had gazed upon and [illegible] it as truly typical of American college life.

I had eaten the abominable spaghetti, drunk the more abominable wine, inhaled the most abominable alleged Turkish cigarets, and listened to the superlative abominable ragtime raucousity of innumerable cellar table d'hôte restaurants, whither I had been led in search of "true Bohemia."

I had seriously overdrawn upon my imagination in various and sundry summer gardens, trying conscientiously to kid myself into believing I was having a good time; but every time my efforts went to naught through the incessant efforts of the pleasure seekers to drown out the music with their conversation and the music director trying valiantly to prevent them, making an unpalatable hash of Wagner's "Götterdämmerung" scores and a sirenic blast of the soothing chords of Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody.

I had familiarised myself with every cabaret, bierstube, rathskeller, and dance hall from Wilson avenue to Seventy-first street. I had wandered through the bland shades of Washington and Jackson parks with numerous mädchens, drinking in the medley of expanse of lake, expanse of sky, and expanse of gasoline scented air. I had made suave and courtly love to coeds and stenos, here, there, and everywhere. Natürlich, had I sipped cocktails with a professor of music in a tiled floor inn. Vraiment, had I spent joyous hours in Evanston, that prim spinster which surreptitiously boasts a modicum of elan.

Yea, I had done all these things and more. I had drunk Turkish coffee and drawn silently and cautiously many aromatic whiffs from a water pipe in a Greek kaffaneon, while descendants of Pericles and Leonidas played at backgammon and defied tomorrow. A block and a half further south—Italy, Greece, Zion, and Poland are separated by acute and arbitrary boundaries on our west side—I had eaten macaroni and swallowed diluted red wine while a son of Naples coaxed sentimental notes from an accordion.

I had run the gantlet of barbaric Chicago, natural Chicago, lively Chicago, Funkhouser raided Chicago, lovely, cosmopolitan, drab Chicago, and I had emerged with few bumps of satisfying impressions. I had knocked at the door of the cognoscenti, been admitted, and left after an evening with nothing more than a Gertrude Stein phantasmagoria of shop talk, ragtime, war talk, words betokening professional jealousy, and sentimental flubdub. I had found nothing in all my industrious seekings to prevent my being constantly reminded that I was in Chicago, a city populated by 3,000,000 persons, of whom an unfair proportion are slave drivers, politicians, time clock punchers, wearers of canes, imitation Persian lamb overcoats, and rented dress suits, or persons without an idea in their heads, of persons adept in the fine art of fourflushing.

But Raoul—grave, studious, all-knowing youth—told me Marco Polo tales that set my nerves atingle with excitement; and what's more, he led me to this fairyland, which lies within so many blocks from that busiest of crossings, State and Madison streets.

I shan't give the exact location. There is too much possibility of it being ruined, commercialized, made common by an overflow of those puerile minded individuals to whom "slumming" is a diversion. Suffice it to say that it is one of those several groups of studios where persons youthful in body and more youthful in spirit sacrifice their all for art, work and play unceasingly, eat and drink as much and as often as they can, and let smug respectability go hang.

I am flush this evening and am set on hailing a taxi. But Raoul says let's walk it and walk it we do. We have been to the theater and we have dined sumptuously on a porterhouse two inches thick and topped it off with the right liquor. We are joyously diposed. We haven't a kick coming anywhere. The hoary old fraud who "wants to go to South Chicago to go to work and hasn't the fare" gets a dime from each of us, and hobbles up to the next corner to repeat his story twice three hundred times.

Soon we have found ourselves in a large and spacious room, whose ceiling contains a wide expanse of skylight. To one side is a fireplace with a mantle full to overflowing with plaster casts. To another side a modeling stand surmounted with a figure swathed in damp cloths. All around paintings, sketches, posters, caricatures, bric-a-brac, pillows, mandolins, ukalalees, odds and ends from all quarters of the globe. In one corner a samovar set upon a Japanese stand. In another corner a piano, removed for the evening from a studio down the hall, whose top serves as pantry and buffet.

In the center, Frank, host extraordinary, possessor of one of the niftiest ateliers in Chicago, the prime mover in this night of revelry. On the divan (let's not give their real names), first Primy, late of the chorus of the Chicago Grand Opera company, who aspires to a prima donnaship and is willing to work for it; next Teenie, painter of miniatures, who at this moment has no less than three commissions and prospects for many more; next Bob, portrait painted by inclination, who sketches fashions as a living necessity; next Terry, mural painter with three medals to his credit and with less than three quarters in his pockets or elsewhere; Julia, a writer of verse and magazine stories, who has no more business to be there than I; and Frank's model, who presently will act as serving maid.

I am introduced and asked if I am clever. I admit it, else how could I ever have gained admittance to the sanctum of such a clever company.

Having thus acquitted myself creditably in repartee, I draw an engraved cigaret case from my waistcoat pocket and extract therefrom a roll of my lady nicotine's masterpiece, delicate and slim as a houri's fingers, ecstatically delightful from the first deep inhale, sweet and mild as wine fresh from the presses on the Lacaedaemonian hills.

"Vulgar man," is the comment from the boyishly attired Teenie.

"Why vulgar," I inquire, lighting up.

"For two reasons preëminently and for a score of reasons correlatively," she smiles and draws. "First among these, you wear a waistcoat, an expression of the bourgeois as undeniably a stamp of convention as an umbrella. Waistcoats are for dress clothes only—they become hybrids when used as the accouterments of tweeds and serges—and dress suits are the national emblem of the bourgeoisie. Second, you smoke Turkish cigarets, a sign of lack of discrimination, a crying from the housetops that you are of and part of the club, the crowd, the gang, the group that goes wild over the absurd adaptation of God Save the King, that thrills over the unhand me villain scenes in the movies. There is only one cigaret tobacco and it is Egyptian, the pure leaf from the Upper Nile valley, mellowed and fragranted by the sun that smiles upon the apex of Cheops."

In a moment I have chucked away my cigaret and am in shirtsleeves drawing deeply from a creation that came from the German silver case of Teenie. Frank is playing a Chopin nocturne with feeling. Bob listens through it with his hands deep in his trousers pockets, his eyes turned dreamily upward. The rest of us are equally quiet if not so obviously posing. Bob is called wittily to task for his attitudinizing.

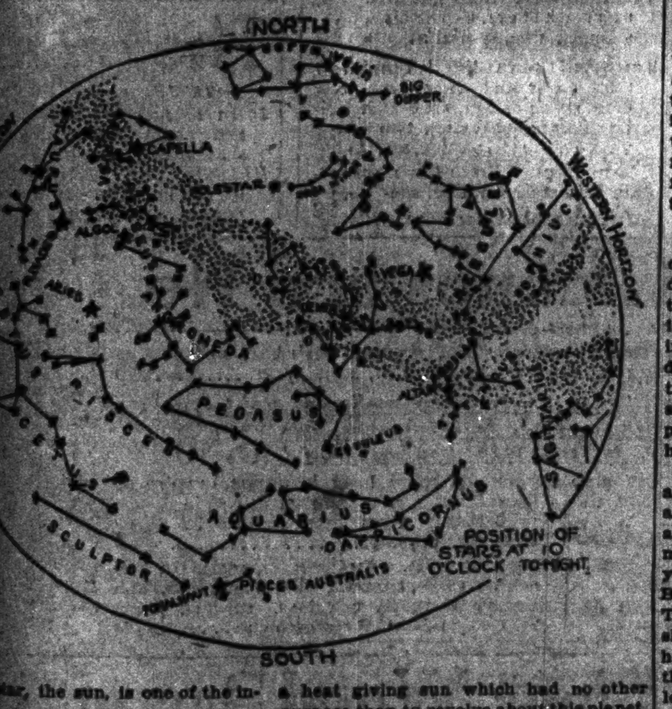
There is a song by Primy from Mignon, a violin solo by Raoul, dancing, gayety, and then coffee and cookies and wine are served. If you prefer wine alone, you may take wine; if you prefer coffee alone, you may have it. Because you are in Bohemia you don't have to be a Bohemiac. The table? None other than Bob's sketching easel brought from down the hall and covered with a clean sheet from the scanty bed linen of Frank's atelier lodgings. And there is conversation.

Ah, there's the resistance piece of the evening. Clever, witty, spicy. No quotations from Oscar Wilde and Bernard Shaw given as original; no twisting of ancient saws—vide, "a rolling stone is worth two in the bush"—to give a semblance of wit; no ready made opinions rattled off like memorized recitations. But natural, original, ravishingly delightful conversation. Easy, intelligent, pungent discussion of art, literature, and life. An adorable frankness to it all. Laughter unrestrained when one feels like it; undeterred impulses. The inspiring conversation of brilliant, impecunious young persons who firmly believe they are going to make names for themselves in this world and are going to have a good time doing it; the unselfish praise and the equally unselfish criticism of one another. This is truly a feast of reason and a flow of soul.

They have pooled together to buy this wine and coffee and cookies and something from everyone's—excepting myself and Julia's—atelier has contributed to the artistic coziness of the studio. The occasion for the celebration: Primy out of a job has been awarded a lyceum contract. The real reason: Birds of a feather love each other's company.

I have absorbed something of the Quartier Latin philosophy—"tomorrow can go hang, I'll be famous day after tomorrow"—for it is already tomorrow. And the hazy gray and blue rises from the lake and the milk peddlar has reached my home e'er have I.

ASTRONOMY.



OUR star, the sun, is one of the inferior powers of the universe. The white star, Capella, which you can see in the northeast, is an immensely superior sun and nearly all the points of sparkling incadescence in the sky are greater stars than our own.

Until this fact has taken the imagination as well as the mind, the heavens have not stamped their significance on our perceptions. When they have so stamped themselves, then the mind is free for consideration of the mysteries and beauties of space, of the mechanics and poetry of the motion of incomprehensibly immense bodies with precise regularity through limitless range.

Our star, the sun, and his family of planets, travels this range at the rate of [illegible] miles a day. The direction of its movement is known, its progress [illegible]. The points towards which it is directed are no nearer.

The vastness of the solar system is less than a button on the Atlantic. Obviously a button driven by a steady force would, after whatever lapse of time, ultimately cross the ocean. The solar system, traveling at enormous speed, humanly considered, for countless centuries, is nowhere.

Our globular mass of flaming gasses is one of the small stars such as you may see dimmed by the radiance of Capella [illegible] or Aldebaran. When men were content to believe that the earth was the center of the universe, served by a heat giving sun which had no other purpose than to revolve about this planet, there was a revolt of human egotism against intelligence. Humanity refused to submit to any such conception of inferiority. Offending scientists were punished and humans maintained their egotistic theories.

When they were asked to believe that the sun was a midge in space the sheer incomprehensibility of such immensity saved the mind from a staggering revolt and even now it generally resists the facts in stubborn defense of the egotistic conception of the universe.

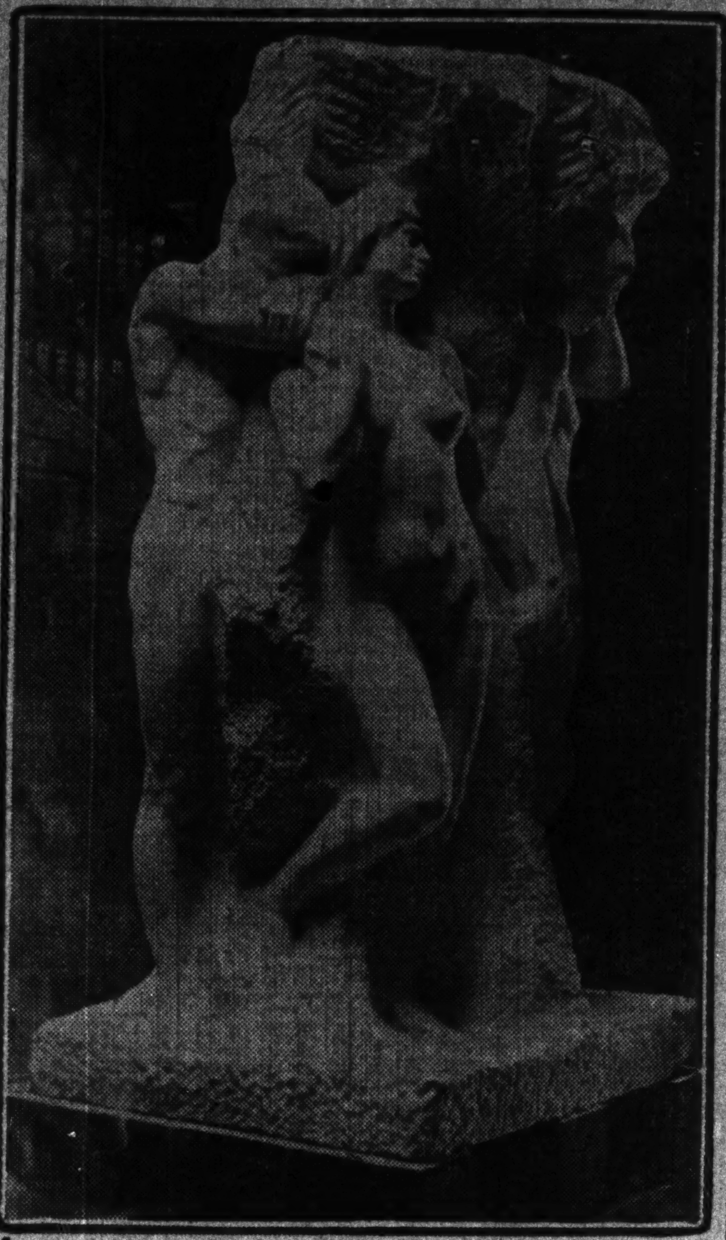
This is a favorable time of the year to test the comprehensibility of the heavens. The great suns which jem the winter sky now arise late in the evening in the northeast and east, scarcely dimmed by the moonlight — Capella, Aldebaran, the Pleiades and, towards midnight, the stars of Orion, Betelgeux, and Rigel, and the twins, Castor and Pollux.

It is the beginning of a splendid march across the heavens by the mightiest suns.

Early in the evening, soon after sunset, the two great planets of our own system, Venus and Jupiter, can be seen in the west and south, asking no favors even of the full moon, earth's satellite.

It is a good time for a study in comparisons. The nights have autumn crispness but are not too cool for comfortable observation, and even if the moon prevents the fullest display of stars there is opportunity for a test of the mind to give entrance to the true proportions of the universe.

Art and Artists.



"THE SOLITUDE of the SOUL BY LORADO TAFT.

Lorado Taft's "Solitude of the Soul" has found a permanent home in the Art institute. It was purchased by the Friends of American Art. Work on the marble copy of the plaster was finished the last part of the week under the direction of Mr. Taft.

"I don't know whether the idea is adequately expressed," said Mr. Taft in explaining the work. "The idea came to me while I was modeling a bust of Susan B. Anthony. A friend of hers had written an article about the absolute detachment which no individual can overcome. I found out afterward that the article was called 'The Solitude of Self,' but that makes little difference."

In spite of Mr Taft's expressed doubts concerning the work, it took medals at the St. Louis and the Buffalo expositions. Crowds watched the completion of the marble. It was being done with compressed air chisels.

"I guess some of the Greeks would have been glad to use compressed air," remarked the sculptor. "If all their orations had been turned into air it might have been advantageous."

ACTIVITIES at the Art institute began last Thursday with the opening of the thirteenth annual exhibition of industrial art. The plans for the year are still somewhat indefinite, chiefly because importation of pictures from abroad has become hazardous if not impossible. The German exhibit which was to have been held during the winter has been definitely given up. The next exhibition will be the annual oil painting exhibit, which is to open on Nov. 3 and continue to Dec. 6. December and January have not been arranged for.

The present exhibit has for its object apparently the guiding of wasted energy into more profitable and artistic channels. One example is the work of the wives of Calumet (Mich.) miners. All of them know how to crochet and have patience. Under the direction of two women they have this year entered a creditable exhibit. Work of Hungarian potters and weavers, a collection of tapestries and weavings made by the Hertier looms in New York, and a collection of old samplers are probably the features of the exhibit. The exhibit of the Saturday Evening Girls, now the makers of the Paul Revere pottery, is an example of what the backers of the movement hope to be able to do in other phases of domestic art.

About 2,000 artists of considerable success are reported to have left Paris and to be now at the front. An association has been formed in Paris to take care of their families, as well as the families of sculptors, artisans, and male models, which are now left without support. Those of the artists who survive may give us pictures of the new kind of war in which a man may be at the front months and see none of the enemy except those lying dead on the field.

Why They Laugh at Vaudeville.

PALACE.

Ray Raymond and Florence Bain:

How is it you are out so late tonight?

Well, you see, I was motoring home with Percy and it broke.

What broke—Percy?

You must be intoxicated.

Well, if I'm not I've been cheated.

If I were to throw you a kiss what would you say?

I would say you were the laziest man I ever saw.

If you refuse to marry me I will blow out my brains.

That will be a joke on father.

How, so?

Well, he thinks you haven't any.

Don't put your arm around my waist.

Why, what will you do?

Call for help.

I won't need any help.

Indian Summer.

THAT variable season, Indian summer, impends or is here, as you choose to accept it. Any pleasant spell of weather after the autumnal equinox, when the sun has dropped below the equator and the nights have more hours than the days, can, if it be warm in the light and chill in the shadows, a-shimmer with haze and coming to colors, be Indian summer.

Characteristics of Indian summer have been noted at dates as variant as September 27 to December 13. We like best to place it after a touch of frost or an early flurry of snow, after a few days of premature winter. Many old folks know this untimely flash of winter as "squaw winter" and will not recognize the existence of Indian summer until they have had a few days of bluster, chill, and frost succeeded by the placid, warm, hazy charm of serene days, a prelude before the storms.

St. Martin's summer was this halcyon time to the French. It fell late in the year, November 14. English colonists in America had in their own calendar. All Hallown summer, which began November 1, and St. Luke's summer—St. Luke's day falling on October 18. They changed from these old English calendar days to the Indian summer of their new surroundings. The Scotch had Goose summer and the Germans Old Wives summer and "Nachsommer."

The sumac reddens and blackens; communities of birds alight in the woods in the morning and are gone by evening, the shag bark hickory is stripped; the maple is yellow and red; the oak shows a flash of color; the wild goose is coming back; days are warm; nights are chill; frost impends.

"One impulse from a vernal wood

The Gardener at Work.

AT Michaelmas in the garden the time is divided between pleasure among the hardy chrysanthemums, the violet and white Michaelmas daisies, the velvet frilled late marigolds, and the lingering cosmos, verbenas, petunias, and whatever annuals saved from the chilly nights, and the work for next season with the peonies and other perennials, and renewing the stock of evergreens, shrubs, and shade trees.

Whether one has only a 25x25 back yard patch or a suburban estate, the same facts hold true. The peonies and herbaceous perennial borders must be enriched, and it is a good plan to introduce new plants every year while dividing old stock. Perennial phlox, dicentra, or bleeding heart and campanula may be planted now.

After preparing the beds vacated by plants out of season, sow the seeds of the annual poppy, candytuft, calendulas, and other hardy annuals. Certain friends of sweet peas believe that sowing in the fall is better than waiting until March. Poppies certainly appreciate a long winter in the ground, and if abundant seed is sown now it will have a chance to root and begin early to grow in the spring.

Potted geraniums, ferns, and begonias should be taken in the house while the windows are still kept open. If permitted to be chilled out of doors it is more difficult to acclimate them to the interior and they are likely to wither and lose color. A south window is best, but any window having some sunshine will support plant life.

Bulbs grown in pots or pans can be depended upon to bloom, and the periods can be regulated by taking them from the dark at different times. The best results are secured by putting several bulbs in the same pot. A seven inch pot will hold four hyacinths or tulips or daffodils, and the effect will be much finer than the same number of bulbs potted singly. Single hyacinths and tulips are more satisfactory than the double for winter flowering, and the large flowering daffodil succeeds as well as the smaller varieties. Always buy large bulbs in preference to smaller, and firm, solid ones not long out of the earth. It weakens a bulb to lie in the light and grow dry.

Having chosen your bulbs, fill pots or pans with a rich, mellow soil. If it is a mixture of loam, sand, and manure, work it over until it is fine. Bulbs cannot stand richly manured ground. Fill the pots quite full of earth and press the bulbs just below the surface. Water them well to settle the earth and set them in a dark place, a cellar or storeroom, but not in an airless closet, where they begin to form roots. If light filters in it excites the plant to make leaves and flowers before it is ready to do so. If well watered at first and put in a cool place they need not be touched for a month. Then, if the earth is dry, give enough water to moisten all the soil. Take out about the middle of November or later and set in the window. By bringing bulbs to the light in succession bloom may be had from Thanksgiving until long after the holidays or until spring.

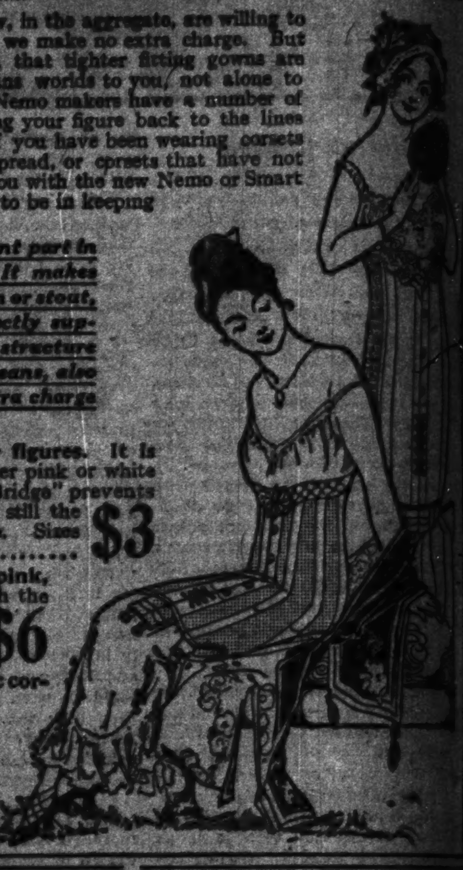
The Corset Is Not a Complex Problem

Third Floor—Center

if you understand it properly, but so few women do, and so few, in the aggregate, are willing to spend the few moments extra required for fittings even though we make no extra charge. But if you stop to consider that a change is gradually coming, that tighter fitting gowns are here, you'll find that the proper corset properly fitted means worlds to you, not alone to your figure but to your health and complexion as well. The Nemo makers have a number of new models in both Nemo and Smart Set Corsets that will bring your figure back to the lines it should have, the natural curves, not the corsetless effect. If you have been wearing corsets insufficiently boned, corsets that have permitted the figure to spread, or corsets that have not correctly supported the figure, have our expert corsetieres fit you with the new Nemo or Smart Set models, which, in white or flesh color, are dainty enough to be in keeping with the finest lingerie.

The right corset correctly fitted plays a very important part in providing for good health as well as good looks. It makes little difference whether a woman is slender, medium or stout, her health is seen to suffer if her body is not correctly supported. Our corsetieres thoroughly understand the structure of the body and what correct abdominal support means, also where a corset should be snug or where not. No extra charge is made for this superb fitting service.



Nemo corset, style 305, is designed for medium or slender figures. It is made of fine quality pink striped or white batiste with either pink or white embroidered polka dots. The bust is low, but the Nemo "Bridge" prevents any danger of the corset "digging in," very lightly boned, still the bones are so arranged that they correctly support the figure. Sizes to 28, at.............................. $3

Nemo Smart Set corsets, made of batiste in a dainty pink, stripping of pink satin, dainty enough to be in keeping with the finest lingerie and will be a delight to those who desire a corset that is beautiful as well as durable, fashionable and comfortable. Sizes to 30, choice.............. $6

It remained for the Nemo corset folks to perfect the elastic corset. Women who have worn elastic corsets know that up to now even the best have been far from perfect. They have missed their purpose. They perhaps have graceful, natural lines during their first few wearings, then they stretch and bulge in spots. This Nemo model does not, because it is not entirely elastic. It gives but does not stretch. It is made of Lastikops cloth, a new open ventilating weave. Sizes to 30, at $10

Fascinating Styles in Millinery

Second Floor—State Street

Hats Trimmed Free

Women who want the correct new millinery modes come here for them, for they know full well they can be had here at prices far lower than others ask. Hats are pretty this season; some are large, others fit close to the head, making up for small diameter in altitude. Made of velvets—ostrich plumes, curled or "treated" so they bear no resemblance to the original, metallic flowers, flat feather effects, furs, etc. are the trimmings. A truly wonderful display, everywhere else similar styles are selling for $10 to $12, special at $6

At $3.45 you'll find pretty hats for street wear, sailors or turbans, chiefly of black velvet, smartly trimmed with feather fancies or flowers, worth $6, Monday, special, 3.45

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Several complaints have recently been made to the American Railway Bureau that certain employment agents have been collecting advance registration fees and sending applicants to employers who claim never to have asked such agents for help; also that such agents have advertised many positions believed to be purely fictitious.

And as it is a violation of the Illinois statutes for an employment agent to send an applicant to any employer without first obtaining a direct, bona fide order from the employer, or for an agent to advertise any except bona fide positions, a concerted effort is under way by Chicago business men to rid the employment business of such methods—if found to exist.

You, who have paid registration or advance fees to employment agents during the last 60 days without obtaining employment, are invited to call and give the facts to our MR. LEHAN, Monday, without cost or publicity.

AMERICAN RAILWAY BUREAU,
904 Straus Bldg. 6 No. Clark-st.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Several complaints have recently been made to the American Railway Bureau that certain employment agents have been collecting advance registration fees and sending applicants to employers who claim never to have asked such agents for help; also that such agents have advertised many positions believed to be purely fictitious.

And as it is a violation of the Illinois statutes for an employment agent to send an applicant to any employer without first obtaining a direct, bona fide order from the employer—or for an agent to advertise any except bona fide positions—a concerted effort is under way by Chicago business men to rid the employment business of such methods—if found to exist.

You, who have paid registration or advance fees to employment agents during the past 60 days without obtaining employment, are invited to call and give the facts to our Mr. Lehan, Monday, without cost or publicity.

West Ravenswood

SELLS ITSELF.

No "boom talk" predictions of future value or of what WILL happen is needed to sell our homesites.

IT IS ONLY NECESSARY TO COME OUT AND SEE THE PROPERTY.

ITS DESIRABILITY AND WORTH ARE SELF-APPARENT. THIS "HEALTH SUBURB" IS AS NEAR TO THE IDEAL AS YOU HAVE EVER HOPED TO FIND.

If you have seen other subdivisions and have been disappointed; if you have listened until your head ached to the "future prospects talk," come out today and allow us to drive you through our properties. Let us show you a district with a "present," instead of one with but the POSSIBILITY of a "future."

LOTS 30X125, WITH ALL IMPROVEMENTS IN AND PAID FOR, ARE SELLING AS LOW AS $650. The Ravenswood branch of the N. W. L. [Western-av. station] is right at the entrance of the subdivision. You have 5 different means of transportation at your service; you can get to the Loop in 26 minutes. All the comforts of the home lover are yours at West Ravenswood.

DICKINSON PARK

N. W. CITY SUBDIVISION.

Buy a lot in Dickinson Park subdivision and reap the advantage of the constant growth of property values. This is a NEAR subdivision, well within the city, right in the heart of the Northwest Side development, just off the intersection of the Milwaukee-av., Cicero-av., and Irving Park-blvd. car lines, between Irving Park-blvd., Lawler, Berteau, and Cicero-avs.

Every foot of this ground has its substantial value established. All city improvements are in. The location, neighborhood, and transportation make this section ideal for home buyers, business men, and investors.

Only the most modern homes and best type of flat buildings surround this property, and there are building restrictions on every street. A beautiful small city park, already developed, is located within this subdivision and known as Dickinson Park.

The Milwaukee-av. and Irving Park-blvd. cars run through this property and for miles beyond. The Cicero-av. cars run to it. To see these desirable lots, take any of the above cars and get off at Milwaukee-av. and Irving Park-blvd.

Dickinson Park subdivision offers you big residence lots, 33x125, at $900 to $1,400.

Business lots fronting on Milwaukee-av., affording splendid opportunities, $100 per foot.

Make only a small cash payment, balance long terms.

Come out and see this property Sun., Oct. 4th. If you are unable to come out, write or phone for plats.

FOR SALE—

BROADWAY ESTATES ADDITION TO MAYWOOD.

The place to buy a suburban home site, poultry farm, fruit farm, or garden tract.

Broadway Estates Addition to Maywood is located to reap the advantage of the constant growth of population and property values.

There is probably as good a chance to buy land in and around Chicago today as ever existed, and the city and suburbs are no doubt developing faster now than ever before.

FOR SALE—

MAYWOOD HALF ACRE LOTS.

CHOICE HOME SITES IN BEAUTIFUL SEMINARY ADDITION.

Comprising 160 acres of high residential property, uniformly restricted to prevent undesirable improvements.

Here in this charming section of Maywood, ½ mile square, along the line of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago, the great third rail electric line, is evolving one of the most delightful residence suburbs west of Chicago.

Far enough away from the congested city life, it is the ideal place for the family home, with schools and churches convenient, yet very accessible for the head of the family, who must have rapid transit to and from business. This is provided by the splendid electric service, with 40 trains daily, with station conveniently located at 17th-av., right on the property.

Prices for half acre lots, $750 and upward, with convenient terms of payment.

Arrange to visit and examine the property. Call or write for plats.

FOR SALE— E. A. CUMMINGS & COMPANY'S BEAUTIFUL RIVER FOREST SUBDIVISION.

Here is THE IDEAL SPOT to plan the home for your family. The home ideal can be realized by buying one of the beautiful lots in this the smiling garden spot of all suburban Chicago. The very center of artistic homes. If you are not already acquainted with this beautiful, high class residence tract, don't fail to visit the property. Notice the high character of the surroundings, the well paved streets, large shade trees, the ideal home location for the family.

The beneficial building restrictions which prohibit flats and apartments insure the future value and desirability of the property.

Some of the choicest home sites can yet be secured.

We are selling these attractive residence lots, 50x125 feet—some larger—convenient to Oak Park Elevated, C. & N. W. suburban trains, Oak Park depot, and electric cars, at PRICES of $20 to $30 per front foot.

FOR SALE—HIGH LAKE. The ideal country homesite of an acre and up of choice agricultural land. The most charming playground for the children in Northern Illinois. Why not own one of these beautiful tracts of land where you can have a beautiful home, flowers, and gardens, chicken and cow, and where you can raise everything that can be raised in this section of the country and cut the cost of living one-half. Besides all of these advantages make an investment that is bound to prove absolutely safe and extremely profitable. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been entirely lost by those who invested their money in stocks and bonds and other securities in the past few years, while those who invested their spare funds in good real estate and lands have saved their money and added to it. Many have made handsome fortunes. We invite you to go out and see this most desirable property, compare it with every other homesite or investment chance. Transportation furnished. E. A. California.

FOR SALE—IN CALIFORNIA A MAN CAN work in shirt sleeves every day and sleep under blankets every night. No blizzards; no [illegible]; no cold weather; 350 warm, sunny days and 365 cool, restful nights sweeten and lengthen life. A continuous growing season means six to eight crops of alfalfa instead of one or two. Therefore, land is rapidly increasing in value and will go to fabulous prices eventually. I am selling level land in tracts of 5 acres upward on the Southern Pacific railroad in Fresno, the banner agricultural county. This land has an abundance of water, which I own. It is also in artesian district. It is located between two railroad stations, only four miles apart, and faces a main traveled oiled highway. Price, $60 an acre, one-third down and balance in one, two, and three years, at 6%; or, 10 per cent discount for all cash. Stocks and bonds and city lots go down, but farm land steadily rises, especially in sunny California. There will be a rush of land buyers after the opening of the great fair. Buy before prices advance, as they surely will. I have only 1,200 acres to sell. Remember, there is just so much land in the world and no more to be made. A. M. VALENTINE, Long Beach, Cal.

FOR SALE—CALIFORNIA, THE SUNSHINE state, where there's health and wealth in every acre, offers golden opportunities. Live out of doors the year round. Your groves, orchards, etc., assure you independence. Fine neighbors, fine schools, fine roads, fine hunting and fishing in nearby mountains make life worth while. For booklets about this wonderful state address Bureau of Publicity, Room [illegible], [illegible] S. La Salle-st., Chicago.

FOR SALE—HAVING PURCHASED LARGE tract of acreage adjoining and north of La Jolla, California, am now offering acres suitable for subdividing or for homes. A Michigan Bargain

Forty acres, just outside town of 1,800 population, together with a 50 ft. lot on a beautiful resort lake. Price only $7.50 per acre; $300 in all. Terms $10 down, $5 per month.

The land is adapted to alfalfa, trucking, fruit growing, poultry raising, etc. The resort lot is the ideal location for a summer home.

Farm land bought right is the best real estate investment. This country is developing rapidly, and the improvement of surrounding property should make this $7.50 per acre bargain worth at least $50 per acre.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Father and Son.

[Private Car Excursion Tuesdays, Oct. 6th and 20th.]

YESTERDAY one of my customers and his son from Riverside, Ill., called and said they were packing up and would move to their land next week. They had not intended going before next spring, but both being out of a job, which was the condition for which he had provided, they concluded they would go now and put their 80 acres in shape for crops next year. The father's only regret was that he had not bought another 80 acres for his son.

THIS CUSTOMER bought his land of me when I first came from my former home in Michigan and established offices in Chicago nine years ago. The purchase of this land has been a great satisfaction to him—providing against the rainy day—the place to go when the factory needed him no longer—the place of safety to put his savings, besides making a sound, profitable investment. He has the deed to his land, has saved up some money with which to farm, and altogether his future is bright. Since he bought, his land has actually gone up in value 667 per cent and it may sound funny, but to sell land those days at the price he paid was harder to do than it is now at prices very much higher.

WHAT MAKES SENTIMENT now so different toward Michigan from what it was ten years ago? It is ten years of progress on sandy loam soil which has demonstrated its adaptability to the most profitable branches of agriculture. It pays better to grow 150 to 250 bu. of potatoes to the acre in Michigan for 50c a bu. than 40 to 70 bu. of corn in Illinois for 62c a bu. It pays better to grow 20 to 30 bu. of navy beans in Michigan for $1.50 a bu. than wheat in any locality. Ours are clover farms that sustain cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry. We successfully grow corn, rye, wheat, oats, millet, timothy, alfalfa, and vetch. 90 per cent of all the farms in Michigan have beef or dairy cattle and our state stands seventh in the union in the production of milk, cream, butter, and cheese.

OUR COUNTIES, Mason, Manistee, Lake, and Wexford of Western Michigan have been forging ahead steadily as the result of an average 32 inches of rainfall quite evenly distributed over the growing season, combined with a moderated climate on account of nearness to Lake Michigan. The elements all seem favorable and the excellent transportation and markets are a great aid to our farming. Besides, there is health in the pure water and bracing air that makes the farmer want to plow and rise early to care for stock.

FARMING IS attracting the attention of the whole world. Close times first woke workingmen up to the fact that the farm is more dependable than the factory. That the European war means high prices for products was demonstrated this past week, when English, French, German, and Russian agents visited our Chicago stockyards and bought grain, hay, and meats at record prices and paid for them in gold.

THE FARMING SUBJECT is big enough and important enough so that to give one a comprehensive idea of farming in our district I have published a 72 page book containing 115 photographic views. It is free if you will drop a postal for it. Call for it if you can and also get a large map and see samples of our 1914 crops and 175 stereopticon views which are constantly being shown in my stereopticon room.

ALMOST ANY ONE who is in earnest about getting a farm home can meet my low prices and easy terms. I have lands—nearly 50,000 acres now, with recent fine additions—from $10 to $35 per acre, and a great deal of the best of them at $18 per acre. Terms as low as $10 to $50 down and $5 to $10 per month on 40 acres. An insurance feature in the contract is an added protection. When you move on the land, you will find us permanently organized to help you there. We have a seed supplying arrangement, operate demonstration farms, a large orchard, and employ agricultural instructors to go regularly from farm to farm, instructing the settlers and improving their methods, thereby getting larger crop returns.

MY NEXT PRIVATE CAR EXCURSIONS will be Tuesdays, Oct. 6th and Oct. 20th, by the P. M. R. R., leaving my Chicago offices at 11:20 a. m. Fare $8.20 round trip to Wellston; rebated on purchase. You get back to Chicago at 7:20 a. m. Thursday or Friday of the same wek. Automobiles and guides furnished free. Offices remain open Saturday afternoons and Monday evenings.

AUCTION SALE OF INDIAN LAND IN Southeastern Oklahoma.

Rainfall, 40-50 inches yearly.
Appraised value, $1.50 to $8.00 an acre.
The most important thing for the buyer of Indian land is to have it carefully located before buying. File your application for locating at our office. We locate each tract by number, according to the order in which they are received, and after checking legal descriptions, represent buyers at auction sale. As the sale takes place Nov. 2d it is important to file your application at once, so that we will have sufficient time to locate good tracts of land out of the 360,000 acres to be sold.
We charge a fee per acre in accordance to the number of acres each individual buys.
Terms: ¼ cash, balance 1, 2, and 3 years, 6% interest. No taxes for three years. Residence not necessary.
Limit: 160 acres agricultural; timber and grazing, unlimited.
The best land investment ever offered by the U. S. government. So file your application for location at once, for the time is short, at LAWRENCE HEYWORTH'S Office, Real Estate, Indian Reserve Dept., Room 600 Harvester Bldg., Cor. Harrison-st. and Michigan-av.

A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy.

SPECIAL VALUES NOW

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been entirely taken apart, each part examined, and if necessary replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory; the entire car repainted and refinished like new; all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is as good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performances of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service values, these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

THE WAR'S OPPORTUNITY—
After 6 years' experiments I have perfected a practical process for manufacturing a staple product, which before the war was imported by the millions of pounds from Europe.

The first unit of a working plant can be equipped for less than $2,500. I desire to connect, on an equitable basis, with some one who has the nerve and ability to furnish this sum. The demand for the product is immediate and immense, the profit large, the opportunity for establishing a permanent and profitable business unequaled.

References as to character and ability required and furnished. For particulars address P X 297, Tribune.

SPECIALTY MANUFACTURERS—NOW IS THE TIME to get South American business. Can you reach these markets without loss of time and wasteful experimenting in advertising and sales expense? Do you want to invade this field economically, effectively? You can avoid all pioneering losses. Our sales and credit organization relieves you of taking chances, puts you in touch with valuable trade, forces introduction of your goods, paves your way to prosperous business. Will you make a moderate investment to gain your foothold in this vast South American field? If so, write quick. South American Sales Corporation, Suite 601, 226 S. La Salle-st., Chicago, Ill.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY—
We own 19,000 acres of oil land; drilling is now in progress; some of the most successful oil men in the country, after a thorough investigation, have bought great quantities of land there, adjoining our land; we want some additional capital and will sell a limited amount of stock; if you desire a good investment with wonderful possibilities. NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY; PRESENT CONDITIONS MAKE THIS YOUR OPPORTUNITY.
Full particulars on application.
DES MOINES OIL CO., Des Moines, Ia.

FOR SIX YEARS I HAVE BEEN PUTTING on the business map, concerns needing the services of a man thoroughly experienced in advertising and sales promotion; I have secured distribution for the largest advertisers in this country, and am today handling six of them; my specialty has been the forlorn hopes both in merchandising and mail order; I save you the services of an advertiser manager and I DELIVER BEFORE I COLLECT; I want two more accounts, either beginners with a future or those who think they have reached their limit. THREE KILLED IN EXPLOSION IN A FIREWORKS FACTORY.

Hundred Others Injured and Heavy Damage Done by Blast in Jersey City Plant.

New York, Oct. 3.—[Special.]—An explosion in the Detwiller & Street fireworks factory in Jersey City today killed three men, injured a hundred others, destroyed half of the factory, and shook up Jersey City for a mile around.

Every window in the tenement houses in the neighborhood for a half dozen blocks were shattered. Store fronts along the street were blown in.

Fortunately no fire followed the explosion and the police and firemen were able to direct their efforts to rescuing the injured. Most of them were hurt by being caught under the falling wreckage.

The plant consisted of about forty buildings, each a story brick structure.

Fall Fatal to Baby.

Amelia Smoluck, 3 years old, died in the county hospital yesterday from injuries sustained in a fall from a third story window of her home at 710 Milwaukee avenue.

AIDS 7 STATES IN TRADE WORK

Chicago Association Thinks Foreign Field Too Big to Keep Alone.

SAMPLES IN ARGENTINA

The Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday the extension of its foreign trade efforts to seven states besides Illinois. Heretofore it has been the policy of the association to aid only its members in trade extension. The foreign trade situation is so important, however, that it was decided by the foreign trade committee and the board of directors to extend the aid of the association beyond Illinois.

A sample room in charge of F. C. Enright has been maintained by the association at Buenos Aires for more than a year. Samples from some members of the association have been exhibited there. Since the European war there has been a demand from Denver, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and other cities for an opportunity to exhibit in cities of South America.

Field Too Big.

"The field is entirely too large for one city in one state," said John J. Arnold, chairman of the foreign trade committee of the association.

"We want to extend the trade of the United States, and by letting in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Missouri, we are giving the benefits of our efforts to the middle west."

Mr. Arnold and Hubert Miller, manager of the association, have been in St. Louis, Cleveland, Cincinnati, and Washington for a week investigating the manufacturers there and the efforts which the manufacturers of those cities have been making to push foreign trade.

The announcement of the extension of the association's aid followed this visit. In Washington these men obtained considerable data from the government for use in extending the foreign trade campaign of the association.

Eyes on Australia.

The association not only has been looking toward the South American field, but Australia and Canada are considered important fields for export trade. One or two members of the association already have arranged to send salesmen to Australia to take advantage of the business there which is offered because of the European war.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association will give a luncheon at the Hotel La Salle tomorrow, at which the Canadian trade prospects will be discussed. Lieut. Gov. Cameron of Manitoba and James Keeley, editor of the Herald, will be the chief speakers at the luncheon.

DECATUR POLICE ARREST FORTY-TWO AS BOOTLEGGERS

Warrants Served on 561 Persons—City Jail Crowded with Prisoners.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 3.—What is declared to be the largest raid on alleged bootleggers ever made in Illinois was completed by the Decatur police today when a total of forty-two men and women were arrested. In all 561 warrants were served.

Under the direction of State's Attorney Deck a squad of detectives has been at work here for the last week obtaining evidence. Everything was kept quiet until the warrants were obtained and then the alleged bootleggers were gathered in by droves.

They filled the city jail to overflowing. The "dry" forces here are jubilant.

GOES HUNGRY TO BUY SHOES.

Frank Benidik Walks from Detroit to Find Brother John in Chicago.

Frank Benidik, who said he came to this country four months ago from Schmelnitz, Austria-Hungary, appeared hungry at the Chicago avenue station yesterday wearing a new pair of shoes. He had walked from Detroit and had been ten days on the road, he said.

"I want my brother," Benidik told Desk Sergeant Barnard.

He explained his brother, John, had been in Chicago fifteen years, but he didn't know his address or occupation. He said he worked for a farmer in Indiana two days and earned $2, which he invested in shoes.

AUTOIST RESORT STILL OPEN

"House That Jack Built" to Operate Despite Judgment Levy, Says Secretary.

"The House That Jack Built is just as firm and substantial as ever. We can take care of all the people who visit us. The place has been stripped of some beds, curtains, draperies, and a few other articles, but their absence does not interfere with our business."

Such was the statement yesterday of H. G. Wuerzinger, secretary and treasurer of The House That Jack Built company, Inc.

Two concerns levied on judgments awarded against the company on Friday.

RED WAGON BURGLARS BUSY.

Negroes Driving Bay Horse Loot Hyde Park Flat, Pretending to Be Expressmen.

Two negroes on a red wagon drawn by a bay horse yesterday drove up in front of the home of Alfred J. McDougal at 5334 Woodlawn avenue. They pretended to be expressmen, pried open the front door, ransacked the McDougal flat in the absence of the family, piled silverware, jewelry, clothing, cut glass, linen, and rugs into a trunk, carried the trunk out the front way, threw it into the vehicle, and drove away. Mr. McDougal values the property at $722.

AMERICAN IN A CELLAR UNDER FOUR DAYS' SHELLING

New York, Oct. 3.—Paul Petri, who was for four days under fire in Saarburg, has reached his home here and tells a thrilling story.

"There were several hundred other persons with me, and we crowded into a cellar and waited until the French had captured the town," said Mr. Petri.

"The next day the Germans shelled the town and the population retreated to the cellars again. A shell ripped off the roof of our house. This kept up for four days, when I managed to leave the town."

Fifth Government Statement

The Tribune publishes below, for the fifth time, the statement of ownership and circulation required by the United States Government.

The circulation figures of The Tribune, as reported under oath under the Newspaper Publicity Law since its enactment, are as follows:

Period Covered	Daily	Sunday
Six months ending Sept. 30, 1912 -	220,500	304,325
Six months ending March 31, 1913,	245,449	363,119
Six months ending Sept. 30, 1913 -	253,212	366,918
Six months ending March 31, 1914,	261,278	406,556
Six months ending Sept. 30, 1914 -	303,316	459,728

The Tribune's current statement shows a gain of 37% daily and 51% Sunday over the first statement and a gain of 16% daily and 13% Sunday over the last previous statement.

For the benefit of its advertisers, both local and national, The Tribune desires to state that its present net paid daily city circulation is greater than the combined net paid daily city circulation of the other Chicago morning papers.

The Tribune's present net paid city Sunday circulation is nearly three times as large as that of one of the othe Chicago Sunday papers an at least 15% greater than tha of the other one.

In total net paid circulation The Tribune, both dail and Sunday, is far in exces of either of the other morning papers.

As a result of this circulation supremacy, The Tribun prints nearly as much advertising as the other Chicag morning papers combined. Here is the official record fo the month of September, 191

Advertising printed by the Chicago morning papers for September, 1914:

The Tribune - - - - 3,349.28 cols.

The other Chicago morning papers combined - - 3,531.79 cols.
